America is second only to France in the annual value of its silk production. In 1900 70 per cent of the silk used in this country was manufactured here—an increase of 57 per cent since 1860 and of 15 per cent since 1890. America now produces 85 per cent of the silk ribbons annually sold here. The goods now principally imported from Europe are high-class novelties, hand-made silk laces, which are not produced here to any appreciable extent, but which will, without doubt, be made in due time. In 1900 the value of the imports of silk manufactures was $26,303,549; of the domestic product, $107,256,258.

Relics of Famous Men.

Twenty-three letters by Charles Lamb sold separately brought $2,018 in London recently, and eleven letters by Shelley sold in one lot brought $805. The original manuscripts of Keats' "Unfelt, Unheard, Unseen" and the "Hymn to Apollo" sold for $345 and that of parts of "Cap and Bells" $1,725.

CONGRESSMAN ALDRICH ENDORSES THE TONIC, PERUNA.

Says: "It Will Build Up a Depleted System Rapidly."

Hon. W. F. Aldrich, Congressman from Alabama, writes from Washington, D. C.

"This is to certify that Peruna, manufactured by The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., has been used in my family with success. It is a fine tonic and will build up a depleted system rapidly. I can recommend it to those who need a safe vegetable remedy for debility."—W. F. Aldrich.

H. S. Emory, Vice Chancellor and Master of Arms, K. P.'s, of Omaha, Neb., writes from 213 North Sixteenth street, the following words of praise for Peruna as a tonic. He says:

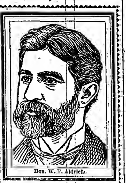
Catarrh of Stomach.

"It is with pleasure I recommend Peruna as a tonic of unusual merit. A large number of prominent members of the different Orders with which I have been connected have been cured by the use of Peruna of cases of catarrh of the stomach and head, also in kidney complaint and weakness of the pelvic organs.

"It tones up the system, aids digestion, induces sleep, and is well worthy the confidence of sufferers of the above complaints."—H. S. Emory.

Nervous Debility.

Everyone who is in the least degree subject to nervousness, sleeplessness, prostration, mental fatigue or nervous debility in any form, finds the hot weather of June, July and August very hard to bear, if not dangerous.



Hon. W. F. Aldrich.

The only safe course to take is to keep the blood pure, digestion good, and sleep regular. No remedy equals, in all respects, Peruna for these purposes. If the system is run down and weakened by catarrh, Peruna renovates and rejuvenates the nerves and brain.

A book on the catarrhal diseases of summer will be mailed to any address, upon request, by the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

The above testimonials are only two of 50,000 letters received touching the merits of Peruna as a catarrhal tonic. No more useful remedy to tone up the system has ever been devised by the medical profession.

A Well-Satisfied Girl.

At an old-fashioned revival meeting, the minister approached Minnie, who was only ten years old, and urged her to go forward to the "mourners' bench" for prayers, as many of her young friends had done.

"No, thank you," said Minnie, holding back.

"But why?" questioned the minister. "Don't you want to be born again?"

"No," replied Minnie. "I'm afraid I might be born a boy next time."—Brooklyn Life.

An Aquatic Fable.

A man in a row boat was once thrown into a stream. He set up a shout, as though he imagined the most important thing in the world would be to rescue him from the water.

His cries attracted the attention of a man on the bank, who picked up a sledge hammer and threw it to the drowning man, who increased the vehemence of his shouts.

Then the man on the bank threw a crowbar to the other and said:

"I could break into a bank or tear down an alibi with those tools. Strange if you persist in drowning after my efforts to save you."

Moral—As the man in the water was a fool who rocked the boat, it served him mighty right.—Judge.

Physicians Puzzled.

St. Aubert, Mo., Aug. 4th.—Mr. E. R. Langendorfer of this place suffered very severely with a peculiar case of Kidney Trouble, which completely baffled the skill of the local physicians, and, instead of getting any better, he was actually getting worse. He says: "A friend advised me to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and after I had used two boxes I was entirely cured, and have not since had the slightest symptoms of the return of my trouble.

"I had tried all the surrounding physicians, but they did me no good, and instead of getting better I grew worse, until I used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I can sincerely say to everyone suffering with Kidney Trouble that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure them, for they cured me satisfactorily and completely when all the doctors had failed."

Both Are Costly.

The Truly Remarkable.

"Do you think there is anything remarkable in love at first sight?" asked the romantic youth.

"Not at all," answered the cynic. "It is when people have been looking at each other for four or five years that it becomes remarkable."—Washington Star.

L. S. Hellanbeck, Chicago, Ill., says: "Being afflicted with Boils I purchased a box of Cole's Carbolisalve, applied freely a few times and I am more than pleased to say that they are cured. It was done, too, without taking any medicine or using anything but Cole's Carbolisalve."

The hypnotic entertainments given by Prof. Newmann here on Friday and Saturday evenings last were highly satisfactory to all who attended. In his mind reading experiments Prof. Newmann proved himself an expert and the hypnotic features were equally good. The blind fold drive early on Friday evening was one of the most successful ever made, the conditions being not altogether favorable.

Recovered His Coin.

A C. Adams tells of a rather peculiar incident. When he was a little boy his mother gave him a penny of the same year as his birth, his initials being cut on the coin, and he kept it for many years until his son Herman commenced a private bank account in his infancy. In Herman's bank the money was deposited and remained there for some time. Then somebody robbed the bank and the coin went with the rest.

It is now over twenty-two years since that bank robbery and yesterday, in making change, Mr. Adams was surprised and delighted to recover his long lost coin. He could easily identify it by his initials and the date and he says he will see to it that no one steals it again.

Announcement of Candidate.

I desire to announce to the voters of Red Lake county that I am a candidate for the nomination for register of deeds subject to the decision of the Peoples Party at the Primary Election to be held on September 16, 1902.

If nominated and re-elected I will continue the work which I have started of reforming and modernizing our system of records so as to make it second to none in the state of Minnesota.

Sincerely your servant,
SAMUEL GIBEAU.

County Superintendent.

Improved Postal Facilities.

With the rural mail routes and improved facilities for delivering mail, the volume of business handled by the postal department has increased wonderfully. Papers and magazines all over the country have taken advantage of the new conditions to work up tremendous circulations. These papers have been welcomed by all classes save one, the traveling mail clerk. His life is made a burden and the facts he must carry in his mind in order to do his work are surprising to outsiders. Eight hours of such nerve wearing work puts a man in need of golden grain belt beer. Pure, refreshing and invigorating, it rests and quiets one immediately. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Some Good Ball Playing.

The St. Hilaire ball team went to Red Lake Falls Sunday and played a good game of ball with the "Cyclones." The game was witnessed by a big crowd and, excepting the first three innings, the game was one of the finest seen in this county this season.

In the first three innings the St. Hilaire team showed poor form and, owing to errors in both the in and out fields the cyclones piled up eight runs. After that the boys got down to business and the remainder of the game was all in favor of the Saints and was splendidly played. The final score was: Red Lake Falls, 9; St. Hilaire, 4.

LIVE STOCK SHOW.

A Larger Exhibition Than Ever This Year at the Minnesota State Fair.

The Minnesota State Fair is the only one of the State Fairs which maintains each year a national exhibition of pure bred cattle. At this year's fair, which opens on Sept. 1st, exhibitions and sales will be held by the American Short-horn Breeders' Association and American Hereford Breeders' Association. These great associations of stock growers, which are the richest and most influential organizations of their kind in the world, make no other exhibitions at any other state fairs. They are so gratified with the results of showing at the Minnesota fair, that they will bring an increased number of animals this year, while the auction sales, which are a feature of these shows, will be crowded with the best from the finest herds in the country.

The auction sales and judging of these cattle take place in two great circus tents which are put up near the cattle barns on the fair grounds. It is one of the most interesting sights of the fair to see these magnificent cattle brought in for sale or for the judgment of experts of international reputation as to their points and value.

These great exhibitions by the Hereford and Short-horn people naturally stimulate all other breeders to send their best animals to the Minnesota fair. The enthusiasm has spread to the dairy cattle growers and this year the Holstein-Friesian Association will add a large amount to the State Fair premiums for its class and will make a large and attractive display. Other dairy breeds will be splendidly represented.

From this it will be seen that the State Fair of 1902 will be an excellent place in which to study the best of pure bred cattle and to buy animals or herds for stocking farms in the northwest. It is expected that the attendance of breeders and stock men will be enormous while the general farmers, who are annually taking more interest in stock raising, will flock to the fair in thousands.

The fair is held during the first week in September and one-half fare rates have been made on all railroads.

Farmers with an eye to business always insure their buildings against fire. $22.50 will buy $1,000 fire insurance for five years. Call on H. E. Ives.

Various Styles of Hairdressing.

The various styles of hairdressing under Louis XVI. were known as the cascade of St. Claud, the windmill, the sheep and lambs, the hen and chickens, the dog and hare, the peal of bells, the milkmaid, the bob wig, the bather, the kerchief, the oriental, the Circassian, Minerva's helmet, the crescent, the enigma, the desire to please, the turned up calash, the treasurer of the age, the frivolous bather, the rat, the drunken monkey and the lover's snare, the last named consisting of a mass of curls covered with powder, particles of which, deposited on the coat or shoulders of a gentleman, indicated the previous whereabouts of the lady's head.

A Pleasant Prospect.

A young man named Mooney enlisted in the army. After he had been in India for about five months he received a pathetic letter from his parents which said that if he did not send them some money they would be forced to go to the workhouse.

The young man sat down and answered the letter as follows:

"Dear Father and Mother—Try to keep out of the workhouse for six years and seven months until I come home, and then the three of us will go in together."—London Tit-Bits.

Effect of the Sun on Monuments.

The perpendicularity of a monument is visibly affected by the rays of the sun. On every sunny day a tall monument has a regular swing leading away from the sun. This phenomenon is due to the greater expansion of the side on which the rays of the sun fall. A pendulum placed inside, say, Nelson's column, in Trafalgar square, would be found to describe on every clear day an ellipse of nearly half an inch in diameter.—English Mechanic.

The Giant's Organ.

One of the most interesting features of the Giant's causeway is "the giant's organ." This huge "instrument" consists of a group of pillars of various lengths set apart on the side of the main cliff. The larger columns being in the center and the smaller ones tapering off on either side after the fashion of organ pipes admirably sustain the idea which the name "giant's organ" conveys.

Made a Difference.

Landlady—I will let this excellent room at reduced rates because there is a woman next door who plays the piano continually.

Applicant—Oh, that won't make any difference. The room is for my nephew here, and he is deaf.

Landlady—Ah, in that case I must charge the full price.

Home Information Bureau.

Hixon—Between me and my wife we know it all.

Dixon—How's that?

Hixon—She tells me everything that happens, and I tell her a lot of things that never happened.—Chicago News.

The Reversible Pursuit.

Paul—Percy, what is your idea of success?

Percy—My idea of success? Well, it is having people run after me who used to run away from me.—Detroit Free Press.

A Word

It was merely a word you said, dear,
  Merely a little word,
But the angels bent to listen
  And smiled as its sound they heard.
It sent the ripples breaking
  To the uttermost verge of the earth,
And it made a proud heart gladder
  And kindled a flame on the hearth.

It was merely a word you said, dear,
  You whispered it very low,
But the one who held and kissed you
  Was content to have it so.
Far off were age and sighing,
  And close were life and love;
Two set out to journey together,
  And the stars were shining above.

The Blue Carpet.

BY FANNY BURLING.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The last amen floated out from the vestry over the kneeling people bowed forward like a field of wheat before the wind. Upon the high altar the acolyte was smothering out the tall candles and to the rumble of the organ the congregation—that is, all but the Ladies' Aid—pulsed decorously down the crowded aisles to the day-lighted doorway.

But the Ladies' Aid poured itself into the vestry, as a green and gold snake pours itself into its hole, and, no longer awed by the sacredness of the sanctuary, demanded in a chorus of arpeggios and every tone of the scale, "Where is the carpet?"

"The carpet?" echoed the abstracted rector, his spirit still uplifted from his strenuous exhortation to his people to be good, to live the higher life, "the carpet?"

"Yes, yes, the carpet! Our carpet! It was here last night!" sang the chorus inharmoniously.

Their rector's thoughts slowly settled to earth. "The new blue carpet! The workmen finished putting it down at six o'clock yesterday! Who moved all those heavy pews, and took it up again before morning! Who took up the carpet?" rolled forth the chorus antiphonal and feminine.

The beautiful blue carpet which had been sewed for and sung for, and cooked for in Ladies' Aid meetings and musicales and rummage sales and fairs all winter long, their beautiful blue carpet, which had been finally selected and paid for, amid much argument, and at last had been laid upon the church floor with the careful supervision of the entire Ladies' Aid in conclave assembled only the day before; their beautiful blue carpet had been spirited away in the night.

That sunshiny Sabbath morning they had entered the house of worship, not one missing, to tread, not upon a soft, blue brilliance, but upon a noisy bare floor. The Ladies' Aid of the Church of the Redeemer rubbed its eyes and surreptitiously pinched itself, while the solemn service flowed on.

"Thou shalt not steal," declared Dr. Herrington, and softly the choir responded, "Have mercy upon us and incline our hearts to keep this law." "Who could have stolen their beautiful blue carpet, chanted the Ladies' Aid mentally, "and grant that this day we fall into no sin," murmured the people, "but that all our doings being ordered by thy governance—" where was their carpet? Verily the prayers of the Ladies' Aid flew upward and their thoughts remained below.

The president, Mrs. Frances Almeron Warren, resourceful and unafraid, asked the same question aloud in the vestry, where the clear mountain sunshine flooded the room with joyousness. Seeing no adequate solution in the group of fluttering ribbons and smart raiment—certainly not fashioned like unto Solomon's even in his glory, she demanded the clergy, the deacons, and the janitor. Thus it is that Woman, however independent, calls upon man in times of real stress and danger.

The clergy placed himself at her disposal, likewise the deacons.

Under rigid cross-examination the Senior Deacon did remember that coming home late the night before he had seen a light in the sacred edifice. The Junior Deacon, who had gone out to spy out the land, returned with the discovery of tracks of a wheelbarrow in the soft ground behind the church—though it might be a bicycle.

had seen a light in the sacred edifice.

Here the husband of Mrs. Frances Almeron Warren brought in Brown, the janitor, who was delivered to the president of the Ladies' Aid. He was young, with a suggested air of good breeding about his small, nervous hands, helpless eyes and sensitive lips under the drooping, soft mustache. Life had defeated him in the rather uncertain fight he had put up. Mrs. Frances A. Warren's husband took charge of the case.

"The carpet, Mr. Brown, was on the floor, as you are aware, at six o'clock last night. This morning it is gone. You are responsible for the care of the building. Did you see any light here last night?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you know who was here?"

"No one, sir, but me."

"What time did you leave here last night?"

"It was pretty late—after midnight."

"Was the carpet here then?" The Ladies' Aid held its breath.

The janitor did not answer. Mr. Warren repeated the inquiry.

"What have you done with the carpet?"

"No, sir,' hesitated the janitor, his eyes sticking to the floor.

The Ladies' Aid remembered to breathe, while the president had to grip her hands hard to keep from taking the case from her husband.

"See here, Mr. Brown," continued the prosecution, "you'd better tell the whole truth. What have you done with the carpet?"

Brown raised his long lashes and looked helplessly into the blue, brown, black and gray orbs of the Ladies' Aid. His glances clung to the tear-splashed face of the secretary.

"My wife wanted one so, ma'am,'" he murmured to the secretary.

"Wanted what?" cut in the crisp tones of the president.

"A carpet, ma'am,"—his regard still anchored in the tearful sympathetic secretary. "She hasn't any carpet. She used to have them at home before she was married. She wanted it, ma'am, and so I took it home to her, ma'am. She don't have much now."

The silence throbbed. The secretary wiped her eyes and Dr. Herrington went over and laid his benevolent hand upon the young fellow's shoulder.

"Did you take all that carpet up last night, Mr. Brown?" resumed Mr. Warren.

"Yes, sir," gulped the prisoner.

"And took it all home on a wheelbarrow?"

"Oh, no, sir! Just a part of it. Annie was so happy over it, sir. She tacked it all down to-day," added the janitor, almost enthusiastically.

"Where is the rest of it?" pursued Mrs. Frances Almeron Warren.

"In the basement," the gleam of sunshine vanishing from his face as if a lamp had been suddenly blown out.

There was a flutter among the Ladies' Aid.

"Do you know, Mr. Brown, that you have committed a crime and can be sent to the penitentiary?" demanded Mr. Warren severely.

The young fellow's sallow skin paled greenish-white.

"The pen; oh, sir, don't send me to the pen! What could Annie do without me?" His gaze besought the secretary.

"Thou shalt not steal," said the president of the Ladies' Aid, impressively.

A sweet spring wind from the blue Utah sky waved the gay plumage of the Ladies' Aid, and a murmur stirred among them.

"Ladies," interposed the rector, "if Mr. Brown replaces the carpet at once upon the floor, and says that it was, can we not forgive him this time?"

The Ladies' Aid tinkled and fluttered and nodded like a summer garden full of birds.

"Come into my study, my son," commanded the rector, and he and the janitor passed out.

Whereupon the chorus and arpeggios of musical voices, tearful, pitying, excited, resentful, thankful, immediately resumed to the only way to resume.

"Ladies," suggested the subdued president, finally, "there is the old vestry carpet—couldn't we give her that?"

On the following Lord's Day the red vestry carpet covered the floor of the adobe house on Seventh West, rejoicing to the uttermost the heart of the janitor's wife, while the feet of the Ladies' Aid sank into the blue softness of the carpet for which so much had been sacrificed.

DO IT YOURSELF, MY BOY!

Wise Words for Younger Generation to Ponder Over.

Why do you ask the teacher or some classmate to solve that hard problem? Do it yourself. You might as well let some one else eat your dinner as "do your sums" for you.

It is in studying as in eating; he that does it gets the benefit, not he that sees it done. In almost any school I would give more for what the teacher learns than for what the best pupil learns, simply because the teacher is compelled to solve all the hard problems and answer the difficult questions for the lazy boys.

Do not ask the teacher to parse all the difficult words, or to assist you in the performance of any of your duties. Do it yourself. Do not ask for even a hint from anybody. Try again.

Every trial increases your ability, and you will finally succeed by dint of the very wisdom and strength gained in this effort, even if at first the problem is far beyond your skill. It is the study and not the answer that really rewards your pains.

Look at that boy who has succeeded after six hours, perhaps of hard study. How his eye is lit up with a proud joy as he marches to his class!

He recites like a conqueror, and well he may. His poor, weak schoolmate, who gave up that same problem after the first faint trial, now looks upon him with something of wonder, as a superior. The problem lies there—a great gulf between those boys who stood, yesterday, side by side. They will never stand together as equals again.

The boy that did it for himself has taken a stride upward, and what is better still, gained strength for greater ones. The boy who waited to see others do it has lost both strength and courage, and is already looking for some excuse to give up both school and study forever.

WAITER'S CLEVER RUSE.

Tip Was Violation of Club Rules, but He Got It.

Robert Luce of Somerville, the author and champion in the Massachusetts legislature of the Luce bill for primary elections which has been one of the features of this season's session, was recently in New York to look after his business interests here, says the New York Times. While in the metropolis he delighted a party of friends with a story about a certain nameless club in Boston which has strict regulations against gambling.

A quartet of club members decided to break that rule by a game of poker for small stakes. So they adjourned to one of the small rooms of the club and called the old colored servant to bring a pack of cards. When he brought them, one of the members queried:

"John, I suppose it would be something utterly new in this club if we should do such a thing as play for money with these cards?"

The negro scratched his head and deliberated, finally answering:

"Boss, I'se been wiv dis club a long time and I'se seen many things."

"Yes, but what have you seen?"

"Ise seen ebry rule ob dis club vi'lated 'ceptin' one."

"What rule is that one?"

"De rule 'gainst gibbin' tips to de serbants."

And straightway that rule was relieved of its lonesomeness among its fellows.

Had Many to Come.

During the progress of a Prohibition wave that swept over Rochester, N. Y., some twenty-five years ago, the excited popular feeling resulted in the appointment of a committee of the city fathers who were empowered to investigate the local excise situation and to whom was given power to summon witnesses before them. Among those who were thus called was the late "Sam" Wilder, well known to all Rochesterians as a citizen of wealth and high social position, as a man of the world in the best sense of the phrase, and as a wit and good fellow generally. After answering many questions bearing on his personal knowledge of the matter under investigation, one of the committee finally put forward this rather direct query:

"Mr. Wilder, where did you get your last drink?"

Quick as a flash, and with comical seriousness, came "Sam's" reply:

"Please God, I haven't had it yet!"

Her Sad Fate.

She once was the queen of her fashion-crazed set, the fairest young quail in the covey;
A picture of beauty and eye-dazzling style, with eyes most expressively dovey.
Her walk was a sweet revelation of grace, a soft, dreamy poem of motion,
Her form undulating in willowy curves as smooth as the swells of the ocean.
Her hand at the terpsichorean blowouts was sought by the masters of dancing.
Her cling in the dreamy embrace of the waltz they said was just simply entrancing.
But now in seclusion she wrestles with pain, a truly disconsolate daughter,
Her beautiful anburbs in bandages swathed. The ping p'pong ankle has got 'er!

Hindu Newspaper Work.

A Hindu editor found it necessary to suspend the publication of his paper for a fortnight without a warning. When the paper again made its appearance it contained this announcement: "We regret that, owing to misunderstanding with a rival editor, to which we failed to get all the best of the argument, it was necessary for us to retire unexpectedly from the conduct of this paper for the space of two weeks, during which we have had opportunity of devising certain improvements which we propose to introduce into it. The rival editor, we regret to report, is still confined to his home."

CURING A BALKY HORSE.

Simple Methods May Be Employed Without Using the Whip.

An expert states that the vice of balking in horses is almost invariably caused by improper breaking and handling of the animal while young. It is only high-strung and ill-tempered horses that balk, and these are handled with more success by humoring and patience than by severe measures, which generally make matters worse. It is almost impossible to follow rules in a case of this sort. What will succeed in one case is useless in another, so that a driver must exercise good judgment—"horse sense"—in handling a case. A very good treatment is to watch the animal closely in places where it would be likely to balk, and with the first sign of stopping the driver should say "Whoa," then get off and loosen or pretend to change the harness in some way; also take up a foot and tap the shoe with a stone. Spend a few moments leisurely in this way and in nine cases out of ten the animal will forget his inclination to balk and will go on at the first bidding. It is also well to give a lump of sugar or a handful of oats or an apple. This will always produce better results than severe measures.

MADE A GREAT DIFFERENCE.

Railroads Are Great Conveniences When They Cause No Discomfort.

Secretary Shaw, the humorist of the present administration, tells this story:

"I stopped off at Syracuse not a great while ago and listened to two men talking about the tremendous business development of this country in which everybody was sharing. One of them was making the point that the general prosperity was for the benefit of the entire community.

"'Look at this great railroad, with its four tracks running east and west,' he said. 'It is a highway of empire, carrying each day to the Atlantic or the Pacific the product of the factory, the mine and the loom. Wipe it off the map and everything comes to a standstill and we become involved in a common ruin.'

"Just then the empire state express came rushing along and a red-hot cinder struck the speaker in the eye.

"'D—— these engines!' said he. 'I wish there was not a railroad in the country.'"

Just a "Bare" Suggestion.

In the busy corridor of a downtown hotel the other day a woman and a man were talking earnestly, evidently of business. To the woman's gown clung a mite of a girl, says the New York Post, some 4 or 5 years old, dressed all in white, with baby-blue ribbons and cunning sunburned legs, but without the usual white stockings. She was an unusually beautiful child, but her feet were the magnets for all eyes, for they were bare, and protected from the pavement only by sandals, the fastenings of which were passed between her toes in true ancient style.

"'Cute, isn't it?" remarked an observant fat man to a stranger.

"Good idea," was the reply.

"I wonder how I'd look with that kind of foot rig," continued he of the 250 pounds.

"Awful cute," answered the stranger. "You might try the baby-blue ribbons, too."

And then they both hustled away to the lunchroom.

It Didn't Matter.

A well-known musician relates an experience of his as a teacher.

One day a lady, somewhat advanced in years, came to make arrangements for taking private lessons in singing. At the end of the second lesson the teacher felt constrained to tell her that her ear was not true. She received the remark very coolly, and at the next lesson sang as badly as she had done on the previous occasion.

"I am afraid," said Mr. E——, "that you can never learn to sing in tune."

"Oh, it doesn't matter!" was the reply.

"Doesn't matter?" said the astonished teacher.

"No," said the pupil. "I don't care anything about music, but my doctor said that singing would be the best thing for my dyspepsia, and so I decided to take lessons."

A Severe Test.

"You have taken a severe cold," said the old family doctor, "and it seems to have settled in your throat."

"Yes, doctor, you see I can hardly speak," said the patient, a vivacious, bright-eyed young woman.

"Can you stand heroic treatment, do you think?" asked the doctor.

"Try me."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, anything you like; medicine, mustard plasters, electricity—anything," said she, in a breath.

"And you want to get back your voice?"

"Yes."

"It's a heroic treatment, mind you."

"Oh, all right—what is it?"

"You mustn't talk at all for two days!"

American Silk Manufacture.

America is second only to France in the annual value of its silk production. In 1900 70 per cent of the silk used in this country was manufactured here—an increase of 67 per cent since 1860 and of 15 per cent since 1890. America now produces 35 per cent of the silk ribbons annually sold here. The goods now principally imported from Europe are high-class novelties, hand-made silk laces, which are not produced here to any appreciable extent, but which will, without doubt, be made in due time. In 1900 the value of the imports of silk manufactures was $26,303,549; of the domestic product, $107,256,258.

Relics of Famous Men.

Twenty-three letters by Charles Lamb sold separately brought $2,018 in London recently, and eleven letters by Shelley sold to one lot brought $805. The original manuscripts of Keats' "Unfelt, Unheard, Unseen" and the "Hymn to Apollo" sold for $345 and that of parts of "Cap and Bells" $1,725.

CONGRESSMAN ALDRICH ENDORSES THE TONIC, PERUNA.

Says: "It Will Build Up a Depleted System Rapidly."

Hon. W. F. Aldrich, Congressman from Alabama, writes from Washington, D. C.

"This is to certify that Peruna, manufactured by The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., has been used in my family with success. It is a fine tonic and will build up a depleted system rapidly. I can recommend it to those who need a safe vegetable remedy for debility."—W. F. Aldrich.

H. S. Emory, Vice Chancellor and Master of Arms, K. P.'s, of Omaha, Neb., writes from 213 North Sixteenth street, the following words of praise for Peruna as a tonic. He says:

Catarrh of Stomach.

"It is with pleasure I recommend Peruna as a tonic of unusual merit. A large number of prominent members of the different Orders with which I have been connected have been cured by the use of Peruna of cases of catarrh of the stomach and head; also in kidney complaint and weakness of the pelvic organs.

"It tones up the system, aids digestion, induces sleep, and is well worthy the confidence of sufferers of the above complaints."—H. S. Emory.

Nervous Debility.

Everyone who is in the least degree subject to nervousness, sleeplessness, prostration, mental fatigue or nervous debility in any form, finds the hot weather of June, July and August very hard to bear, if not dangerous.

Hon. W. F. Aldrich.

The only safe course to take is to keep the blood pure, digestion good, and sleep regular. No remedy equals, in all respects, Peruna for these purposes. If the system is run down and weakened by catarrh, Peruna renovates and rejuvenates the nerves and brain.

A book on the catarrhal diseases of summer will be mailed to any address, upon request, by the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

The above testimonials are only two of 50,000 letters received touching the merits of Peruna as a catarrhal tonic. No more useful remedy to tone up the system has ever been devised by the medical profession.

A Well-Satisfied Girl.

At an old-fashioned revival meeting the minister approached Minnie, who was only ten years old, and urged her to go forward to the "mourners' bench" for prayers, as many of her young friends had done.

"No, thank you," said Minnie, holding back.

"But why?" questioned the minister. "Don't you want to be born again?"

"No," replied Minnie. "I'm afraid I might be born a boy next time."—Brooklyn Life.

An Aquatic Fable.

A man in a row boat was [illegible] into a stream. He set up a shout, as though he imagined the most important thing in the world would be to rescue him from the water.

His cries attracted the attention of a man on the bank, who picked up a sledge hammer and threw it to the drowning man, who increased the vehemence of his shouts.

Then the man on the bank threw a crowbar to the other and said:

"I could break into a bank or tear down an alibi with those tools. Strange if you persist in drowning after my efforts to save you."

Moral—As the man in the water was a fool who rocked the boat, it served him mighty right.—Judge.

Physicians Puzzled.

St. Aubert, Mo., Aug. 4th.—Mr. E. R. Langendorfer of this place suffered very severely with a peculiar case of Kidney Trouble, which completely baffled the skill of the local physicians, and, instead of getting any better, he was actually getting worse. He says: "A friend advised me to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and after I had used two boxes I was entirely cured, and have not since had the slightest symptoms of the return of my trouble.

"I had tried all the surrounding physicians, but they did me no good, and instead of getting better I grew worse, until I used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I can sincerely say to everyone suffering with Kidney Trouble that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure them, for they cured me satisfactorily and completely when all the doctors had failed."

KING IS CROWNED

EDWARD VII. ACCLAIMED IN WESTMINSTER WITH IMPOSING CEREMONY.

SCENE IS RICH IN PAGEANTRY

VAST CROWDS WITNESS PROCESSION AND CHEER THEMSELVES HOARSE.

BELLS RING AND CANNONS ROAR

KING EDWARD BORE FATIGUES OF THE PROTRACTED CEREMONY WELL.

London, Aug. 11.—Edward the Seventh was Saturday crowned king of Great Britain and Ireland and of all the British dominion beyond the seas. The abbey of Westminster was crowded with the nobles of the realm. The interior of the historic structure was filled with a brilliantly arrayed assemblage of peers and peeresses, their robes of crimson and ermine and their dashing jewels presenting a scene of splendor so indescribable as to almost baffle the brush of the painter.

When the king's crown was finally placed upon his head the great bells of St Margaret pealed a chiming signal to the guns, and the reverberations of the cannon that thundered the royal salute to his majesty were drowned in the shouts of the people who crowded the stands and lined the streets.

The king bore the fatigues of the protracted ceremony well and returned to the palace smiling and with a happy look upon his face.

But it was the people who really formed the feature of the day's events.

Streets Are Packed.

The crowd began to gather about 4 o'clock in the morning, many men having slept in the parks to be on hand early. By 6 o'clock carriages were rolling in black streams toward the abbey. By 9 o'clock the last guest had entered the abbey, the stands in the streets were filled and all waited patiently for the coming of the king.

The expectant crowd had been waiting for hours before there was any special sign of life within the yard of Buckingham palace. Not until 9:30 were the coaches with their outriders and escorts seen moving into the carriage road which led from the royal stables.

At 10:30 the procession moved slowly out of the palace gates into the Mall.

First came a group of mounted officers of the headquarters staff in red and gold uniforms, stars and medals sparkling on their breasts.

Then came eight coaches with outriders and escorts, the coaches containing the king's brothers and other members of his family and also a few foreign royalties who were relatives.

Following them with another troop of household cavalry was a coach, only less splendid than the king's own, in which were the prince and princess of Wales. The coach was drawn by six jet black horses with flowing tails.

Do Some Shouting.

The crowd, which up to this time had been murmuring applause, broke into cheers as this coach came in sight. The prince and princess acknowledged the cheers by bowing cordially to right and left.

Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener, surrounded by a brilliant staff, came next, and then a detachment of yeomen of the guard in ancient uniforms and carrying halberds, or long-poled axes. The crowd were all eyes for Kitchener, whom they cheered frantically.

The crowd was hardly through shouting with admiration when more waving plumes of the household cavalry betokened the king's approach. Drawn by eight cream-colored horses, with their outriders and escort, the cavalcade presented a splendid appearance. The king and queen, not wearing their crowns, were easily visible through the coach windows.

The carriages drove up and left their occupants at Westminster abbey in the same order in which they left Buckingham palace.

The procession into the abbey was a notable one, with the queen a central figure of its rich and picturesque pageantry. But it was the king who had the center of the stage, and in a crimson robe with an enormous train, the collar of the Order of the Garter, and on his head was a crimson cap in place of a crown.

Very Imposing He Looked

A bishop supported the king on either side and six noblemen bore his train.

The last words of the anthem were being sung when the king and queen, after kneeling for a moment in silent prayer, took seats which had been provided for them below their thrones.

The archbishop of Canterbury, preceded by the garter king of arms and accompanied by the great lord chamberlain, the lord chancellor, the lord high constable and the earl marshal, stepped to the king's side and in a clear voice said:

"Sirs, I here present unto you King Edward, the undoubted king of this realm; wherefore all you who are come this day to do your homage, are you willing to do the same?"

Immediately everybody in the abbey shouted "God save King Edward, God save the king."

After the oath and an anthem the dean of Westminster went to the altar and took from it a dish of oil, the dish shaped like a loving cup. With it he took a spoon which he presented to the archbishop of Canterbury, and the archbishop, dipping the spoon in the oil, poured some of it on the king's head, saying:

"Be thy head anointed with holy oil as kings, priests and prophets were anointed."

Archbishop in Difficulty.

Again filling the spoon the archbishop, with some difficulty, found a hole which had been cut in the king's shirt for the [illegible], and poured it through upon the king's breast, saying:

"Be thy breast annointed with holy oil."

After this oil was put in the palms of the king's hands and the anointing was complete.

Then the ceremony came to its climax. The archbishop of Canterbury and the bishops advanced to where the king sat and the archbishop very slowly placed the crown on the king's head. There was absolute silence and then the moment the crown touched the king's brow every one shouted loudly and well together, "God save the king." The heralds blew their trumpets and outside guns fired a salute. At the same moment the peers and the kings-at-arms put on their coronets.

The archbishop of York then crowned the queen in much the same manner as the king had been crowned, but with a less elaborate ritual.

As the crown was placed on her head all the peeresses put on their coronets.

Then came an interesting incident. In passing to her throne, which she took without further ceremony, the queen bowed low before the king in token of homage.

The departure of the king and queen from the abbey was signaled by another salute, the massed bands playing "God Save the King." The entire route of their majesties' return to the palace was marked by similar to those which greeted their progress to the abbey, the more circuitous route through Clubland and Constitution hill giving the hundreds of thousands of persons occupying the stands, windows and roofs an opportunity of greeting the new crowned king and his consort before they reentered Buckingham palace, which they did in the midst of remarkable scenes of enthusiasm, the entire crowd from Constitution hill downward joining in singing the national anthem.

Shortly after the return of the king and queen to the palace it was officially announced from there that the king had borne the ceremony well, and that he had suffered in no way from fatigue, and this was confirmed by the presence of the king himself, when, in response to the repeated plaudits of the crowds, his majesty, accompanied by the queen, appeared on the balcony in their robes and crowns. The faces of both were suffused with smiles as they bowed repeatedly their recognition of the warmth of the applause.

While the coronation was being solemnized in London celebrations and rejoicings were carried on throughout the colonies, numerous telegrams to the king conveyed the congratulations of representative bodies everywhere, salutes were fired, and church services were held. Australia confined itself to religious services, having spent all the money gathered for the postponed event of June 26 for charities. Similar services were held by the British communities in all the European capitals and chief cities of the continent.

EDWARD STANDS IT WELL.

Royal Physicians Give Out Their Last Bulletin.

London, Aug. 11.—The festivities in London were continued yesterday. There were considerable crowds almost all day long in the vicinity of Buckingham palace and along the route of Saturday's procession, viewing the decorations and watching the flow of notable personages to and from the various thanksgiving services.

In spite of the welcome announcement made Saturday night that King Edward had borne the fatigues of coronation day well, yesterday's bulletin concerning his health was awaited with a certain degree of anxiety. The bulletin is as follows:

"His majesty bore the strain of the coronation ceremony perfectly well and experienced but little fatigue. The king had a good night and his condition is in every way satisfactory. No further bulletin will be issued."

After the posting of the bulletin there was still some doubt as to whether his majesty would drive out during the day, but the small crowd which remained at Buckingham palace, hopeful to see the sovereign, was finally rewarded by the appearance of the king and queen. Their majesties drove along the Mall to St. James palace without receiving any notable demonstration from the people. Tickets to the chapel royal had been sparely granted. The service was very simple and there was no sermon.

TRACEY A SUICIDE

WOUNDED AND SURROUNDED, NOTORIOUS DESPERADO KILLS HIMSELF.

TRAGIC END OF LONG MAN-HUNT

CORNERED AFTER BAFFLING OFFICERS OF TWO STATES FOR WEEKS.

LEAVES BLOODY TRAIL BEHIND

HAS KILLED THIRTEEN MEN SINCE HIS ESCAPE FROM OREGON PRISON.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 7.—Harry Tracey, the notorious outlaw who, June 9, with David Merrill, escaped from the Oregon penitentiary at Salem, killed himself early yesterday morning, after being wounded by the rifle of one of the posse in pursuit.

Tracey Tuesday night was surrounded in a wheat field near Fellows, a station on the Washington Central railroad about fifty miles west of Spokane. Word was sent back to Davenport, the county seat, and a large number of armed men hurried to the scene. Tracey was hunted down by a posse of Creston citizens. Surrounded, he engaged in a running battle with his pursuers.

His leg was broken by a bullet, and an artery bled profusely. He crept into a wheat field and tried to tie up the artery. Becoming desperate, he evidently put his revolver to his head and fired a bullet into his brain.

At daylight yesterday morning his body was found, already cold.

Killed Thirteen Men.

After baffling the officers of two states; after a wonderful flight of nearly 400 miles across Oregon and Washington, in which he killed thirteen men, Tracey was hunted down by four citizens of the little farming town of Creston and a sole deputy sheriff. Sheriff Gardner and posse arrived in time to guard the wheat field through the night, but the work had already been done.

The posse that will share the reward of $4,100 was made up as follows: C. A. Straub, deputy sheriff; Dr. E. C. Lantes, Maurice Smith, attorney; J. J. Morrison, railway section foreman, and Frank Lillengeh. These men, armed to the teeth, set out from Creston Tuesday afternoon about 2 o'clock. They were working on the information of the Goldfinch youth, who had been forcibly made the companion of the Oregon convict for over twenty-four hours at the ranch of L. B. Eddy on Lake creek, about three miles south from Fellows. The party in getting to the ranch. When within a few hundred yards of the farm they encountered Farmer Eddy mowing in one of his fields. While engaging him in conversation they saw a man issuing from the barn door.

Made All Possible Haste,

"Is that Tracey?" asked one of the party.

"It surely is," replied Eddy.

The party separated, Lanter and Smith accompanying Eddy in the direction of the barn, while the other two men swung around to the other side.

Two of the man hunters stopped behind the barn on a slight eminence, on which they could watch everything that went on, and Eddy continued on up to the door. Tracey came from the barn again and began helping his host unhitch the horses. He carried no rifle, although he had his revolvers in place. The fugitive finally saw the men carrying rifles, and, turning sharply to Eddy, said: "Who are those men?"

"I don't see any men," said Eddy.

Tracey pointed out the two men on the hill. Eddy informed his companion who the men were, and the

Outlaw Made a Leap

for the barn door. The pursuers, stepping a bit closer, commanded "Hold up your hands!"

The outlaw jumped behind Eddy and placed first the farmer and then his horse between himself and the pursuers. He commanded the farmer to lead his horse to the barn, and, remaining under cover, moved toward shelter.

When near the stable he broke and dashed inside. He quickly reappeared, rifle in hand, and started on a dead run. Turning on the two men nearest him, the desperado fired two shots, but without his usual luck, neither bullet taking effect. Without waiting for further fighting Tracey made a dash down the valley leading south from the barn and headed for the brush. In an instant the man hunters were off in pursuit, firing as they ran. Coming to a rock, Tracey dodged behind it, and, resting his gun on the rock, began a fusillade. Eight shots in all were fired by the outlaw, but

Not One Hit Its Mark.

Seeing that he was not succeeding, he bolted for a wheat field near by. At the edge of the field he stumbled and fell upon his face, then crawled into the grain on his hands and knees.

It was growing dark, and the pursuers not daring to move in closer, decided to surround the place and wait for daylight. As soon as dawn came an entrance was made into the wheat field and Tracey's dead body was found lying in the grain, with his face turned toward the sky. His left hand thrown over his head held a revolver which had inflicted the death wound. The top of his head was badly shattered.

The bullet wounds on the left leg showed the cause of the man's despondency. A shot had broken the leg between the ankle and the knee. The other cut the tibial artery, which was of itself sufficient cause for death.

Assault Then Murder.

Hoquiah, Wash., Aug. 7.—At the police station here Joseph Stockheimer shot and killed Frank S. Aegers, his brother-in-law, who had caused his arrest for assaulting him. Stockheimer had pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and paid a fine, when he sought out Aegers and shot him dead.

Ottumwa, Iowa, Aug. 7.—Lawrence Ford, one of the most prominent druggists in this city, has mysteriously disappeared. Foul play is suspected.

SOUTH DAKOTA LEADS.

Amount of Revenue Tax Collected Exceeds North Dakota Record.

Aberdeen, S. D., Aug. 11.—The first annual report of the internal revenue collector's office in this city shows that nearly $200,000 has been collected during the year. Of this amount South Dakota paid about two-thirds. South Dakota leads over North Dakota in the number of liquor licenses, in dealers of manufactured tobacco, wholesalers in malt; also in banks, billiard halls and breweries.

SANDSTONE MAN MURDERED.

Body Is Found Lying Beside Railroad Tracks in Utah.

Echo, Utah, Aug. 11.—A body identified by papers as that of John McDonald of Sandstone, Minn., was discovered alongside the Union Pacific tracks west of here. An ugly hole, apparently inflicted by some dull instrument, appears on the back of the head, and the body is otherwise bruised and mangled. The authorities believe McDonald was killed by tramps, their purpose being robbery.

BOY WRECKS A TRAIN.

Youth at Omaha Makes a Startling Confession.

Omaha, Aug. 11.—Delbert Preston, a fifteen-year-old boy, has made a confession to the authorities of having caused the wreck of a passenger train on the Rock Island near South Omaha July 24, by which one man was killed and several others injured. According to his story he was spending an idle hour on the track and picked up an iron spike, which he inadvertantly left lying on the rail, with the head toward the coming passenger train.

OIL GUSHER IN MICHIGAN.

Petroleum Has Already Covered Several Acres.

Mass City, Mich., Aug. 11.—While digging for water on his homestead near here John Pearson encountered a vein of oil which gushed out in large volume. Already the petroleum has covered several acres some inches deep and a lake is being rapidly formed, no apparatus being at hand to stop the flow. The oil is of excellent quality and appears to be inexhaustible in quantity.

PASSENGERS SHAKEN UP.

West-Bound Train on the Chicago Great Western is Wrecked.

Galena, Ill., Aug. 11.—Passenger train No. 9 on the Chicago Great Western, west-bound, was wrecked one mile west of Elizabeth while running thirty miles an hour. The track under the tender gave way, throwing the coaches onto their sides. Thirty passengers on the train were badly shaken up, and several sustained slight injuries.

POSSE IS PRAISED

CORONER'S JURY RETURNS VERDICT AS TO THE DEATH OF TRACEY.

OUTLAW GOT HIS JUST DESERTS

NOTHING BUT PRAISE FOR THOSE WHO HUNTED HIM DOWN.

GHASTLY WORK OF VANDALS

RELIC HUNTERS STRIP EVERYTHING FROM THE DEAD MAN'S BODY.

Davenport, Wash., Aug. 9.—Tracey's body is on its way to Salem, Or. It was last night taken to Moscow, a station on the Great Northern ten miles from here, to be conveyed over that road to Seattle. The coroner's jury returned the following verdict:

"That the body is that of Harry Tracey, the escaped convict from the Oregon penitentiary; that the said Harry Tracey came to his death at the ranch of Louis Eddy in Lincoln county, Wash., on Aug. 5, 1902, by means of a gunshot wound from a pistol in his possession and held in his own hands, after first having been wounded in the right leg by a party or parties to the jury unknown; that Harry Tracey was an escaped convict from the Oregon Penitentiary, and at the time of his death was fleeing from officers and posses in pursuit, and that no one is blamed for the death, but that all efforts to capture him were praiseworthy and in full accordance with the laws of Washington."

VANDALISM IN MORGUE.

Morbid Relic Hunters Seize Anything Belonging to Tracey.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 9.—When the sheriff, with the body of Tracey, drove through Davenport the town went wild. Several persons were allowed to see the body and then trouble began. Every one wanted a relic and in a short time nothing was left but the body. Some person even picked up the blood-stained handkerchief which had been used by Tracey to keep from bleeding to death. Before he could carry the awful relic away he had to do it up in paper, as it was too wet to place in his pocket.

Squabble Over Tracey Reward.

Portland, Or., Aug. 9.—It is probable that the $4,100 reward for Harry Tracey's body will not be paid for some time owing to the number of claimants. The body will be taken to Salem at the conclusion of the inquest at Davenport, Wash.

KILLED IN A MINE.

Disastrous Explosion Causes Death and Destruction.

Trinidad, Colo., Aug. 9.—A disastrous explosion occurred at No. 3 mine at Bowen, a small camp about ten miles north of this place. Thirteen lives are known to have been lost. The exact number of men working on the night shift, and in the mine at the time of the explosion, is unknown. The mine is operated by the Union Coal Company of Denver, and is a slope mine, situated on the mountain side and about 400 yards from the tipple below. The explosion occurred about 800 feet from the mouth of the slope, and was caused by fire damp. Immediately after the night shift started in the slope a startling explosion occurred, entirely filling the mouth of the slope with debris and shaking buildings and breaking windows for a mile distant.

Rescuers Were Delayed.

Owing to the mouth of the slope being blocked the rescuers were delayed, but succeeded in reaching part of the men through an old slope and eight dead bodies were brought out. The mine is filled with gas and smoke and the rescuers are afraid of after damp and are unable to stay in the mine long. Mothers, wives and children of the dead and imprisoned miners are almost crazed with grief and the scene presented at the mouth of the mine is a most pathetic one.

The powder house in the mine, usually containing 1,000 pounds of powder, blew up, causing great disaster. The general belief is that the entire mine has been ruined, and, if not, it will take months to get it in working order again. The rescuing party is pushing forward with all possible speed, and before many hours the exact number of lives lost and the total amount of damage can be determined.

GREAT BANK IS ON ITS CAREER.

International Banking Corporation Ready to Work.

New York, Aug. 9.—The International Banking corporation of this city, with officers and branches in various parts of the world, announces that it is now ready for business. The corporation was organized some months ago under the laws of Connecticut, with a paid-up capital and surplus of $6,000,000, and an authorized capital and surplus of $10,000,000. Perhaps one of the most notable things about this new bank is the wealth and influence represented in the financial world by its directors. As a banker said yesterday morning: "If they don't own the earth, they at least represent a very considerable part of the United States." The bank has already been appointed fiscal agent for the United States in China and the Philippines. The bank has actually been doing business in Manila since Jan. 9.

M'MILLAN IS DEAD

UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM MICHIGAN DROPS OFF SUDDENLY.

HEART FAILURE CAUSE OF DEATH

BREATHES HIS LAST AT SUMMER HOME AT MANCHESTER-BY-THE-SEA.

WAS SICK BUT A FEW HOURS

FRIENDS IN WASHINGTON ARE SHOCKED AT SUDDENNESS OF BLOW.

Washington, Aug. 11.—A dispatch was received here announcing the death of Senator James Mc Millan of Michigan early yesterday at his summer home at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass.

Death was the result of heart failure, following congestion, after an illness of a very few hours.

The news came as a great shock to his friends here, for when the senator left Washington, shortly after the adjournment of congress he appeared to be in good health and looked forward with much satisfaction to a quiet and restful summer. For some years Senator McMillan has made his summer home at Manchester-by-the-Sea, having erected a very fine cottage at that place.

While no information on the point has been received here the expectation is that his remains will be taken to Detroit and be deposited at Elmwood cemetery. The body of his son, Capt. John H. McMillan, who served in the Spanish war and who died several months ago, rests there. The senator leaves a widow, three sons, W. C., Philip and Frank, all of Detroit, and a daughter. Mrs. McMillan and daughter accompanied the senator to Manchester after the adjournment of congress. Senator McMillan was a native of Ontario, having been born in Hamilton May 12, 1838, but in early life moved to Michigan and for many years was prominently identified with the business interests and political life of the state, having for a number of terms been chairman of the Republican state committee. He had been a member of the United States senate since 1889. He was chairman of the committee on District of Columbia in that body and was also a member of the committees on appointments, commerce, naval affairs, relations with Cuba, coast and insular survey and corporations organized in the District of Columbia.

IMMENSE TRADE WITH ENGLAND.

The Tight Little Isle Is America's Best Market.

Washington, Aug. 11.—A report on the agricultural imports of Great Britain for 1896-1900, inclusive, with a significant review of trade conditions and possibilities between the United States and the United Kingdom, has been compiled by Frank H. Hitchcock, chief of the division of foreign markets, department of agriculture. The United Kingdom is the principal market for the surplus agricultural products of exporting countries. The report says that the products of agriculture sent to that market from all sources in 1900 reached the enormous value of $1,378,000,000, forming 62 per cent of the entire import trade of Great Britain and Ireland. During the five years mentioned the annual average value of the imports into the United Kingdom was $2,303,174,441, of which $1,453,921,776, or 63 per cent, was agricultural, and $849,252,665, or 37 per cent, non-agricultural. To this extraordinary import trade in agricultural produce the United States was the principal contributor, furnishing about 33 per cent, or nearly one-third of the supply.

MORE MINES MAY BE STARTED.

Talk of Resumption in the Wyoming Region.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 11.—The fourteenth week of the anthracite miners' strike began to-day. President Mitchell is authority for the statement that the strikers are in good shape. Contributions to the relief fund are coming in from many quarters. While the strike leaders are inclined to throw cold water on all reports that an attempt may be made to resume mining at an early day in the Wyoming region, it would not be at all surprising should one or two of the mines in this section be started up this week. The same story has been told for weeks past, but there is a well-authenticated report in circulation that the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal company may start up work at its Wanamie colliery some day this week.

TORTURED BY ROBBERS.

Set Fire to a Farmer's Feet to Make Him Divulge Hiding Place of His Money.

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 11.—Jacob Mumma, an aged farmer who lives alone north of the city, was tortured by masked men who broke into his house, and is in a critical condition as a result of his injuries. Mumma attempted to defend himself with a shotgun, but his aim was bad and he was overcome and bound. The robbers poured coal oil on his feet and started a blaze to compel him to reveal the hiding place of money he was supposed to have, but they secured only an insignificant sum.

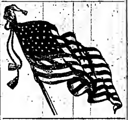
WEDNESDAY, AUG. 13, 1902.



On Sunday one of Sam Fullerton's game wardens drove through a porteon of Anoka county and it is reported that he started some prairie chickens which ran for nearly half a mile ahead of his buggy. We'd almost venture to offer a small bet that the chickens didn't live to tell what the game warden did—that is if he could shoot.

The political writer of the St. Paul Dispatch, in speaking of the Congressional campaign, says:

Fishing Through Street Gratings.

In Winchester, England, it is quite a common thing to see men fishing through the street gratings. Under the High street there flow several streams which ultimately discharge into the river Itchen, a noted trout stream. These streams receive the storm and surface water from the street by means of the ordinary street grating. The line is dropped through and fastened to the end of a stick small enough to go through the grate. When the fish is hooked, the line and stick are dropped through the grating, and the fisherman rushes to the point where the stream emerges from under the street and is there able to recover his line and land his fish.

Editors Visit the Mines

Between fifty and sixty of the Minnesota editors and their ladies assembled in Duluth in response to the call of Secretary Nelson, of the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association. The object of this association is to enable the editors to become better acquainted with the resources of Minnesota, and the northwest, and the trip taken was a decided success both educationally and socially.

The start was made from Duluth on Friday morning, August 1st, via the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern railway, to Virginia. Here the party was met by a delegation of citizens with carriages and during the drive many of the prominent mines of that vicinity were visited. Soft ore mines operated with steam shovels, deep shafts where the ore is loosened by the miners' pick and brought to the surface by the elevator process, and large stock piles of ore ready for shipment were among the sights seen. After partaking of an excellent dinner at Virginia's leading hotel the party again boarded their special train for Hibbing.

At Hibbing they were again met by a delegation of citizens with carriages and the world-famed Mahoning mine was visited. At this wonderful mine the surface ground of 40 acres has been removed and an immense pit excavated to a depth of about 175 feet. The first ten feet of this is dirt and perforce has to be wasted. The balance is soft iron ore to the depth of 300 feet. Immense steam shovels are at work in the mine loading cars and it is claimed that the ore can be thus loaded at a cost of three cents per cubic yard.

As an illustration to determine the value of this country we were told by a prominent citizen of Hibbing that the ore body had an average thickness of 300 feet and that the value of forty acres of this ore at 25 cents per ton would be in the neighborhood of twelve million dollars. We were also told that within a radius of ten miles of Hibbing there were twenty-four working iron mines. In fact it seems as if the entire north-eastern portion of Minnesota was more or less iron.

We had supper with the enterprising people of Hibbing—and right here it may be well to state that the average editor wants three "squares" a day and does full justice to each and every one of them.

Hibbing is a progressive and enterprising town of about 10,000 people and surely has a great future before it.

Here we again took our train for Tower and arrived there late in the evening.

At 5:30 a. m. the landlord issued a call to the entire party, which call disturbed both the sweetness of our slumbers and the usual serenity of the editorial temper, but a sumptuous breakfast soon made full restitution for these happenings. Carriages were in waiting to convey us to the celebrated Lake Vermilion, one of the most beautiful bodies of water that Minnesota affords. A small fleet of launches and a large barge conveyed the party for a thirty-mile ride on that beautiful sheet of water.

Much has been written and said concerning the beauties of Lake Vermilion, but its attractions have never been exaggerated. The great primeval forests, massive rocky shores, and gentle valleys rich with verdure reaching to the lake shore all tend to show that Lake Vermilion was formed by nature in one of her kindliest moods.

An open air luncheon on the barge was thoroughly enjoyed. Major J. Pengilly's Soudan Mine cornet band accompanied the party on their lake trip and added much to the enjoyment of the occasion, and the entire party are under lasting obligation to the genial major for his courteous treatment and hospitality.

The people of Tower in general are of the most social kind and their entertainment was one of the most enjoyable features of the entire trip.

Tower is the oldest mining camp in the state and here we came upon the hard ore, which though harder to mine, produces a larger percentage of iron and is therefore more valuable than the soft.

Returning we visited the famous Soudan mine, one mile from Tower. Here we found an open pit about 500 feet deep, besides which there are several shafts leading to underground work. Several members of the party donned miner's suits and invaded one of the shafts. Personally we did not take part in this venture as the management had failed to secure our measure and we are particular about wearing good fitting clothes.

This concluded our trip on the iron ranges and the party started on the return trip to Duluth via the Duluth and Iron Range railway. Passing through Two Harbors we had a glimpse of the great ore docks at that place.

To give an idea of the value of the iron mining interests of north-eastern Minnesota, we may state that the board of equalization of St. Louis county, at their last session fixed the assessed valuation of the mines in that county at thirty million dollars.

The people of Duluth treated us like long lost brothers—killed the fatted calf and furnished an excellent banquet at the Hotel St. Louis. They also treated us to a tally-ho ride along their famous boulevard, several hundred feet above the level of Lake Superior, and other interesting places in the city were also visited.

The orators of the city extolled the merits of Duluth and they have much to talk of as the natural resources tributary are bound to maintain the progress of the city and make it in the future one of the leading commercial centers of the United States.

On Sunday evening the party boarded the magnificent steamer "Iroquois" for a trip down the lake to Houghton, Mich., the entry port to the great Calumet copper district. Here all had breakfast after which they boarded a special train on the Mineral Range railroad for a visit to the mines, the smelters and the mills, Dollar Bay, the new Quincy mill at Mason, and Tamarac City being visited in the order named.

To those unfamiliar with the process of mining and transforming the rough ore into the finished metal this trip presented wonderful sights. The mining, the great stamp mills where the ore is pounded into dust practically, the sluices and concentrators where the lighter ingredients contained in the ore are washed out and only the pure metal left, the process of reducing this metal to ingots and bars, the smelting plants and rolling mills where the copper is manufactured into wire and other forms ready for market, all present a series of marvelous denouements to the uninitiated. It is with feelings of regret that we leave out a full description of the various processes as our available space is totally inadequate for such a description.

Among the principal items of interest seen were the immense pumping engine at the Osceola mill in Tamarac City, with a capacity of forty million gallons of water per 24 hours, and the giant stationary engine at the Superior mine with an energy of 7,000 horse power, furnishing compressed air for the operation of 500 mining drills.

On returning to Houghton the party went direct to the Michigan College of Mines where they were cordially received by President McNair, who treated them to an instructive and entertaining description of the instruction given in the college and showed them through all the various departments, explaining everything as they went. The Hydraulic and Engineering departments, and the Hall of Sciences were particularly interesting.

All who took part in this excursion are particularly indebted to Mr. C. H. Kelsey, of the Mining Journal for courteous treatment, and to Mr. Horace J. Stevens for information on the trip and also for copies of his "Copper Handbook."

The tour of the College of Mining being completed an adjournment was taken to the Douglas house, where they were treated to one of Landlord Mann's whitefish dinners. Landlord Mann prides himself on serving whitefish dinners of the right kind, and every member of the party will cordially subscribe to the excellence of that particular repast.

The Calumet copper district is situated on a peninsula jutting out into Lake Superior and its only industry is that of copper mining and smelting. The mines and mills employ about 16,000 men and the population of the district is about 50,000. All the residents seem to enjoy a marked degree of prosperity.

While here the party presented Secretary Nelson with a handsome souvenir as a token of their appreciation of his efforts in their behalf and later elected him president of the Association for the ensuing year.

The party left Houghton late that evening by the same boat for the return trip to Duluth. They arrived there Tuesday noon where goodbyes were said and the members of the party dispersed to their various homes, all well pleased with their summer outing and expressing hopes for a reunion under equally delightful circumstances.

H. E. Ives returned Thursday after a pleasant outing with the Northern Minnesota editors in the mining regions of Minnesota and the great "copper country" of Michigan. He left again Monday for another interesting trip with the Minnesota Editorial association which will visit interesting places along the Great Lakes for several days.

Julius Pleth: I want you to state there is a lot of people who make a habit of visiting my place, formerly the Cliffgaard farm, and stealing berries and fruit. They come there night and day and not only steal but destroy the bushes. Hereafter a strict watch will be kept on the premises all the time and any person found in the garden, no matter who it is, will be dealt with to the limit of the law. I give them fair notice and they will have to take the consequences.

Announcement of Candidate.

I desire to announce to the voters of Red Lake county that I am a candidate for the nomination for register of deeds subject to the decision of the Peoples Party at the Primary Election to be held on September 16, 1902.

If nominated and re-elected I will continue the work which I have started of reforming and modernizing our system of records so as to make it second to none in the state of Minnesota.

Sincerely your servant,
SAMUEL GIBEAU.

A "Rosy" Campaign.

(From the Crookston Journal.)

A supposed Crookston admirer of Senator Grindeland has received a letter that reads as follows:

Warren, Minn., Aug. 1, 1902.

Dear Sir:—

Will you kindly send us an interview bearing upon the congressional situation of this district, particularly emphasizing Mr. Grindeland's chances of success in your county—the more rosy the better.

We are trying to arrange for the publication of several interviews from prominent men throughout the district and I trust that yours may be one of the most encouraging. We have them on the run now and believe we have our candidate safely landed.

Yours truly,
Leonard Erickson, Secy.

Look out, now, for some rosy interviews in the Warren papers.

Trouble Ahead for Somebody.

It seems strange that some people will not only steal but destroy. Julius Pleth has made up his mind that he won't put up with that sort of thing and will use drastic measures to stop the practice of people stealing his fruits and destroying trees and bushes. Mr. Pleth spends lots of time and money to maintain his garden in a manner that should make it a matter of pride to the community and any person who cannot or will not appreciate that fact enough to let the garden alone, deserves to get hurt.

—For a clear Havana cigar ask your dealer for a "Sanford Dodge."

None to Spare.

"Beg pardon," said the suspicious looking fellow, meeting Subbubs in a dark street, "but what time have you?"

"Just enough to catch my train," replied Subbubs as he hastened on.—Exchange.

Brooks Farm Sold.

The Brooks farm 1½ miles from town, was sold on Thursday by Julius Pleth. The purchaser was Jens Kordahl of Chippewa county, and he paid $27.50 per acre for the land. The farm comprises 251 acres and is one of the best in the county. Mr. Kordahl also purchased from Mr. Pleth the NE¼ of section 28 in Rocksbury township at $16.50 per acre. We understand Mr. Kordahl will take possession of the land in the near future and engage in the raising of fine cattle and hogs. Mr. Brooks is not yet fully decided as to his future movements.

Hill's Great Ships.

J. J. Hill sees things in advance of other men. Seeing the possibilities of the coming trade with the Orient he is building a fleet of the largest ships ever floated. They will be eight-decked affairs, with modern conveniences for four classes of passengers and five acres of room for freight. One of these boats will carry as much wheat as a freight train seven miles long. Think of the golden grain belt beer such a boat could carry, and the great good that amount of the delicious tonic would do the Orient. If you are not as strong and healthy as you could wish, use this beer regularly. Order of your nearest dealer, or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Fergus Falls Favors Steenerson.

A recent issue of the Fergus Falls Journal says: The friends of Hon. Halvor Steenerson have been working hard to forward his interests in this city and have organized a Halvor Steenerson club and announce that they have 153 members and expect to double the number before the primaries. The officers of the club are: Peter Lien, president; Soren Field, first vice president; A. M. Shol, second vice president; N. E. Nelson, secretary.

The following resolution was passed: We endorse the candidacy of Hon. Halvor Steenerson for congress and heartily commend him to the republican voters of the district at the primary election. His nomination would make republican success in this district certain, and would give the state and nation an able champion of the people in the halls of congress.

It is expected that Mr. Steenerson will address the club before long.

Fearless and Independent.

The Chicago Record-Herald is a conspicuous example of the success with which the public rewards fearless nonpartisanship in the columns of a great metropolitan daily paper. It is an independent newspaper, in which men and measures are invariably viewed wholly from the standpoint of the public good and not from that of the interests of any particular political party. It is the very reverse of neutral—fearless and outspoken on all the great questions of the day, but presenting its editorial opinion upon independent judgment and entirely regardless of political affiliations. Partisanship is barred as strictly from the news columns as from the editorial page. All political news is given without partisan coloring, thus enabling the reader to form correct conclusions for himself. In the ordinary partisan newspaper political news is ordinarily colored to such an extent as to make it difficult if not impossible for the reader to secure a sound basis for intelligent judgment.

SHOOTING AT THIEF RIVER FALLS.

On Monday evening a shooting occurred at Thief River Falls in which a traveling Assyrian peddler was the victim. The Crookston Journal today contains the following account of the affair:

A mysterious shooting is reported from Thief River Falls which occurred yesterday afternoon. The victim of the affair is one of the Assyrian peddlers who makes his headquarters in Crookston. He was making a tour through the northern part of Red Lake county, and was at the time the shooting occurred, driving through the "tenderloin district" of Thief River Falls west of the depot.

So far as can be learned the man had offered no provocation to any one in that part of the village, nor had he been soliciting trade at any of the houses in that locality. But while passing along the street where several men and women were assembled some one fired a bullet from a small calibre rifle. The ball lodged in the small of the Assyrian's back, and he was taken to the hospital where it was subsequently extracted. He is resting easy and no danger is apprehended from the wound. The police have placed four men and as many women under arrest and the examination is being conducted this afternoon. Fred Nolan, one of the employes of the Thief River Lumber company, is charged with the deed but it is not positively known that he is the guilty party.

THE INNS OF CHINA.

Their Cheapness Is About Their One Redeeming Feature.

Chinese inns are without register or clerks. On riding through the gateway your bridle rein is seized by a dirty boy, who helps you to dismount, shouting loudly meanwhile for the proprietor, who presently looms up through the wilderness of carts and mules. Proprietor and boy then hold a parley as to what rooms are eligible, and then a door is pushed open and the traveler is shown to his apartment. It is usually about twelve feet square. The walls and floor are of hard mud, and so are the beds, which extend entirely across the side of the room, with only space enough between them for a small table and one chair. The room is lighted by one window, in which paper takes the place of glass.

The first duty of the proprietor in making a patron comfortable is to stop up the holes in the paper window pane. He never tears the paper off entirely and replaces it with a new one, because the sheet of paper is worth about one-tenth of a cent, and the innkeeper is not wasteful. Indeed he pastes little slips of paper over the holes until all the light that filters through it is of a mottled hue.

At one end of the mule shed is the kitchen of the inn. It is here that the meals for all the patrons are prepared, to be eaten in the rooms. The menu is not elaborate. It consists only of bowls of rice and tea. Should the traveler desire a greater variety of food, he can buy it himself in the market, and his own servant can cook it in the kitchen of the inn. To sleep on the bed of a Chinese inn would be for a foreigner an impossibility were it not that he is always so exhausted at the end of each day's journey that he finds it difficult to remain awake ten minutes after alighting from his pony. He lies down on the mat that covers the hard heap of mud and surprises himself at the soundness of his slumber.

The one redeeming thing about the inn is its cheapness. Just as the traveler is about to depart in the morning the proprietor tells him the amount of his bill. Everything is charged on the "European plan." Every cup of tea, every rushlight candle, the paper window pane, are all itemised in the long list which the proprietor reels off in singsong, but the total is surprisingly low. The cost of food and lodging for one night for a traveler and two servants, with stabling and fodder for his ponies and cart mules, is about 50 cents.—New York Mail and Express.

Boasted Too Soon.

The rear end of a Fordham car was congested the other afternoon. There wasn't even "standing room only." A jocular commuter said, "Beware of pickpockets!"

Everybody laughed.

A gentlemanly looking fellow said:

"No man need be afraid of pickpockets if he does as I did. I have a self patented scheme. I have a buttonhole in my vest pocket. I run my chain through it and attach the other end in the usual way. They can't draw that watch through that buttonhole. No pickpockets in mine, and don't you forget it."

The crowd thinned out.

At Wendover avenue the "patentee" said startlingly:

"My watch is gone!"

Somebody had clipped the chain, drawn it through the other way and abstracted the watch.—New York News.

—"Bridget, did you call the boys?"

"Indade an' Oi called thim everything Oi cud think of but they won't wake up." There's such a thing as calling too much some times, but when it comes to Tschida's Leader 5-cent cigar it seems as though the people never would get tired of smoking them. They say they are the best that ever happened for the price. Try them.

THE LIMIT WAS REACHED.

What Pat Got When He Asked For a Raise in Salary.

A story was often told by the late Charles L. Tiffany of an importunate Irishman who for many years had been employed as a window washer. His pay had been raised quite as often as was consistent with the dignity of his position, but he seemed always hungry (or probably thirsty) for more. At length the firm decided that the limit was reached. Not so Pat. Going one morning to the inner sanctuary, he sought audience with Mr. Tiffany.

"Good mornin', Mr. Tiffany," he commenced artfully, seeking to preface his errand by disinterested conversation.

"Good morning, Patrick," was the answer.

"And how are ye this mornin', Mr. Tiffany?"

"Quite well, thank you, Patrick."

"And how are your wife and family?"

"Quite well, thank you, Patrick. But what can I do for you this morning?"

"Oi've been thinkin', Mr. Tiffany, that Oi've served ye long and faithful these twenty-foive years and that Oi sh'u'd have a raise in me pay."

"You should be thankful, Patrick, that you have been permitted to serve so distinguished a house as that of Tiffany & Co. for twenty-five years. That, with what we have already done for you, should be sufficient. Good morning, Patrick."

"Good mornin', Mr. Tiffany."

Realizing the futility of further words, he left the room. Reaching the outer office, he was hailed by a chorus from the "boys," to whom his periodical pilgrimages had become a standing joke:

"What did you get, Pat?"

"Faith," was the ready answer, "Oi got permission to kape me job, and Oi tuk it!"—New York Times.

The Deaf Mute's Story.

"The most pathetic story I ever heard," said Senator Hoar once, "was told by Professor Gallaudet. The professor had a favorite pupil, a little deaf mute boy, exceptionally bright. Mr. Gallaudet asked him if he knew the story of George Washington and the cherry tree.

"With his nimble fingers the little fellow said he did, and then he proceeded to repeat it. The noiseless gesticulations continued until the boy had informed the professor of the elder Washington's discovery of the mutilated tree and of his quest for the mutilator.

"'When George's father asked him who hacked his favorite cherry tree,' signaled the voiceless child, 'George put his hatchet in his left hand'—

"'Stop,' interrupted the professor. 'Where did you get your authority for saying he took the hatchet in his left hand?'

"'Why,' responded the boy, 'he needed his right hand to tell his father that he cut the tree.'"

Virus and Venom.

The difference between venom and a virus is very marked. Both are poisons, and both of organic origin, but a venom is produced in secreting organs, commonly called poison glands, and is introduced into the system by means especially adapted for the purpose, such as stings or fangs. On the other hand, a virus is the result of disease or putrefaction and generally possesses the property of exciting in the system into which it is introduced the disease which produced the virus. A virus commonly produces little if any local disturbance. A venom generally causes great pain, often severe inflammation and swelling. Venom has a marked local effect. Virus causes a general disturbance of the system.

Shake Hands With Fate

'Tis a sad old world, and a bad old world,
It is scarce worth while at all;
Its sorrows cling and its friendships sting,
And even its joys will pall.
But dear is life for all its strife,
And love is better than hate—
You'll find a grace in the surliest face
If you just shake hands with fate.

With light in your glance and right in your glance,
And your lips in a curve to the sky;
A spring in your walk and a ring in your talk,
Sure, hope will not pass you by.
The path that you will winds over a hill,
But it leads to an open gate;
So trill you a song to lure love along,
And just shake hands with fate.

'Tis in yourself is the demon elf,
'Tis in yourself is God;
And you'll never stray from yourself away—
God's light or the devil's prod.
Whatever your mind you'll meet in kind,
And what is yourself create:
The world will view what is really you—
Therefore, shake hands with fate!
—Regina Armstrong in Leslie's Weekly.

The Flight of the Fearless.

BY HENRY DAVIS MIDDLETON.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Bob Brown, commonly known among the inhabitants of Ebonville as "Uncle Bob," was considered fearless. No one was skeptical regarding his fearlessness nor dared harbor the least suspicion as to his being superstitious. If, like most of his dusky brethren, he "ruther not" begin a job on a Friday, the invariable cause was physical incapacity rather than superstitious fear. If, perchance, during his nocturnal perambulations myriad phantoms darted about his pathway as he neared the village cemetery, he would approach the hideous spectre, and discovering it to be only an inanimate illusion, he would pass unperturbed on his homeward way, always attributing sundry bruises and scars visible upon various portions of his anatomy at the time of these escapades, to his bad sight and his haste to reach home.

It was not surprising, then, that when the new hospital desired a strong orderly for night duty in the two male wards, he alone volunteered to accept the position, while the timidity of his fellows permitted them only to pass the frowning institution at a safe distance and with much trepidation.

When the first month ended "Uncle Bob" was pretty well initiated into the mysteries of the hospital. For weeks he had astonished his dusky auditors with wild and weird stories of his triumphs in the wards, operating room and morgue of the institution; never failing to impress them with the fact that it would be impossible to run the institution without his services. He was indeed the most fearless man in Ebonville, and was regarded by his peers with "superstitious reverence."

* * * * * *

It was midnight. The stillness of the hour was only broken by the soft tread of the nurses on their periodical rounds of the wards. Uncle Bob, seated upon bench on the lawn, just outside the door of the basement ward, occupied by the colored male patients, smoked away upon his old cob pipe, and hoped for the approach of the morning when he should be off duty. He fell asleep. He dreamed. He saw visions. Yes, there they were—all the patients, both white and black, who had died since his incumbency. They were after him—he fled. They pursued him—he sought refuge under the front steps of his home. They followed menacingly. There was no escape. Oh, there was Jim, wicked Jim, now a black demon! He had died muttering curses and imprecations. He was leading the other demons. His bloodshot eyes glared just as they had in his dying moments; the bandage was about his head, the white gown thrown loosely about his emaciated form. They sought to kill the orderly. Fire issued from their mouths, smoke from their nostrils. He shouted for help—he awoke with a start. He chuckled over his fears—after all it was only a dream. He shook off his lethargy and relit his pipe when his attention was attracted by a peculiar noise. He looked across the lawn into the pitch darkness of the night whence the strange sound came. My! there were the same grotesque figures he had seen in his dream. He was not afraid, but as it was getting a little chilly he decided to withdraw—which he did unceremoniously, falling over the bench in his haste. He closed and bolted the hall door and went into the basement ward. He glanced up and down the double rows of white cots, scarcely visible in the darkened place. His eyes rested upon the cot upon which wicked Jim had died—yes, there was Jim, lying upon the cot—no, impossible, for it had not been occupied since his death. He approached it cautiously; not a sound was emitted. He turned on the nearest light—yes, it was wicked Jim's ghost! The fearless orderly stood for a moment trembling. What was that? The thing moaned; it muttered; it sprang from the couch and fell prostrate at the feet of the bewildered orderly.

Smoked away upon his old cob pipe.

A broken sash and a wrecked panel of the picket fence left in his wake, gave practical evidence of the brave orderly's senile agility and an inkling of his sprinting qualities.

Wicked Jim's twin brother, delirious of fever, lost to the hospital a fearless, valuable "ord'ly," whose back pay still awaits his return, and who, like the hospital, is running yet, in spite of his contrary predictions.

There was Jim, lying upon the cot.

A QUESTION OF CONSCIENCE

Discussed by a Clerk to Whom a Customer Had Returned 2 Cents.

"Some folks," said the store clerk, "are too honest. Now, I've had somebody come in to me when the boss was standing by, somebody that had bought something of me the day before, and hand over two cents and say:

"You gave me two cents too much change yesterday, and I've brought it back."

"He couldn't rest, you see, that man, until he'd got that two cents off his conscience and returned it. But in getting rid of that load himself he simply shifted it onto me. Here's the boss standing by when that two cents is returned, and the boss says to himself with his eye on me:

"'Hm! If you make a mistake of two cents you'd make one of two dollars,' and so, you see, that super-honest man's return of that two cents may do me a lot of harm.

"The meaning of which is, if I can make myself clear, that we don't want to be too blamed honest. A man can be too honest and worry himself over trifles that he ought not to bother over.

"I should say that if the honest man must bring two cents back let him turn it in some time when the boss wasn't 'round."

When the Goat Swore.

"Did you ever hear a goat swear?" asked Gen. Parker of New Jersey. He represents, by the way, the district in which the rifle range at Seat Girt is situated.

"Over at the rifle range one day," said Gen. Parker, "there was a team from Georgia, which had with them a colored boy and a goat as mascots. The boy was dressed in brilliant uniform and the goat had a fuzzy tail. Along came a rifleman who belonged to a rival team.

"'I'll give you a nickel for one of your buttons,' he said to the boy, and the trade was made. Then the rifleman, plucking some hairs from the goat's tail, rubbed them on the button. 'Now,' he said, 'I have hoodooed your team. You will never win the Hilton trophy.'

"The colored boy burst into tears and the goat said 'D-a-a-m-n' just as plainly as anything you ever heard in your life."—Washington Post.

Kaiser's Costly Cannon.

The German emperor takes great pride in a cannon of solid gold, inlaid with precious stones, which he possesses. Its value purely as a piece of jewelry is set at $25,000, and a special guard watches over it. The trustees of the Hamburg museum, who had cherished it for two centuries, gave it to the German government some time ago.

Portable Church in Philadelphia.

A portable house of worship has been dedicated in Philadelphia. It is the chapel of the Temple Evangelical Lutheran church, at Twenty-second and Race streets. The building is so constructed that it may be taken apart and set up again, whenever it is deemed desirable to move it.

It would appear that woman's rights constitute her wrongs.

GEN. BELL FOOLED THE GRASS

Made Verdure Think the Moisture Came from Heaven.

When Gen. J. Franklin Bell, who recently succeeded in restoring peace to the island of Samar, P. I., was adjutant of the Seventh cavalry, Fort Riley, Kansas, where he was stationed, was in an uncomplete state. The barracks, stables, administration buildings and officers' quarters were newly constructed and rather luxurious for an army post, but of lawns and shade trees there were none.

To obtaining these Bell applied himself with his usual vigor. By transplanting alternately elm and cottonwood trees he had the shade problem in a fair way of solution, but the soil of Kansas proved obdurate as to grass, so that after repeated coats of fertilizer and daily sprinklings, only a scant growth of verdure was produced.

One evening a group of officers coming from the artillery post, were amazed to see Bell on the roof of his house with the hose in his hands, sprinkling the lawn. After gazing at him for a few minutes one of them called out:

"I say, Bell, what are you trying to do up there?"

Bell looked at the group and continuing his sprinkling, answered:

"When you sprinkle the lawn from the ground the grass won't grow because the moisture don't come the way nature sends it." Then in a tone tinged with anger, he added: "I believe the grass knows it, too, but, by the great horned spoon, I'm going to fool that cursed grass."

And he did it, too, for Fort Riley had in a few years as fine a lawn as at any army post in the country.

WOULD COME TO IT.

Scotchman's Protest Against Weak Whisky and Water.

At a banquet given by the manufacturers of Pittsburg at Hotel Schenley to the National Hardware association then in session, Andrew Carnegie had been asked to speak on the outlook for business. He dodged the question and in doing so told this story:

"The toastmaster wishes me to refer to a very important question," he said, "and it may come later, like the experience of the Scotchman who was driving along a lonely road in the Highlands on a typical misty, bleak Scotch day. Seeing a comfortable looking farmhouse just ahead, it occurred to the Laird that possibly a drop of spirits might be obtainable there to help neutralize the effect of the raw atmosphere, so drawing up alongside the gate, a loud 'whoa' brought a Scotch lassie from the house. Addressing her, he said:

"'Little girl, can I get a drop or two of some spirits to take the edge off this cold air? Some whisky and water, for instance.'

"'I'll ask mither,' she said, courtesying, and entered the house, reappearing soon with a glass nearly filled on a tray. Bestowing a shilling, the Laird took the glass and sampled the weak looking drink.

"'My little girl,' said he, 'will you be kind enough to inform me which your mither put first in the glass—the whisky or the water?'

"'The whisky,' said she, again courtesying.

"'Ah, yes,' said he, 'that accounts for it. I'll come to it by and bye.'"

"Larry" Jerome's Wit.

A friend recently put this question to District Attorney Jerome, whose father, Lawrence Jerome, was a celebrated wit of his day, and who was generally spoken of among familiars as "Larry:"

"How many of these stories that are attributed to your father really emanated from him, and how many are fictitious?"

"Well," replied the District Attorney, "I am not prepared to say; some of them are undoubtedly manufactured, but of the origin of one I am convinced, as I was one of the principal actors. On a certain occasion a good many years ago, when I was a little chap, I was riding on my father's knee in a Fifth avenue stage, every other seat being taken. At a corner a lady entered, and my father said to me in severe tones: 'Why, Travern, my boy, I am ashamed of you! Why don't you get up and give this lady your seat?'"—New York Times.

In Somewhat of a Hurry.

Harry Furniss tells of a testy but popular Scotch lecturer who, on a tour of the Lowlands, met with a chairman so impressed with the importance of his office that, in introducing the visitor, he actually talked to the audience for an hour. The gathering, a large one, bore it all patiently. This was the chairman's peroration:

"It is unnecessary for me to say more; so, I call upon the distinguished gentleman who has come so far to give us his address to-night."

The gentleman who had come so far arose, stepped forward, bowed, pulled out and looked at his watch, and then said:

"You want my address. It is 322 Rob Roy Crescent, Edinburg. A letter will find me there. Good night!"

Saying which he left the stage and the hall before anybody could interpose.—Philadelphia Times.

Grandson of Gen. Grant.

Algernon Sartoris, a grandson of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, is to enter the army. Young Sartoris is 28 years old, a fine, strapping, athletic fellow. He is ambitious to serve in the foreign branch of the army. He was educated at Oxford university. During the Spanish war he served on the staff of Gen. Fitzhugh Lee as a captain of volunteers.

Would Dispense With Locks.

Charles De Lesseps is quoted by Figaro as saying that he believes that the Americans will decide to complete the Panama canal without locks and that it may be opened in six years' time. To dispense with locks would add greatly to the cost, but it would be a vast saving in time and trouble after the canal is opened.

Don't give any one a piece of your mind; you have none to spare.

Mitigating Circumstances.

"I should think," said the lady, to the big, husky specimen of humanity who had come for the clothes, "that you would be ashamed to let your wife take in washing."

"I reckon 'tis kinder hard on the old woman," replied the man, who was too heavy for light work and too light for heavy work, "an' I wouldn't let her do it but for one thing."

"And what is that?" asked the lady.

"I've got ter have somethin' ter eat an' wear," answered the victim of circumstances.—Chicago News.

At An Afternoon Tea.

The only daughter of the miner from the West, who had been a day-laborer before he made his millions, was pouring tea this afternoon.

An Eastern exotic in spats, knowing the value of money in his business, had asked for an introduction. He was charmed by the accomplished manner in which she asked him if he would have a cup of tea, and bowed low to say that he would be only too happy.

"Will you take sugar in your'n?" she asked, sweetly.

Then, for the first time, he experienced the influence of her lineage.—Baltimore Sun.

What a Good Name Does.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 11th.—Mr. Vahlberg of 122 South Peoria St., this city, had for years been an invalid with liver complaint and kidney trouble, which was fast hastening him to the grave. The doctors gave him up, and the neighbors all declared he could not live.

His brother came from Minneapolis to see him before he died, and inquired if he had tried Dodd's Kidney Pills.

On being told that this remedy had not been used, he at once went and bought a box, feeling satisfied from what he knew of Dodd's Kidney Pills and the noble work they had been doing in Minnesota, that they would save his brother's life.

The first two days Mr. Vahlberg seemed to grow worse, but after that he gradually improved under the treatment, and was soon restored to complete good health.

TO YOUNG LADIES.

From the Treasurer of the Young People's Christian Temperance Association, Elizabeth Caine, Fond du Lac, Wis.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I want to tell you and all the young ladies of the country, how grateful I am to you for all the benefits I have received from using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered for eight months from suppressed menstruation, and it effected my entire system until I became weak and debilitated, and at times felt that I had a hundred aches in as many places. I only used the Compound for a few weeks, but it wrought a change in me which I felt from the very beginning. I have been very regular since, have no pains, and find that my entire body is as if it was renewed. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to everybody."—MISS ELIZABETH CAINE, 69 W. Division St., Fond du Lac, Wis.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

NEW TREATY MADE

TARIFF ARRANGEMENT WITH CHINA HAS BEEN CONCLUDED.

SHARETTS' MISSION IS ENDED

CARRIES OUT IMPORTANT STIPULATION OF THE PEACE AGREEMENT.

WILL OPEN UP THE INTERIOR

ABOLITION OF THE LINKIN TAX WILL ENCOURAGE FOREIGN TRADE.

Washington, Aug. 18.—The state department has received a dispatch from T. S. Sharretts, the treasury expert who was commissioned by the state department to negotiate a tariff treaty between the United States and China, stating that the treaty was signed on the 15th inst., and that he would sail for the United States on the first steamer.

The announcement contained in Mr. Sharrett's brief dispatch to the state department brings to a successful conclusion negotiations which have been in progress for many months for a tariff treaty between China and this country. It was stipulated as one of the features of the peace agreement between China and the foreign powers at the close of the Boxer outbreak that an entirely new fabric to trade treaties should be made. This carried out the purpose Secretary Hay had maintained throughout the pending negotiations for an "open door," the desire being to open up foreign communications with the interior of China and thus gain access to the vast markets of the empire.

Following the conclusion of peace arrangements Mr. Sharretts was selected to carry on the tariff negotiations in behalf of the United States. This selection was due to his long affairs, as he had assisted in the framing of recent tariff legislation before congress, and had also served as one of the general appraisers of New York. He went to China about a year ago, and has since been engaged in working out the details of a tariff agreement. It was announced about a month ago that the British commissioners had concluded a tariff treaty with China, and it was understood at that time the British treaty would serve as a basis for similar treaties with the United States and other foreign countries. The state department was advised at the time that the rates on imports entering China were 12 1-2 per cent and the export duties 7 1-2 per cent.

One of the most important provisions of the British-China treaty was that abolishing the Linkin tax. It is presumed that similar rates are made in the American treaty, and that the Linkin tax is abolished as far as it relates to American goods in transit. The abolition of the Linkin tax will go far toward encouraging foreign trade and traffic in the interior of China.

MURDERED AND ROBBED.

Thieves Then Set Fire to the House and Nearly Cremate Their Victim.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 18. — Watkin Newman, aged twenty-four, was murdered, robbed and nearly cremated in his home six miles from Jefferson City, Tenn., Saturday night. His brother Isham, arriving home at midnight, found the house in flames and his brother Watkin lying on a bed dead. He could not rescue the body on account of the fire. Examination made yesterday disclosed a terrible gash in the young man's head inflicted by some blunt instrument. The body was horribly burned. Money which had been in the house was missing, as was also a pistol and a watch.

BULLET FOR A BURGLAR.

Detroit Policeman Wings One Man and Captures Another.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 18. — Edward Lenehan died at Emergency hospital yesterday caused by a bullet from Officer F. J. Lemond's revolver. Patrolman Lemond discovered four burglars entering a grocery on Brooklyn avenue yesterday. He endeavored to arrest them and they opened fire on him. Both men fired, but one shot was returned. The bullet struck Lenehan in the hip, penetrating his abdomen. Another one of the burglars is under arrest.

KILLED FOR OBJECTING.

Memphis Street Car the Scene of Fight and Murder.

Memphis, Aug. 18.—Henry Glenny, a well known railroad man connected with the Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf, was shot and killed by Cobb Teel. Teel and several companions were in a street car, and it is said used profane language to the conductor. Glenny, who was accompanied by his wife, objected, and in a fight he was shot by Teel.

GLADYS MAKES DENIAL.

Says She Is Not Betrothed to Crown Prince of Germany.

London, Aug. 18.—A letter from Miss Gladys Deacon, daughter of Mrs. Edward Parker Deacon, appears in the London papers this morning in which the writer asks the papers to emphatically contradict the rumors of an alleged betrothal between herself and Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany.

Cholera Scare at Manila.

Manila, Aug. 18. — Cholera reports show few cases of the disease here, but a large number in some provinces. The total number of cases reported to date is 23,636, with 17,596 deaths. Estimating the cases which have not been reported, the total number is believed to have reached 30,000.

Fatal Street Car Accidents.

St. Louis, Aug. 18.—Two persons were killed and eight others were injured, one probably fatally, in two street car accidents here last night.

LIVELY DAY FOR THE DUKE.

Chicago Keeps Her Distinguished Visitor on the Run.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Chicago's visitor, Grand Duke Boris Vladimirowitch of Russia, was a much bewildered nobleman last night when he retired to his suite at the Auditorium hotel, mentally reviewing the various experiences that had made up the "quiet Sunday" assured him by his friends in this city. A rapid coach drive to the Saddle and Cycle club soon after breakfast, with two exhibitions en route of fire companies in action, luncheon at the North Shore clubhouse, an exciting automobile runaway in which his highness was the sole participant, a quick trip back to the city and a banquet at the Chicago club immediately following were some of the things that had made the day, so the duke thought, far from being uneventful.

STRUNG UP BY A MOB.

Outlaws Are Thus Forced to Give Information About Their Leaders.

Cordell, Okla., Aug. 18. — A mob of several hundred men took Levi Reed and Bud Wingo, outlaws captured recently in a raid on the Casey Cravens gang, from the county jail here and strung them up to trees to force them to reveal the whereabouts of their leaders and to give information regarding their crimes. The outlaws finally gave the desired information and the mob returned them to jail, disappearing, apparently to run down the band. Reed was so badly strangled he was revived with difficulty. The Cravens gang is one of the worst that infests this country. Recently they have committed many outrages in Southern Oklahoma.

MARTYR TO SCIENCE.

Young Doctor Contracts Tuberculosis While Making Investigations.

New York, Aug. 18.—Dr. E. H. Scofield has fallen a victim to tuberculosis in his investigations at Yale. When in the medical school he made a special study of the disease and was sent to Denver almost on the eve of his graduation, suffering from the disease which he had contracted from his patients. His condition improved there and he completed his studies in the medical college in that city. He recently suffered a relapse and has failed rapidly for two weeks. Dr. Scofield is about twenty-five years old.

COURT-MARTIAL ENDS.

Verdict in Penrose Case Is Sent to Washington.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 18.—The court-martial detailed to try Past Assistant Postmaster Charles W. Penrose on charges of making false returns, embezzlement, scandalous conduct, absence from duty and negligence, has arrived at a verdict and adjourned. The court deliberated four and one-half hours. The findings have been sent, sealed, to the department at Washington, where the proceedings of the court will be reviewed and the verdict made public by the secretary of the navy.

ONE OF POSSE KILLED.

Two Oregon Robbers Hold Their Pursuers at Bay.

Pendleton, Or., Aug. 18.—Sheriff Taylor and a posse of six men are engaged in a battle at a barn north of Athena with two robbers who Thursday night held up several men in Freewater. Deputy Scott Ritchie has been wounded in the thigh and is lying behind a mound, unable to escape the range of the robbers' guns if he should move. The last report is that the robbers, under cover of darkness, had succeeded in stealing horses from the posse and escaping.

CONFESSION ON A BANK NOTE.

Last Left of a $40,000 Fortune—Murdered Wife and Two Little Children.

Vandalia, Ill., Aug. 18.—On the back of a $2 bill taken in yesterday by the cashier of a local mercantile firm was written in red ink the following note: "This is the last left of a $40,000 fortune, and I have murdered my wife and two little children, and whosoever's hands this may fall into take the warning. William Coplin, Toledo, Aug. 10, 1902. Whisky did it."

CRAP GAME ENDS FATALLY.

Negroes Kill One Man and Wound Another.

Murphysboro, Ill., Aug. 18.—Six persons have met violent deaths in Jackson county in the last week. The latest outbreak of violence was in the shooting of William Smith and son Jacob yesterday near Raddlesville. The father was killed but the son will recover. Negroes committed the crime, which was the outcome of a game of "craps" at a negro picnic.

COMES HOME UNEXPECTEDLY.

Husband Finds Man With His Wife and Shoots Both.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 18. — J. C. Suries, a blacksmith, coming home unexpectedly yesterday and finding Albert Hayes, a boarder, in company with his wife, shot both with a shotgun. Mrs. Suries probably will recover. Hayes may die. After the shooting Suries called a neighbor and sent him to notify the police, submitting to arrest without protest.

KILLED IN A WRECK.

Excursion Train Crashes Into a Freight Train.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—One man was killed outright and another was probably fatally injured in a railroad wreck at Hammond, Ind., early yesterday. A Chicago & Erie freight train standing on the tracks of the Chicago & Western Indiana railroad was crashed into by a special train of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville railroad bearing 600 excursionists from Cincinnati.

Storm Does Damage in Iowa.

Keokuk, Iowa, Aug. 18. — Another series of severe electrical and wind storms passed over Southeastern Iowa yesterday, doing much damage. In the last few weeks the number of barns struck by lightning is over a hundred.

Unknown Man Drowned.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 18.—An unknown man was drowned in St. Louis bay last night. He was in a rowboat which was waterlogged. The crew of a tug made an effort to rescue him, but he was too exhausted to hang to the line.

MOVE UPON MOROS

THE AMERICAN TROOPS WILL SOON OPEN CAMPAIGN AGAINST HOSTILES.

GEN. CHAFFEE MEANS BUSINESS

WILL DOUBTLESS RETALIATE FOR RECENT MURDER OF TWO MEN.

BIG RECEPTION FOR GOV. TAFT

ELABORATE PLANS TO WELCOME THE GOVERNOR WHEN HE RETURNS.

Manila, Aug. 18.—The Moro situation in Mindanao is considered critical. It is believed that American troops will soon move against Bocolod, where the recent murder of two men of the Twenty-seventh infantry was plotted.

A small party of Moros surprised an outpost of the Twenty-seventh at Camp Vickers, Mindanao, Aug. 12, and succeeded in killing two and wounding one American before they escaped. They were from Bacolod, which has a strong fort and other defenses. Bitter opposition to the Americans exists at Bacolod, and Capt. John J. Pershing of the Fifteenth cavalry, commanding the American forces at Lake Lanao, has recommended the reduction of the Bacolod fort.

Gen. Chaffee, who left Manila Aug. 12 on a final tour of the southern islands, reached Zamboanga, island of Mindanao, last Friday. In a conference with the local commander Gen. Chaffee agreed that unless the American forces against the hostiles they would lose the support of the friendly Moros.

Moved Decisively

Gov. William H. Taft is expected to reach here next Thursday. He left Singapore, Straits Settlements, last Friday on board the United States gunboat Gen. Alava. The plans for the reception to be given Gov. Taft are most elaborate.

Father McKinnon, who first came to the Philippines as chaplain of the First California regiment, and who is now pastor of the Catholic church in Ermita, Manila, suggests that when the Philippine hierarchy is reorganized 400 of the younger native priests be sent to the United States for a year's training in Catholic seminaries. Father McKinnon believes such a training would impart to them the spirit of American priesthood and a beneficial knowledge of Americans and their language. He proposes to ask American bishops to assist this project financially.

NATIVE CREW MUTINIES.

Killed Chief Engineer and Wounded Captain and Other Officers.

Manila, Aug. 18.—The native crew of the inter-insular steamer Mis Hermanos mutinied at Port Viroc, island of Catanduanes, last Thursday. They murdered the chief engineer of the vessel and wounded the captain, the mate, the second engineer, all of whom are Spaniards. Members of the native constabulary went to the rescue of the ship's officers. They fired into the crew and killed three men. Twenty-five of the crew surrendered and five jumped overboard and are believed to have drowned. During the fighting on the Mis Hermanos the steamer ran aground but was subsequently floated.

GRAVE FOUND EMPTY.

Disappearance of Two Men in Oklahoma Shrouded in Mystery.

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 18.—A grave in which C. S. Morris, Madison, Kan., who was reported to have been killed, is said to have been buried, was opened yesterday in the presence of 500 persons and found to be empty. Friends of Morris, who believed that he had been murdered, had requested the authorities to exhume the body. Telegrams of inquiry have been received from Morris' wife and from insurance orders of which he was a member. Morris appeared a week ago in company with a man who gave his name as Cox and who represented himself as a loan agent. On Monday Cox reported that Morris had been killed in a runaway accident. The man purchased a lot in a cemetery near Orlando, and bought a coffin, which he buried with the assistance of a colored man. The coffin yesterday contained a cake of ice weighing about two pounds. Evidently it had been filled with ice when it was buried. The police have no clue to the whereabouts of either of the men.

LOST IN FURY OF SEA.

Two Ships Sank, One Beached and Another Damaged.

Cape Town, Aug. 18.—As a result of a storm which has just swept over here, the British bark Highlands, Capt. Smith, from New York July 10, for East London, and the British bark Brutus, Capt. Dallachis, from London July 2, for Table Bay, have been wrecked off this coast; the British transport City of Lincoln is ashore and the German steamer Kaiser, from Hamburg July 15, for East Africa, has been damaged. Chief Officer Bourke of the Highlands says that the bark sank almost instantly and that twenty-three men of the crew were instantly drowned. The captain, ten men and himself clung to the bridge, which floated, but the captain and others were washed off. Bourke and two others were rescued after being in the water two hours.

SEVERE STORM IN GEORGIA.

One Man Killed and Considerable Damage Done.

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 18. — A severe electrical storm with high wind passed over the southern section of Georgia last night. At Stillmore the roundhouse of the Air Line railroad was blown down and wrecked. At Waynesboro a dwelling was blown down and one man killed. In all the section the opening cotton was whipped from bolls and ruined. The loss from this source will be considerable.

FOREST FIRES RAGING.

Wisconsin Town Threatened With Destruction.

Florence, Wis., Aug. 18.—Forest fires that have been raging in this vicinity now threaten the town, and yesterday afternoon the fire department was called out to protect the lumber yard and sawmill of D. S. Fuller on the outskirts of the town. Crops in the vicinity are seriously threatened, and word has been received from Commonwealth, a mining village south of here, that the citizens have banded together to protect their homes. The flames have spread so rapidly in the last few days as to cause the greatest alarm among the farmers in this section.

DYNAMITE USED.

Reaping Machine Is Blown Up by a Miscreant.

Whitewood, S. D., Aug. 18.—Some one in a spirit of malice blew up most of the reaping machinery of Frits Berger with dynamite. Mr. Berger is a well-known farmer on the Centennial prairie near here. The mischief was done during the night. Mr. Berger heard the report of dynamite, but did not know what had happened until next morning, when he found his self-binder blown all to pieces, some of the fragments having been hurled far across the place. Other machinery was somewhat damaged, entailing a loss of several hundred dollars.

MAY BE HOLD-UP MEN.

Two Men in Jail in Iowa Because They Tried to Stop a Train.

Waterloo, Iowa, Aug. 18.—Men giving the names of Joe Powell of Kentucky and Frank Russell of Dixon, Ill., were arrested, charged with attempting to hold up a Rock Island passenger train near Washburn, Iowa, Friday. They flagged the train, but the engineer, suspecting that something was wrong, put on full steam and the men were unable to get aboard. Powell said they flagged the train because they wished to overtake a brother at this place. Both men were armed when arrested.

MURDERED FOR THEIR MONEY.

Woman Is Found Dead and Her Husband Mortally Wounded.

Muscatine, Iowa, Aug. 18. — The decomposed body of Mrs. Jessie Tuman was found last night a hundred yards away from her home near here, and her husband unconscious and with mortal wounds, was found on the floor in the house. Signs of a desperate struggle were found in the house. The couple are known to have had considerable money. The money cannot be found and Don Williams, who for two weeks made his home with the Tumans, has disappeared.

SHOT, PERHAPS FATALLY.

North Dakota Negro Has Trouble With Northern Pacific Brakeman.

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 18.—Governor Griffin, a negro who shot and possibly fatally wounded Brakeman Fred Stevens of the Northern Pacific in the yards of the company here, was bound over in $10,000 bail to await trial on the charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Griffin was captured thirty miles from here. He admits his identity, but claims the brakeman shot at him first, and that his own weapon was discharged by accident.

MACHINISTS' HELPERS RESUME.

Strike in the Eastern Minnesota Shops at Superior Settled.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 18. — Settlement was reached between striking machinist helpers at Superior in the Eastern Minnesota shops. The strikers will go to work to-day at $1.65 per day, instead of $1.50, which they had been receiving before the strike.

HAND CAR AND FREIGHT MEET.

Two Men Killed in a Collision on the Minneapolis & St. Louis.

Albert Lea, Minn., Aug. 18.—Thomas Farrell died as a result of injuries received by being in a collision of a hand car and a freight on the Minneapolis & St. Louis road just north of this city. In the same wreck L. Anderson was killed.

His Death a Mystery.

St. Paul, Aug. 18.—The mangled remains of an unidentified and well dressed man were found at 3 o'clock yesterday morning scattered for two miles along the Milwaukee tracks near Highwood. The body and clothing were gathered up and taken to the morgue. There was no money or valuables in the pockets of the dead man. His identity remains a mystery.

Eight Troops for Fort Meade.

Sturgis, S. D., Aug. 18.—It is reported that word has been officially received by Col. Hayes, commanding officer at Fort Meade, that the post will have eight troops this winter. The troops that were sent north some months ago are to be returned. Advertisements for the construction of more stone barracks at the post are expected almost any day.

Crushed to Death.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Aug. 18.—John O'Brien was instantly killed a few miles north of Harper's Ferry, Iowa, by a train on the Milwaukee road. He was standing on the trestle when he saw the approaching train. He bent over, thinking the train would pass him, but he was crushed to death. He was sixty years old.

Capt. Morris Dead.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 18.—Capt. P. C. Morris, commander of the first G. A. R. post in the United States to be named after the late President McKinley, and one of the most prominent G. A. R. men of the state, died here yesterday, aged fifty-eight years.

Crushed Under the Wheels.

Monticello, Minn., Aug. 18. — Harry Strout, of the firm of S. J. Mealey & Co., was instantly killed while jumping from a flat car of a Great Northern train. He fell beneath the wheels and his body was horribly crushed.

Killed in a Collision.

Humboldt, Iowa, Aug. 18.—One man was killed and another injured in a rear-end collision between two east-bound special stock trains on the Chicago & Northwestern three miles east of here yesterday.

TO BREAK STRIKE

PLAN TO RESUME WORK UNDER PROTECTION OF STATE TROOPS.

MOST IMPORTANT MOVE YET MADE

PROPRIETOR OF WASHERY DETERMINED TO COMMENCE OPERATIONS.

WILL MEET WITH OPPOSITION

STRIKERS EQUALLY DETERMINED TO STOP WORK IF IT IS STARTED.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 18. — The fifteenth week of the coal strike will start with one of the most important moves yet made by the operators.

The plan is to resume work under the protection of the state troops. The calling of the troops to Shenandoah was to suppress the rioting and guard the town. The expected calling of troops to Duryea will be to prevent interference with the workers and attacks upon the Warnke washery, which was stopped by the rioters on Thursday.

The proposition is simply this, that Warnke is to operate his washery with coal guards if it is possible, with the local police if they are capable, with the sheriff's deputies if they are able, and with the state troops if necessary. It is said an attempt will be made to start the Maltby colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal company to-day. About twenty electric lights have been strung within the inclosure and fully fifty coal and iron policemen were last evening. The electric lights will enable the guards to be stationed at many points and have a clear view of all the surroundings. One of the under-superintendents of the company, when questioned, said he was unable to say whether an attempt would be made to start work at the colliery. At strike headquarters some of the officers are considerably exercised over the matter.

The leaders of the strikers are holding meetings and warning the strikers to keep away from the washery and to avoid crowds, while peace committees have also been appointed for the same purpose, but there is no noticeable change in the sentiment of the crowds, for they are determined to stop work at the washery if it is started.

DEAD HERMIT AN HEIR.

Undertaker Discovers That Recluse Was Entitled to an Estate.

Florence, Colo., Aug. 18.—The undertaker who had charge of the funeral of Thomas Wholey, who died recently in a dug-out near Williamsburg, where he had lived for twenty years as a hermit, has discovered that Whaley was heir to a vast fortune in England. On account of a love affair Wholey left his home in Northwest Durham twenty years ago, and since that time his sister, Mrs. R. Wilson of Annesfield, Durham county, England, has made constant, though fruitless, efforts to find him. Remarks dropped shortly before his death led to the discovery of his relatives.

GREAT CANDY TRUST.

Combination Forming to Control Eighteen Large Factories.

St. Louis, Aug. 18. — A candy trust with a capital of $10,000,000 and headquarters in Chicago and St. Louis. That briefly tells the story of an organization of the candy interests now forming in the Central West. Twenty to twenty-five concerns are going into the combine. They are located in St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati. It is expected that the organization will be completed within the next three weeks. The trust is certain to control eighteen of the largest factories in the Middle West, and will have an output of 100,000,000 pounds a year.

HIS OWN UNDOING.

Freight Conductor Neglects His Duty and Is Killed.

Humboldt, Iowa, Aug. 18.—A serious rear-end collision between two stock trains going east occurred on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad three miles east of here yesterday morning. Conductor Roa Harlan of Eagle Grove jumped from the caboose, but a truck hit him, cutting his head in two. The caboose was hurled thirty feet. Six stockmen in it escaped with a few bruises. The engineer and fireman of the rear train jumped. The engineer had his arm broken. Blame is placed on the dead conductor for not placing red lights out.

ROBBED OF HIS ROLL.

Minnesota Man Loses the Proceeds of the Sale of His Farm.

Morris, Minn., Aug. 18.—Martin Dalgren of Melvin, Polk county, Minn., got off the east-bound Great Northern train here yesterday morning and reported that he had been robbed of $1,100 after he boarded the train at Crookston. He discovered his money was gone after he left Breckenridge. He had $190 in cash and the balance was in certificates of deposit on the Bank of Walnut Grove, Minn., and the Scandia Bank of Crookston. He had sold his farm near Crookston and was en route to his former home at Walnut Grove.

BEST WHEAT IN THE WORLD.

South Dakota Will Send Exhibit to the St. Louis Exposition.

Sturgis, S. D., Aug. 18.—Fred Borsch, who lives on a farm about two miles west of this city, is making arrangements to send some wheat raised by him this season to the St. Louis exposition as an exhibit of what the Black Hills can do. Mr. Borsch now has a $140 medal which he received at the world's fair for the best wheat raised anywhere, and what he has this fall is even better than that.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 20, 1902.

Yesterday's Minneapolis Journal says:

"Senator Grindeland was in Fergus Falls yesterday, and, according to advices from that city, he expressed himself as not at all pleased with Halvor Steenerson's public meetings. He said they were all standing on the same platform and there was no occasion for shouting. However, if one candidate started out to make speeches, the rest would have to follow suit. He promises to open up in a short time."

What a snap Halvor would have if all the other candidates "have to follow suit." Grindeland in the above expression concedes that Halvor Steenerson is in the lead.

Hon. C. G. Rapp has decided not to enter the political arena this fall, and, notwithstanding the earnest solicitation of his friends, he positively says that he will not be a candidate this fall for any office.

As a member of the last legislature Mr. Rapp made a most enviable record and his actions were endorsed both by the press and his constituents regardless of party. It is to be regretted that he will not run for the same office this fall as the district which he represented will not be able to find a better man to take his place.

It is probable that the senatorship will go to Beltrami county, while Norman will be productive of more than one candidate for the legislature. Norman and Beltrami counties will in all likelihood, carry off the membership of both legislative houses, unless Red Lake county can hustle up some candidate whose ability and integrity will equal that of the retiring member, Mr. Rapp, and such men are hard to find. Time is passing quickly. What will Red Lake county do?

The Minneapolis Journal with its usual spirit of progressiveness and enterprise, will maintain a unique feature at the State Fair this year. The Journal building on the grounds will be used for the benefit of the public and will be wonderfully convenient for the visitors.

Among other things patrons will be supplied with free telephone and telegraphic service, a post office department, a bulletin board where all important news items will be chronicled, a "lost and found" department, a register where visitors can place their names properly classified according to towns, and many other conveniences.

To add to the pleasure and interest of those registering, The Journal will give as a prize to the one guessing the nearest to the total PAID attendance at the Fair a handsome gold watch and chain, valued at $100, either ladies' or gentlemen's, according to which wins. In case of tie guesses, the prize will be awarded to the first one registering the correct number, or the nearest thereto. Registers for Minneapolis and St. Paul will not be kept, so people from these cities cannot compete in guessing contest.

FLOWER AND TREE.

Palms never live more than 250 years. Ivy has been known to live 450, chestnut 860, oak 1,000 and yew 2,880 years.

Nothing is better for house plants than to be set out in a gentle, warm rain, but a cold rain and wind are anything but hopeful to them.

In planting trees an important point not to be forgotten is pressing the soil down upon the roots so that they will come in close contact with it.

A pot of flowers in bud should receive all the sunshine possible, but when the buds open keep them in shade, and they will last longer.

The largest apple tree in New England is in Cheshire, Conn. Its trunk measures one foot above all root excrescences, 13 feet 8 inches in circumference.

An orchard, whether young or old, should not be allowed to grow where heavy crops of grass are taken every year. It is weakening to the soil and detrimental to the trees.

In Ashanti there grows a tree resembling in appearance the English oak, which furnishes excellent butter. This vegetable butter keeps in perfect condition all the year round in spite of the heat.

THE DOG'S TAIL.

Its Language in the Chase and When the Animal Is Pleased.

In the case of all hunting dogs, such as foxhounds or wolves, which pack together, the tail is carried aloft and is very free in movement. It is also frequently rendered more conspicuous by the tip being white, and this is almost invariably the case when the hounds are of mixed color. When ranging the long grass of the prairie or jungle, the raised tips of the tail would often be all that an individual member of the band would see of its fellows.

There is no doubt that hounds habitually watch the tails of those in front of them when drawing a covert. If a faint drag is detected suggestive of the presence of a fox, but scarcely sufficient to be sworn to vocally, the tail of the finder is at once set in motion, and the warmer the scent the quicker does it wag. Others, seeing the signal, quickly join the first, and there is an assemblage of waving tails before even the least whimper is heard.

Should the drag prove a doubtful one, the hounds separate again, and the waving ceases, but if it grows stronger when followed up the wagging becomes more and more emphatic until one after another the animals begin to whine and give tongue and stream off in Indian file along the line of scent.

When the pack is in full cry upon a strong scent, the tails cease to wave, but are carried aloft in full view. The moment when the dog most enjoys life is the moment when he sights game. That moment is the time when he wags his tail most vigorously in order to announce his discovery to his fellow dogs.

In this way, by the habit of association, he got to wagging his tail whenever he was pleased. The more pleased he is the more vigorously he wags his tail, so that the wagging of a dog's tail under pleasurable emotions can be traced directly to the time when the dog used his tail as a signal of the discovery of his prey.—D. A Story of Two Necklaces.

When General Weyler was sent by Spain as governor general to Manila, Don Carlos Palanca, the wealthy Spaniardized Chinaman, determined to send Mrs. Weyler a gift, the customary way of obtaining the good will of the Spanish officials. He found at a jeweler's two necklaces, each costing $20,000 and both being so beautiful that he could not choose between them. So he sent them both to Mrs. Weyler with the message that she should make her choice. He received a warm letter of thanks from her, stating that the necklaces were so beautiful that she could not decide between them and hence would keep both, which she did.

Theories About Drowned Bodies.

It was a popular theory in days gone by that the body of a drowned man would float the ninth day. Sir Thomas Browne alludes to it as believed in his time, and in his "Pseudo-doxia Epidemica" there is a discussion on this fanciful notion. It was also believed that the spirits of those drowned at sea were doomed to wander for a hundred years owing to the rites of burial having never been properly bestowed upon their bodies.—Notes and Queries.

A Witty Reply of Pope.

As narrated by Edward Walford in his "Greater London," Frederick, prince of Wales, sometimes visited Alexander Pope at his villa. On one occasion when the prince was on a visit Pope, after expressing the most dutiful professions of attachment, gave his royal highness an opportunity of observing very shrewdly that his (the poet's) love for princes was inconsistent with his dislike for kings, since princes may in time become kings. Said his royal highness:

"Mr. Pope, I hear you don't like princes."

"Sir, I beg your pardon."

"Well, then, you don't like kings."

"Sir, I must own that I like the lion best before his claws are grown."

No reply could well have been happier.

Cultivate Tact.

The average man who curses his luck because he wasn't born with money to take advantage of his opportunities could get all the money he wants from people who have it if he had a small stock of tact. The youth who hasn't any friends who have faith in him could have an army of them if there was in his makeup a small stock of tact.

Tact has built more bridges and railroads, financed more banks, created more public reputations and capped more achievements than all the ability, talent and genius in the world. More subtle than money, it acquires possessions at less cost. Surer than brains, it achieves bigger things with greater ease.—New York Press.

Linseed Tea.

Linseed tea is good for colds and is easily made. Put six tablespoonfuls of linseed and a quart of water into a pan and boil it for ten minutes. Then pour it off and add to it some slices of lemon and brown sugar to taste. If the flavor of licorice is liked, an ounce of it may be added. This is a refreshing and useful drink, especially for children with feverish colds, when there is sure to be much discomfort from thirst.

THE SOUND OF A PIANO.

Seeming Defects That May Be Often Due to Exterior Causes.

"A piano," said a dealer, "will sometimes develop or seem to develop a flaw in some one note, which comes to have a rattle or jingle or unpleasant burr to it, but this jarring sound which seems to come from the piano may in reality come from some source quite outside of it.

"Any given note when struck produces a certain number of vibrations to the second. There may be in the room some object that is in tone sympathy with some particular note, and that will be set in motion by it when that note is sounded.

"The owner of a fine piano sent to us one day to say that there was something wrong about a certain note of the instrument, so that that note had an unpleasant sound when struck. When I heard the note sounded, I knew at once that the disagreeable roughness or buzz about it was due not to any defect in the piano, but to something somewhere about in the room, and, asking the lady to strike that note occasionally, I walked around the room to see if I could locate it.

"Passing across the middle of the room as that note was struck, the cause of the jarring accompaniment of it was discovered to come from the vibration of one of the glass globes on the chandelier overhead.

"The owner of the piano was almost incredulous as to this, the sound had seemed so plainly to come from the piano itself. But when at my request she stood under the chandelier and I struck the note she was readily convinced.

"I made that globe immovable and then struck the note on the piano. The answer was clear and sweet and true.

"So, you see, the sound of the piano may for one thing depend much upon its surroundings, and what may seem to be a defect in a piano may be in reality attributable to something quite apart from the piano itself.

"And thus it might easily be that some noble instrument that had seemed to be declining or to be developing faults owed its apparent change to a change of environment or to some specific outside cause and was in reality as good as ever, as would happily be discovered whenever the instrument was again brought under favorable conditions."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Prays" as It Preys.

Very strange is the insect popularly known as the "praying mantis." Of this insect M. J. H. Fabre, a distinguished French naturalist, made a thorough study. According to him, "its long, pale green wings, like ample veils, its head upraised to heaven, its arms folded and crossed on its breast, give it a false resemblance to a nun in ecstatic devotion."

A ferocious creature it is, ever bent on carnage, the workshops of various harrowing hymenoptera being its favorite haunts, since there it is almost certain to find prey.

"Posted on some bush near the burrows," says Mr. Fabre in his account of the insect, "it waits patiently until it sees some other insect, probably a sphex, returning home. By a sudden rustle of its half open wings it terrifies the approaching insect, which hesitates for a moment, and then as suddenly as a spring the toothed forearm folds back on an arm also toothed, and the insect is grasped between the blades of the double saw in the same manner as the jaws of a wolf trap close on an unfortunate wolf at the instant when it is seizing the bait. Then, without unclosing the deadly machine, the mantis slowly eats its victim."

In Provence this cruel insect is known as "prego Dieou," which means "pray to God."

THE TROUTING SEASON.

Now to the brooks
And faroff nooks
The fishermen are going,
Each feeling sure
That he'll secure
Some beauties well worth showing.

The trudge is long,
But legs are strong,
And, though there's frequent stumbling,
The fisherman
Push on again
And never think of grumbling.

At last they look
Upon the brook
That's just the place for trouting;
The poles are fixed,
The lines unmixed,
And luck not one is doubting.

They decorate
With tempting bait
The hooks with which they're fishing;
Then here and there
With greatest care
The lines are soon set swishing.

They swish and swish,
But nary fish
Is to the surface rising;
They try and try,
And then they sigh
O'er failure so surprising.

To other brooks
And other nooks
Their lonesome way they're wending,
But not a trout
Can they yank out,
Though oft the lines they're sending.

They fish away
Till end of day,
And then they're homeward going;
They try to grin
While yarns they spin,
But not one trout they're showing.
—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

One on the Doctor.

Tommy—I say, are you the new doctor?

Dr. Bono—Yes.

Tommy—Great Scott! You sent back word by our servant to say you wouldn't be long!

A Woman.

Fowler—Come, now, what did she say when you asked her to marry you?

Fisher—Oh, I don't know; something about not having me if there wasn't another man in the world.

Fowler—And what did you say to that?

Fowler—I didn't say anything. It's just as well to let a woman have the last word. She's bound to have it anyway.—Boston Traveler.

Time Will Work Wonders.

It was 1950.

Two citizens were discussing their friends.

"That man Smythe is horribly stuck up," said the first citizen.

"He is that," agreed the second. "Did you hear about his spelling his name S-m-i-t-h now?"—Baltimore American.

Progress.

"Don't you think," I inquired of the prosperous looking man with the heavy mustache and watch chain, who was dressed in the fourteen inch baik line suit, "that the world is getting better?"

"Sure," he replied, with the frank enthusiasm of success; "not only better, but easier."—Puck.

Threatening.

Book Agent—What! You say you never read this great book? Did I hear you right?

Busy Merchant—No, you didn't hear me write, but you'll feel me speak if you don't get out.—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Latest Deformity.

"What's the matter with you, Percy? Brace up."

"Go way, you idiot, I've got the ping-pong back!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE BIG STATE FAIR

Minnesota's Grand Exposition Will Be Held Sept. 1 to 6, 1902.

Everything Points to the Greatest Fair Yet Given.

REDUCED RATES ON ALL RAILROADS

Good Roads Train a Feature—National Cattle Show.

Amusement Program Which Beats All Records.

Minnesota has good reason to be proud of her State Fair.

Taking all things into consideration it is, perhaps, fair to say that no other influence is working out so much good to the state as the State Fair. It is doing a powerful educational work; it is introducing broader methods of farming; it is stimulating stock growing; it is developing horticulture; and it is advertising Minnesota to the world as no other institution can or would.

Within a decade the Minnesota State Fair has risen from an inconspicuous place among the state fairs of the country until it is now the largest of all, and it has even outstripped the great Canadian fair at Toronto, which has held first place for many years in attendance and receipts. Last year over 187,000 people passed in through the turnstiles at the Minnesota State Fair grounds.

The Minnesota State Fair is the only one which can maintain great national cattle shows. No other fair attempts these shows. And the great cattle breeders' associations would not consider making exhibitions at any of them if the matter were broached.

Evening Amusements.

The Minnesota Fair was the first to introduce evening entertainments and the only state fair which has made them a success. A feature of the evening entertainments this year will be Pain's latest and greatest marvel of pyrotechnic performance, "The Siege of Pekin." This spectacular drama requires a stage 300 feet long, and 500 yards of canvas are necessary for the scenery. The play is founded on the stirring events of a year or so back in China and the piece closes with a tremendous display of fireworks. Each evening, before the pyrotechnic performance, there are races under electric light, specialties of the higher order and a fine band concert.

AGRICULTURAL BUILDING—STATE FAIR GROUNDS.

Good Roads at the Fair.

For the fair of 1902 the management is making broader plans than ever before. One of the most important of the new departures is the great Good Roads convention and road building demonstration. This is no common "good roads talking match" as some one has called certain efforts in this line. The good roads movement which will be inaugurated at the fair is backed by the Agricultural Department of the United States government. The government will send to the fair grounds its famous "Good Roads Train"—a train of a dozen cars loaded with the latest things in road making machinery and apparatus. These machines will be unloaded at the fair grounds and, under the directions of government engineering experts, a half mile or more of model road will be built before the eyes of the visitors. Model roads in macadam, gravel and dirt will be constructed, errors will be pointed out and practical ideas disseminated.

In fact, the practical will govern and control at this good roads meet. Only practical methods will be talked about or demonstrated. Persons with theories will not be given a hearing. Experience will be the authority. While the demonstrations of the real thing are going on on the fair grounds, a convention will be held in Institute hall, where the subject will be discussed by plain-speaking expert authorities on good roads, and where visitors will have an opportunity to ask questions. It is the intention to make the whole thing as useful as possible to the people of the northwest.

Monday, of fair week, will be Good Roads Day. The convention will last till Wednesday, but the demonstration work with the machinery will go on all the week.

Live Stock Exhibition.

At this year's fair exhibitions and sales will be held by the American Short-horn Breeders' Association and the American Hereford Breeders' Association. These great associations of stock growers, which are the richest and most influential organizations of their kind in the world, make no exhibitions at any other state fairs. They are so gratified with the results of showing at the Minnesota fair that they will bring an increased number of animals this year, while the auction sales, which are a feature of these shows, will be crowded with the best from the finest herds in the country.

The auction sales and judging of these cattle take place in two great circus tents, which are put up near the cattle barns on the fair grounds. It is one of the most interesting sights of the fair to see these magnificent cattle brought in for sale or for the judgment of experts of international reputation, as to their points and value.

These great exhibitions by the Hereford and Short-horn people naturally stimulate all other breeders to send their best animals to the Minnesota fair. The enthusiasm has spread to the dairy cattle growers, and this year the Holstein-Friesian Association will add a large amount to the State Fair premiums for its class and will make a large and attractive display. Other dairy breeds will be splendidly represented.

Things Worth Seeing.

The National Live Stock Shows of Pure Bred Cattle—A greater exhibition than the Royal Cattle Show at London.

The State Fair Midway—Replete with fun and amusement.

The Fast Horses on the Mile Track each Afternoon—No race for less than $1,000 purse.

The great $5,000 trotting race on Minneapolis day.

Kilpatrick in his sensational automobile riding.

The big $5,000 pacing race on St. Paul day.

Pain's fireworks spectacle each evening of the fair.

The immense new Agricultural Hall filled with the products of Minnesota farms and orchards.

Balloon ascensions each afternoon of the fair.

Racing by electric light each evening on the half-mile track.

A great horse show and parade.

Athletic exhibitions extraordinary.

A building devoted to women's work.

A tremendous exhibit of farm machinery in motion.

Dairy products—farm products—factory products—all the things which have made Minnesota famous.

All on the finest state fair grounds in America.

Races and Amusements.

Each afternoon of the fair there will be a magnificent program in front of the grand stand. The races include the great Minneapolis and St. Paul day $5,000 purse races, while none is for a purse less than $1,000. Following is the complete program for the afternoon events:

Good Roads and Labor Day.

Monday, Sept. 1st, Good Roads and Labor Day.—2:09 class, pacing, purse $1,000; hippodrome races; band concert; balloon ascension; 2:45 class, trotting, purse $1,000; Kilpatrick's sensational automobile ride; running races on half-mile track; high wire exhibition; the great Schreyer's aerial cyclist and flying dive act.

St. Paul Day.

Tuesday, Sept. 2nd, St. Paul Day.—2:13 class, pacing, purse $5,000; band concert; hippodrome races; balloon ascension; 2:25 class, trotting, purse $1,000; Kilpatrick's sensational automobile ride; running races on half-mile track; exhibition of saddle and harness horses; high wire exhibition; the great Schreyer's aerial cyclist and flying dive act.

Farmers' Day.

Wednesday, Sept. 3rd, Farmers' Day.—2:15 class, trotting, purse $1,000; Kilpatrick's sensational automobile ride; balloon ascension; 2:30 class, pacing, purse $1,000; band concert; hippodrome races; running races on half-mile track; exhibition of saddle and harness horses; high wire exhibition; the great Schreyer's aerial cyclist and flying dive act.

Live Stock and Dairy Day.

Thursday, Sept. 4th, Live Stock Day.—2:18 class, pacing, purse, $1,000; hippodrome races; band concert; 2:35 class, trotting, purse $1,000; balloon ascension; Kilpatrick's sensational automobile ride; running races on half-mile track; high wire exhibition; the great Schreyer's aerial cyclist and flying dive act.

Minneapolis Day.

Friday, Sept. 5th, Minneapolis Day.—2:21 class, trotting, purse $5,000; band concert; hippodrome races; Kilpatrick's sensational automobile ride; live stock parade; parade by live stock firms of South St. Paul; running races on half-mile track; balloon ascension; high wire exhibition; the great Schreyer's aerial cyclist and flying dive act.

Twin City Day.

Saturday, Sept. 6th, Twin City Day.—2:40 class, pacing, purse $1,000; Kilpatrick's sensational automobile ride; balloon ascension; band concert; hippodrome races; running races on half-mile track; high wire exhibition; the great Schreyer's aerial cyclist and flying dive act.

Something for the Women.

The Minnesota State Federation of Women's Clubs will again keep open house at the coming Minnesota State Fair. Headquarters have been established in the Club House—the same building used for the last two years—and committees of ladies will be in charge every day during fair week. There will be some very attractive and useful exhibits of educational and industrial work and programs, both instructive and entertaining, will be given each day. From four to five each afternoon there will be a social hour, when tea will be served.

The building is open to all women, whether members of affiliated clubs or not, and the committee in charge announces that its members are especially anxious to meet every woman interested in home and home-making. The Federation headquarters will be a delightful place for the woman who visits the fair to rest and meet friends or make new acquaintances.

PLEASURE AND PROFIT.

Both May Be Had at the Minnesota State Fair.

The Minnesota State Fair is a great educational institution. The visitor who really sees it and does not add largely to his store of knowledge thereby is not quick of comprehension, and he and not the school is at fault. The fair is a great school, and like other good schools it has its hours of recreation, its lapses from labor to rest, from study to amusement. The latter is supplied in ample quantity and of harmless quality. And it is wisely provided that much of it can be enjoyed evenings, so that those who desire to work all day may be amused at night, and so be made to forget the day's fatigue in the interest and excitement of a few hours of rest in the great grandstand. The attractions here cannot be specified in this connection, but that they will be satisfactory to all and offensive to none is guaranteed. The fair opens Sept. 1st, and half-fare rates are made on all railroads.

Bowling Alley is Started.

On last Saturday Fagan & Husman got the constructive work on the new bowling alley finished and it has been the busiest place in town ever since. The sport of bowling furnishes the finest kind of physical exercise as well as amusement and the more people know it the better they like it. It is a sport that can be indulged by ladies as well as men and Messrs. Fegan & Husman intend, as soon as the premises are fitted up completely, to set apart certain days and hours for lady patrons. The proprietors will conduct the place in such a manner that ladies can attend at any time and witness the sport as nothing will be tolerated on the premises that any person could possibly take exception to.

Prompt Payment of Loss.

Just two weeks ago this evening a bad hail storm struck a portion of the country west of St. Hilaire and in some places the destruction of the grain crop was complete, while in many instances a partial loss was sustained. Among the losers was Julius Pleth whose crops on section 26 of Bray township was badly damaged. However, Mr. Pleth's business foresight had caused him to insure that crop in the hail department of the St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co. Last week the adjuster for the company visited Mr. Pleth's land and the loss was adjusted satisfactorily. On Monday a check arrived covering the loss in full and Mr. Pleth says he is decidedly well pleased with the adjustment and prompt payment.

Wedding of Chas. England

Charles England just returned from the east with the prettiest little wife that ever saw the hills or the state of North Dakota. Her name before marrying was Miss Lillian Brighton. She is an actress and the daughter of a Chicago banker. They will leave next week for Ballard, Wash., to visit his parents and return through the Southern states back to Chicago.—Minot Reporter.

The bridegroom has many old-time friends in the vicinity of St. Hilaire, who will wish him lasting happiness. He is now owner of the England ranch on the Missouri river with 1,000 head of stock, and manager of five prosperous ranches belonging to the Norman Cattle Co.

Country Life.

Americans have developed a craze for country homes. You see them on every side, the home of rich men and the homes of poor men, but all unique in design and comfortable for summer use. Like golf the craze is an encouraging sight as it shows Americans have a strong liking for a healthy out of door life, despite their tendency toward centering in large, unhealthy cities. These same people will be greatly pleased with golden grain belt beer for it brings health and freshness to those who use it regularly. Every glass contains the strength of bread and meat in liquid form. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

An old and never failing remedy for coughs and colds is the Imperial Cough Syrup.

For that tired feeling there is nothing better than Imperial Sarsaparilla.

Announcements of Candidates

REGISTER OF DEEDS.

I desire to announce to the voters of Red Lake county that I am a candidate for the nomination for register of deeds subject to the decision of the Peoples Party at the Primary Election to be held on September 16, 1902.

If nominated and re-elected I will continue the work which I have started of reforming and modernizing our system of records so as to make it second to none in the state of Minnesota.

Sincerely your servant,
SAMUEL GIBEAU.

TREASURER.

I desire to announce to the voters of Red Lake county that I am a candidate for nomination for county treasurer, subject to the decision of the Peoples Party at the primaries, September 16th, 1902.

O. T. TANDBERG.

AUDITOR.

I wish to announce to the voters of Red Lake county that I am a candidate for the nomination for county auditor, subject to the decision of the Republican party at the primaries to be held Sept. 16th, 1902.

O. H. PETERS.

FARMER JOE'S SPEECH.

It Was Short, but It Crushed the Bumptious Youngster.

"You may get the better of an opponent in debate," said an old time orator, "by sheer force of convincing argument—that is to say, you may score and win on points—but if you want to put your man down and out at a single coup just make him ridiculous. Only succeed in doing this, and all the logic of the other side will explode in vacancy like so many blank cartridges.

"Once when I was serving a term in the state in the legislature a bumptious youngster who had just been introduced was laboring through his maiden effort. He was attacking a man who was his senior by at least a score and ten years and thought to make a hit by referring to him as 'that little gray-beard from Herkimer.' Rymal of Ningtru rose to reply. He was an old timer, who never spoke unless he had something to say and so was always sure of an attentive audience. Farmer Joe, as he was called, got up slowly, gradually expanded himself to his full height of 6 feet 4, thrust his left hand behind the tails of a capacious and somewhat shabby frock coat, held up the index finger of his right hand, cleared his throat ominously and solemnly began:

"'Mr. Speaker, the honorable gentleman who has just spoken has never read Pope's essay. If he had, he would remember that the "soul's the standard of the man." And, sir, fifty such souls as that of the honorable gentleman who preceded me could be put into the skull of a flea and have as much room there as two frogs in Lake Superior.'

"He didn't have to say more. The chamber went into a convulsion of laughter which lasted for several minutes after the tall farmer had resumed his seat. As for the youngster, he did the best he could. He wriggled about, got red in the face, tried to look unconcerned and kept his mouth closed during the balance of the session."—New York News.

Drinking Through the Nostrils.

The Indian sages do not practice their breathing exercises simply for the sake of repose and sleep. During the inbreathing energy is increased. These Indians are not the only people who believe that with the inbreathing of pure air there comes something still more vital than oxygen. But the Indians have developed the art of breathing more than any other people.

One of their favorite exercises is to inhale through the left nostril, to hold the breath for a time and then exhale through the right nostril.

Another of their exercises is to drink water through the nostrils, and after it has been retained for a short time it is expelled through the nostrils and the mouth. This is said to cool the head.—Chambers' Journal.

Growing Bananas.

Bananas are as a rule planted out systematically in rows, the "suckers" being placed at an average of ten feet apart. The banana plant bears only one bunch at a time, but it is a quick grower, yielding its fruit in twelve to fourteen months. When the plant is about six months old, a second "sucker" or shoot is allowed to spring from the root, a third after the ninth month, and so on, so that after the first year there is a continuous crop being reaped.

Fans In Shakespeare's Time.

Fans in Shakespeare's time seem to have been composed of ostrich and other feathers fastened to handles. Gentlemen carried fans in those days, and in one of the later figures of the german they now carry fans. According to an old manuscript in the Ashmolean museum, Sir Edward Cole rode the circuit with a prodigious fan, which had a long stick, with which he corrected his daughters.

Of More Importance.

"Get my name right," said the proud owner of the 1,175 pound hog. "It's Judson K. Blum. My father was Colonel Hiram Hotchkiss Blum of Lexington, Ky. He came to Illinois in the year"—

"Never mind that," interrupted the secretary of the fat stock show. "Give us the pedigree of the hog."—Chicago Tribune.

Occasional Relief.

WHAT IS TEMPERAMENT?

No Wonder This Child's Brain Is All In a Muddle.

The half dozen blocks about Dupont circle inclose the homes of as many scientists of national reputation. These gentlemen of course know each other and meet frequently. Not long ago one of their neighbors began to wonder whether such intimate intercourse among scientists was a good thing. His cogitation having had its rise in the following incident:

His little daughter has just reached the age when she asks 200 questions a day. About a month ago her father spoke of some author as lacking the proper "temperament" for writing on history. That word "temperament" apparently took root in the youngster's mind. What was temperament? She asked that question twice an hour for an entire week.

Finally her father gave her a note to Professor —— and sent her off to find out. That scientist answered the query as follows: "Temperament is an individual tendency to the rise of a certain mental state." Father and daughter wrestled with that a little while and then applied to a second member of the scientific group for help. No. 2 called temperament "an ensemble of physical and mental traits arising from fundamental constitutional differences in individuals." This put the little girl's father completely at sea. So No. 3 was tried. His judgment was that "temperament is the psychic resultant of the whole organic life of the individual." By this time hope was abandoned. But when No. 4 volunteered to make it clear the family spirits revived. "Temperament is a general disposition of the mind," he wrote, "the distinctions of which depend on the dominance of one or the other of the physiological systems."

And now the family dictionary is worn out.—Washington Star.

ANTISEPTICS.

They Do Not Destroy, It Is Said, but Only Arrest Germ Life.

The Edinburgh Scotsman begs leave to correct the erroneous belief that implies that antiseptics can prevent decay. Decay may be arrested without killing the microbe which would produce it. A few drops of a solution of carbolic acid added to flour paste will keep it sweet for a certain time, not because the germs in the paste are destroyed, but because these germs are hindered for the time being in their growth and multiplication and because the paste is rendered temporarily an unsuitable soil for the growth of whatever microbes may fall from the air into it.

When the effect of the acid has worn off and disappeared, we see the paste going to the bad as rapidly as if it had not been treated antiseptically at all. Molds will grow in it, and it will decay in the fashion familiar to everybody.

It is in this way cold may act as an antiseptic when it is used to preserve meat and fish. There is no destruction, but only arrest of germ life. If we wish to kill microbes, therefore, we not only have to use a disinfectant, but we must employ it in proper proportions and see that it thoroughly attacks the germs we wish to destroy. It is for this reason that all attempts to kill germs which the air may contain are worse than useless. We cannot "disinfect" the air. If we could do so, we should require to saturate the air with our germicide to such an extent that to breathe it would kill us.

We get an excellent example of this fallacy of "disinfecting air" when we reflect that in using burning sulphur to purify a room after a fever case we have to use it in such a way and in such proportion that it is impossible for any person to remain in the room at all.

The Jury Disagreed.

"Doctor," said the Cannibal King to his court physician; "I'm feeling mighty bad this morning. My stomach is all out of order."

"Um-m-m!" mused the court physician. "Been eating some more of those rich foreigners?"

"No," moaned the king. "The last banquet we had was twelve men that claimed to have been professional jurymen at home."

"Well," advised the court physician, "you had better send for your attorney-general. The jury must have disagreed, and he should take charge of the case."—Judge.

Couldn't Live Without Them.

New York City, Aug. 18th.—Mr. Charles Back of 64 Rue de la Victoire, Paris, France, relates a most interesting experience:

"Ever since I was about three years of age I have suffered severely with Kidney Disease.

"Last year I spent some time at the baths at Carlsbad (Bohemia,) but I came back after five weeks' treatment with a severe pain still in my Kidneys.

"My doctors in Paris and Hamburg could do nothing for me.

"I was obliged to start from Paris to Montreal, Canada, and when I arrived in the Canadian city I was half dead.

"I read an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills in a newspaper there, and began to use this remedy, and after two days' treatment I felt that my pains were leaving me, and in a week I had no pains at all.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wonderful remedy in the world. I keep them always with me, for I believe I could not live without them."

He Understood Her.

The Daffodils

I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd
Beside the lake, beneath the trees
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the milky way,
They stretch'd in never-ending line
Along the margin of a bay:
Ten thousand saw I at a glance
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced, but they
Outdid the sparkling waves in glee;
A poet could not but be gay
In such a jocund company!
I gazed and gazed, but little thought
What wealth the show to me had brought.

For oft, when on my couch I lie
In vacant or in pensive mood,
They flash upon that inward eye
Which is the bliss of solitude;
And then my heart with pleasure fills
And dances with the daffodils.

The Exit of Jeems.

(Copyright, 1902, Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"Go way, childrun, de ol' man doan feel like tellin' no stories t'day. Besides, he only came to de big house to hol' a private reesepshun wid yoah pap, who gives de ol' man open house t'day. Den, too, de heart am sad, an' de tongue em still in con'squence.

"Wot! Yoah jest took it? Now, look'er yere, yoah yungsters, yoah Uncle Jess doan want nobody to stole for him, even if 'tis tobaccy. Howevah, seein' tis heah, I guess mebbe dat might effec' de loostration o' my speech, so I'll tell yoah 'bout dat onery son Jim o' mine. Nebber heerd it? Well, well. Ol' Jess doan of'en tell o' things wat make his heart jump in his wuthless brack breast.

"Yoah see, childrun, dis happened when yoah gran'pap wah a young man—must er been erbout six yeahs befoah yoah pap wah bohn. De trubble 'tween de Noath and de South had bruk out, an' de sogers wah fittin' all ober de country. De niggahs on our place wah all satisfied, an' de did'n' habe no fool ideas erbout runnin' way to the Noath. De mahstah, yoah gran'pap, wah a shoah 'nuf angel, he wah, an' de niggahs would er died fer him, de would, indeed."

The tattered coat sleeve touched the old man's eyes where a few drops of moisture had suddenly appeared.

"De hide of de ol' man am wrinkled an' cracked now, but in de happy days befoah de wah he can see de mahstah in his big cheer at de table, wid all de fine ladies an' gemman erbout him, an' de same table jes' a creakin' wid good eatin's. In dem days de cabins o' de field hands wah nebber widout der flap-jacks an' pork meat, an' de feet o' de wimmen wah always er dancin'.

"Den, as I says, de trubble brecks out. We didn't 'spect ter see no Yankee sojers in our part o' de valley, an' de mahstah might er staid dere widout goin' ter fight at all. Course he didn't do nothin' o' de kind, but he done offered his services to de state to help whip de Yankees. It wahn't very long befoah he wah made a lef'tenn't, an' Jess done followed him frough all. When de hoss lef' foah de front he say to me an' de othah men:

"'Jess, yoah are to go wid me if yoah likes. Othahwise yoah may jine any o' de othah han's what might wanter go Noath. I gives eny one der freedom to leabe ef de wants ter go.'

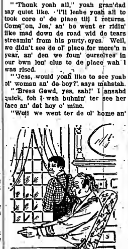
"Well, sir, not a niggah moved, 'cept yoah Uncle Jess, an' he only edged up a little clusser to de ol' mahstah.

"'Thonk yoah all,' yoah gran'dad say quiet like. 'I'll leabe yoah all to took care o' de place till I returns. Come on, Jes,' an' he went er ridin' like mad down de road wid de tears streamin' from his purty eyes. Well, we didn't see de ol' place for more'n a year, an' den we foun' ourselves in our own len' clus to de place wah I was rised.

"'Jess, would yoah like to see yoah ol' woman an' de boy?' says mahstah.

"'Bress Gawd, yes, sah!' I ansahd quick, foh I wah buhnin' ter see her face an' dat boy o' mine.

"Well we went ter de ol' home an' de mahstah set in his own cheer an' de table wah set jes' de same's in de olden days.



"De mastah sat in his own cheer jes' de same's in de olden days."

"When de mahstah sat himself down he told de help to all go down in de big bahn an' git ready foah an ol'-fashioned dance.

"Yet de tears bust right out when he wah left alone wid me, an' he frew his ahms erround dis same ol' wrinkled neck an' cried as if his poah heart would broke. Aftah a while de tears stopped an' he took his place at de table. But he didn't eat none—jes' looked frum de picture of his daid pap an' mammy to de cheers wah de othah fine peoplas ustar set.

"An' den, as dis niggah crouched in a cohner, wid his heart breakin' at de grief o' de mouhner, he heerd a runnin' o' bare feet, an den de voice o' dat Jim o' mine cried sof'ly:

"'Oh, daddy, daddy! Git de mahstah erway quick. De sojers hab cotched all de han's in de bahn, an' deys comin' here now fer de mahstah. I jes' got out foah de took the bahn.'

"Well, childrun, de brain of de ol' man wucked purty fast den, yoah can bet.

"'Yeah, Jeems,' I saye, 'I'se gotter stay wid him, so yoah must help yoah dad ter save him. Lemme whisper in yoah brack year.' I tole him what ter do an' den turned ter mahstah, who wah sittin' at de table jes' like he wah dreamin'. Dat wah on account o' de sorrow touchin' of his soul, yoah know.

"Trailed aftah him lak er dawg aftah er coon."

"'Mahstah, do what I tells yoah now an' foller ol' Jess' I said. 'Gimme dat purty sojer coat o' yourn a minute. Thank yoah, sah: Now, Jeems, take it, an' lemme kiss yoah big thick lips fer yer an yoah mammy. Now scoot.'

"De boy, he wah only 'bout eighteen yeahs ol', he wah, frew de big coat erbout him an' jes' as de sojers wah erbout to come in de front doah he jumped from de back an' started like a jack rabbit fer de woods what leads inter Mahtin's swamp. He wah in plain sight, an' da sojers, seein' de off'cer's coat by de light o' de bright moon, all trailed aftah him like a dog aftah a coon. Frum de windah I seah some little dist specks jump up in de road neah de boy's feet, but he kept on er dodgin' an' er dodgin' wid de 'cracks,' 'cracks' makin' music behind him.

"An' den I quick frew de silber in its hidin' place an' got de mahstah to our horses, what de sojers didn't hab no time ter take. We hadn't much more'n struck de pike when we heerd er disapp'inted yell in de rear, an' we sah de sojers staht aftah us in er hurry. It didn't take us long ter git ta Devil's Bend, when we turned inter de woods, an' der wahnt no Noathern Yankees could cotch us den, nohow. Mahstah an' I got erway easy, 'ceptin' he losed his coat, whatwah—what must have cost him fohty dollahs."

Again the suspicious moisture glistened in the half-closed eyes and the contracted wrinkles drew the wizened old face into a queer grimace.

"But what of Jim, Uncle Jess; did he get away, too?"

"Hush, chile, hush! Doan yoah see yoah poah ol' uncle am not well terday? De heart am sad an' de pow'ful misery o' de grabe hang heavy oveh his head, foh—foh dey cotched him. Dey cotched da poah brack boy on'y when—when he dropped daid wid—wid er bullet frew his brain," and the old man's head fell forward on his folded arms, as his feeble, emaciated form shook convulsively.

Pray Without Ceasing.

There is one spot in the United States where the voice of prayer is never still. For more than twenty months the "turret of prayer" that surrounds the Temple of Truth, near Lisbon Falls, Me., has never for an instant been without the sound of a human voice in supplication. It is the intention of the people who attend to this remarkable form of worship that prayer in the turret shall never cease so long as the building shall stand. Those who take part in the service compose the Holy Ghost and Us Society. The society affiliates with no denomination, and tries to conform strictly to the teachings of the Bible. Starting without a penny, it has in a few years achieved such success that it has built four buildings, the Temple of Truth among them, which form a rectangle capable of seating 20,000 people.—Methodist Magazine.

There is no other animal so tiresome as the talkative man who has nothing to say.

Value of Mature and Immature Fodders.

A report of the Nebraska station relative to the composition of feeding stuffs at different stages of growth says: The conditions of growth of the crops this season were about equally favorable for each of them, and some tentative conclusions may hence be drawn from the result of this (1900) season's work: The mixed crop, oats and peas, improves in composition as it grows older and should probably be allowed to stand as long as the pea vines will remain fairly erect. The proportion of flesh-forming to fat-forming constituents in the fodder obtained from this crop is very nearly the correct one for a well-balanced ration for most classes of animals, and it would probably be found unnecessary to supplement this fodder with grain or other foods.

Field corn, millet, sorghum and Kafir corn decrease rapidly in protein content while heading out. The percentage of crude fiber also decreases somewhat. Both of these changes are probably due to the rapid accumulation of starch and sugars in the plant juices at that time, as shown by the increased proportion of nitrogen-free extract. In order to obtain a fodder having as narrow a ratio of flesh-forming foods as possible, the crop should be cut at as early a stage as it can be well cured. For roughage to be fed in connection with highly nitrogenous foods it may well be allowed to grow until seeds are formed. After that period, however, the stalks rapidly become woody, and the proportion of waste is greatly increased.

No very significant change in composition of the cowpeas is apparent. This year's experience would seem to indicate that consideration of chemical composition is of minor importance in the selection of the proper stage for harvesting this crop for fodder. As compared with the other fodders analyzed this year, this one is by far the most desirable on account of its high proportion of nitrogenous material and small percentage of difficultly digestible fiber.

Poor Cattle Impose on Mexicans.

Reports from Mexico indicate that some live stock dealers there are working a confidence game on the badly informed natives and are selling them poor American cattle at high prices. Some Mexicans are enterprising enough to come to this country and buy their own breeding cattle. Such men get the best there is and are satisfied, though they have to pay good prices for everything in the breeding line. But the Mexicans that order American cattle through native or resident dealers get some very poor stuff. This has been the case to an extent that threatens to injure the sale of breeding bulls from this country. The Mexicans pay for first-class animals, but get scrubs. One result is seen in the turning of the Mexican buyers to the Brown Swiss cattle. Switzerland does not permit cattle to be exported without a certificate showing breeding and so forth. Thus no animals of inferior quality have so far gone to Mexico from Switzerland and the confidence of the Mexicans has been won for the Brown Swiss. The United States has had a number of lessons of this kind. Probably after the Swiss have taken all the trade the United States may wake up and do something. But there is danger that the lesson we had when Canada took our foreign cheese trade will not be remembered in connection with our cattle trade. We had a magnificent cheese trade with England till American sharpers were permitted to swamp the English market with filled cheese, and then we lost it, the English traders turning to Canada, where there were laws absolutely preventing such frauds. The Canadians took the trade and have kept it. We have a good trade in cattle springing up with Mexico and the other countries to the south of it. We should foster it by making fraud impossible.

Hops for the Hog Crop.

The short corn crop of last year is very largely responsible for the high prices that are being paid for hogs to-day. These high prices, if long continued, are certain to effect the habits of the people as to the eating of hog meat. It is for the benefit of the pork producer to have prices at a medium point but have a market for an enormous number of hogs. In this way the profits are widely distributed through the farming communities. The whole country is happier for it. Certainly no one wants to see an era of high prices for foods and congested money centers. The outlook for the corn crop is now good. Farmers that have hogs will not need to send them to market before they are at a size to be marketed to the best of advantage. A 250-pound hog is far more profitable under ordinary conditions than is the 150-pound hog. The short swine supply to-day is largely due to the fact that last year and this spring hogs too light in weight were marketed. The rapidity with which swine multiply will save the situation. Meantime every farmer and every citizen is interested in having a good big crop of healthy hogs.

A Government Date Orchard.

A dispatch from Phoenix, Arizona, to the Chicago Packer says: The government is going into the business of date culture on a large scale. At the experimental station near here has just been planted the largest date orchard in America, and perhaps in the world. Five acres have been planted with various kinds of date trees imported from Africa, besides about 1,000 seedlings. The Department of Agriculture seems to have no doubt that the date palm will ultimately solve the problem of what to do with the arid and alkali lands of Arizona and other parts of the West. Experiments have demonstrated the great possibilities of the industry.

"I Had the Headache Continually---Could Not Do My Work---Pe-ru-na Cured."

Mrs. Esther M. Milner, DeGraff, Ohio, writes:

"I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continually. I was not able to do my housework for my husband and myself. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine and have recommended it to my friends with best results."

Miss Mamie Groth, Platteville, Wis., writes: "Accept a grateful girl's thanks for the wonderful help I have received through the use of Peruna. Although I looked well and strong I have for several years suffered with frequent backache and would for several days have splitting headaches. I did not wish to fill my system with poisonous drugs, and so when several of my friends advised me to take Peruna, I asked my physician what he thought of it. He recommended it and so I took it and am entirely without pain of any kind now."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Resume of the News.

Fresh Reliable Brief

From the Capital.

Extra-session gossip is again revived. Information is guardedly disseminated. The president's Southwestern trip will probably be abandoned.

Orders have been issued at the navy department for the fitting out of the battleship Oregon at San Francisco for duty on the Asiatic station, to which she will be assigned.

The semi-official announcement that Judge Shiras will retire from the supreme court early next year, has started anew the gossip about Attorney General Knox as a probable successor. The intimate friends of the attorney general doubt if Mr. Knox would care to retire from the active practice of his profession.

The people of Aberdeen, S. D., are indignant over the delay of the supervising architect in preparing plans for the public building in that city. Errors were made in the plans and specifications first prepared, as they provided for a building to cost about $90,000, whereas the sum of $175,000 is available. This has necessitated the preparation of modified plans, and hence another delay.

Casualties.

The three-year-old daughter of Almon H. Marsh of Green Bay, Iowa, is dead as the result of the sting of a bee.

Two digesters in the pulp mill of the Jessup & Moore Paper company's plant at Wilmington, Del., exploded, and fifteen men were killed.

A heavy open car left the track on Jerome Park avenue at New York and went into a ditch, turning completely over. Eight persons were seriously injured, two fatally.

The baggage, mail, express and two chair cars of the El Paso limited on the Rock Island were ditched by a washout near Letts, Ia. A number of passengers were seriously hurt.

While fishing recently, a thirteen-year-old boy, Gustave Grunewald of New York, was struck on the head with a fishing sinker and instantly killed. The sinker hit the boy behind the ear.

Six lives were lost in a fire which burned the ram-shackle tenement at 36 Essex street, New York. After the fire was subdued the firemen searched the building from cellar to roof, finding six bodies.

The plant of the Portland Iron and Steel-company at Tigonia, Me., was destroyed by fire, causing a loss of $100,000. The fire resulted from an explosion caused by water dripping on a large quantity of molten metal.

The $25,000 Young Men's Christian association building at Pana, Ill., was demolished, the Catholic church spire blown down, windows broken, trees uprooted and a number of people injured by a cloudburst, causing $150,000 damage.

People Talked About.

The republicans of the Eleventh congressional district of Missouri, unanimously renominated Congressman C. P. Joy.

James B. Donner, superintendent of telegraph of the entire Harriman system of railroads, died at San Antonio, Tex.

Col. William A. Hemphill, former mayor of Atlanta and founder of the Atlanta Constitution, died suddenly in that city.

John F. Donovan of Milwaukee was nominated for member of congress by the Fourth congressional district Democratic convention.

Luther R. Marsh, eighty-nine years old, widely noted as a spiritualist, died at his home at Middletown, N. Y., after an illness of several weeks.

Capt. Joseph Barnum, a veteran of the Civil war and editor of the Hartford Sunday Journal, died at Hartford, Conn. He had been an invalid for the last ten years.

Benjamin F. Raltz, chief of police of Toledo, Ohio, for the past ten years, died at his home of diabetes. He was fifty-seven years old and was a veteran of the Civil war.

James E. McKillan, a well known mining stock broker, died at Aspen, Colo., of wounds inflicted with a revolver with suicidal intent. Mr. McKillan had been mentally deranged for over a year.

E. P. Hannaford, formerly chief engineer of the Grand Trunk railway system, died suddenly at Montreal, the immediate cause of death being heart failure. Mr. Hannaford was born in England in 1834.

Foreign Notes.

It is considered probable in Rome that Bishop Blenk of Porto Rico will be appointed apostolic delegate in the Philippine islands.

The act passed by the last session of the Dominion parliament deporting immigrants suffering from disease, will be put in force at once.

An oil trust has been formed in Austria, says the Geneva correspondent of the London Chronicle, to compete with the American and Russian oil companies.

Many of the native Zulus and Basutos in South Africa have secured firearms, and the Boers, being deprived of such weapons, are in dread of the consequences.

Nearly 1,000 people attended Lady Raglan's exhibition of herself in coronation costume at Cape House, London, and the Cottage Hospital fund was materially increased.

It is reported from Windsor palace that Emperor William of Germany has accepted King Edward's invitation to visit him at Sandringham some time in November.

A publishing house in China is to be established jointly by the Methodist Episcopal churches, North and South. The building for the plant has already been constructed at Shanghai.

The correspondent at Rome of the Associated Press has been authoritatively informed that papal consistory is probable before the month of November.

Sins and Sinners.

C. L. Downs, theatrical manager, and wife, were garroted and robbed of $1,050 in money and diamonds.

William H. Dillard has been arrested at Vancouver, B. C., charged with the forgery of Chinese letters of residence.

Mrs. Florence Wolf of Mount Morris, Illinois, was driven from her home and given a second coat of tar and feathers.

The sheriff is in charge of the Bankers' Trust and Investment company at Chicago. A. F. Norval, president, has fled, and if found will be prosecuted.

Frank Andrews, president of the wrecked City Savings Bank of Detroit, was sentenced to fifteen years at hard labor for misappropriating the bank's funds.

A. L. Stone is under arrest at Chicago, charged by Swift & Co. with embezzling $1,700 from their branch house at Akron, Ohio, for speculative purposes.

Charles Farris, white, and Fred Morris, colored, have been released from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., as a result of the Deming decision of the supreme court.

David F. Leavitt, aged sixty-two, a prominent coffee broker and treasurer of the Episcopal diocese of Missouri, committed suicide at St. Louis by taking carbolic acid, because of ill health.

Two members of the Cravens band of outlaws were choked at Cordell, Okla., until they revealed the whereabouts of their leaders, and gave testimony regarding some of the many crimes committed by them.

The dead body of David F. Leavitt, aged sixty-two years, a prominent coffee broker and treasurer of the Episcopal diocese of Missouri, was found at his residence in St. Louis. The coroner returned a verdict of suicide by carbolic acid.

A daring robbery was perpetrated in the jewelry store of A. A. Webster & Co., in Brooklyn, during the busy hours of the day. A tray of diamond rings valued at $4,000, was removed from one of the show cases, and the thief made his escape with it.

Jane Woolsey of Litchfield, arrested for making moonshine whisky, was hauled to Owensboro, Ky., in a wagon, but it was discovered that she could not be taken up the narrow stairs leading to the court room. She is five feet eight inches high and weighs 430 pounds.

J. C. Surles, a blacksmith of Kansas City, coming home unexpectedly, and, finding Albert Hayes, a boarder, in company with his wife, shot both. Mrs. Surles will probably recover. Hayes may die. After the shooting Surles requested a neighbor to notify the police, submitting to arrest without protest.

In a fight with disorderly negroes on a southbound Seaboard Air Line train, near Middleburg, N. C., Roadmaster Fred Stevens was shot and killed, and Jim Mitchell, a negro porter, was seriously wounded. The negroes objected to the "Jim Crow" car. One was captured.

Mamie Powell of New York, pretty, slight and only twenty-one, started her career as a highway robber. Armed with a knife with a blade four inches long and sharpened on both edges, she held up a well known citizen of Harlem, James Kennedy and stabbed him. She was captured after a chase.

Otherwise.

The Star theater, St. Paul, will throw open its doors to the theater-going public Sunday matinee, Aug. 31, with the usual daily matinees throughout the season. The attraction is the famous City Club company of fifty artists of European and American celebrities, introducing, for the first time in America, at any theater, Mons and Mlle. Paxton's Famous productions of art pictures by twelve models direct from Paris.

Ten other big acts and a car of special machinery and effects will no doubt fill this popular theater to its capacity during their week's stay in the city. The prices of 10, 20 and 30 cents will rule throughout the season. At the Dewey theater the new Trocadero Burlesquers will hold the boards. Their last engagement in Minneapolis testified that they ranked among the leaders in burlesque productions, and Manager Wittig advises those who wish to wire or write for reserved seats and avoid the rush at the box office.

The wholesale price of anthracite in New York has jumped to $10 per ton for stove coal, and $11 for egg alongside.

Prominent South Omaha packing men say the Cudahys have sold their packing interests to the packers' trust for $21,000,000.

A cloudburst near Fenton, twenty miles southwest of Sterling, Ill., deluged several thousand acres of land, destroying the corn crop.

Shipments of currency to the West and South for moving crops, if continued at the present rate of demand, will foot up $11,000,000 by Sept. 1.

A fuel famine threatens the mills in the Pittsburg district, and more than 50,000 men may be thrown out of employment through the lack of coal and coke.

John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, has purchased the Fauret block and opera house at Lima, Ohio, for $90,000. It is his intention to make extensive improvements.

Two hundred freight handlers at the Erie railroad freight house in Chicago have gone on a sympathetic strike because five men have been discharged. The strike is not expected to spread.

After discussing for more than three hours the proposed scheme of segregation of the sexes at the University of Chicago, the board of trustees has again decided to postpone action for two months. A majority is said to be opposed to segregation.

Rudolph Zumstein, brother of Rev. Hans Zumstein of La Porte, Ind., recently went to Manila, P. I., to work as a teacher. Hearing that he had cholera, Miss Jeanette Williams of Denver reached his bedside forty-eight hours before his death, and was married to him.

WELCOME IS WARM

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT STARTS ON HIS TOUR OF NEW ENGLAND.

HARTFORD WAS IN GALA DRESS

THOUSANDS TURN OUT TO TENDER GREETING TO THE PRESIDENT.

PLEASING FEATURE OF THE DAY

PRESENTATION OF A LARGE FLORAL PIECE BY THE WORKINGMEN.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 23.—President Roosevelt was welcomed in Hartford on his New England tour yesterday by a great burst of enthusiasm. The president showed his pleasure at the reception he received and delivered a well-received speech last night on important national relations. To President Roosevelt the feature of the day was the presentation of a large floral piece by the workingmen of Hartford. Hartford was in gala dress to welcome the president, the weather was perfect and there was not a hitch to mar the proceedings.

In Poke Park, one of the beautiful outlying recreation spots of the city, the president was greeted by 10,000 workingmen, who presented him with a magnificent floral horseshoe inscribed: "Workingmen's welcome to our president."

Father Michael Sullivan made a few remarks of welcome, in which he commended the

of purpose of the president in all his acts. The president responded, and his remarks were frequently interrupted by applause. He said:

"Father Sullivan: I came here to say a few words myself, but nothing that I can say will in any way have the significance that the gift from the wage-workers of Hartford has. I should, of course, be wholly unfitted for the position I occupy if I did not give my best thought and best purpose to trying to serve the interests of the toiler of America. (Cheers). My most resolute purpose shall be given, and, if I may say so, is being given, to trying to do anything that can be done to help our people. Perhaps I can do this best by trying to help as well as I can their best purpose and their best thought. (Cries of 'Good, good.') I should like to accept that gift as in some way personal to myself, but I would rather accept it as I know it is meant, as a

Gift From Americans

to a man who for the time being embodies American governmental principles. (Cries of 'Good, good' and cheers.)

Five thousand men and women crowded the Coliseum here last night to hear the address of President Roosevelt. At least two-thirds of the audience were workingmen, and the enthusiasm manifested by them when the president alluded to the rights of the toiler aroused the keenest interest. Again and again during his prefatory remarks, which were based on the afternoon—the presentation of a floral horseshoe by the workingmen—the president was interrupted by vociferous applause. Such side remarks as the following: "I do not care how honest a man may be, if he is timid he is no good," evoked loud laughter. Again, in speaking of the isthmian canal, he aroused mirth by saying that one of the problems in connection with the great engineering feat would be to procure fifty-thousand-dollar patriotic, ambitious men to work for a ten-thousand-dollar fee.

WAR GAME STILL ON.

Pillsbury Has Only Two More Nights in Which to Make Landing.

Rockport, Mass., Aug. 23.—In the light of the knowledge gained in those hot, anxious days at Santiago four years ago, that readiness and watchfulness are half the battle, the officers and men of Admiral Higginson's home defense squadron are keeping as keen a lookout for the appearance of Commander Pillsbury's supposedly hostile naval force as they did for Cervera in 1898. During the early part of last evening the conditions were ideal for an attempt by Pillsbury to carry out his part of the war problem. A thunderstorm, which came up about Rockport's supper time, left behind it a heavy pall of fog that enveloped the town shore and made it hard to distinguish large objects. Shortly after 8 o'clock the mist lifted, the moon and the stars came out and Pillsbury's best chance was gone. He only has two more nights within which to attempt a landing. If he has not established a base ashore by noon on Monday he will lose the game.

CABLE CAR GETS AWAY.

Gripman Is Killed and Twenty Passengers Injured.

Kansas City, Aug. 23.—A cable car crowded with passengers got away from the gripman at the top of the Ninth street incline at the union station here last night and, dashing to the bottom at a terrific speed, crashed into a train that was stalled there. The passengers were hurled in every direction and the grip car on the runaway train and the rear coach of the other train were reduced to a mass of twisted iron and splinters. W. B. Taylor, the gripman on the first train, was killed instantly and at least twenty persons were injured.

EXTENSIVE FOREST FIRE.

Camping Parties in Colorado in Peril—Valuable Timber Burned.

Walsenburg, Colo., Aug. 23.—A forest fire of immense proportions is burning on the western slope of the Green mountain range, thirty miles from here, in the northwestern corner of Huerfano county. Much valuable timber has been destroyed and the fire is beyond control. Pueblo Martinez, a prospector, is believed to have perished, and there are fears for the safety of a number of camping parties.

D. WARD KENNEDY IN THE TOILS.

Departing From Wisconsin Penitentiary He Is Arrested by Minnesota Official.

Waupun, Wis., Aug. 23.—D. Ward Kennedy, who was sentenced to serve one year in the state prison from Black River Falls for forgery, was arrested at the prison gate yesterday morning on his release by Deputy Sheriff Glennon of Minnesota State prison at Stillwater, where he is wanted for violating the conditions of his parole. Kennedy was sent to Stillwater from Duluth in June, 1892, on a sentence of from one to ten years, and was paroled in June, 1900. In all probability he will be made to serve the maximum time of his sentence, after which he will be taken to St. Paul to face an indictment charging him with forgery. Kennedy is fifty-three years old.

CIGARETTES ARE BLAMED.

Death of Heir to English Estate Leads to Other Suspicions.

Winnipeg, Aug. 23.—The mysterious death of James Noble, a Warroad, Minn., resident, is being investigated by the authorities of Minnesota. R. H. Mendicraft, state's attorney of Roseau county, and Mayor Book of Warroad are here investigating the matter. Noble died shortly after getting on a train at Warroad on his way to a Winnipeg hospital a few days ago. Death was said to be due to excessive cigarette smoking, but as he was the only heir to an estate in England it is believed other motives may have caused his end. He lived with his mother and stepfather, who were anxious that he should leave home, although his health has been failing ever since his arrival from South Africa last winter.

TONS OF SUGAR MISSING.

Young Business Man of Duluth Accused of Theft.

Duluth, Aug. 23.—Edward McClure, a young man prominent in business and social circles at the head of the lakes, is missing. One hundred and ten thousand pounds of sugar belonging to the sugar trust and stored here for distribution to Western cities is also missing and a warrant charging McClure with the theft of the property is in the hands of the police. It is alleged that McClure stole the sugar from a local warehouse and sold it in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and Superior for $6,000. McClure is said to have gone to St. Paul.

BEREAVED MOTHER A SUICIDE.

Prairie du Chien Woman Drinks Acid and Soon Dies.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Aug. 23.—Mrs. Louis Caya committed suicide last night by swallowing two ounces of carbolic acid. She had sent a sister to get the acid. The two prepared the evening meal and Mrs. Caya locked herself up in a room and took the acid. She was found unconscious shortly afterward. Physicians succeeded in reviving her and kept her alive nearly an hour and a half. She was about twenty years old. A little daughter died a few days before and her grief may have unbalanced her mind.

ONE THOUSAND MEN IDLE.

Thrown Out of Work by Fire in Butte Reduction Works.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 23.—The reverbatory building of the Butte reduction works, owned by Senator W. A. Clark, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. The fire originated at Furnace No. 1, and was caused by the roof of the furnace falling in. The fire communicated to the roof of the building and spread rapidly. The loss of the reverbatory will necessitate the closing of the smelter and three mines which supplied it with ore. About 1,000 men will be thrown out of work for two months.

IOWA STATE FAIR OPENS.

Forty-Eighth Annual Exposition Begins at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Aug. 23.—The forty-eighth annual Iowa State fair opened yesterday and will continue through next week. Exhibits will not all be in until to-night, but enough have already arrived to make it certain that as a live stock exhibition it will completely eclipse all past fairs. The dedication of the new stock pavilion, erected at a cost of $50,000, will take place Monday. The cattle entries exceed by 100 those at the international stock show at Chicago last winter.

CONGRESSMAN ARRESTED.

Charged With Being a Statesman, He Pleads Not Guilty.

Janesville, Wis., Aug. 23.—H. A. Cooper, congressman from the First district of Wisconsin and a candidate for reelection, was arrested here yesterday afternoon by the Elks police of the carnival and fined 50 cents for being a statesman. He pleaded not guilty, but paid the fine and was released. Prof. Milton Whitney, head of the bureau of soils of the United States, was fined 50 cents in the same mock court for laughing at the statement that Cooper was a statesman.

ALLEGED TO BE HORSE THIEF.

Black River Falls Justice Holds Man for Trial.

Black River Falls, Wis., Aug. 23—Justice Livingstona held a man brought here yesterday from Sparta in $2,500 bonds to answer Sept. 1 to the charge of stealing a horse from B. J. Meek of this city. He refused to give any name and is in jail in default of bail.

MAN BURNS TO DEATH.

South Dakota Barn Burns and Charred Body Is Found.

Lead, S. D., Aug. 23.—Peter Carr was burned to death yesterday morning in a fire that destroyed the barn belonging to M. C. Campbell. Carr had been employed by the Burlington railway on the grade, and is supposed to have been sleeping in the loft when the fire started. His blackened remains have been taken from the debris. Two teams of horses were also burned.

TO END THE STRIKE

PEOPLE'S ALLIANCE TAKES THE MATTER UP WITH DETERMINATION.

GO ON MISSION TO NEW YORK

WILL ENDEAVOR TO PUT SOME PLAN IN OPERATION TO SETTLE TROUBLE.

MITCHELL IS WILLING TO HELP

WILL DO ANYTHING THAT IS HONORABLE TO ADJUST DIFFICULTY.

Hazleton, Pa., Aug. 25.—D. J. McCarthy, chairman, and Matthew Long and Harry Silverman, members of the executive committee of the Peoples' Alliance of Hazleton, went to New York yesterday to endeavor to put into operation some plan looking to a termination of the strike. They decline to say whom they hope to see in the metropolis. The Peoples' Alliance is composed of business men and miners.

Mitchell Willing to Help.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 25.—The committee from the public alliance from this city which waited on Senators Quay and Penrose at Atlantic City last week and urged them to use their good offices to bring about arbitration in the coal strike performed a like mission in this city yesterday when they called on President Mitchell and requested him to co-operate with the Pennsylvania Senators in bringing about a settlement of the strike. Mr. Mitchell said he would do anything that was honorable to bring about an adjustment, and he furnished the committee with the statistics of the strike from the miners' point of view, which were forwarded to Senator Quay last night.

Quiet in the Coal Field.

Shenandoah, Pa., Aug. 25.—Reports received yesterday showed the entire anthracite coal field to be very quiet. Brig. Gen. Gobin said that a settlement of the strike appeared to him to be as far off as when he arrived here nearly four weeks ago. The troops in all probability will remain here until the strike shall come to an end.

Ask for Special Session of Congress.

New York, Aug. 25.—President Roosevelt will be asked to call a special session of congress to take action to end the coal strike. This was decided at a meeting yesterday of the Central Federation union, representing 250,000 workingmen.

HANNA WITH THE MEN.

Says Miners Will Not Give in as Long as They Are Able to Fight.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 25.—United States Senator Marcus A. Hanna arrived at Buffalo yesterday on his way home to Cleveland from Niagara Falls. For the first time Senator Hanna stated the final abandonment of all efforts to end the coal strike.

"I have exhausted my efforts," said Senator Hanna. "I have done all in my power and can do no more. I will make no further attempts, for it would be useless."

He said there was no chance of arbitration so long as only one side, the miners, was willing to arbitrate. He gave it as his opinion that the miners will not give in so long as they are able to fight.

It was evident that Senator Hanna's sympathies are with the miners, that he has given up hope of a peaceful settlement and views with sorrow the prolongation of the strike to the end that seems inevitable.

AMBUSHED BY LADRONES.

Filipino Constabulary Given a Desperate Fight.

Manila, Aug. 25.—Ten members of the native constabulary were ambushed last Tuesday at a point near Magdalena, in the province of Sorsogon, Luzon, by a band of sixty ladrones. The latter were armed with rifles and bolos and a desperate fight at close range took place. One member of the constabulary was killed, two were wounded and three were captured. Seventy constabulary have taken the field in pursuit of the ladrones.

CHOLERA SITUATION BAD.

Some Provinces of Luzon Are Severely Stricken.

Manila, Aug. 25.—Official cholera statistics show a total up to date of 18,040 deaths. The actual number of cases and deaths is greatly in excess of the official reports. In Manila there were but eight cases reported last Saturday. In some of the provinces of Luzon the cholera situation is bad; 414 cases and 317 deaths were reported from the province of Ilocos Norte last Saturday.

SLAIN BY CHINESE.

An Austrian and an English Missionary Are Murdered.

Shanghai, Aug. 25.—A native evangelist who has arrived here confirms the reports of the murders of an Australian missionary named Bruce and an English missionary named Lewis at Chen Chou, in Hu Nan province.

Coming to Minnesota.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Dr. George Francis James of the state normal school of Los Angeles, Cal., has been elected professor of pedagogy in the University of Minnesota.

Fire at Sioux Falls.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Aug. 25.—Fire burned five valuable horses belonging to Dick & Hargo, proprietors of a local meat market. L. N. Steinberg was perhaps fatally injured by being kicked while leading horses out of an adjoining barn.

Five Suffocated at a Fire.

Portland, Me., Aug. 25.—The four children of William Kronberg and a servant girl were suffocated in a fire yesterday in a two-and-a-half-story house.

PRESIDENT IS GODFATHER.

Attends Christening of the Chanler Baby at Newport.

Nahant, Mass., Aug. 25.—President Roosevelt left Newport yesterday at 2 o'clock in a sumptuous train of four special cars. A more quiet day could not have been spent by the president. As is his custom he rose early and after a light breakfast, left the Chanler house about 9 o'clock and went out to see Mrs. Roosevelt, who had come up on the Sylph during the night. The president was aboard the ship for about two hours. Mrs. Roosevelt accompanied him ashore and spent about half an hour at the Chanler residence, taking a look at the baby, but did not remain for the christening. She left shortly before the event for Oyster Bay. The president remained at the Chanler villa where the ceremony of christening the baby was performed by Rev. John McDonald of the Episcopal church in the presence of the president, who acted as godfather. Traveling on Sunday was somewhat new for the president, but in this instance he was obliged to depart from his usual custom, as he went to Newport for no other purpose than to attend the christening, and it was necessary to make the short journey to Nahant yesterday in order to maintain his schedule. Lieut. Gov. Bates and Adjt. Gen. Dalton of Massachusetts, boarded the train at Newport and completed the arrangements for the entertainment of the president and party in Boston to-night.

TO KILL ROOSEVELT.

Detectives Search High and Low for Emma Goldman.

Omaha, Aug. 25.—The entire city detective force is ransacking Omaha for Emma Goldman, the anarchist from whom McKinley's murderer is said to have received his inspiration. A plot is feared in connection with the visit of the president to Omaha early next month. Three days ago the police were notified from Chicago that Miss Goldman would arrive in Omaha. Mail was received addressed to 706 North Sixteenth street and was delivered at that address, but the occupants said the letters should be forwarded to Chicago, but took the mail in, saying they would forward it. Since then they claim the mail was for another party. Other circumstances force the police to believe the woman is in hiding in Omaha.

LURED TO HER DEATH.

Minnie Mitchell Was Seen at the Bartholin House.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Whether or not the exhuming of the remains buried in Calvary cemetery as the body of Minnie Mitchell shall develop that the missing girl's family was correct in accepting the body as that of their missing daughter the police have received ample evidence to indicate that young woman was lured in the basement of the Bartholin house on the night that William Bartholin and his sweetheart vanished. A witness unknown up to the present has been found who claims to have seen the young woman descend into the basement of the Bartholin house after making a protest.

HIS HEAD BLOWN OFF.

Wife Confesses to Horrible Murder of Sleeping Husband.

Waverly, Tenn., Aug. 25.—John E. Wright, a prominent farmer of Humphreys county, had the top of his head blown off with a double-barreled shotgun while he slept last night. It was thought that Wright had been assassinated by some one on the outside, but investigation incriminated his wife and she was placed under arrest. Mrs. Wright later confessed.

HIS DREAM TOO TRUE.

Man Awakens to Find Wife and Two Children Dead.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Bryant Schiek was awakened yesterday morning by a dream that a mishap had befallen his wife. He found the house filled with escaping gas and his wife and two children dead. It is supposed that Mrs. Schieck turned on the gas while temporarily insane. She left a note but it was so poorly written that nobody could read it.

ADMITS KILLING WIFE.

South Omaha Carpenter Shoots Helpmeet in Hotel.

Omaha, Aug. 25.—Anton Christianson, a carpenter employed in South Omaha, shot and killed his wife at their rooms at the Montgomery hotel, of which the woman was proprietress. She received one bullet in the head and another through the body, dying instantly. He acknowledged his deed and said it was the result of domestic difficulties.

JUNK DEALER'S JOLT.

It Lands on a Laborer's Jaw and Breaks His Neck.

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 25.—In a dispute over the payment of a debt of 25 cents Thomas Hile, a junk dealer, dealt a terrific blow with his fist on the jaw of Nells Hansen, a laborer aged fifty. Hansen fell dead, his neck being broken.

KISSED MOTHER GOOD-BYE.

Young Man Who Had Been Drinking Then Commits Suicide.

Faribault, Minn., Aug. 25.—Fred Henry, aged twenty-one, went home yesterday after imbibing too much liquor and kissed his mother good-bye, then went out in the back yard and put a bullet through his brain.

Schaffer Critically Ill.

Pittsburg, Aug. 25.—Theodore J. Schaffer, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin-workers, is lying seriously ill at his home. The nature of his illness could not be ascertained last night.

Mother and Babe Drown.

Raymond, Minn., Aug. 25.—News reached here of the accidental drowning of Mrs. H. P. Jensen and her little eighteen-months-old babe in a well on their farm near town. Just how the accident occurred is not known.

Farmers Are Fleeing.

Emporia, Kan., Aug. 25.—Hundreds of farmers are fleeing from the waters of the Cottonwood river leaving behind their deluged farms and flooded homes. The river has been rising for a week.

BAD FOR COLOMBIA

REBELS CREDITED WITH AN IMPORTANT VICTORY AT AGUA DULCE.

BERTI FORCED TO SURRENDER

GOVERNMENT GENERAL AWAKENS TO HELPLESSNESS OF SITUATION.

CITY OF PANAMA IN DANGER

REVOLUTIONISTS ARE ONLY TWO DAYS' MARCH FROM THE CITY.

Colon, Aug. 25.—Nothing definite is known on the isthmus of the situation of the government general, Morales Berti, at Agua Dulce, but many persons believe that the general, after withstanding a siege of several days, during which his forces were subjected, chiefly at night, to a severe military fire from the insurgents, perceived the hopelessness of receiving reinforcements and supplies from Panama, and was forced to surrender the troops of his command to the insurgents.

If the reported surrender of the government forces at Agua Dulce is true, the insurgent general, Herrero, is confronted by a big problem to provide food and shelter for and to control this large and hostile element. Owing to the fact that the government line of communication between Panama and Agua Dulce is broken, but little news reaches Panama from the seat of war, although the contending forces are only two days' march from that city.

Rumors are current on the isthmus that several detachments of insurgents have been seen at the various stations along the railroad line between Colon and Panama and an attack at either end of the line is expected, in certain quarters, to occur at any moment. Because of the presence of insurgents along the railroad, the government to obtain reinforcements on the isthmus as soon as possible. Fresh trouble, however, is said to be brewing in the interior of the republic, and owing to the frequent refusals of steamships to carry government troops, the bringing of reinforcements to the isthmus is apparently no easy matter. The government gunboat Gen. Plazon arrived at Cartagena a week ago from Colon, after having made the voyage with difficulty. It is now said to be impossible for the Gen. Pinzon to go to sea again in her present condition.

The Colombian government recognizes the revolutionary situation to be serious. Many persons question the ability of the insurgents to hold Colon if they attack and capture this port, owing to the fact that they possess no gunboats on the Atlantic side of the isthmus. The government is endeavoring to purchase another war vessel in the United States for use on the Pacific coast. There is at present no foreign man-of-war at Colon.

Flying the insurgent flag, the Boyaca is now guarding the entrance to the Panama harbor, presumably with the intention of preventing steamers or other vessels from bringing government reinforcements to Panama.

FANATICISM IN CHINA.

Superstitious Natives Believe That the Foreigners Were Responsible for the Outbreak of Cholera.

Pekin, Aug. 25.—An edict has been issued ordering the murderers of an English missionary named Lewis and an Australian missionary named Bruce to be punished. The government expresses regret at the occurrence and promises to make reparation. It is reported that the murders were an outcome of an outburst of superstitious frenzy on the part of the populace, based upon the idea that the missionaries had caused an epidemic of cholera which is raging at Chen Chou by poisoning drinking water. The mob wrecked the mission building and murdered the missionaries, who had but recently arrived at Chen Chou, where they were cordially welcomed.

TEST OF MAINE SUCCESSFUL.

New Battleship Shows Average Speed of 18.03 Knots, and Corrections May Make Showing Better.

Rockport, Mass., Aug. 25.—The battleship Maine, which has been out on its trial trip, crossed the finish line at 3:22, as timed from shore. This makes the total elapsed time thirty seconds less than four hours, and, allowing twenty minutes for the turn at the further end of the line, which always is deducted, the vessel covered the course in 3:39:30, and averaged about 18.03 knots. Tidal corrections will probably give it even a better showing.

ABDUCTED BY A LUNATIC.

Agnes Roach, Aged Fifteen, Carried From Her Home by a Maniac Who Had Escaped From Asylum.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 25.—With a drawn pistol in his hand, James I. Tindall, said to be an escaped lunatic from the sanitarium at Milledgeville, entered the home of L. A. Roach in Wilkinson county and carried off Agnes Roach, a fifteen-year-old girl. The kidnapping was accomplished while Roach was absent from home. At last accounts Tindall had not been found. He drove off with the girl, going in the direction of Macon.

ALL IS NOW SERENE.

Sultan Issues Orders to Concede All Uncle Sam's Demands.

Constantinople, Aug. 25.—An imperial order has been issued commanding that all the demands made by the United States upon Turkey be conceded and the relations between the porte and the United States legation here have resumed their normal condition. United States Minister, Leishman and Robert S. McCormick, United States ambassador at Vienna, were present at the selamik.

Resume of the News.

Fresh Reliable Brief

From the Capital.

Extra-session gossip is again revived. Information is guardedly disseminated. The president's Southwestern trip will probably be abandoned.

Orders have been issued at the navy department for the fitting out of the battleship Oregon at San Francisco for duty on the Asiatic station, to which she will be assigned.

The semi-official announcement that Judge Shiras will retire from the supreme court early next year, has started anew the gossip about Attorney General Knox as a probable successor. The intimate friends of the attorney general doubt if Mr. Knox would care to retire from the active practice of his profession.

The people of Aberdeen, S. D., are indignant over the delay of the supervising architect in preparing plans for the public building in that city. Errors were made in the plans and specifications first prepared, as they provided for a building to cost about $90,000, whereas the sum of $175,000 is available. This has necessitated the preparation of modified plans, and hence another delay.

Casualties.

The three-year-old daughter of Almon H. Marsh of Green Bay, Iowa, is dead as the result of the sting of a bee.

Two digesters in the pulp mill of the Jessup & Moore Paper company's plant at Wilmington, Del., exploded, and fifteen men were killed.

A heavy open car left the track on Jerome Park avenue at New York and went into a ditch, turning completely over. [illegible] persons were seriously injured, two fatally.

The baggage, mail, express and two chair cars of the El Paso limited on the Rock Island were ditched by a washout near Letts, Ia. A number of passengers were seriously hurt.

While fishing recently, a thirteen-year-old boy, Gustave Grunewald of New York, was struck on the head with a fishing sinker and instantly killed. The sinker hit the boy behind the ear.

Six lives were lost in a fire which burned the ram-shackle tenement at 46 Essex street, New York. After the fire was subdued the firemen searched the building from cellar to roof, finding six bodies.

The plant of the Portland Iron and Steel company at Tigonia, Me., was destroyed by fire, causing a loss of $100,000. The fire resulted from an explosion caused by water dripping on a large quantity of molten metal.

The $[illegible] Young Men's Christian association building at Pana, Ill., was demolished, the Catholic church spire blown down, windows broken, trees uprooted and a number of people injured by a cloudburst, causing $150,000 damage.

People Talked About.

The republicans of the Eleventh congressional district of Missouri unanimously renominated Congressman C. P. Joy.

James B. Dunner, superintendent of telegraph of the entire Harriman system of railroads, died at San Antonio, Tex.

Col. William A. Hemphill, former mayor of Atlanta and founder of the Atlanta Constitution, died suddenly in that city.

John P. Donovan of Milwaukee was nominated for member of congress by the Fourth congressional district Democratic convention.

Luther R. Marsh, eighty-nine years old, widely noted as a spiritualist, died at his home at Middletown, N. Y., after an illness of several weeks.

Capt. Joseph Barnum, a veteran of the Civil war and editor of the Hartford Sunday Journal, died at Hartford, Conn. He had been an invalid for the last ten years.

Benjamin F. Raltz, chief of police of Toledo, Ohio, for the past ten years, died at his home of diabetes. He was fifty-seven years old and was a veteran of the Civil war.

James E. McKillan, a well known mining stock broker, died at Aspen, Colo., of wounds inflicted with a revolver with suicidal intent. Mr. McKillan had been mentally deranged for over a year.

E. P. Hannaford, formerly chief engineer of the Grand Trunk railway system, died suddenly at Montreal, the immediate cause of death being heart failure. Mr. Hannaford was born in England in 1834.

Foreign Notes.

It is considered probable in Rome that Bishop Blenk of Porto Rico will be appointed apostolic delegate in the Philippine islands.

The act passed by the last session of the Dominion parliament deporting immigrants suffering from disease, will be put in force at once.

An oil trust has been formed in Austria, says the Geneva correspondent of the London Chronicle, to compete with the American and Russian oil companies.

Many of the native Zulus and Basutos in South Africa have secured firearms, and the Boers, being deprived of such weapons, are in dread of the consequences.

Nearly 1,000 people attended Lady Raglan's exhibition of herself in coronation costume at Cape House, London, and the Cottage Hospital fund was materially increased.

It is reported from Windsor palace that Emperor William of Germany has accepted King Edward's invitation to visit him at Sandringham some time in November.

A publishing house in China is to be established jointly by the Methodist Episcopal churches, North and South. The building for the plant has already been constructed at Shanghai.

The correspondent at Rome of the Associated Press has been authoritatively informed that papal consistory is probable before the month of November.

Sins and Sinners.

C. L. Downs, theatrical manager, and wife, were garroted and robbed of $1,050 in money and diamonds.

William H. Dillard has been arrested at Vancouver, B. C., charged with the forgery of Chinese letters of residence.

Mrs. Florence Wolf of Mount Morris, Illinois, was driven from her home and given a second coat of tar and feathers.

The sheriff is in charge of the Bankers' Trust and Investment company at Chicago. A. F. Norval, president, has fled, and if found will be prosecuted.

Frank Andrews, president of the wrecked City Savings Bank of Detroit, was sentenced to fifteen years at hard labor for misappropriating the bank's funds.

A. L. Stone is under arrest at Chicago, charged by Swift & Co. with embezzling $1,500 from their branch house at Akron, Ohio, for speculative purposes.

Charles Farris, white, and Fred Morris, colored, have been released from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., as a result of the Deming decision of the supreme court.

David F. Leavitt, aged sixty-two, a prominent coffee broker and treasurer of the Episcopal diocese of Missouri, committed suicide at St. Louis by taking carbolic acid, because of ill health.

Two members of the Cravens band of outlaws were choked at Cordell, Okla., until they revealed the whereabouts of their leaders, and gave testimony regarding some of the many crimes committed by them.

The dead body of David F. Leavitt, aged sixty-two years, a prominent coffee broker and treasurer of the Episcopal diocese of Missouri, was found at his residence in St. Louis. The coroner returned a verdict of suicide by carbolic acid.

A daring robbery was perpetrated in the jewelry store of A. A. Webster & Co., in Brooklyn, during the busy hours of the day. A tray of diamond rings valued at $1,000, was removed from one of the show cases, and the thief made his escape with it.

Jane Wooisey of Litchfield, arrested for making moonshine whisky, was hauled to Owensboro, Ky., in a wagon, but it was discovered that she could not be taken up the narrow stairs leading to the court room. She is five feet eight inches high and weighs 480 pounds.

J. C. Surles, a blacksmith of Kansas City, coming home unexpectedly, and finding Albert Hayes, a boarder, in company with his wife, shot both. Mrs. Surles will probably recover. Hayes may die. After the shooting Surles requested a neighbor to notify the police, submitting to arrest without protest.

In a fight with disorderly negroes on a southbound Seaboard Air Line train, near Middleburg, N. C., Roadmaster Fred Stevens was shot and killed, and Jim Mitchell, a negro porter, was seriously wounded. The negroes objected to the "Jim Crow" car. One was captured.

Mamie Powell of New York, pretty, slight and only twenty-one, started her career as a highway robber. Armed with a knife with a blade four inches long and sharpened on both edges, she held up a well known citizen of Harlem, James Kennedy and stabbed him. She was captured after a chase.

Otherwise.

The Star theater, St. Paul, will throw open its doors to the theater-going public Sunday matinee, Aug. 31, with the usual daily matinees throughout the season. The attraction is the famous City Club company of fifty artists of European and American celebrities, introducing, for the first time in America, at any theater, Mons and Mlle. Paxton's Famous productions of art pictures by twelve models direct from Paris.

Ten other big acts and a car of special machinery and effects will no doubt fill this popular theater to its capacity during their week's stay in the city. The prices of 10, 20 and 30 cents will rule throughout the season. At the Dewey theater the new Trocadero Burlesquers will hold the boards. Their last engagement in Minneapolis testified that they ranked among the leaders in burlesque productions, and Manager Wittig advises those who wish to wire or write for reserved seats and avoid the rush at the box office.

The wholesale price of anthracite in New York has jumped to $10 per ton for stove coal, and $11 for egg alongside.

Prominent South Omaha packing men say the Cudahys have sold their packing interests to the packers' trust for $21,000,000.

A cloudburst near Fenton, twenty miles southwest of Sterling, Ill., deluged several thousand acres of land, destroying the corn crop.

Shipments of currency to the West and South for moving crops, if continued at the present rate of demand, will foot up $11,000,000 by Sept. 1.

A fuel famine threatens the mills in the Pittsburg district, and more than 20,000 men may be thrown out of employment through the lack of coal and coke.

John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, has purchased the Fauret block and opera house at Lima, Ohio, for $90,000. It is his intention to make extensive improvements.

Two hundred freight handlers at the Erie railroad freight house in Chicago have gone on a sympathetic strike because five men have been discharged. The strike is not expected to spread.

After discussing for more than three hours the proposed scheme of segregation of the sexes at the University of Chicago, the board of trustees has again decided to postpone action for two months. A majority is said to be opposed to segregation.

Rudolph Zumstein, brother of Rev. Hans Zumstein of La Porte, Ind., recently went to Manila, P. I., to work as a teacher. Hearing that he had cholera, Miss Jeanette Williams of Denver reached his bedside forty-eight hours before his death, and was married to him.

WELCOME IS WARM

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT STARTS ON HIS TOUR OF NEW ENGLAND.

HARTFORD WAS IN GALA DRESS

THOUSANDS TURN OUT TO TENDER GREETING TO THE PRESIDENT.

PLEASING FEATURE OF THE DAY

PRESENTATION OF A LARGE FLORAL PIECE BY THE WORKINGMEN.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 23.—President Roosevelt was welcomed in Hartford on his New England tour yesterday by a great burst of enthusiasm. The president showed his pleasure at the reception he received and delivered a well-received speech last night on important national relations. To President Roosevelt the feature of the day was the presentation of a large floral piece by the workingmen of Hartford. Hartford was in gala dress to welcome the president, the weather was perfect and there was not a hitch to mar the proceedings.

In Poke Park, one of the beautiful outlying recreation spots of the city, the president was greeted by 10,000 workingmen, who presented him with a magnificent floral horseshoe inscribed: "Workingmen's welcome to our president."

Father Michael Sullivan made a few remarks of welcome, in which he commended the

of purpose of the president in all his acts. The president responded, and his remarks were frequently interrupted by applause. He said:

"Father Sullivan: I came here to say a few words myself, but nothing that I can say will in any way have the significance that the gift from the wage-workers of Hartford has. I should, of course, be wholly unfitted for the position I occupy if I did not give my best thought and best purpose to trying to serve the interests of the toiler of America. (Cheers). My most resolute purpose shall be given, and, if I may say so, is being given, to trying to do anything that can be done to help our people. Perhaps I can do this best by trying to help as well as I can their best purpose and their best thought. (Cries of 'Good, good.') I should like to accept that gift as in some way personal to myself, but I would rather accept it as I know it is meant, as a

to a man who for the time being embodies American governmental principles. (Cries of 'Good, good' and cheers.)

Five thousand men and women crowded the Coliseum here last night to hear the address of President Roosevelt. At least two-thirds of the audience were workingmen, and the enthusiasm manifested by them when the president alluded to the rights of the toiler aroused the keenest interest. Again and again during his prefatory remarks, which were based on the afternoon—the presentation of a floral horseshoe by the workingmen—the president was interrupted by vociferous applause. Such side remarks as the following: "I do not care how honest a man may be, if he is timid he is no good," evoked loud laughter. Again, in speaking of the isthmian canal, he aroused mirth by saying that one of the problems in connection with the great engineering feat would be to procure fifty-thousand-dollar patriotic, ambitious men to work for a ten-thousand-dollar fee.

WAR GAME STILL ON.

Pillsbury Has Only Two More Nights in Which to Make Landing.

Rockport, Mass., Aug. 23.—In the light of the knowledge gained in those hot, anxious days at Santiago four years ago, that readiness and watchfulness are half the battle, the officers and men of Admiral Higginson's home defense squadron are keeping as keen a lookout for the appearance of Commander Pillsbury's supposedly hostile naval force as they did for Cervera in 1898. During the early part of last evening the conditions were ideal for an attempt by Pillsbury to carry out his part of the war problem. A thunderstorm, which came up about Rockport's supper time, left behind it a heavy pall of fog that enveloped the town shore and made it hard to distinguish large objects. Shortly after 9 o'clock the mist lifted, the moon and the stars came out and Pillsbury's best chance was gone. He only has two more nights within which to attempt a landing. If he has not established a base ashore by noon on Monday he will lose the game.

CABLE CAR GETS AWAY.

Gripman Is Killed and Twenty Passengers Injured.

Kansas City, Aug. 23.—A cable car crowded with passengers got away from the gripman at the top of the Ninth street incline at the union station here last night and, dashing to the bottom at a terrific speed, crashed into a train that was stalled ther. The passengers were hurled in every direction and the grip car on the runaway train and the rear coach of the other train were reduced to a mass of twisted iron and splinters. W. B. Taylor, the gripman on the first train, was killed instantly and at least twenty persons were injured.

EXTENSIVE FOREST FIRE.

Camping Parties in Colorado in Peril—Valuable Timber Burned.

Walsenburg, Colo., Aug. 23.—A forest fire of immense proportions is burning on the western slope of the Green mountain range, thirty miles from here, in the northwestern corner of Huerfano county. Much valuable timber has been destroyed, and the fire is beyond control. Pueblo Martinez, a prospector, is believed to have perished, and there are fears for the safety of a number of camping parties.

D. WARD KENNEDY IN THE TOILS.

Departing From Wisconsin Penitentiary He Is Arrested by Minnesota Official.

Waupun, Wis., Aug. 23.—D. Ward Kennedy, who was sentenced to serve one year in the state prison from Black River Falls for forgery, was arrested at the prison gate yesterday morning on his release by Deputy Sheriff Glennon of Minnesota State prison at Stillwater, where he is wanted for violating the conditions of his parole. Kennedy was sent to Stillwater from Duluth in June, 1892, on a sentence of from one to ten years, and was paroled in June, 1900. In all probability he will be made to serve the maximum time of his sentence, after which he will be taken to St. Paul to face an indictment charging him with forgery. Kennedy is fifty-three years old.

CIGARETTES ARE BLAMED.

Death of Heir to English Estate Leads to Other Suspicions.

Winnipeg, Aug. 23.—The mysterious death of James Noble, a Warroad, Minn., resident, is being investigated by the authorities of Minnesota. R. H. Mendicraft, state's attorney of Roseau county, and Mayor Book of Warroad are here investigating the matter. Noble died shortly after getting on a train at Warroad on his way to a Winnipeg hospital a few days ago. Death was said to be due to excessive cigarette smoking, but as he was the only heir to an estate in England it is believed other motives may have caused his end. He lived with his mother and stepfather, who were anxious that he should leave home, although his health has been failing ever since his arrival from South Africa last winter.

TONS OF SUGAR MISSING.

Young Business Man of Duluth Accused of Theft.

Duluth, Aug. 23.—Edward McClure, a young man prominent in business and social circles at the head of the lakes, is missing. One hundred and ten thousand pounds of sugar belonging to the sugar trust and stored here for distribution to Western cities is also missing and a warrant charging McClure with the theft of the property is in the hands of the police. It is alleged that McClure stole the sugar from a local warehouse and sold it in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and Superior for $6,000. McClure is said to have gone to St. Paul.

BEREAVED MOTHER A SUICIDE.

Prairie du Chien Woman Drinks Acid and Soon Dies.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Aug. 23.—Mrs. Louis Caya committed suicide last night by swallowing two ounces of carbolic acid. She had sent a sister to get the acid. The two prepared the evening meal and Mrs. Caya locked herself up in a room and took the acid. She was found unconscious shortly afterward. Physicians succeeded in reviving her and kept her alive nearly an hour and a half. She was about twenty years old. A little daughter died a few days before and her grief may have unbalanced her mind.

ONE THOUSAND MEN IDLE.

Thrown Out of Work by Fire in Butte Reduction Works.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 23.—The reverbatory building of the Butte reduction works, owned by Senator W. A. Clark, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. The fire originated at Furnace No. 1, and was caused by the roof of the furnace falling in. The fire communicated to the roof of the building and spread rapidly. The loss of the reverbatory will necessitate the closing of the smelter and three mines which supplied it with ore. About 1,000 men will be thrown out of work for two months.

IOWA STATE FAIR OPENS.

Forty-Eighth Annual Exposition Begins at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Aug. 23.—The forty-eighth annual Iowa State fair opened yesterday and will continue through next week. Exhibits will not all be in until to-night, but enough have already arrived to make it certain that as a live stock exhibition it will completely eclipse all past fairs. The dedication of the new stock pavilion, erected at a cost of $50,000, will take place Monday. The cattle entries exceed by 100 those at the International stock show at Chicago last winter.

CONGRESSMAN ARRESTED.

Charged With Being a Statesman, He Pleads Not Guilty.

Janesville, Wis., Aug. 23.—H. A. Cooper, congressman from the First district of Wisconsin and a candidate for reelection, was arrested here yesterday afternoon by the Elks police of the carnival and fined 50 cents for being a statesman. He pleaded not guilty, but paid the fine and was released. Prof. Milton Whitney, head of the bureau of soils of the United States, was fined 50 cents in the same mock court for laughing at the statement that Cooper was a statesman.

ALLEGED TO BE HORSE THIEF.

Black River Falls Justice Holds Man for Trial.

Black River Falls, Wis., Aug. 23—Justice Livingstone held a man brought here yesterday from Sparta in $2,500 bonds to answer Sept. 1 to the charge of stealing a horse from B. J. Meek of this city. He refused to give any name and is in jail in default of bail.

MAN BURNS TO DEATH.

South Dakota Barn Burns and Charred Body Is Found.

Lead, S. D., Aug. 23.—Peter Carr was burned to death yesterday morning in a fire that destroyed the barn belonging to M. C. Campbell. Carr had been employed by the Burlington railway on the grade, and is supposed to have been sleeping in the loft when the fire started. His blackened remains have been taken from the debris. Two teams of horses were also burned.

TO END THE STRIKE

PEOPLE'S ALLIANCE TAKES THE MATTER UP WITH DETERMINATION.

GO ON MISSION TO NEW YORK

WILL ENDEAVOR TO PUT SOME PLAN IN OPERATION TO SETTLE TROUBLE.

MITCHELL IS WILLING TO HELP

WILL DO ANYTHING THAT IS HONORABLE TO ADJUST DIFFICULTY.

Hazleton, Pa., Aug. 25.—D. J. McCarthy, chairman, and Matthew Long and Harry Silverman, members of the executive committee of the Peoples' Alliance of Hazleton, went to New York yesterday to endeavor to put into operation some plan looking to a termination of the strike. They decline to say whom they hope to see in the metropolis. The Peoples' Alliance is composed of business men and miners.

Mitchell Willing to Help.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 25.—The committee from the public alliance from this city which waited on Senators Quay and Penrose at Atlantic City last week and urged them to use their good offices to bring about arbitration in the coal strike performed a like mission in this city yesterday when they called on President Mitchell and requested him to co-operate with the Pennsylvania senators in bringing about a settlement of the strike. Mr. Mitchell said he would do anything that was honorable to bring about an adjustment, and he furnished the committee with the statistics of the strike from the miners' point of view, which were forwarded to Senator Quay last night.

Quiet in the Coal Field.

Shenandoah, Pa., Aug. 25.—Reports received yesterday showed the entire anthracite coal field to be very quiet. Brig. Gen. Gobin said that a settlement of the strike appeared to him to be as far off as when he arrived here nearly four weeks ago. The troops in all probability will remain here until the strike shall come to an end.

Ask for Special Session of Congress.

New York, Aug. 25.—President Roosevelt will be asked to call a special session of congress to take action to end the coal strike. This was decided at a meeting yesterday of the Central Federation union, representing 250,000 workingmen.

HANNA WITH THE MEN.

Says Miners Will Not Give in as Long as They Are Able to Fight.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 25.—United States Senator Marcus A. Hanna arrived at Buffalo yesterday on his way home to Cleveland from Niagara Falls. For the first time Senator Hanna stated the final abandonment of all efforts to end the coal strike.

"I have exhausted my efforts," said Senator Hanna. "I have done all in my power and can do no more. I will make no further attempts, for it would be useless."

He said there was no chance of arbitration so long as only one side, the miners, was willing to arbitrate. He gave it as his opinion that the miners will not give in so long as they are able to fight.

It was evident that Senator Hanna's sympathies are with the miners, that he has given up hope of a peaceful settlement and views with sorrow the prolongation of the strike to the end that seems inevitable.

AMBUSHED BY LADRONES.

Filipino Constabulary Given a Desperate Fight.

Manila, Aug. 25.—Ten members of the native constabulary were ambushed last Tuesday at a point near Magdalena, in the province of Sorsogon, Luzon, by a band of sixty ladrones. The latter were armed with rifles and bolos and a desperate fight at close range took place. One member of the constabulary was killed, two were wounded and three were captured. Seventy constabulary have taken the field in pursuit of the ladrones.

CHOLERA SITUATION BAD.

Some Provinces of Luzon Are Severely Stricken.

Manila, Aug. 25.—Official cholera statistics show a total up to date of 18,040 deaths. The actual number of cases and deaths is greatly in excess of the official reports. In Manila there were but eight cases reported last Saturday. In some of the provinces of Luzon the cholera situation is bad; 414 cases and 317 deaths were reported from the province of Ilocos Norte last Saturday.

SLAIN BY CHINESE.

An Austrian and an English Missionary Are Murdered.

Shanghai, Aug. 25.—A native evangelist who has arrived here confirms the reports of the murders of an Australian missionary named Bruce and an English missionary named Lewis at Chen Chou, in Hu Nan province.

Coming to Minnesota.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Dr. George Francis James of the state normal school of Los Angeles, Cal., has been elected professor of pedagogy in the University of Minnesota.

Fire at Sioux Falls.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Aug. 25.—Fire burned five valuable horses belonging to Dick & Hargo, proprietors of a local meat market. L. N. Steinberg was perhaps fatally injured by being kicked while leading horses out of an adjoining barn.

Five Suffocated at a Fire.

Portland, Me., Aug. 25.—The four children of William Kronberg and a servant girl were suffocated in a fire yesterday in a two-and-a-half-story house.

PRESIDENT IS GODFATHER.

Attends Christening of the Chanler Baby at Newport.

Nahant, Mass., Aug. 25.—President Roosevelt left Newport yesterday at 2 o'clock in a sumptuous train of four special cars. A more quiet day could not have been spent by the president. As is his custom he rose early and after a light breakfast, left the Chanler house about 9 o'clock and went out to see Mrs. Roosevelt, who had come up on the Sylph during the night. The president was aboard the ship for about two hours. Mrs. Roosevelt accompanied him ashore and spent about half an hour at the Chanler residence, taking a look at the baby, but did not remain for the christening. She left shortly before the event for Oyster Bay. The president remained at the Chanler villa where the ceremony of christening the baby was performed by Rev. John McDonald of the Episcopal church in the presence of the president, who acted as godfather. Traveling on Sunday was somewhat new for the president, but in this instance he was obliged to depart from his usual custom, as he went to Newport for no other purpose than to attend the christening, and it was necessary to make the short journey to Nahant yesterday in order to maintain his schedule. Lieut. Gov. Bates and Adjt. Gen. Dalton of Massachusetts, boarded the train at Newport and completed the arrangements for the entertainment of the president and party in Boston tonight.

TO KILL ROOSEVELT.

Detectives Search High and Low for Emma Goldman.

Omaha, Aug. 25.—The entire city detective force is ransacking Omaha for Emma Goldman, the anarchist from whom McKinley's murderer is said to have received his inspiration. A plot is feared in connection with the visit of the president to Omaha early next month. Three days ago the police were notified from Chicago that Miss Goldman would arrive in Omaha. Mail was received addressed to 706 North Sixteenth street and was delivered at that address, but the occupants said the letters should be forwarded to Chicago, but took the mail in, saying they would forward it. Since then they claim the mail was for another party. Other circumstances force the police to believe the woman is in hiding in Omaha.

LURED TO HER DEATH.

Minnie Mitchell Was Seen at the Bartholin House.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Whether or not the exhuming of the remains buried in Calvary cemetery as the body of Minnie Mitchell shall develop that the missing girl's family was correct in accepting the body as that of their missing daughter the police have received ample evidence to indicate that young woman was lured in the basement of the Bartholin house on the night that William Bartholin and his sweetheart vanished. A witness unknown up to the present has been found who claims to have seen the young woman descend into the basement of the Bartholin house after making a protest.

HIS HEAD BLOWN OFF.

Wife Confesses to Horrible Murder of Sleeping Husband.

Waverly, Tenn., Aug. 25.—John F. Wright, a prominent farmer of Humphreys county, had the top of his head blown off with a double-barreled shotgun while he slept last night. It was thought that Wright had been assassinated by some one on the outside, but investigation incriminated his wife and she was placed under arrest. Mrs. Wright later confessed.

HIS DREAM TOO TRUE.

Man Awakens to Find Wife and Two Children Dead.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Bryant Schlek was awakened yesterday morning by a dream that a mishap had befallen his wife. He found the house filled with escaping gas and his wife and two children dead. It is supposed that Mrs. Schleck turned on the gas while temporarily insane. She left a note but it was so poorly written that nobody could read it.

ADMITS KILLING WIFE.

South Omaha Carpenter Shoots Helpmeet in Hotel.

Omaha, Aug. 25.—Anton Christianson, a carpenter employed in South Omaha, shot and killed his wife at their rooms at the Montgomery hotel, of which the woman was proprietress. She received one bullet in the head and another through the body, dying instantly. He acknowledged his deed and said it was the result of domestic difficulties.

JUNK DEALER'S JOLT.

It Lands on a Laborer's Jaw and Breaks His Neck.

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 25.—In a dispute over the payment of a debt of 25 cents Thomas Hile, a junk dealer, dealt a terrific blow with his fist on the jaw of Nells Hansen, a laborer aged fifty. Hansen fell dead, his neck being broken.

BAD FOR COLOMBIA

REBELS CREDITED WITH AN IMPORTANT VICTORY AT AGUA DULCE.

BERTI FORCED TO SURRENDER

GOVERNMENT GENERAL AWAKENS TO HELPLESSNESS OF SITUATION.

CITY OF PANAMA IN DANGER

REVOLUTIONISTS ARE ONLY TWO DAYS' MARCH FROM THE CITY.

Colon, Aug. 25.—Nothing definite is known on the isthmus of the situation of the government general, Morales Berti, at Agua Dulce, but many persons believe that the general, after withstanding a siege of several days, during which his forces were subjected, chiefly at night, to a severe military fire from the insurgents, perceived the hopelessness of receiving reinforcements and supplies from Panama, and was forced to surrender the troops of his command to the insurgents.

If the reported surrender of the government forces at Agua Dulce is true, the insurgent general, Herrera, is confronted by a big problem to provide food and shelter for and to control this large and hostile element. Owing to the fact that the government line of communication between Panama and Agua Dulce is broken, but little news reaches Panama from the seat of war, although the contending forces are only two days' march from that city.

Rumors are current on the isthmus that several detachments of insurgents have been seen at the various stations along the railroad line between Colon and Panama and an attack at either end of the line is expected, in certain quarters, to occur at any moment. Because of the presence of insurgents along the railroad, the government to obtain reinforcements on the isthmus as soon as possible. Fresh trouble, however, is said to be brewing in the interior of the republic, and owing to the frequent refusals of steamships to carry government troops, the bringing of reinforcements to the isthmus is apparently no easy matter. The government gunboat Gen. Pinzon arrived at Cartagena a week ago from Colon, after having made the voyage with difficulty. It is now said to be impossible for the Gen. Pinzon to go to sea again in her present condition.

The Colombian government recognizes the revolutionary situation to be serious. Many persons question the ability of the insurgents to hold Colon if they attack and capture this port, owing to the fact that they possess no gunboats on the Atlantic side of the isthmus. The government is endeavoring to purchase another war vessel in the United States for use on the Pacific coast. There is at present no foreign man-of-war at Colon.

Flying the insurgent flag, the Boyaca is now guarding the entrance to the Panama harbor, presumably with the intention of preventing steamers or other vessels from bringing government reinforcements to Panama.

FANATICISM IN CHINA.

Superstitious Natives Believe That the Foreigners Were Responsible for the Outbreak of Cholera.

Pekin, Aug. 25.—An edict has been issued ordering the murderers of an English missionary named Lewis and an Australian missionary named Bruce to be punished. The government expresses regret at the occurrence and promises to make reparation. It is reported that the murders were an outcome of an outburst of superstitious frenzy on the part of the populace, based upon the idea that the missionaries had caused an epidemic of cholera which is raging at Chen Chou by poisoning drinking water. The mob wrecked the mission building and murdered the missionaries, who had but recently arrived at Chen Chou, where they were cordially welcomed.

TEST OF MAINE SUCCESSFUL.

New Battleship Shows Average Speed of 18.03 Knots, and Corrections May Make Showing Better.

Rockport, Mass., Aug. 25.—The battleship Maine, which has been out on its trial trip, crossed the finish line at 3:22, as timed from shore. This makes the total elapsed time thirty seconds less than four hours, and, allowing twenty minutes for the turn at the further end of the line, which always is deducted, the vessel covered the course in 3:39:20, and averaged about 18.03 knots. Tidal corrections will probably give it even a better showing.

ABDUCTED BY A LUNATIC.

Agnes Roach, Aged Fifteen, Carried From Her Home by a Maniac Who Had Escaped From Asylum.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 25.—With a drawn pistol in his hand, James I. Tindall, said to be an escaped lunatic from the sanitarium at Milledgeville, entered the home of L. A. Roach in Wilkinson county and carried off Agnes Roach, a fifteen-year-old girl. The kidnapping was accomplished while Roach was absent from home. At last accounts Tindall had not been found. He drove off with the girl, going in the direction of Macon.

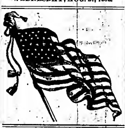
WEDNESDAY, AUG. 27, 1902.



This particular portion of Red Lake county has been decidedly fortunate this year with its grain crops. With the exception of late oats and flax all other grains are practically saved and the yield will be by far the greatest since 1895. There is considerable late flax which may get hurt by frost but some good warm weather will bring it out all right. Threshing will be commenced this week and the outlook for a prosperous fall is excellent.

Today is the last chance for prospective candidates to file their application for candidacy at the primary elections. On next Wednesday we will publish a complete list of the candidates who have filed.

We are of the opinion that after the bills are all paid and the results figured up the people will be willing to abandon the primary election law and return to the old system—or any other old system that will be less complicated and less expensive.

It would be interesting to know what becomes of the various firearms siezed annually by the state game wardens. About the first thing a game warden does in this state when he becomes suspicious of an infraction of the game laws is to collect all the loose fire arms in sight. It cuts no ice who owns the shooting iron—all guns look alike to the simple game warden. In many cases it is found that the suspicions which led to siezure are unfounded and no action is brought—but the guns are rarely returned. Maybe it's all right but to a man up a tree it looks like licensed robbery. Very little is done in this section towards the protection of game but the annual harvest of guns appears to be reaped with its usual regularity.

We publish elsewhere in this issue a cut of W. F. Street, county attorney of Beltrami county, and candidate, subject to the republican vote at the primaries, for the state senatorship for the 61st district, comprising Red Lake, Beltrami and Norman counties.

We understand that neither Red Lake nor Norman counties will produce any candidate on the republican ticket for the senate. This is to be regretted inasmuch as both counties can easily supply men of more than ordinary ability who would fill the office creditably.

It is doubtful, though, if there could be a candidate secured who has more brains or business ability than W. F. Street possesses, and there is little doubt but that he will secure the nomination from the republican party.

Panorama of Finance and the Markets.

As one would expect of a great metropolitan newspaper having the facilities of the Chicago Record-Herald, that paper always covers the markets and financial and commercial intelligence generally on a scale of exceptional fullness, covering two entire pages of each issue. The quotations on live stock, grain and provisions, stocks and bonds, and in fact every commercial and financial market in which the people of the Northwest are interested, are thoroughly complete and satisfactory. Special cables tell the story of finance abroad. The "Speculative Gossip," "Wall Street Talks" and "LaSalle Street Notes" are features of The Record-Herald market page that interest speculators from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast. They tell of the undercurrents in the grain and security markets. They relate personal gossip of the pits, in its way as important as the humdrum and routine part of the day's story of speculation. The Wall street letter of John Chambers summarizes the daily history of Gotham's money mart in a most entertaining and instructive fashion. Examine the market page of any issue and see for yourself.

EVENTFUL SNEEZING

HOW A LITTLE THING MAY BE LADEN WITH GREAT RESULTS.

A Sneeze Under London Bridge That Cost Two and Saved Many Lives. A Sneeze That Averted Assassination—One That Caused a Panic.

Exactly at 6 p. m. on the evening of Dec. 13, 1884, a sneeze was sneezed under London bridge which consigned two men to an instant and horrible death.

Their names were Lomasney and Fleming, and they were conspirators. Their mission was to blow up the bridge with dynamite, because it was considered that at that time there would be more people crossing it—workmen, workgirls and others on their way home from business—than at any other and that the loss in human life would be therefore correspondingly more appalling.

All went well at first. The pair of desperadoes dropped noiselessly down the river in a boat, with forty pounds of dynamite in their possession, together with the necessary fuses and detonators. Arrived at their destination, however, they found that the gully hole underneath the southern arch of the structure, wherein it had been their intention to insert the explosive, had been stopped up. Lomasney undertook to remove the obstruction, but it occupied him some little time. The night was bitterly cold, and his comrade got chilled and was seized with a sudden fit of sneezing. In his agitation he dropped one or more of the detonators he was holding, and these, falling on the dynamite which was laying in the bottom of the boat, exploded it, with disastrous results. Doubtless, however, that inopportune sneeze, although it ended the career of a pair of desperadoes, saved London bridge from destruction.

That the Right Hon. W. E. Forster died peacefully in his bed instead of being assassinated in 1882 was due to a sneeze. Three times the conspirators laid in wait for him, but the last attempt was the most determined of them all. Four men armed with heavy caliber navy revolvers were to waylay him as he drove from the viceregal lodge to the castle. Two of the assassins were to fire at him from the first floor window of a house in a certain street, and the other two were stationed at the window of another house a few yards down on the opposite side of the way.

These latter were the reserves, destined to try their skill should their colleagues miss. Neither of the two firing parties were to show themselves until the near approach of the supposed victim was signaled from the street below. The signal in question was to be the waving of a pocket handkerchief by James Carey, the same man who was afterward killed by O'Donnell.

The plot was excellently planned from the point of view of the participants therein. In fact, so far as human foresight could provide against eventualities the chief secretary seemed as good as dead. Yet it all came to naught and for so simple a reason that the plotters themselves, meeting together afterward at their secret rendezvous in North King street, were fain to laugh at their own discomfiture.

The morning was cold and gusty. Mr. Forster was somewhat late, and Carey, chilled with waiting about, began to sneeze. Instinctively he drew out his handkerchief, the handkerchief that was to give the fatal signal, and in an instant the blustering north wind had flicked it from his benumbed fingers and sent it sailing down the street at a twenty mile an hour gait.

At that very instant the chief secretary's carriage turned the corner and came swiftly toward him. Carey ran to the spot which had been previously agreed upon and tried to make his fellow conspirators understand that their victim was in sight by signaling with his arm and pointing.

The result, however, though exactly what might have been foreseen, hardly came up to his expectations. The four men at the windows were waiting for a man with a handkerchief. Instead, they saw one without any such signaling apparatus, evidently excited and pointing wildly up the street. Instantly they conjured up visions of traitors in their ranks and of detectives on their tracks and, dropping their weapons, incontinently and hastily fled.

On the evening of Oct. 11, 1878, a policeman on duty near the Coliseum Music hall, Liverpool, noticed an unusual commotion at the entrance. Disheveled boys and girls, their clothing in many instances torn from their backs and some of them covered with blood, were pouring from the gallery exits, while from within the building came the sound of shrieking and loud cries for help. Realizing something of what was happening, the constable seized an ax and smashed in two of the "extra" doors.

His prompt action undoubtedly saved scores if not hundreds of lives, for by this time the auditorium had become a veritable pandemonium, wherein several thousand people, mad with terror, were fighting and struggling with one another for precedence.

Thirty-seven of the number lost their lives, and more than twice that number were maimed for life. And the cause of the panic was a fit of sneezing into which a number of girls in the front row of the gallery were thrown owing to some mischievous person tossing some snuff into the air.

A number of those behind, hearing and seeing a commotion in front, rose to their feet. Others joined them. Shouts and cries added to the confusion. An alarm was raised that the place was on fire, and a simultaneous rush of hundreds of frightened people for the narrow exit doors was followed by the results chronicled.

HON. EZRA G. VALENTINE,

A Brief Biographical Sketch of a Prominent Candidate for Congress in This District.

Above we print a cut of Hon. Ezra G. Valentine who is one of the prominent candidates for the republican nomination for congressman to represent this district.

Ezra G. Valentine was born on a farm in Wyoming county, New York, August 9th, 1847, and moved with his parents to Wisconsin in 1856, where they settled on a farm near Ripon, in Fond du Lac county. In 1859 the family moved to Ripon and Ezra prepared for college at Ripon Academy.

In due time young Valentine entered Beloit College, taking a classical course in that famous institution. He worked his way through college paying all his expenses with money earned by himself. He won the prize in Greek, and graduated with honor in June, 1869, when not quite twenty-two years of age. Three years later he was honored by his Alma Mater with the degree of A. M. and subsequently delivered the address to the Alumni at Commencement.

After leaving college, he taught in different institutions of learning for some years, reading law meanwhile. He finally went to Chicago and was admitted to the bar by the Supreme Court of Illinois.

He practiced law in Chicago until December, 1882, when, having partially lost his health by overwork, he was advised to go to Minnesota. He settled at Breckenridge and, as his health improved rapidly, decided to remain there and is still a resident.

He has practiced law for over a quarter of a century and, by hard and honest work, and strict attention to every detail, has obtained a large and lucrative practice. He has been interested in farming for many years and is now one of the largest farmers in Wilkin county. He is a hard worker and a thorough business man and so is able to give careful attention both to his professional duties and to his farming interests.

In 1896 Mr. Valentine, as one of the chosen delegates from Minnesota, was a member of the National Republican Convention in St. Louis, where William McKinley was first nominated for President.

Two years ago Mr. Valentine was a candidate for the congressional nomination in what was then the Seventh district and was beaten, after a hard but good natured and gentlemanly struggle, by Congressman Frank M. Eddy. Mr. Valentine took defeat in the proper spirit and no man did more loyal, earnest and effective work for the whole ticket than did he.

Announcements of Candidates

REGISTER OF DEEDS.

I desire to announce to the voters of Red Lake county that I am a candidate for the nomination for register of deeds subject to the decision of the Peoples Party at the Primary Election to be held on September 16, 1902.

If nominated and re-elected I will continue the work which I have started of reforming and modernizing our system of records so as to make it second to none in the state of Minnesota.

Sincerely your servant,
SAMUEL GIBEAU.

I hereby announce to the voters of Red Lake county that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for register of deeds for Red Lake county, at the primary election to be held Sept. 16, 1902, and respectfully solicit your votes for the same.
THOMAS A. CROMPE.

TREASURER.

I desire to announce to the voters of Red Lake county that I am a candidate for nomination for county treasurer, subject to the decision of the Peoples Party at the primaries, September 16th, 1902.
O. T. TANDBERG.

AUDITOR.

I wish to announce to the voters of Red Lake county that I am a candidate for the nomination for county auditor, subject to the decision of the Republican party at the primaries to be held Sept. 16th, 1902.
O. H. PETERS.

COUNTY ATTORNEY.

I hereby announce to the voters of Red Lake county that I am a candidate for County Attorney on the republican ticket and earnestly solicit your support.
THOMAS GERMO.

STATE SENATOR.

ATTORNEY W. F. STREET.

Republican Candidate for the Nomination for State Senator, Sixty-First District.

W. F. Street, who has filed for the nomination for state senator in the Sixty-first senatorial district, which comprises Beltrami, Norman and Red Lake counties, was born at Council Bluffs, Iowa, October 30th, 1854. He received a common school education, and at fifteen years of age went into the Journal office at Lincoln, Neb., which was then on the frontier in that state, to learn the printing business. He worked in the Journal office as a "devil" long enough to become an expert printer, and afterwards worked at "the case" until he was twenty-five years of age, studying law at intervals in the meantime.

In 1871 he removed to Minnesota, where he has lived ever since with the exception of seven years at West Superior, Wis., where he was in the newspaper business, and where his writings attracted attention for their vigor and incisiveness. He was president of the Republican Press Association in Wisconsin in 1890, but returned to Minnesota in the spring of 1893 to resume the practice of law.

In the winter of 1896-97 he undertook the task of organizing Beltrami county by an act of the legislature, and succeeded so well that he has since made his residence in this county, where he has for six years been county attorney. As county attorney he has carried on improvement litigation in behalf of the county, and in each instance won the approval of the supreme court in matters that involved thousands of dollars to the citizens and tax payers. To him more than any other citizen in Beltrami county is due the fact that today the school districts and townships of the county are enabled to levy taxes sufficient to keep their schools open and their township organizations in running order, as well as the county government itself.

He has the reputation of being a rustler fit for frontier development, and of getting after things with the determination to win, which he usually does. His ambition, if nominated and elected senator, would be to secure the largest measure of railroad construction in the counties constituting his district, and adjoining counties, and large appropriations for drainage purposes.—Tenstrike Tribune.

Sound Advice.

Andrew Carnagie is the sort of man who "says things." Consequently his book "The Empire of Business," is worth reading. Carnegie attributes his own success to the fact that "trouble runs off his back like water from a duck." CHANGE OF LIFE.

Some Sensible Advice to Women by Mrs. E. Sailer.

a day at a time how I would feel the next day. Five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound changed all that, my days became days of health, and I have enjoyed every day since—now six years.

"We have used considerable of your Vegetable Compound in our charitable work, as we find that to restore a poor mother to health so she can support herself and those dependent upon her, if such there be, is truer charity than to give other aid. WOODCHUCK TO BURN

CLEVER SCHEME OF MAINE MAN IS WELL REWARDED.

Ice-Cream-Filled Pet the Means of Keeping His Larder Well Supplied With the Toothsome Dainty—Simple But Deadly Trap.

If Peleg Sprague hadn't had a tender heart he never would have been able to discover how to catch more woodchucks than he and his family could eat, says a Linn (Maine) correspondent of the New York Sun. Just because he was good to a tame woodchuck of his own and tried to relieve it from agony, he was able to study the habits of wild woodchucks, and thereby learned a fact in natural history which has cleared the farms of an annoying pest and has furnished the neighborhood with palatable roast woodchuck since early in June.

One morning when Sprague was driving his cows to pasture he found a poor, emaciated woodchuck lying in the dust of the highway, nearly dead for want of water. The animal had started for a stream with its companions and its strength had given out before it could reach the nearest brook.

It was not in Sprague's nature to see anything suffer, so he picked up the dying creature, and, taking it home, fed it on warm milk and clover until it was able to care for itself. By the time heavy frosts fell the woodchuck was as large as a bull terrier and nearly as serviceable in a rough and tumble fight. It grew so belligerent that Sprague resolved to have a woodchuck roast the following Sunday, but was foiled in his plan by the woodchuck's going into winter quarters two days before it was to be executed.

Coming out lean and hungry in the spring, the woodchuck devoted its endeavors to putting on fat, in which it was encouraged by Sprague, who knew how good is roast woodchuck when taken in conjunction with boiled onions and hard cider.

The first warm Sunday that arrived in June Sprague hunted up his freezer and made ice cream for himself and family. Having more than could be eaten, and wishing to fatten the woodchuck as rapidly as possible, he gave the surplus cream to his pet. The woodchuck, being unaccustomed to eating ice at any time, was taken with a sudden chill, and would have suffered an attack of pneumonia had not Sprague wrapped it in warm blankets and placed it on a sunny hillside to recover.

While the sick animal was lying in the grass suffering from ague, a wild woodchuck came along looking for fresh clover. No sooner did it hear the teeth of the pet animal chattering with cold than it took the sound as a challenge to fight and went in with fury. The sick animal, being assaulted at a time when it could not defend itself, beat a hasty retreat to the house, followed by its victorious enemy, who thus came within easy range of a club in Sprague's hand, and was served up as roast woodchuck at Monday's dinner.

Sprague keeps a can of ice cream constantly in his ice house since then. Whenever he feels the need of roast woodchuck for dinner he gorges his pet with ice cream and sends it to the hillside, where its teeth chatter so loudly with chills and fever that every wild woodchuck comes from its hole to join in deadly combat. As one woodchuck cannot hope to win against a host, the pet falls back to its fortifications in the cellar, thus giving Sprague a chance to select the fattest animal in the herd.

GREAT HEAT OF METEORS.

Some Have Fallen as Molten Masses From a Volcano's Crater.

Ordinarily the meteors that flash across the sky at stated periods of time burn themselves out in the upper air, but occasionally a meteoric mass lasts long enough to reach the earth. One fell on May 15, 1900, at Felix, Ala. Meteors were seen on the occasion referred to and sundry explosions were heard, while later on a mass of meteoric substance weighing seven pounds was discovered imbedded in soft soil. This meteorite was analyzed and found to be built up of such minerals as olivine, augite, triolite, nickel iron and graphite carbon.

The dark color of the Felix stone is stated to be due to the presence in fair amount of the last-named substance. The interest attaching to meteorites, of course, centers around the fact that they enable us to obtain glimpses of the composition of other worlds than ours. Astronomy is well agreed on the unity of chemical composition which marks the orbs, and even the simple fact that it is hydrogen gas which blazes in the sun and gives us our light and heat is a testimony to this fact. Meteoric iron and carbon similarly display links between these erratic bodies and our own earth.

It's a Pity.

Young Alfred G. Vanderbilt is having a "camp" fitted up in the Adirondocks for himself and a party of friends. They will occupy it for two weeks. The "shanty" will cost about $75,000. It will be finished in hard wood; each room will have a bath, with hot and cold water attached; a gas plant has been installed, and the kitchen will be presided over by a $200-a-week chef. It must seem terribly rough for a young man who has been brought up amid refined surroundings to have to go camping in a rude place like that.

Some Exports to Germany.

A parcel post package mailed in Brooklyn to Hamburg, Germany, last week interested the postal clerks. The customs declaration of its contents written on the outside was as follows: One mustard plaster, 5 cents; one box corn salve, 9 cents; mixed candy, 5 cents; potash tablets, 5 cents. Total, 24 cents.

It hurts some people's feelings to know that when they die they must leave a bank account behind.

FOR LITERARY GENTLEMEN.

A German Publisher's Rather Expressive Views—They Are for the Wealthy.

The Author, of London, publishes the following "literary hints for the wealthy and cultivated," which, it says, were taken from a German publisher's advertisements:

A gentleman does not give his daughter with a dowry of £5 to £50,000 and forget to provide her with a book case.

A gentleman does not use eau-de-cologne and read greasy volumes from a circulating library.

A gentleman does not borrow good works which he is in a position to buy.

A gentleman does not talk about the latest literature, when he is acquainted with only what has been said of it by the reviewers.

A gentleman does not cut books with his fingers, even after having washed his hands.

A gentleman does not possess a box of carpenter's tools, but no paper knife.

A gentleman does not receive books for review and give them away or sell them without opening them.

A gentleman does not make presents only of things that are entirely without intellectual value.

A gentleman does not send to his book seller for a parcel of books on approval, and, after having read them, return them, saying that none of them suit him.

A gentleman does not buy only six penny, cheap editions.

A gentleman does not depend for his reading upon the daily journals and illustrated weeklies.—New York Times.

What An Almanac Did.

Matthews, Ark., Aug. 25th.—Mrs Lee S. Sanders of this place tells how an almanac saved her life.

"I have been troubled a great deal with my kidneys all my life, and was constantly growing worse.

"I chanced to get a copy of Dodd's Almanac for 1902 and in it read some stories of how Dodd's Kidney Pills had cured many very bad cases of Kidney Trouble.

"My husband bought a box, and I began to use them, and in a short time we were surprised and delighted at the wonderful improvement in my case.

"I am now as well as anybody, and I cannot say too much for Dodd's Kidney Pills. It was a lucky day for me when I picked up that almanac.

"I believe Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure anybody who suffers with Kidney Trouble."

Killed by Trousers.

In connection with the trousers centenary, a correspondent reminds us that a tragedy was, in Paris, associated with the introduction of the elongated garments and the discarding of the knee breeches. A tradesman in the city took the sartorical innovation too much to heart. He foresaw that his occupation would soon be gone. Dreading a penurious old age, he ended his earthly troubles by drowning himself in the Seine. The poor fellow possessed, at the period of the advent of the trousers one of the most prosperous businesses in his particular line in France. He was a maker of false calves for the legs of the nobility and gentry!—London Daily News.

How Wise!

"I can tell you, my wife is a pretty wise woman, and it's pretty hard to get ahead of her."

"For instance?"

"Well, she's down at the seashore now, and when she write for money she incloses a stamp, self-addressed envelope and a check already made out for me to sign. Can't say it slipped my mind then."—Baltimore Herald.

A HARVEST OF COLDS.
Nearly everybody is now suffering from some form of a cold. The best and most reliable remedy known is Cole's Cough Cure. All good druggists, 25 and 50 cents.

Example of Oriental Logic.

A man bought three pounds of meat and brought it home to his wife to cook for dinner, and then went his way to his place of business in the bazars. The wife was hungry and ate the meat.

In the evening the man came home and asked for his dinner.

"There is no meat," said the wife, "for the cat ate it."

"Bring the cat," said the man, "and a pair of scales."

"Weigh the cat," said the man. The cat weighed three pounds.

"If this is the cat," said the man, where is the meat? And if this is the meat, where is the cat?"—Harper's Magazine.

Floor Walking.

Head Floor Walker (severely)—I heard you tell the lady she would find the ribbons at the third counter to the left.

New Floor Walker—That's where they are.

Head Floor Walker—Yes; but you should have told her to go to the right, past the necktie bargain counter, turn to the left, past the stocking bargain counter, then three counters to the right, past the shirtwaist bargain counter, and so on. You'll never make a floor walker.—Judge.

An Excellent Plan.

"I wish there were a sure plan of ridding the country of the locusts," complained the farmer.

"I bet you," declared the postmaster, "that if the milliners would start to trimming hats with stuffed locusts, there wouldn't be one of 'em seen around here any more for a hundred years."—Judge.

History and Pugilism.

"Pa," said the small boy, "did Peter the Great have any other name?"

"Of course, my son," answered the father, promptly. "But there's no use of worrying about him now."

"Is he dead?"

"Oh, I don't know whether he's dead or not, but he's out of training, anyway."

Woodward Company, the old and well known Grain Commission firm of Minneapolis, are offering in another column a Beautiful Picture, at about half-price. It is not a something-for-nothing scheme, but a legitimate desire on their part to place themselves before the public in as favorable light as possible at the beginning of a very fine crop.

Political bosses like to think of themselves as the sovereign people.

A man never begins to rise in the world until he settles down.

Wise is the instructor who learns more than he teaches.

BIT OF PATHOS.

But the Heart of the Beautiful Girl Was Not Involved.

Her shoulders heaved convulsively and a perfect storm of sobs shook her beautiful figure. As for the man in the case, he paced restlessly twice across the room, then stopped and, with folded arms, gazed moodily down at the picture of abject misery before him.

"Well," gruffly, "have you made up your mind?"

"Oh!" cried she, gazing at him through her anguished eyes, and wringing her beautiful hands, "I can not—I can not give it up!"

Something which sounded suspiciously like a curse escaped the man's lips, and he again took up his pacing to and fro. Suddenly he stopped beside her and spoke again, this time accusingly:

"Of course, I sympathize with you," said he, coldly, "but my sympathy can not help you. This is something which you took upon yourself with your eyes open, and from the very first moment that this attachment was formed you knew that this parting was inevitable."

"Oh, I know it; I know it!" cried she in a gust of weeping, and with a shudder of almost more than mortal agony. "But, oh, is there no other way?"

"No other way!" repeated he, and his accents cut like a whiplash, "No other way."

"Well—then—" Her voice was lost in a paroxysm of weeping.

Let us leave them here, dear reader, for the pen has not yet been made that can depict a lovely woman's agony when she is being seperated from a porous plaster.

DID NOT SAVE MUCH.

Close-Fisted Old Gentleman Had Met His Match.

A close-fisted old gentleman lost his dog, and let it be known that he "might give a dollar for the return of the same."

A few days later the dog was brought back to the owner, who presented the finder with a quarter.

"Here! Wot's this?" demanded the man. "You promised me a dollar if I found the dog."

"Nay, friend," said the Quaker, "what I said was that I might give thee a dollar. Now I'm thinking that a quarter is sufficient. What dost thou think?"

What the man thought he didn't say just then. Within a week, however, the careful Quaker had lost his dog again.

Having a shrewd suspicion where the animal was, the owner hunted up the original finder and asked him if he had seen anything of it. The reply was distinctly non-committal.

"I'm thinking," grinned the man, "that thou hast soon lost thy dog again, friend. What dost thou think?"

Ultimately the old gentleman recovered his dog again, but it cost him $5 in all.

Why His Stay Was Brief.

A. S. L. Shields said that some of the testimony in the recent Salter trial reminded him of a case of an old negro who had been called as a witness, and whom the lawyer for the defense tried to discredit by such questions as:

"So your name is Sam Miller, is it? Are you the Sam Miller who was arrested and sent to prison for stealing?"

"No, sah," replied the darkey.

"No? Well, then you are the Sam Miller, aren't you, who smashed a lot of store-windows once when drunk and disorderly?"

"No, sah. Ise not dat Sam Miller, neither."

"But you've been in jail, haven't you?"

"Yes'ir—once."

"A-h-h-h! For how long?"

"Bout an hour, sir."

"An hour? Be careful! I'm very particular—very particular—to get the truth! Now, what do you mean by saying you were in jail for only an hour?"

"Ise went there, sir, to whitewash a cell for a lawyer who, like yo'self, sir, was very particular—very particular."—Philadelphia Times.

A 40,000-Acre Farm.

The agriculturist who carefully cultivated 40 or 60 or 80 acres and calls it a farm is likely to look upon a "quarter section"—the regulation homestead of 160 acres—as a large estate; an entire section (a mile square) he would doubtless regard it as a tremendous area, and a half dozen sections would seem like a whole province. What would such a man think of a farm on which 100 to 150 men are employed; a farm whose farthest corner is 17 miles from the farm house; a farm that requires three bookkeepers and stenographers to make a record of its activity.

That is the scale on which M. M. Sherman conducts his farm in central Kansas. He has more than 40,000 acres. Every year he sells more than 2,500 fat beeves. If a man were to start to ride around his farm on horseback, following the fence line and riding 50 miles a day, he would not make the circuit in two days.

Insanity Cured by a Fall.

In London a gentleman of high rank, whose name has not been revealed, recently became insane on the subject of religion. He saw gods and goddesses in all sorts of inanimate things and spent hours on his knees adoring them.

Eminent physicians regarded his case as hopeless, and he was placed in the charge of two attendants who were instructed to take him to a lunatic asylum.

Just as they were about to start, however, the unfortunate man jumped from a high window and fell with a crash on the pavement. He was severely bruised, but in a few weeks not only were his wounds healed, but his religious mania also entirely disappeared.

The physicians say that his reason was restored to him by the violent shock, and they assert that such an occurrence is unprecedented in the annals of medicine.

a mistake probably doesn't know one when he sees it.

AN ITALIAN CAPTAIN

Cured by Pe-ru-na of Catarrh of the Stomach After Doctors Failed.

Hon. J. D. Botkin, Congressman from Kansas Writes an Interesting Letter.

CAPTAIN O. BERTOLETTO.

Captain O. Bertoletto of the Italian Barque "Lincelles," in a recent letter from the chief officer of the Italian Barque Lincelles, Pensacola, Fla., writes:

"I have suffered for several years with chronic catarrh of the stomach. The doctors prescribed for me without my receiving the least benefit. Through one of your pamphlets I began the use of Peruna, and two bottles have entirely cured me. I recommend Peruna to all my friends."—O. Bertoletto.

In catarrh of the stomach, as well as catarrh of any part of the body, Peruna is the remedy. As has been often said if Peruna will cure catarrh of one part, it will cure catarrh of any other part of the body.

Catarrh is catarrh wherever located, and the remedy that will cure it anywhere will cure it everywhere.

The following letter from Congressman Botkin speaks for itself:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.:

My Dear Doctor—It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines—Peruna and Manalin. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation. A residence in Washington has increased these troubles. A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of them will effect a permanent cure. Peruna is surely a wonderful remedy for catarrhal affections.—J. D. Botkin.

This is a case of catarrh of the stomach which had run for twenty-five years, according to his statement, and Peruna has at once come to his relief, promptly accomplishing for him more benefit than he had been able to find in all other remedies during a quarter of a century.

It stands to reason that a man of wealth and influence, like a Congressman of the great United States, has left no ordinary means untried and no stone unturned to find a cure.

If such cures as these do not verify the claim not only that dyspepsia is due to catarrh of the stomach, but also that Peruna will cure catarrh of the stomach, it is impossible to imagine how any evidence could do so.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Politics.

Mississippi Congressman—What kind of an election did you have up your way?

New Jersey Congressman—Quiet; very quiet. Half a dozen voters killed, I presume. How was it with you?

"Dull as mud. The troops were out."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address

ROSING CAMPAIGN

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR GOVERNOR OPENS STATE CAMPAIGN.

HIS SPEECH AT MINNEAPOLIS

HE WOULD ENFORCE THE LAW AGAINST ALL MERGERS ALIKE.

TRUSTS CREATURES OF LAW

TAKES DIRECT ISSUE WITH GOV. VAN SANT ON THE TAX CODE.

Under a system of government where the people choose their own servants and executives of the law which they themselves have enacted it has become customary for the candidate for the chief executive office to formally express his views upon the questions which confront the electorate and demand settlement in the campaign in which such candidate comes before the people to have his views ratified or rejected. On the 25th day of June the Democratic party of Minnesota assembled in convention applied Democratic principles to pending questions and took their stand accordingly. The platform so adopted I indorsed without reservation, and in accepting the nomination I said that at some future time I would take occasion to formally express my views more fully upon the various questions touched upon by that platform. The principle of equal rights for all and special privileges to none applies in state as well as nation, and in the application of this principle electors must decide upon which side they will take their stand.

Liberty Goes With the Flag.

One of the questions of national importance which the people must consider and decide upon in this campaign relates to the very foundation principles of our government.

Shall we continue true to the principle of self-government? Shall we continue in the old faith that all just governments are founded on the consent of the governed? Shall we, as Americans, maintain that wherever the American flag floats as the emblem of sovereignty, there it must mean the same constitutional liberty and the application of the same governmental principles which have made this nation the greatest world power to-day?

Only a few weeks ago the senior senator from this state, in illustrating his position upon a public question, used this language: "None of you would like to be the subjects of an absolute monarch, no matter how kind and benevolent." If such sentiments are creditable to us, are they not equally creditable to ten millions of people who desire the privilege of forming their own government suitable to their own condition in life and the environment which God has created?

The Incorporated Trust.

A question of public concern, the settlement of which demands our best thought and courageous action, is that involved in the monopolistic tendencies of the so-called trusts. We are living in a time when consolidation and co-operation seem to be the central thought in all the relations of life. Churches and lodges advocate consolidation to promote united effort. This tendency can be traced through all our social relations, and a universal tendency is a difficult one to restrain or prohibit by statute. Capital has for many years consolidated in various forms: first, in the form of co-operation between individuals, and then in the law-made persons, as corporations. The right to form corporations is wholly law-made. It is not a natural right.

Corporations are formed under statutes enacted by the representatives of the people, and the power that creates necessarily has the power to fix the limitations of its creatures.

Remove Special Privileges.

As a preliminary step, I would advocate the removal of all special privileges which these so-called trusts and combinations in restraint of trade enjoy.

Democracy believes that the first remedy should be the removal of all duties upon articles handled by combinations in restraint of trade.

Let them compete with the world. These "infants," that have been capitalized at a billion dollars and more, would seem to have passed beyond the need of tribute from the purse of the American citizen.

No Subsidies for Trusts.

Protective duties are only another form of subsidy, the difference being that we say to these captains of industry, we will not pay you the cash out of the treasury of the United States, but we will permit you to take it out of the pockets of the individual citizens. As we are opposed to this form of indirect subsidy, so we are also opposed to all forms of direct subsidizing.

In this connection I desire to call to your mind that the two United States senators from Minnesota voted for the ship subsidy bill. The senators from Iowa and Wisconsin did not dare to do so. Let me say to you that should the people of this state send to congress a solidly Republican delegation this fall, then I believe that ship subsidy bill will be passed. It is now held up to avoid shocking public sentiment in the face of a congressional election. I would suggest that the people of Minnesota call upon their senators for a definite explanation of their vote on the ship subsidy bill.

Record vs. Promises.

The Republican candidates, state and congressional, have no right to go before the people of this state upon a platform of promises. They have had the opportunity, they have had the power and the people of the state have a right to say to them: "What have you accomplished? Do not tell us what you are going to do." The party now in power has had complete control of the executive and legislative branches of the national government for six years, and trusts and combinations in restraint of trade have never flourished in the history of the world as they have during this period. Have we not a right to ask these gentlemen for an account of their stewardship, rather than be satisfied with glittering promises for the future?

Reciprocity With Canada.

There is one more question of national interest which I desire to touch upon, and that is the question of reciprocal arrangements for trade with Canada. To the north of us there is opening the greatest new market in the world to-day. Shall we pass it by or shall we do everything in our power to get our share of the trade of this rapidly developing country? While we are expending one hundred million dollars a year for the purpose of opening up new markets in the Philippines, that took from us only about three million dollars' worth of goods last year, we have erected an artificial barrier at the northern boundary of our state, and we say to the tradesmen and the manufacturers of the great cities of this nation, and particularly of our own state: "In this new market you shall have no share. You may travel ten thousand miles across the sea to sell goods to the people that need but little, but with these people who live within three hundred miles of the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and who are neighbors to Duluth, you cannot, you shall not trade." I do not think it is necessary to argue this question. It is so apparent that it would seem that there could be no difference of opinion in regard to the desirability of securing this trade for our own people.

Power of the Beet.

But what do we find? They are frittering away their time in protecting "beet sugar." At least that is their claim, but most of us think that the interests of the "sugar trust" is the object of their tender solicitude. Be that as it may, the fact remains that for many years Canada has been anxious to make reciprocal trade arrangements, and we have said: "No, we will not trade with you." Beet sugar even had its influence in the recent state convention of our Republican brethren. Great is the beet, and the Minnesota delegation is its prophet.

Prosperous in Spite of Bad Laws.

In a state with such magnificent resources the immediate effect of the election of one man or another, or the passage of one law or another can be but slight. Bad legislation and bad administration can only retard, they cannot prevent our progress. The state will make magnificent advances whether the people shall decide to elect the genial gentleman who is my opponent in this contest or myself.

There is one suggestion in this campaign upon which I desire to express my views with special frankness. I say suggestion for the reason that it does not appear to me that any issue is presented upon the matter, at least so far as our opponents are concerned.

Merger of Northern Railroads.

For a good many years there have been upon the statute books of this state provisions forbidding the consolidation of parallel and competing lines of railroad. It is claimed that these provisions have been violated by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads, and it seems to me that it must be apparent that if they have not been directly violated, an attempt has at least been made to evade their spirit. Following their plain duty in the premises, the executive and highest law officer of the state instituted proceedings to prevent the evasion or violation of those statutes. The proceedings so instituted are now pending and must be pressed to a final conclusion without regard to the result of this campaign. My wish or yours as to the result of the litigation will have no weight with the judgment of the courts before whom those cases must come; and I am fully convinced that our courts will decide them with the same impartial integrity and intelligence that has always characterized the American judiciary.

Merger of Iron Range Roads.

Gov. Van Sant did his duty in calling upon the attorney general to enforce the law against the consolidation of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, but there he stopped. The state senate of Minnesota, during the extra session of 1902, passed the following resolution:

"Resolved, that the attorney general be and he is hereby requested to investigate the alleged consolidation of the stock of the Duluth and Iron Range and the Duluth, Missabe and Northern Railway companies, and if he finds that a practical consolidation of such companies has been accomplished by the concentration in a single corporation of a majority of the capital stock thereof, that he at once institute legal proceedings to prevent a further violation of the laws of this state."

Why has not this resolution been obeyed? In Gov. Van Sant's extended acceptance speech on July 1, he absolutely neglected to touch upon this point.

Merger Versus Merger.

The Iron Range roads were merged by the United States steel trust in February, 1901, sixty days after Gov. Van Sant's inauguration, and nine months before the attempt to merge the Northern coast lines. If the present state administration is entitled to re-election because it brought suit to forbid the consolidation of the coast lines, what does it deserve for ignoring the merging of the Iron Range railroads, which are wholly within the State of Minnesota, and are the original merger offenders?

Pledge to Enforce the Law.

The Democratic platform pledges its candidates and the party to the enforcement of the present statutes against consolidation, and that in every case, and if my nomination shall be ratified at the polls this fall, I pledge myself to carry out the instructions of the party in that regard.

Regulation of Railroad Rates.

The bringing of suits to prevent the merging of railroads, however, is a small part of the duties of our officials in dealing with the great transportation companies, for although no question of the consolidation of parallel and competing lines has arisen under the law forbidding the same, it was yet found that the state must undertake to regulate these immense and natural monopolies, both as to their charges and methods of business, and for that purpose the railroad and warehouse commission of this state was created, and in the nation at large the interstate commerce commission—with much less power, unfortunately—was created by congress.

Step by step, and through the decisions of an upright and fearless judiciary, the principles have been established and recognized upon which this right to regulate rests. The important consideration at this time is that the railroad and warehouse commission of this state shall consist of men possessing the ability to realize the full extent of the power they possess, the courage to use it for the best interests of the public, and the sound judgment to direct them in such use. In my judgment, this is the important question with reference to the reciprocal rights of our large railroad corporations and the public.

Are the rates charged to the people of this state reasonable? Are the rates upon iron ore reasonable? Do the Iron Range railroads, subsidized as they have been by portions of the public domain, fulfill their duties as common carriers when they so manipulate their business methods that a deposit of iron ore upon the planet Mars would be as beneficial to the independent mine owner as it is when within a four-hour journey of where we now stand?

No Dodging of Issues.

Therefore I feel that, whatever merit there may be in the institution of the so-called "merger" suits, the managers of the Republican party in this campaign, the party which created the trusts; the party which has frittered away in grants to these same railroads so much of the public domain and so much of the property which belonged to the school children of this state; the party of special protection for special interests; the party of subsidies and imperialism—that, the managers of this party, I say, shall not be permitted to raise a false issue in this campaign and escape in the confusion.

My opinion is that the state must exercise a continually increasing control. To make such control efficacious additional power must be given to the interstate commerce commission, so that the same regulations may be enforced in regard to interstate traffic that we now exercise in regard to traffic within the state. The record of the present railway commission is one of inefficiency and subserviency to special interests. The re-election of the present administration will be setting the people's seal of approval upon such inefficiency. The election of the Democratic state ticket will mean that the people are ready to exercise the power they possess to regulate rates.

Record of Democratic Commission.

The record of the Democratic railroad and warehouse commission, of which Messrs. Ringdal and Knox were members and the controlling spirits from 1900 to 1901, just twelve months, indicates what can be accomplished by honest, energetic and courageous men in that position. One order issued by them, applying to 172 stations in twenty-two counties in the southwestern portion of the state, saved the farmers of those counties $400,000 in freight rates on the crop of 1900 alone. They also brought a suit to prevent the consolidation of the St. Paul & Duluth railway with the Northern Pacific system, under the statute prohibiting the consolidation of parallel and competing lines. That suit was settled by the state without trial, upon the offer of the Northern Pacific railway to give a contract binding itself to forever maintain and operate the present line of the St. Paul & Duluth, with its terminals at Duluth, as at the time the suit was brought, and that in all cases involving the question of rates the St. Paul & Duluth railroad should be treated and considered by the railroad commission as a separate and distinct entity. This contract was signed on behalf of the state by the governor, attorney general and the railroad and warehouse commission, and on behalf of the Northern Pacific by the officers of that corporation, and was submitted to the legislature of 1901 for its approval or rejection. The securing of this contract marks one of the most important achievements in the history of railway control in this state. The St. Paul & Duluth is the only line of communication between the Twin Cities and the Head of the Lakes which is wholly a state road, and subject, under this contract, to the jurisdiction and control of the state railroad commission. The importance of this will be readily realized when we take into consideration the fact that much of the grain raised in the southern part of the state goes East via Duluth and the Great Lakes, and nearly all our coal comes to Duluth to be distributed to all points of the state, and that this road is the sole connecting link between navigation and the other railroad systems of the state, subject to state control. The recent decision of the supreme court of the United States, holding that the state railroad commission has the right to fix joint rates, emphasizes the importance of the commission's action. If the state's interests had not been conserved by the vigilance of the Democratic administration in the above action, then we would now be helpless, because all that the Northern Pacific would have had to do to escape jurisdiction would have been to move its terminals to West Superior, thus depriving the state of the right to fix reasonable joint rates and the city of Duluth of the business connected with the docks and terminals of this great system.

Record of Republican Commission.

What has the present state railroad commission done to make this decision of the supreme court of the United States effective on the coal rates in the state?

The right of the state to compel the establishment of joint rates is not only important in itself, but it is important because it shows how much can be accomplished in the way of regulating common carriers when an honest and intelligent effort in that direction is made. A joint rate may be over two or more roads and means a fixed and single charge for the entire distance over which the commodity is carried. By this means a lower rate is not only obtained, but expensive transfer charges can be avoided and each carrier is kept from practicing extortion. In addition to all this, the doctrine is becoming more and more firmly recognized that railroads, as common carriers, are conducting great public highways, thus performing a governmental function, and are subject to the fullest regulation by the state which is necessary for the public good, subject of course to the constitutional protection which all enjoy that their property shall not be confiscated or used for public purposes without just compensation.

Iron Range Rates.

Nov. 9, 1900, the railroad and warehouse commission, on its own motion, passed a resolution to investigate the reasonableness of the rates then in force for carrying iron ore on the so-called iron ore roads, being the Duluth and Iron Range, the Duluth, Missabe and Northern, and the Eastern Minnesota. The first hearing was set for Nov. 21, 1900, and was adjourned from time to time, at the request of the roads interested as to the Eastern Minnesota railroad, for the reason that its terminals were at West Superior, Wis., and the commission had no jurisdiction. As to the other two roads, an order was made on the same day, reducing the rates for carrying ore about 25 per cent. Prior to the filing of this order, and soon after the proceeding was begun, these companies had withdrawn their schedules of rates, theretofore on file with the commission, and upon the argument, took the position that the commission had no jurisdiction to fix the rates on the ground, first, that all ore was being carried under special contracts; and, second, that the traffic was interstate. Of course by the order reducing rates, the commission decided both questions against the companies. The filing of this order was the final act of the Democratic commission in the matter. The new commission took office on Jan. 8, 1901, and on the same day these roads applied for a rehearing, upon the ground that the commission had no jurisdiction over the matter, because the traffic in iron ore was interstate. A rehearing was granted, and the proceedings thereafter adjourned from time to time until Nov. 11, 1901, nearly a year having elapsed, when an order was made by a majority of the commission, directing the roads to file tariff schedules for transporting iron ore from their several stations on the iron ranges to the docks at Two Harbors and Duluth, destined to points within the state. That order fixed no rates and said nothing in regard to what they should be. About Dec. 1, 1901, the companies filed new rate schedules, being the same as those in force at the time the investigation was begun, except, as I understand, they are expressly made applicable only to shipments of ore from the range to points within the State of Minnesota.

The particular point in this order, and the schedules filed thereunder is that the rates are made to points in Minnesota beyond the docks, when, as a matter of fact, there is not an ounce of ore shipped to any point in Minnesota beyond the docks. The order, and the schedules filed thereunder, are fakes pure and simple.

State Taxation.

For the past six years the Democrats of this state have had a plan for correcting the most glaring evils of our present tax system, and if the legislature of 1901 had not been blinded by partisan prejudice and the desire to make political capital, rather than to legislate for the interests of the people, there could have been no possible excuse for calling the extra session of the legislature. The legislature of 1901 authorized the appointment of a commission which should present to the special session the following year a complete revision of our tax laws. The system formulated by that commission met with so much opposition and was so radical in many of its features that it could not receive the approval of the representatives of the people. The minority members of the legislature presented a complete program, in harmony with Democratic ideas. That program our party platform indorses, and by it I am willing to stand. It provided for amendments of our present law, the effect of which would have been to eliminate its most glaring wrongs and inconsistencies and it also provided for a simple amendment to the constitution which would permit the imposition of a state income tax and the exemption of such property as would be necessary to bring about equality of taxation. It is still true that our state is exacting taxes on the little stocks, tools, implements—the means of subsistence—of numbers of our citizens who are struggling to support themselves and families, while thousands who possess great wealth escape. By Democratic insistence, the legislature of Minnesota was compelled to pass a bill for the increase of the railroad gross earnings tax, and to submit that question to a vote of the people of the state this fall.

The difficulty of reaching "invisible" personal property, such as notes, stocks and bonds, and all evidences of indebtedness, has convinced our best thinkers that the only adequate way of forcing the persons whose wealth consists largely of this class of property to bear their just share of the burden is by means of an income tax. With the adoption of a 4 per cent gross earnings tax, a tax on foreign corporations and domestic franchises, and the imposition of an income tax upon the class of persons who escape taxation almost wholly, the taxes of the state would be reduced to so small a percentage that they would hardly be felt by the people.

Municipal Ownership.

The Democratic platform declares that we favor the municipal ownership of public service corporations. The cities and towns of the state, as a rule, own and operate their waterworks, and in every instance with better results than where that ownership is private. Numerous towns and villages own their own electric light plants, and have secured better service at lower rates than under the old system. An investigation of the subject proves that in a majority of instances this public ownership is perfectly satisfactory and public thought is rapidly advancing along these lines. The municipalization of all lighting plants and other public institutions, such as street car systems and telephone lines, will be issues of the not-distant future. How far this process of state ownership shall be carried and how rapidly the changes shall be made only time and experience will demonstrate.

Direct Legislation.

The principle of direct legislation is so thoroughly democratic and republican that there should be no difference of opinion in regard to its desirability. Why should not the people retain the veto power in their own hands? They have delegated to their representatives the power to enact laws. Why should they not retain the power to annul objectionable action on the part of those representatives or to enforce action along certain desired lines, if a majority is in favor thereof? With this power in the hands of the people it would seldom have to be exercised, for legislatures would be very careful not to pass laws which would not meet with public approval if they knew that the people had reserved to themselves the veto power. I therefore favor the necessary legislation to restore this reserve power to the people.

Rights of Labor.

The resources of nature, as developed by labor, are the foundation of all wealth. The first element is the gift of a benign creator to all mankind. Labor is the effort of each individual, the fruits of which he alone is entitled to. Under our complex social system, where no man produces all that is necessary for his sustenance and comfort, but, as a rule, produces only some special article or part, the question of the division of the proceeds of labor becomes one of grave importance. Under our laws the owners of capital, or stored wealth, have a right to associate or combine their wealth for the promotion of enterprises of a public or private nature. It, therefore, becomes the right of labor to organize for its own protection, in order that it may receive its just share of the earnings of capital and labor combined. The Democratic party, recognizing the right of the individual to promote his own interests so long as he does not trespass upon the rights of others, declares in its platform that the interests of labor can best be subserved by organization, and pledges to organized labor its moral support and, if entrusted with power, legislative and administrative action which shall assure justice.

The invention of machinery and the factory system, with its division of labor, increasing the productive capacity of man, is of but little avail if it does not shorten the hours of labor necessary to bring comfort and prosperity to the homes of our working people. We, therefore, join with organized labor in its efforts to shorten the hours of the working day and pledge our support to that end.

State Institutions.

Until two years ago each of the institutions were managed by a separate board, each composed of high-minded, patriotic citizens, whose only object and recompense consisted in the success of the work in which they were engaged. Unity of purpose and management of these various institutions was secured through the medium of the board of corrections and charities, composed of men of the broadest humanitarianism, sympathies and business ability. Their work was altruistic in its highest sense, and under their general direction and advice the institutions of Minnesota advanced to the highest rank in the nation. In 1901 this system was radically changed by the passage of the so-called board of control law, whereby the management of these institutions was intrusted to three men, called a board of control, who are regular salaried officers of the state. This board will undoubtedly be able to show a saving of some money to the state in the management of these institutions, but the question is, has such saving been made at the expense of efficiency? The sole question with the people of the state is not whether the expense of management is $3 or $2.90 per capita per week. The important question is whether the state receives adequate return for the money expended in the cause and advancement of the unfortunate wards of the people. Three men, even when they devote their whole time to the business, cannot give that careful individual attention and consideration to the different classes that was possible under the individual board system. Their method of dealing with the institutions must necessarily be more upon the material, bureaucratic order. The element of human sympathy and the altruistic spirit disappear to a large extent. If the legislature does not deem it wise to restore the old law of individual boards, then, in my opinion, the law creating the board of corrections and charities should be re-enacted, with such amendments as are necessary to meet the changed conditions. That board would do much to bring these dependent members of society under the influence of personal care and sympathy.

The educational institutions of the state should not be hampered by a control which recognizes only the dollars and cents standard, or places them upon the basis of charitable institutions. Our people are justly proud of the educational facilities which we possess. The public school system of our state, supported in part by direct taxation and in part by the magnificent endowment secured by our fathers through the donation of public lands, has developed a citizenship of the highest type. The normal schools are furnishing intelligent and competent teachers, and higher education is provided for in our state university upon a plan so broad in its scope that the young State of Minnesota will soon be recognized as a leader in the higher realm of thought. If elected, it will be my constant aim to labor to maintain and advance our public school system as a whole, and to extend the scope and efficiency of the common schools so that every Minnesota child will be able to obtain a training that will be of practical value to him in after life, whether he remains on the farm or enters the industrial field or chooses a profession.

Tribute to John Lind.

In conclusion, my friends, I hope that you will pardon me if I speak in a personal vein for a few moments. For more than a year it had been the hope of the Democracy to place in nomination for the governorship that peerless leader of men, that sterling man of the people, the loved friend and counsellor, John Lind, who, as governor, gave the people of the state, regardless of party, a new and higher ideal in administration and citizenship. To him I owe much—more than I can ever repay. May life to him be always as perfect and happy as he has been true to his duties. He having declined to again lead our forces, the duty was assigned to me. The party honored me with the nomination for the highest office in the gift of the people of the state, and I accepted with the determination to wage a winning battle and confident that I would be able to do so. I believe I am fighting for right and justice and the best interests of our citizens. I yield to no man in my love for our institutions and our state. In Minnesota my life has been spent, and I promise you that if elected I will, under the guidance of God, be true to the interest of the state and its people.

A BENEFIT TO FARMERS.

The benefits that will undoubtedly result to farmers from the recent incorporation of the International Harvester Company which took over the business of the five leading harvester manufacturers have probably not been considered by a large portion of the farming community.

The economical necessity of a consolidation of the interests of manufacturers and those of their farmer customers must be apparent to any one who understands the present situation.

The increased and increasing cost of material, manufacturing and selling—the latter in consequence of extreme and bitter competition between manufacturers and their several selling agents—has made the business unprofitable.

The two alternatives left for the manufacturers were either the increasing of the prices of machines or the reduction of the cost of manufacture and sales. The latter could only be accomplished by concentrating the business in one company.

As can readily be seen, the forming of the new company was not a stock jobbing operation but a centering of mutual interests. There is no watered stock; the capitalization is conservative and represented by actual and tangible assets. There is no stock offered to the public, it having all been subscribed and paid for by the manufacturers and their associates.

The management of the International Harvester Company is in the hands of well known, experienced men.

The officers are: President, Cyrus H. McCormick; Chairman Executive Committee, Charles Deering; Chairman Finance Committee, George W. Perkins; Vice-Presidents, Harold F. McCormick, James Deering, Wm. H. Jones and John J. Glessner; Secretary and Treasurer, Richard F. Howe. The members of the Board of Directors are as follows: Cyrus Bentley, William Deering, Charles Deering, James Deering, Eldridge M. Fowler, E. H. Gary, John J. Glessner, Richard F. Howe, Abram M. Hyatt, William H. Jones, Cyrus H. McCormick, Harold F. McCormick, George W. Perkins, Norman B. Ream, Leslie N. Ward, Paul D. Cravath.

The International Harvester Company owns five of the largest harvester plants in existence. The Champion, Deering, McCormick, Milwaukee and Plano—plants that have been producing nearly or quite 90 per cent of the harvesting machines of the world.

It also owns timber and coal lands, blast furnaces and a steel plant. It has a new factory in the process of construction in Canada.

It is believed that the cost of producing grain, grass and corn harvesting machines will be so reduced that the present low prices can be continued, and that consequently the results cannot be otherwise than beneficial to the farmer. To maintain the present prices of these machines means to continue and increase the development of the agriculture of the world, for no one cause has contributed or can contribute more to this development than the cheapness of machines for harvesting grains.

BOMBARD CAPITAL

VENEZUELAN FORCES AGAIN WILL TRY TO TAKE CIUDAD BOLIVAR.

IS STILL IN HANDS OF REBELS

BRITISH SUBJECTS ASK FOR A WARSHIP FOR THEIR PROTECTION.

HUNDREDS OF REBELS DESERT

TAKE THEIR ARMS AND EQUIPMENT AND GO OVER TO THE ENEMY.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Sept. 1.—News reached here from Carupano, Venezuela, yesterday morning that the government general, Velutini, would leave Carupano to-day with three gunboats and 500 men to bombard a second time Ciudad Bolivar, on the Orinoco river, which is still in the hands of the Venezuelan revolutionists.

Ciudad Bolivar, capital of the State of Bolivar, was bombarded by the Venezuelan gunboats Bolivar and Restaurador last week, and many persons were killed and wounded.

British subjects at Ciudad Bolivar have requested that a warship of Great Britain be sent for their protection.

Hundreds of Rebels Desert.

Willemstad, Curacao, Sept. 1—News from an official source has reached here confirming previous reports that last Friday 550 men of the Venezuelan army, who formed the vanguard of the government forces near Ocumare, deserted to the revolutionists. They took their arms and equipment with them, and carried their chief, Gen. Castillo, a prisoner to the enemy.

The 600 government soldiers who have been trying to re-establish traffic on the German railroad from Caracas Valencia were repeatedly interrupted by the insurgents during Thursday and Friday of last week, and the latter day they were defeated by a detachment of insurgents near Los Teques. The town of Los Teques is now in the hands of the insurgents.

FLORENCE IN STATE OF SIEGE.

Forty Thousand Workmen Are on a Strike—Troops Guard City.

Florence, Sept. 1.—The employes of forty different callings have joined the strike which began last Friday. The town appears to be in a state of siege. Troops have been recalled from the maneuvers and from camp and every square in the city is occupied by a company of soldiers. Strong infantry with fixed bayonets and cavalry patrols are parading the streets of Florence and its suburbs. Six thousand troops, in addition to a number of policemen and carbineers, have been concentrated in the city. Plenty of other soldiers are available should order be disturbed. It is estimated that 40,000 men are idle in Florence. The municipal newspapers have ceased to appear as a result of the strike.

CARDINAL IRELAND AGAIN.

Pope Has Decided to Present the Red Hat to an American.

New York, Sept. 1.—In view of the increase in Catholicism in the United States, the pope has decided, according to a World dispatch from Rome, to create another American cardinal in order to re-establish the equilibrium in the sacred college. It is pointed out to him that, whereas Great Britain and Ireland, with 6,000,000 Catholics, have two representatives, and even Australia with hardly 1,000,000, has a cardinal (Moran), 13,000,000 of American Catholics have only one cardinal (Gibbons). It is considered certain that Archbishop Ireland will get the red hat.

WELCOMED THE PRESIDENT.

Spends Sunday on the Farm of W. Seward Webb.

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 1.—After having spent the night at the country residence of Secretary Shaw on Lake Champlain, President Roosevelt yesterday was conveyed in the steam yacht Electra to the Shelburn Farms, the home of Dr. W. Seward Webb, where he remained over night. His arrival at Thompson's Point late Saturday night was made the occasion for a great demonstration, fully 4,000 people having gathered to extend him a fitting welcome.

SWEEPS ALL BEFORE IT.

Prairie Fire Raging Near the Oklahoma Boundary.

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 1.—A prairie fire in the vicinity of Marlow, near the Oklahoma boundary, has raged twelve hours, destroying everything in its path. Farmers and stockers more than 100 strong fought the flames by means of counter fires. One hundred and fifty tons of hay and several fields of growing corn were consumed. The fire originated from a cigarette stub.

Killed in Drunken Row.

Rock Springs, Wyo., Sept. 1.—In a drunken row on the streets here Louis Sacks shot and killed one man and more or less seriously wounded three others. All three are Hungarians. The men had been carousing and becoming too noisy had been ordered out of a saloon.

Was Probably Murder.

Beloit, Wis., Sept. 1.—Victor B. Maynard, a former Beloit student who was found in Chicago in a basement badly injured from mysterious causes, is dead. He was probably murdered. The remains will be brought here.

Blown Up by Dynamite.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 1.—The pumphouse of the National washery at Minooka was blown to pieces early yesterday by dynamite. No damage was done the washery and work will proceed as usual.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have never in my life given a testimonial before, but you have done so much for me that I feel called upon to give you this unsolicited acknowledgement of

MRS. JENNIE E. O'DONNELL,
President of Oakland Woman's Riding Club.

the wonderful curative value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For eight years I had female trouble, falling of the womb and other complications. During that time I was more or less of an invalid and not much good for anything, until one day I found a book in my hall telling of the cures you could perform. I became interested; I bought a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was helped; I continued its use and in seven months was cured, and since that time I have had perfect health. Thanks, dear Mrs. Pinkham again, for the health I now enjoy."—MRS. JENNIE O'DONNELL, 378 East 31st St., Chicago, Ill. — $5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

Women suffering from any form of female ills can be cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. That's sure.

KIRKE LA SHELLE'S DEFINITION.

He Knows Quite Well What Humor Is, as Shown in an Interview With Clyde Fitch.

The news comes from Paris that Clyde Fitch is recovering from his attack of nervous prostration, and will not, after all, be obliged to spend all of his summer in Sicily. Kirke La Shelle met him in Paris recently, and Fitch told a humorous story. La Shelle never smiled.

"I don't believe you know what humor is," said Fitch.

"Oh, yes, I do," answered La Shelle. "Humor consists in the revelation of the perception of the surprising, or the incongruous in cases or under circumstances when the mind perceives a parallel or concurrent possibility of expectedness or congruity."

"Gracious!" said Fitch. "I am going back to Sicily. How times have changed since you began to write and say funny things."—Philadelphia Press.

Too Extravagant.

"No, sir!" roared the stern father, "you may own houses and lands, and automobiles, but you can't marry my daughter."

"Why not?"

"Young man, you've got the Panama hat habit; that's why."—Newark News.

A Faithful Friend.

Lennox, Mo., Sept. 1st.—Mr. W. H. Brown of this place has reason to be thankful that he has at least one friend by whose good advice he has been spared much pain and trouble. He says:

"I have had backache for over twelve months. Sometimes I could hardly get up when I was down, the pain in my back was so great.

"I tried many things, but could not get anything to help me or give me relief till a friend of mine advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"After I had used two boxes the pain in my back had all left me, and I am as well as ever I was.

"I am very thankful to Dodd's Kidney Pills for what they have done for me, and I will never forget my friend for having suggested this remedy."

Dead Man's Check Refused.

A few days ago a man presented a check to William H. Rogers, cashier of the Nassau bank, demanding payment.

"But I can't pay that," said the cashier: "that man's dead."

"But," protested the holder of the check, "he was alive when he signed it."

And, in face of all Mr. Rogers' efforts at explanation, the man left the bank convinced that he had a grievance.—New York Times.

How Wonderful.

Fudge—This is a most remarkable case. A paper relates that a connoisseur of art, passing an old junk shop, saw a dusty painting lying among the rags in the window, and, taking a fancy to it, purchased it.

Judge—What's remarkable about it?

"The painting turned out to be neither a Rubens nor a Rembrandt."—Baltimore Herald.

The Limit.

Mr. Van Albert—Great Scott! Why are not all these dishes washed?

Mrs. Van Albert—Because the cook is using the kitchen table.

Mr. Van Albert—In what way?

Mrs. Van Albert—She is playing a game of ping-pong with the policeman.

Undisputed for Half a Century.

It is a remarkable fact, which for half a century has not once been disputed, that St. Jacob's Oil never fails to cure shooting pains in the arms, legs, sides, back or breast, or soreness in any part of the body.

It has for fifty years been guaranteed by the proprietors, St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore, Md., to promptly cure lameness, sciatica, rheumatism, lumbago, stiff and swollen joints, stiff back, and all pains in the hips and loins, strains, bruises, burns, scalds, toothache, chilblains, and all aches and pains.

St. Jacobs Oil costs 25 cts and 50 cts.; sold wherever a druggist is found.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XXII. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1902. NUMBER 7.

ROSING CAMPAIGN

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR GOVERNOR OPENS STATE CAMPAIGN.

HIS SPEECH AT MINNEAPOLIS

HE WOULD ENFORCE THE LAW AGAINST ALL MERGERS ALIKE.

TRUSTS CREATURES OF LAW

TAKES DIRECT ISSUE WITH GOV. VAN SANT ON THE TAX CODE.

Under a system of government where the people choose their own servants and executives of the law which they themselves have enacted it has become customary for the candidate for the chief executive office to formally express his views upon the questions which confront the electorate and demand settlement in the campaign in which such candidate comes before the people to have his views ratified or rejected. On the 25th day of June the Democratic party of Minnesota assembled in convention applied Democratic principles to pending questions and took their stand accordingly. The platform so adopted I indorsed without reservation, and in accepting the nomination I said that at some future time I would take occasion to formally express my views more fully upon the various questions touched upon by that platform. The principle of equal rights for all and special privileges to none applies in state as well as nation, and in the application of this principle electors must decide upon which side they will take their stand.

Liberty Goes With the Flag.

One of the questions of national importance which the people must consider and decide upon in this campaign relates to the very foundation principles of our government. Shall we continue true to the principle of self-government? Shall we continue in the old faith that all just governments are founded on the consent of the governed? Shall we, as Americans, maintain that wherever the American flag floats as the emblem of sovereignty, there it must mean the same constitutional liberty and the application of the same governmental principles which have made this nation the greatest world power to-day? Only a few weeks ago the senior senator from this state, in illustrating his position upon a public question, used this language: "None of you would like to be the subjects of an absolute monarch, no matter how kind and benevolent." If such sentiments are creditable to us, are they not equally creditable to ten millions of people who desire the privilege of forming their own government, suitable to their own condition in life and the environment which God has created?

The Incorporated Trust.

A question of public concern, the settlement of which demands our best thought and courageous action, is that involved in the monopolistic tendencies of the so-called trusts. We are living in a time when consolidation and co-operation seem to be the central thought in all the relations of life. Churches and lodges advocate consolidation to promote united effort. This tendency can be traced through all our social relations and a universal tendency is a difficult one to restrain or prohibit by statute. Capital has for many years consolidated in various forms: first, in the form of co-operation between individuals, and then in the law-made persons, as corporations. The right to form corporations is wholly law-made. It is not a natural right.

Corporations are formed under statutes enacted by the representatives of the people, and the power that creates necessarily has the power to fix the limitations of its creatures.

Remove Special Privileges.

As a preliminary step, I would advocate the removal of all special privileges which these so-called trusts and combinations in restraint of trade enjoy.

Democracy believes that the first remedy should be the removal of all duties upon articles handled by combinations in restraint of trade.

Let them compete with the world. These "infants" that have been capitalized at a billion dollars and more, would seem to have passed beyond the need of tribute from the purse of the American citizen.

No Subsidies for Trusts.

Protective duties are only another form of subsidy, the difference being that we say to these captains of industry, we will not pay you the cash out of the treasury of the United States, but we will permit you to take it out of the pockets of the individual citizens. As we are opposed to this form of indirect subsidy, so we are also opposed to all forms of direct subsidizing.

In this connection I desire to call to your mind that the two United States senators from Minnesota voted for the ship subsidy bill. The senators from Iowa and Wisconsin did not dare to do so. Let me say to you that should the people of this state send to congress a solidly Republican delegation this fall, then I believe that ship subsidy bill will be passed. It is now held up to avoid shocking public sentiment in the face of a congressional election. I would suggest that the people of Minnesota call upon their senators for a definite explanation of their vote on the ship subsidy bill.

Record vs. Promises.

The Republican candidates, state and congressional, have no right to go before the people of this state upon a platform of promises. They have had the opportunity, they have had the power and the people of the state have a right to say to them: "What have you accomplished? Do not tell us what you are going to do." The party now in power has had complete control of the executive and legislative branches of the national government for six years, and trusts and combinations in restraint of trade have never flourished in the history of the world as they have during this period. Have we not a right to ask these gentlemen for an account of their stewardship, rather than be satisfied with glittering promises for the future?

Reciprocity With Canada.

There is one more question of national interest which I desire to touch upon, and that is the question of reciprocal arrangements for trade with Canada. To the north of us there is opening the greatest new market in the world to-day. Shall we pass it by or shall we do everything in our power to get our share of the trade of this rapidly developing country? While we are expending one hundred million dollars a year for the purpose of opening up new markets in the Philippines, that took from us only about three million dollars' worth of goods last year, we have erected an artificial barrier at the northern boundary of our state, and we say to the tradesmen and the manufacturers of the great cities of this nation, and particularly of our own state: "In this new market you shall have no share. You may travel ten thousand miles across the sea to sell goods to the people that need but little, but with these people who live within three hundred miles of the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and who are neighbors to Duluth, you cannot, you shall not trade." I do not think it is necessary to argue this question. It is so apparent that it would seem that there could be no difference of opinion in regard to the desirability of securing this trade for our own people.

Power of the Beet.

But what do we find? They are frittering away their time in protecting "beet sugar." At least that is their claim, but most of us think that the interests of the "sugar trust" is the object of their tender solicitude. Be that as it may, the fact remains that for many years Canada has been anxious to make reciprocal trade arrangements, and we have said: "No, we will not trade with you." Beet sugar even had its influence in the recent state convention of our Republican brethren. Great is the beet, and the Minnesota delegation is its prophet.

Prosperous In Spite of Bad Laws.

In a state with such magnificent resources the immediate effect of the election of one man or another, or the passage of one law or another can be but slight. Bad legislation and bad administration can only retard, they cannot prevent our progress. The state will make magnificent advances whether the people shall decide to elect the genial gentleman who is my opponent in this contest or myself.

There is one suggestion in this campaign upon which I desire to express my views with special frankness. I say suggestion for the reason that it does not appear to me that any issue is presented upon the matter, at least so far as our opponents are concerned.

Merger of Northern Railroads.

For a good many years there have been upon the statute books of this state provisions forbidding the consolidation of parallel and competing lines of railroad. It is claimed that these provisions have been violated by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads, and it seems to me that it must be apparent that if they have not been directly violated, an attempt has at least been made to evade their spirit. Following their plain duty in the premises, the executive and highest law officer of the state instituted proceedings to prevent the evasion or violation of those statutes. The proceedings so instituted are now pending and must be pressed to a final conclusion without regard to the result of this campaign. My wish or yours as to the result of the litigation will have no weight with the judgment of the courts before whom those cases must come; and I am fully convinced that our courts will decide them with the same impartial integrity and intelligence that has always characterized the American judiciary.

Merger of Iron Range Roads.

Gov. Van Sant did his duty in calling upon the attorney general to enforce the law against the consolidation of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, but there he stopped. The state senate of Minnesota, during the extra session of 1902, passed the following resolution:

"Resolved, that the attorney general be and he is hereby requested to investigate the alleged consolidation of the stock of the Duluth and Iron Range and the Duluth, Missabe and Northern Railway companies, and if he finds that a practical consolidation of such companies has been accomplished by the concentration in a single corporation of a majority of the capital stock thereof, that he at once institute legal proceedings to prevent a further violation of the laws of this state."

Why has not this resolution been obeyed? In Gov. Van Sant's extended acceptance speech on July 1, he absolutely neglected to touch upon this point.

Merger Versus Merger.

The Iron Range roads were merged by the United States steel trust in February, 1901, sixty days after Gov. Van Sant's inauguration, and nine months before the attempt to merge the Northern coast lines. If the present state administration is entitled to re-election because it brought suit to forbid the consolidation of the coast lines, what does it deserve for ignoring the merging of the Iron Range railroads, which are wholly within the State of Minnesota, and are the original merger offenders?

Pledge to Enforce the Law.

The Democratic platform pledges its candidates and the party to the enforcement of the present statutes against consolidation, and that in every case, and if my nomination shall be ratified at the polls this fall, I pledge myself to carry out the instructions of the party in that regard.

Regulation of Railroad Rates.

The bringing of suits to prevent the merging of railroads, however, is a small part of the duties of our officials in dealing with the great transportation companies, for although no question of the consolidation of parallel and competing lines has arisen under the law forbidding the same, it was yet found that the state must undertake to regulate these immense and natural monopolies, both as to their charges and methods of business, and for that purpose the railroad and warehouse commission of this state was created, and in the nation at large the interstate commerce commission—with much less power, unfortunately—was created by congress.

Step by step, and through the decisions of an upright and fearless judiciary, the principles have been established and recognized upon which this right to regulate rests. The important consideration at this time is that the railroad and warehouse commission of this state shall consist of men possessing the ability to realize the full extent of the power they possess, the courage to use it for the best interests of the public, and the sound judgment to direct them in such use. In my judgment, this is the important question with reference to the reciprocal rights of our large railroad corporations and the public.

Are the rates charged to the people of this state reasonable? Are the rates upon iron ore reasonable? Do the Iron Range railroads, subsidized as they have been by portions of the public domain, fulfill their duties as common carriers when they so manipulate their business methods that a deposit of iron ore upon the planet Mars would be as beneficial to the independent mine owner as it is when within a four-hour journey of where we now stand?

No Dodging of Issues.

Therefore I feel that, whatever merit there may be in the institution of the so-called "merger" suits, the managers of the Republican party in this campaign, the party which created the trusts; the party which has frittered away in grants to these same railroads so much of the public domain and so much of the property which belonged to the school children of this state, the party of special protection for special interests; the party of subsidies and imperialism—that the managers of this party, I say, shall not be permitted to raise a false issue in this campaign and escape in the confusion.

My opinion is that the state must exercise a continually increasing control. To make such control efficacious additional power must be given to the interstate commerce commission, so that the same regulations may be enforced in regard to interstate traffic that we now exercise in regard to traffic within the state. The record of the present railway commission is one of inefficiency and subserviency to special interests. The re-election of the present administration will be setting the people's seal of approval upon such inefficiency. The election of the Democratic state ticket will mean that the people are ready to exercise the power they possess to regulate rates.

Record of Democratic Commission.

The record of the Democratic railroad and warehouse commission, of which Messrs. Ringdal and Knox were members and the controlling spirits from 1900 to 1901, just twelve months, indicates what can be accomplished by honest, energetic and courageous men in that position. One order issued by them, applying to 172 stations in twenty-two counties in the southwestern portion of the state, saved the farmers of those counties $400,000 in freight rates on the crop of 1900 alone. They also brought a suit to prevent the consolidation of the St. Paul & Duluth railway with the Northern Pacific system, under the statute prohibiting the consolidation of parallel and competing lines. That suit was settled by the state without trial, upon the offer of the Northern Pacific railway to give a contract binding itself to forever maintain and operate the present line of the St. Paul & Duluth, with its terminals at Duluth, as at the time the suit was brought, and that in all cases involving the question of rates the St. Paul & Duluth railroad should be treated and considered by the railroad commission as a separate and distinct entity. This contract was signed on behalf of the state by the governor, attorney general and the railroad and warehouse commission, and on behalf of the Northern Pacific by the officers of that corporation, and was submitted to the legislature of 1901 for its approval or rejection. The securing of this contract marks one of the most important achievements in the history of railway control in this state. The St. Paul & Duluth is the only line of communication between the Twin Cities and the Head of the Lakes which is wholly a state road, and subject, under this contract, to the jurisdiction and control of the state railroad commission. The importance of this will be readily realized when we take into consideration the fact that much of the grain raised in the southern part of the state goes East via Duluth and the Great Lakes, and nearly all our coal comes to Duluth to be distributed to all points of the state, and that this road is the sole connecting link between navigation and the other railroad systems of the state, subject to state control. The recent decision of the supreme court of the United States, holding that the state railroad commission has the right to fix joint rates, emphasizes the importance of the commission's action. If the state's interests had not been conserved by the vigilance of the Democratic administration in the above action, then we would now be helpless, because all that the Northern Pacific would have had to do to escape jurisdiction would have been to move its terminals to West Superior, thus depriving the state of the right to fix reasonable joint rates and the city of Duluth of the business connected with the docks and terminals of this great system.

Record of Republican Commission.

What has the present state railroad commission done to make this decision of the supreme court of the United States effective on the coal rates in the state?

The right of the state to compel the establishment of joint rates is not only important in itself, but it is important because it shows how much can be accomplished in the way of regulating common carriers when an honest and intelligent effort in that direction is made. A joint rate may be over two or more roads and means a fixed and single charge for the entire distance over which the commodity is carried. By this means a lower rate is not only obtained, but expensive transfer charges can be avoided and each carrier is kept from practicing extortion. In addition to all this, the doctrine is becoming more and more firmly recognized that railroads, as common carriers, are conducting great public highways, thus performing a governmental function, and are subject to the fullest regulation by the state which is necessary for the public good, subject of course to the constitutional protection which all enjoy that their property shall not be confiscated or used for public purposes without just compensation.

Iron Range Rates.

Nov. 9, 1900, the railroad and warehouse commission, on its own motion, passed a resolution to investigate the reasonableness of the rates then in force for carrying iron ore on the so-called iron ore roads, being the Duluth and Iron Range, the Duluth, Missabe and Northern, and the Eastern Minnesota. The first hearing was set for Nov. 21, 1900, and was adjourned from time to time, at the request of the roads interested as to the Eastern Minnesota railroad, for the reason that its terminals were at West Superior, Wis., and the commission had no jurisdiction. As to the other two roads, an order was made on the same day, reducing the rates for carrying ore about 25 per cent. Prior to the filing of this order, and soon after the proceeding was begun, these companies had withdrawn their schedules of rates, theretofore on file with the commission, and upon the argument took the position that the commission had no jurisdiction to fix the rates, on the ground, first, that all ore was being carried under special contracts; and, second, that the traffic was interstate. Of course by the order reducing rates, the commission decided both questions against the companies. The filing of this order was the final act of the Democratic commission in the matter. The new commission took office on Jan. 8, 1901, and on the same day these roads applied for a rehearing, upon the ground that the commission had no jurisdiction over the matter, because the traffic in iron ore was interstate. A rehearing was granted, and the proceedings thereafter adjourned from time to time until Nov. 11, 1901, nearly a year having elapsed, when an order was made by a majority of the commission, directing the roads to file tariff schedules for transporting iron ore from their several stations on the iron ranges to the docks at Two Harbors and Duluth, destined to points within the state. That order fixed no rates and said nothing in regard to what they should be. About Dec. 1, 1901, the companies filed new rate schedules, being the same as those in force at the time the investigation was begun, except, as I understand, they are expressly made applicable only to shipments of ore from the range to points within the State of Minnesota.

The particular point in this order, and the schedules filed thereunder is that the rates are made to points in Minnesota beyond the docks, when, as a matter of fact, there is not an ounce of ore shipped to any point in Minnesota beyond the docks. The order, and the schedules filed thereunder, are fakes pure and simple.

State Taxation.

For the past six years the Democrats of this state have had a plan for correcting the most glaring evils of our present tax system, and if the legislature of 1901 had not been blinded by partisan prejudice and the desire to make political capital, rather than to legislate for the interests of the people, there could have been no possible excuse for calling the extra session of the legislature. The legislature of 1901 authorized the appointment of a commission which should present to the special session the following year a complete revision of our tax laws. The system formulated by that commission met with so much opposition and was so radical in many of its features that it could not receive the approval of the representatives of the people. The minority members of the legislature presented a complete program, in harmony with Democratic ideas. That program our party platform indorses, and by it I am willing to stand. It provided for amendments of our present law, the effect of which would have been to eliminate its most glaring wrongs and inconsistencies and it also provided for a simple amendment to the constitution which would permit the imposition of a state income tax and the exemption of such property as would be necessary to bring about equality of taxation. It is still true that "our state is exacting taxes on the little stocks, tools, implements—the means of subsistence—of numbers of our citizens who are struggling to support themselves and families, while thousands who possess great wealth escape." By Democratic insistence, the legislature of Minnesota was compelled to pass a bill for the increase of the railroad gross earnings tax, and to submit that question to a vote of the people of the state this fall.

The difficulty of reaching "invisible" personal property, such as notes, stocks and bonds, and all evidences of indebtedness, has convinced our best thinkers that the only adequate way of forcing the persons whose wealth consists largely of this class of property to bear their just share of the burden is by means of an income tax. With the adoption of a 4 per cent gross earnings tax, a tax on foreign corporations and domestic franchises, and the imposition of an income tax upon the class of persons who escape taxation almost wholly, the taxes of the state would be reduced to so small a percentage that they would hardly be felt by the people.

Municipal Ownership.

The Democratic platform declares that we favor the municipal ownership of public service corporations. The cities and towns of the state, as a rule, own and operate their waterworks, and in every instance with better results than where that ownership is private. Numerous towns and villages own their own electric light plants, and have secured better service at lower rates than under the old system. An investigation of the subject proves that in a majority of instances this public ownership is perfectly satisfactory and public thought is rapidly advancing along these lines. The municipalization of all lighting plants and other public institutions, such as street car systems and telephone lines, will be issues of the not-distant future. How far this process of state ownership shall be carried and how rapidly the changes shall be made only time and experience will demonstrate.

Direct Legislation.

The principle of direct legislation is so thoroughly democratic and republican that there should be no difference of opinion in regard to its desirability. Why should not the people retain the veto power in their own hands? They have delegated to their representatives the power to enact laws. Why should they not retain the power to annul objectionable action on the part of those representatives or to enforce action along certain desired lines, if a majority is in favor thereof? With this power in the hands of the people, it would seldom have to be exercised, for legislatures would be very careful not to pass laws which would not meet with public approval if they knew that the people had reserved to themselves the veto power. I therefore favor the necessary legislation to restore this reserve power to the people.

Rights of Labor.

The resources of nature, as developed by labor, are the foundation of all wealth. The first element is the gift of a benign creator to all mankind. Labor is the effort of each individual, the fruits of which he alone is entitled to. Under our complex social system, where no man produces all that is necessary for his sustenance and comfort, but, as a rule, produces only some special article or part, the question of the division of the proceeds of labor becomes one of grave importance. Under our laws the owners of capital, or stored wealth, have a right to associate or combine their wealth for the promotion of enterprises of a public or private nature. It, therefore, becomes the right of labor to organize for its own protection, in order that it may receive its just share of the earnings of capital and labor combined. The Democratic party, recognizing the right of the individual to promote his own interests so long as he does not trespass upon the rights of others, declares in its platform that the interests of labor can best be subserved by organization, and pledges to organized labor its moral support and, if entrusted with power, legislative and administrative action which shall assure justice.

The invention of machinery and the factory system, with its division of labor, increasing the productive capacity of man, is of but little avail if it does not shorten the hours of labor necessary to bring comfort and prosperity to the homes of our working people. We, therefore, join with organized labor in its efforts to shorten the hours of the working day and pledge our support to that end.

State Institutions.

Until two years ago each of the institutions were managed by a separate board, each composed of high-minded, patriotic citizens, whose only object and recompense consisted in the success of the work in which they were engaged. Unity of purpose and management of these various institutions was secured through the medium of the board of corrections and charities, composed of men of the broadest humanitarianism, sympathies and business ability. Their work was altruistic in its highest sense, and under their general direction and advice the institutions of Minnesota advanced to the highest rank in the nation. In 1901 this system was radically changed by the passage of the so-called board of control law, whereby the management of these institutions was intrusted to three men, called a board of control, who are regular salaried officers of the state. This board will undoubtedly be able to show a saving of some money to the state in the management of these institutions, but the question is, has such saving been made at the expense of efficiency? The sole question with the people of the state is not whether the expense of management is $3 or $2.90 per capita per week. The important question is whether the state receives adequate return for the money expended in the course and advancement of the unfortunate wards of the people. Three men, even when they devote their whole time to the business, cannot give that careful individual attention and consideration to the different classes that was possible under the individual board system. Their method of dealing with the institutions must necessarily be more upon the material, bureaucratic order. The element of human sympathy and the altruistic spirit disappear to a large extent. If the legislature does not deem it wise to restore the old law of individual boards, then, in my opinion, the law creating the board of corrections and charities should be re-enacted, with such amendments as are necessary to meet the changed conditions. That board would do much to bring these dependent members of society under the influence of personal care and sympathy.

The educational institutions of the state should not be hampered by a control which recognizes only the dollars and cents standard, or places them upon the basis of charitable institutions. Our people are justly proud of the educational facilities which we possess. The public school system of our state, supported in part by direct taxation and in part by the magnificent endowment secured by our fathers through the donation of public lands, has developed a citizenship of the highest type. The normal schools are furnishing intelligent and competent teachers, and higher education is provided for in our state university upon a plan so broad in its scope that the young State of Minnesota will soon be recognized as a leader in the higher realm of thought. If elected, it will be my constant aim to labor to maintain and advance our public school system as a whole, and to extend the scope and efficiency of the common schools so that every Minnesota child will be able to obtain a training that will be of practical value to him in after life, whether he remains on the farm or enters the industrial field or chooses a profession.

Tribute to John Lind.

In conclusion, my friends, I hope that you will pardon me if I speak in a personal vein for a few moments. For more than a year it had been the hope of the Democracy to place in nomination for the governorship that peerless leader of men, that sterling man of the people, the loved friend and counsellor, John Lind, who, as governor, gave the people of the state, regardless of party, a new and higher ideal in administration and citizenship. To him I owe much—more than I can ever repay. May life to him be always as perfect and happy as he has been true to his duties. He having declined to again lead our forces, the duty was assigned to me. The party honored me with the nomination for the highest office in the gift of the people of the state, and I accepted with the determination to wage a winning battle and confident that I would be able to do so. I believe I am fighting for right and justice and the best interests of our citizens. I yield to no men in my love for our institutions and our state. In Minnesota my life has been spent, and I promise you that if elected I will, under the guidance of God, be true to the interest of [illegible] and its people.

A BENEFIT TO FARMERS.

The benefits that will undoubtedly result to farmers from the recent incorporation of the International Harvester Company which took over the business of the five leading harvester manufacturers have probably not been considered by a large portion of the farming community.

The economical necessity of a consolidation of the interests of manufacturers and those of their farmer customers must be apparent to any one who understands the present situation.

The increased and increasing cost of material, manufacturing and selling—the latter in consequence of extreme and bitter competition between manufacturers and their several selling agents—has made the business unprofitable.

The two alternatives left for the manufacturers were either the increasing of the prices of machines or the reduction of the cost of manufacture and sales. The latter could only be accomplished by concentrating the business in one company.

As can readily be seen, the forming of the new company was not a stock jobbing operation but a centering of mutual interests. There is no watered stock; the capitalization is conservative and represented by actual and tangible assets. There is no stock offered to the public, it having all been subscribed and paid for by the manufacturers and their associates.

The management of the International Harvester Company is in the hands of well known, experienced men.

The officers are: President, Cyrus H. McCormick; Chairman Executive Committee, Charles Deering; Chairman Finance Committee, George W. Perkins; Vice-Presidents, Harold F. McCormick, James Deering, Wm. H. Jones and John J. Glessner; Secretary and Treasurer, Richard F. Howe. The members of the Board of Directors are as follows: Cyrus Bentley, William Deering, Charles Deering, James Deering, Eldridge M. Fowler, E. H. Gary, John J. Glessner, Richard F. Howe, Abram M. Hyatt, William H. Jones, Cyrus H. McCormick, Harold F. McCormick, George W. Perkins, Norman B. Ream, Leslie N. Ward, Paul D. Cravath.

The International Harvester Company owns five of the largest harvester plants in existence. The Champion, Deering, McCormick, Milwaukee and Plano—plants that have been producing nearly or quite 90 per cent of the harvesting machines of the world.

It also owns timber and coal lands, blast furnaces and a steel plant; it has a new factory in the process of construction in Canada.

It is believed that the cost of producing grain, grass and corn harvesting machines will be so reduced that the present low prices can be continued, and that consequently the results cannot be otherwise than beneficial to the farmer. To maintain the present prices of these machines means to continue and increase the development of the agriculture of the world, for no one cause has contributed or can contribute more to this development than the cheapness of machines for harvesting grains.

BOMBARD CAPITAL

VENEZUELAN FORCES AGAIN WILL TRY TO TAKE CIUDAD BOLIVAR.

IS STILL IN HANDS OF REBELS

BRITISH SUBJECTS ASK FOR A WARSHIP FOR THEIR PROTECTION.

HUNDREDS OF REBELS DESERT

TAKE THEIR ARMS AND EQUIPMENT AND GO OVER TO THE ENEMY.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Sept. 1.—News reached here from Carupano, Venezuela, yesterday morning that the government general, Velutini, would leave Carupano to-day with three gunboats and 500 men to bombard a second time Ciudad Bolivar, on the Orinoco river, which is still in the hands of the Venezuelan revolutionists.

Ciudad Bolivar, capital of the State of Bolivar, was bombarded by the Venezuelan gunboats Bolivar and Restaurador last week, and many persons were killed and wounded.

British subjects at Ciudad Bolivar have requested that a warship of Great Britain be sent for their protection.

Hundreds of Rebels Desert.

Willemstad, Curacao, Sept. 1—News from an official source has reached here confirming previous reports that last Friday 550 men of the Venezuelan army, who formed the vanguard of the government forces near Ocumare, deserted to the revolutionists. They took their arms and equipment with them, and carried their chief, Gen. Castillo, a prisoner to the enemy.

The 600 government soldiers who have been trying to re-establish traffic on the German railroad from Caracas to Valencia were repeatedly interrupted by the insurgents during Thursday and Friday of last week, and the latter day they were defeated by a detachment of insurgents near Los Tequos. The town of Los Tequos is now in the hands of the insurgents.

FLORENCE IN STATE OF SIEGE.

Forty Thousand Workmen Are on a Strike—Troops Guard City.

Florence, Sept. 1.—The employes of forty different callings have joined the strike which began last Friday. The town appears to be in a state of siege. Troops have been recalled from the maneuvers and from camp and every square in the city is occupied by a company of soldiers. Strong infantry with fixed bayonets and cavalry patrols are parading the streets of Florence and its suburbs. Six thousand troops, in addition to a number of policemen and carbineers, have been concentrated in the city. Plenty of other soldiers are available should order be disturbed. It is estimated that 40,000 men are idle in Florence. The municipal newspapers have ceased to appear as a result of the strike.

CARDINAL IRELAND AGAIN.

Pope Has Decided to Present the Red Hat to an American.

New York, Sept. 1.—In view of the increase in Catholicism in the United States, the pope has decided, according to a World dispatch from Rome, to create another American cardinal in order to re-establish the equilibrium in the sacred college. It is pointed out to him that, whereas Great Britain and Ireland, with 6,000,000 Catholics, have two representatives, and even Australia with hardly 1,000,000, has a cardinal (Moran), 13,000,000 of American Catholics have only one cardinal (Gibbons). It is considered certain that Archbishop Ireland will get the red hat.

WELCOMED THE PRESIDENT.

Spends Sunday on the Farm of W. Seward Webb.

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 1.—After having spent the night at the country residence of Secretary Shaw on Lake Champlain, President Roosevelt yesterday was conveyed in the steam yacht Electra to the Shelburn Farms, the home of Dr. W. Seward Webb, where he remained over night. His arrival at Thompson's Point late Saturday night was made the occasion for a great demonstration, fully 4,000 people having gathered to extend him a fitting welcome.

SWEEPS ALL BEFORE IT.

Prairie Fire Raging Near the Oklahoma Boundary.

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 1.—A prairie fire in the vicinity of Marlow, near the Oklahoma boundary, has raged twelve hours, destroying everything in its path. Farmers and stockers more than 100 strong fought the flames by means of counter fires. One hundred and fifty tons of hay and several fields of growing corn were consumed. The fire originated from a cigarette stub.

Killed in Drunken Row.

Rock Springs, Wyo., Sept. 1.—In a drunken row on the streets here Louis Sacka shot and killed one man and more or less seriously wounded three others. All three are Hungarians. The men had been carousing and becoming too noisy had been ordered out of a saloon.

Was Probably Murder.

Beloit, Wis., Sept. 1.— Victor B. Maynard, a former Beloit student who was found in Chicago in a basement badly injured from mysterious causes, is dead. He was probably murdered. The remains will be brought here.

Blown Up by Dynamite.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 1.—The pumphouse of the National washery at Minooka was blown to pieces early yesterday by dynamite. No damage was done the washery and work will proceed as usual.

MRS. JENNIE E. O'DONNELL,
President of Oakland Woman's Riding Club.

the wonderful curative value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For eight years I had female trouble, falling of the womb and other complications. During that time I was more or less of an invalid and not much good for anything, until one day I found a book in my hall telling of the cures you could perform. I became interested; I bought a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was helped; I continued its use and in seven months was cured, and since that time I have had perfect health. Thanks, dear Mrs. Pinkham again, for the health I now enjoy."—MRS. JENNIE O'DONNELL, 278 East 31st St., Chicago, Ill.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

KIRKE LA SHELLE'S DEFINITION.

He Knows Quite Well What Humor Is, as Shown in an Interview With Clyde Fitch.

The news comes from Paris that Clyde Fitch is recovering from his attack of nervous prostration, and will not, after all, be obliged to spend all of his summer in Sicily. Kirke La Shelle met him in Paris recently, and Fitch told a humorous story. La Shelle never smiled.

"I don't believe you know what humor is," said Fitch.

"Oh, yes, I do," answered La Shelle. "Humor consists in the revelation of the perception of the surprising, or the incongruous in itself or under circumstances when the mind perceives a parallel or concurrent possibility of expectedness or congruity."

"Gracious!" said Fitch. "I am going back to Sicily. How times have changed since you began to write and say funny things."—Philadelphia Press.

Too Extravagant.

"No, sir!" roared the stern father, "you may own houses and lands, and automobiles, but you can't marry my daughter."

"Why not?"

"Young man, you've got the Panama hat habit; that's why."—Newark News.

A Faithful Friend.

Lennox, Mo., Sept. 1:—Mr. W. H. Brown of this place has reason to be thankful that he has at least one friend by whose good advice he has been spared much pain and trouble. He says:

"I have had backache for over twelve months. Sometimes I could hardly get up when I was down, the pain in my back was so great.

"I tried many things, but could not get anything to help me or give me relief till a friend of mine advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"After I had used two boxes the pain in my back had all left me, and I am as well as ever I was.

"I am very thankful to Dodd's Kidney Pills for what they have done for me, and I will never forget my friend for having suggested this remedy."

Dead Man's Check Refused.

A few days ago a man presented a check to William H. Rogers, cashier of the Nassau bank, demanding payment.

"But I can't pay that," said the cashier: "that man's dead."

"But," protested the holder of the check, "he was alive when he signed it."

And, in face of all Mr Rogers' efforts at explanation, the man left the bank convinced that he had a grievance.—New York Times.

How Wonderful.

Fudge—This is a most remarkable case. A paper relates that a connoisseur of art, passing an old junk shop, saw a dusty painting lying among the rags in the window, and, taking a fancy to it, purchased it.

Judge—What's remarkable about it?

"The painting turned out to be neither a Rubens nor a Rembrandt."—Baltimore Herald.

The Limit.

Mr. Van Albert—Great Scott! Why are not all these dishes washed?

Mrs. Van Albert—Because the cook is using the kitchen table.

Mr. Van Albert—In what way?

Mrs. Van Albert—She is playing a game of ping-pong with the policeman.

Undisputed for Half a Century.

It is a remarkable fact, which for half a century has not once been disputed, that St. Jacob's Oil never fails to cure shooting pains in the arms, legs, sides, back or breast, or soreness in any part of the body.

It has for fifty years been guaranteed by the proprietors, St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore, Md., to promptly cure lameness, sciatica, rheumatism, lumbago, stiff and swollen joints, stiff back, and all pains in the hips and loins, strains, bruises, burns, scalds, toothache, chilblains, and all aches and pains.

St. Jacobs Oil costs 25 cts and 50 cts.; sold wherever a druggist is found.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 3, 1902.

The hunting season is here and, as usual, there is a lot of accidents reported. If you want to go hunting be sure that the other fellow—and yourself too—know which end of the gun the charge comes out of, also the direction it's going.

This week we publish in supplement form the ballots as they will be used in the coming primary election. The voters of Red Lake county will do well to study these ballots carefully as they will present a very complicated proposition on the 16th inst. to the voter who has not become familiar with them.

The State Fair is in force this week and is said to be the best ever. The list of exhibits this year is largely increased in every line and Minnesota's fair is now considered to be one of the first in the country. Minnesota is certainly making a world wide reputation as a producer of high grade dairy stock and dairy products.

Senator Knatvold, of Albert Lea, is a candidate for congress. A few days ago he got injured in a railroad wreck and for a time his injuries were believed to be fatal. Some of the twin city dailies sympathized with the people of his district because they were to lose such an excellent man. Now he is getting well and they are sympathizing with him and say that he will surely be defeated as he cannot make a personal canvass of the district.

"The right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." This, my son, is from the constitution of the United States, but it is not operative in Minnesota except at the option of a game warden. As long as you go afield with a $2 Zulu gun you may consider yourself reasonably safe, but don't let one of Mr. Fullerton's deputies catch you with papa's Parker hammerless. That is the kind of guns they are making a collection of down in St. Paul and you will probably have it taken away from you. Perhaps some day, my boy, when you grow up to be a republican politician you will find out what becomes of all the nice guns they take away from people up here and ship down to the big white capitol. At present it is a mystery known only to a very, very few—and they won't tell.

Test of the Age of Eggs.

There is a nice and simple test of age in an egg. Dissolve six ounces of common kitchen salt in a large glassful of water and drop in your eggs, one at a time. An egg one day old will sink to the bottom, but if older it does not reach the bottom. If three days old, it sinks only just below the surface. If five days and over, it floats; and the older it is the more it protrudes from the water.—New York Press.

Satisfaction In It.

"You know, my dear," said her friend, "wealth does not mean happiness."

"Well," said the young lady who was considering a possible proposal, "it means carte blanche with one's milliner and one's dressmaker."—Brooklyn Life.

AN AUTHOR'S WORKSHOP.

The Place Where Bulwer-Lytton Could Write at Ease.

When Charles Mackay was visiting Lord Lytton at Knebworth, he was impressed, he says in his "Recollections," with the beauty of the library. He remarked to the novelist that in such a cheerful room among so many books any author could get through a vast amount of labor.

"I cannot write so well in the library," replied Lord Lytton, "as in another place. Take a stroll with me, and I will show you my favorite study."

They went for a considerable distance to the shore of an artificial lake in Knebworth park, and there stood a boathouse. A small boat was drawn up on one side of it, and on the other, near a small window, stood a chair and a common deal table, on which was a pewter inkstand.

Pulling open the drawer, Lord Lytton showed his guest a good supply of paper, pens and a blotting book.

"I can write more freely here," he said, "than in the grand library. I will tell you how the habit grew. When I was a small boy, I was very ambitious to write and wrote an immense amount of trash. My mother thought that the occupation of so much time in writing would be injurious to my health and prohibited my writing in the library.

"I then had recourse to my bedroom, but was in due time banished from that and deprived of pen and ink. The more imperatively I was forbidden to write the more I indulged in the prohibited joy. I took refuge in the boathouse and wrote for hours with a lead pencil, using the seat of the boat for my writing table. So I learned to write here, and I can do better work here than anywhere else."—Youth's Companion.

Prospects For a Strenuous Life.

A well dressed lad, the son of wealthy parents, thought it would be quite manly to earn a few coppers for himself by selling daily papers, says the Chicago Journal. He stopped a tattered newsboy in the street and said to him:

"Do you think I should be able to earn money as you do if I bought some papers and came to this corner to sell them?"

"Why do you want to sell papers?"

"I'm tired of being idle."

"Well," said the philosophic little newsboy, with a serious air, "d'yer think yer can hold thirty-six papers in one hand, lick three or four boys bigger'n yerself with the other hand, while yer keeps two more off with yer feet and yells 'Evenin' poper' all the time?"

"No-o, I don't," replied the well dressed boy.

"Then yer are no good in the newsboy biz," replied the tattered philosopher. "Ye'd better git yer people to 'prentice yer to somethin' light."

An Atmosphere of Happiness.

Happiness is, we maintain, a good end. The only question is, How much sacrifice is it worth? Well, certainly not the sacrifice of sincerity, and certainly not the sacrifice of others, but surely the sacrifice of the habit of mental laziness, which is only self sacrifice. If by a little trouble we can create for ourselves a sweet atmosphere in which to live, we are surely doing nothing of which we need be ashamed. After all, no one breathes his own atmosphere alone; others breathe it with him. If happiness is a despicable object, let us face the fact sincerely and give up all the many things which we now do openly and exclusively to obtain it. If it is not, why should we not pull ourselves together, give our attention to the game and play up?—London Spectator.

As to Printers' Marks.

The interrogation mark or "point" (?) was originally a "q" and an "o," the latter placed under the former. They were simply the first and last letters of the Latin word "questio." So, too, with the sign of exclamation or interjection (!). In its original purity it was a combination of "I" and "o," the latter underneath, as in the question mark. The two stood for "io," the Latin exclamation of joy. The paragraph mark is a Greek "p," the initial of the word paragraph. The early printers employed a dagger to show that a word or sentence was objectionable and should be cut out.

The Motion Prevailed.

An old town official of the city of Macon, Ga., says in Short Stories that during the night of the earthquake disturbances of 1886 the city council was in session.

When the quake shook the city hall from basement to attic, the councilmen ran out, thinking the house would topple over, whereupon the wag who kept the minutes of the meeting concluded his record with the following sentence:

"On motion of the city hall the council adjourned."

Breaking It to Him Gently.

Carrie—When that fat Mrs. Soper came in, there was a tall hat in one of the chairs, and she sat right down upon it.

Harry—By George, but that was a good one! If I'd been there, I believe I should have split with laughter.

Carrie—I don't think it, Harry. You see, it was your hat.—Exchange.

She Might.

"I wonder if she regrets her marriage."

"Why should she?"

"Well, you know they are both literary, and now her husband thinks himself entitled to every bright idea she has."—Detroit Free Press.

The first cannon was carried by soldiers, and one man held it in both hands while the other fired it.

What Men Like In Men.

Men like in men these traits: The honor that ennobles, the justice that insures the right, the reasonableness that mellows and makes plain, the courage that proclaims virility, the generous instinct that disdains all meanness, the modesty that makes no boast, the dignity that wins respect, the fineness and the tenderness that know and feel. But when one thinks of it more carefully may he not sum it up in just a single sentence and accept it as the truth that all men like a gentleman?—Cosmopolitan.

DOESN'T TRUST HORSES.

Part Maniac and Part Idiot Is What One Man Calls Them.

I have spent much of a long life in the observation of horses. I have reared them, broken them, trained them, ridden them, driven them in every form from the plow to four-in-hand. The result of these years of study is summed up in one sentence—I believe the horse to be part maniac and part idiot. Every horse at some time in his life develops into a homicidal maniac. I believe any man who trusts himself or his family to the power of a horse stronger than himself to be lacking in common sense and wholly devoid of ordinary prudence, writes a Kentuckian to Harper's Weekly. I have driven one commonplace horse every other day for six years over the same road and then had him go crazy and try to kill himself and me because a leaf fluttered down in front of him. I have known scores of horses, apparently trustworthy, apparently creatures of routine, go wild and insane over equally regular and recurring phenomena. No amount of observation can tell when the brute will break out. One mare took two generations of children to school over the same quiet road and then in her nineteenth year went crazy because a rooster crowed alongside the road. She killed two of the children. If any one can tell me of one good reason why man should trust a horse, I should be glad to know.

The Value of Singing.

From the medical standpoint singing is a most important exercise both by virtue of its influence on the emotions, on the respiratory movements and on the development of the lungs. Nothing better shows the beneficial effect of singing in developing the chest and warding off the lung diseases than the great pulmonary development and freedom from pulmonary disease among professional singers. Their general health, moreover, is exceptionally good, and this is probably in a large measure attributable to the mere exercise of the calling. It is especially useful in defective chest development and in chronic heart disease. Provided the patient can sing with comfort there is no condition in which singing is contraindicated unless it be a tendency to tuberculosis or aneurismal hæmoptysis. It is scarcely necessary to say that the singer should be so clad as to allow absolute freedom of the chest movements, there should be no constriction of the neck or waist, the collar should be low and ample and the stays, if worn, ample and loose.

Mixed Metaphors.

A German lady in a town in Ventura county had a daughter who was her mother's pride. The mamma bears somewhat of a reputation as a Mrs. Malaprop and is also a prosperous merchant. On one occasion the daughter, who assists her mother in the store, was by dint of hard work among relatives and friends chosen as queen of a street carnival to be held in the town. Maternal pride ran riot in the elder woman's breast. To a friend she burst forth in this ecstatic strain:

"Oh, mein Mollie! She vas so peautiful as neffer vas! Dere vas no gerrel so peautiful as mein Mollie! Und she vas sooch a goot cook—mein gracious, she vas sooch a goot cook! Und she vas sooch a goot tressmaker! Oh, dere vas no gerrel like mein Mollie! Und she vas de best clerk vat I effer haf in mein shtare! Und she vas a goot musicianer! Oh, mein Mollie vas de greatest gerrel vat effer vas! She vas yust a jack of all rabbits!"—Los Angeles Herald.

Rocky Autograph Album.

Probably the oddest and most precious autograph album that has ever existed lies in an almost unknown corner of western New Mexico.

More than two centuries before our Saxon forefathers penetrated the desert of the southwest the Spanish pioneers, wandering through those lonely wilds, found a rock so noble and so remarkable, even in a country of wonderful stone monuments, that they called it "El Morro" (The Castle).

Wishing to leave some record for future generations, they traced with the points of their swords their names upon its rough surface. Those names are there, with dates of their inscription—in nearly every instance the early part of the seventeenth century.

Promising.

Landlord—In one word, when are you going to pay your arrears?

Hard Up Author—I will satisfy your demands as soon as I receive the money which the publisher will pay me if he accepts the novel I am going to send him as soon as the work is finished which I am about to commence when I have found a suitable subject and the necessary inspiration.

Paper of the Ancients.

The interior bark of trees was formerly used to write upon, and its Latin name (liber, a bark) seems to intimate that its use was as ancient as the art of writing itself. In one respect the bark was superior to the leaf. It could be rolled into a volume, while the leaf would crack if subjected to such a process.

The Unbridged Channel.

The teacher asked the boy in the geography class whose French grammar is the one bane of his life:

"What separates France from England?"

"The irregular verbs," answered the boy earnestly.

Dry.

Invalid—I understand it is quite dry out here?

Broncho William—Dry? Why, stranger, it's so dry here that the rain is wet only on one side.—New York Times.

The Safest Place In a Storm.

Every one is aware that it is not wise to seek a tree's shelter in a thunderstorm; but, if you must take refuge there, then climb to the topmost branches. It has been proved that the upper boughs of trees during a storm would be the safest position, and it is said that birds in the branches are seldom killed. When the tree is struck by lightning, it is the trunk which, presumably from its greater dryness, is a bad conductor and which therefore suffers the most.

DREAD SKIN DISEASE.

Steps Taken to Eradicate Elephantiasis in the Samoas.

Stanford, Cal., Sept. 1.—Dr. Vernon Lyman Kellogg, head of the department of entomology, who accompanied Dr. Jordan on his summer trip to Samoa, has returned to the university, bringing with him many specimens of sea and animal life to be added to the national museum at Washington. His most special work in Samoa, however, from a practical point of view, was his investigation of the fallaria, a wormlike animal living on mosquitos and producing in human kind the dread skin disease elephantiasis. Almost half the native population of Samoa are afflicted with this disease and at the suggestion of Captain Sebree, U. S. N., governor of the American islands, Dr. Kellogg has devised a plan looking to the removal of the scourge by preventing the use of infected water, etc., by the natives.

A PAIR TO DRAW TO

ARE WAKING UP

BRITONS BECOMING WEARY OF UNCLE SAM'S COMMERCIAL SUPREMACY.

RETALIATION IS THREATENED

Will Not Stand Indefinitely Being Shut Out by the American Tariff While Keeping Open House for American Traders in the United Kingdom. Government Stirred Up by Commercial and Colonial Discontent.

London, Sept. 1.—The approaching expiration of the time limit for the completion of the Atlantic shipping combine is arousing the British press to all sorts of speculation regarding J. Pierpont Morgan's ultimate plans as well as the government's scheme for dealing with the combination. The promised statement of the premier, A. J. Balfour, on the reassembling of parliament is awaited with intense interest. The statement has already been printed that the government plans are complete and that the authorities are ready to make an effective counter move against the American syndicate. Inquiries made by the Associated Press in the best informed quarters indicate that this announcement is not true. The government has had to deal with so many powerful and conflicting interests that it has not yet been able to definitely decide on a plan of action. In spite of the opposition to a general subsidy scheme, well informed persons consider this to be the most likely solution, on the lines of a generous distribution of government support, not in behalf of one, but of several companies. The form which such assistance will take is still under discussion, there being considerable opposition to straight subsidies. There is no doubt that Mr. Balfour's announcement will include a scheme for a direct fast Canadian service, in which the Canadian Pacific railroad will probably participate, but not as originally planned as sole promoter and beneficiary. The indications point more and more to the drawing together of the Atlantic lines outside of the Morgan combine. One of the alliances which may be earliest expected is a combination of the Allan line and Elder, Dempster & Co. The heads of the English lines are on the Atlantic outlook. Time is rather intensifying than allaying their jealousy of the American bid for the Atlantic than [illegible] has been so [illegible] stirred up that it will not [illegible] to allay the [illegible] and colonial discontent [illegible] in this connection it may be [illegible] the tariff discussions at the [illegible] colonial conference were [illegible] connected with the shipping situation. A leading shipowner and a [illegible] of the colonial secretary, [illegible] Chamberlain, said to a representative of the Associated Press:

"America must not think that the imperial government is going to leave the colonies at the mercy of the shipping or any other trust. The discontent is acute enough now in many quarters of the empire. While Great Britain does not want a commercial war with the United States she will not stand indefinitely being shut out by the American tariff wall while keeping open house for American traders in the United Kingdom.

"The question of retaliatory duties is not so improbable as so many people imagine. There is no reason why the British colonial markets should not be opened to British goods on a preferential basis. We have been asleep here in England for a long time, but when we wake up America had better look out."

Sir Christopher Furness, who has been referred to as the possible head of the English financial syndicate which is likely to purchase the Cunard fleet as the nucleus for a British shipping combine, hinted at similar possibilities in his speech before the steamship meeting at Manchester, but as he was addressing a public meeting he was not so outspoken as the leading shipowner quoted above.

RUMOR GIVEN CREDENCE.

Portuguese African Possessions Sold to Great Britain.

New York, Sept. 1.—One of the most interesting features of the slack season in London is a revival of the rumor anent Delagoa Bay, cables the Tribune correspondent at London. It is asserted that the purchase of the Portuguese possessions in East Africa will be announced when parliament meets and that it will be followed by German acquisition of a portion of them, in accordance with a secret convention with Great Britain. There is no direct confirmation of this story from an authentic source, but there is circumstantial evidence that leads close observers to credit the rumor. Lord Milner's recent visit to Lorenzo Marques never has been satisfactorily explained, nor have the proposed annexations of Transvaal territory to Natal any significance unless the intervening district adjacent to the Portuguese frontier can be added. Men versed in Africa affairs are predicting the speedy purchase of Portuguese territory and the extension of Natal northward and material compensation to Germany for the neutrality maintained during the Boer campaign.

Cable in Working Order.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 1.—News has been received via the steamer Cottage City that the cable between Skagway and Juneau is again in working order. Sergeant Bruck opened the cable for dispatches at noon on Aug. 25. The cable has given a great deal of trouble in the past but is said to be giving good service now and little trouble is anticipated in the future.

Politicians Meet.

Last Saturday was a busy day here politically. Nearly all of the democratic and populistic candidates for county offices met here to talk over the campaign and arrange for a united plan of action after the primaries.

The meeting was held in the parlors of the Hotel Markham and resulted in an endorsement of the action taken some time ago by the conference committees of the parties at a meeting held in Red Lake Falls. This was an agreement for both the democrats and populists to support certain candidates of each party for certain county offices. In this way it is estimated that the allied forces will again carry Red Lake county by a handsome majority.

Among those present were Messrs. Staples, Spurgeon, Morgan, Tarrant, Hanson, Kelly, Cernoosek, Lawson and Sotheran, of Thief River Falls, and Messrs. King, Gibeau, Jeffers, Swanson, Ford and Ducharme, of Red Lake Falls.

Death of Ed. Twing.

Edward Twing died at 6 o'clock last Thursday morning, at his home just north of St. Hilaire. He was 37 years of age and has been a resident of St. Hilaire for the past ten years. He was born at Westfield, in New York state, and came here in the summer of 1892 to take charge of the St. Anthony & Dakota elevator. In the January following he was married to Miss Mary Dainard and his widow and two sons, aged eight and six years, are left to mourn his untimely death. He was a member of the M. W. A. and carried insurance in that order for $1,000. The funeral occurred Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock under the auspices of the Woodmen, services being conducted by Rev. Mower at the Methodist church.

The large attendance at the funeral services testified to the high esteem in which Mr. Twing was held by the community, and the sincere sympathy of all with Mrs. Twing and her children in their sad bereavement.

St. Hilaire's Catholic Church.

Last Sunday Father Eloi, O. S. B., professor at St. John's University, Collegeville, Minn., held services here. He was much pleased to note the growth and progress of the congregation. At 4:00 p. m. Mrs. Geo. Luke was solemnly baptized after making a profession of faith, Father Ansgar, O. S. B., the pastor, officiating. Michael McAndress and Mrs. R. Fritz acted as sponsors. The ceremony was impressive and witnessed by many. On Monday morning two masses were read during which a large number of persons received Holy Communion. Next week the census of the Catholic population will be taken.

Cooling Apparatus for Homes.

Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, has recently secured a patent of his cooling apparatus for homes. At about the same expense required to heat a house in winter you can cool it in summer to any temperature desired. Besides cooling the air this machine renders it dry and healthful. With such a machine and golden grain belt beer you can make the hottest weather not only bearable, but exceedingly pleasant. Brewed from the purest barley malt and hops this beer is delicious and refreshing and should be in every home. Order of the nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Announcements of Candidates

REGISTER OF DEEDS.

I desire to announce to the voters of Red Lake county that I am a candidate for the nomination for register of deeds subject to the decision of the Peoples Party at the Primary Election to be held on September 16, 1902.

THOMAS A. CROMPE,

Republican Candidate For Office of Register of Deeds.

Thomas A. Crompe, republican candidate for Register of Deeds was born on a farm in St. Isidor, near Montreal, Canada, September 25th, 1859, where he continued to reside until he was fourteen years of age, attending French and English schools during the time he was not employed on the farm. In March, 1874, he removed with his parents to Fall River, Massachusetts, and for two years attended the public schools there, after which he was employed by the Prepples Brothers, shoe dealers, five years. In 1881 the Crompe family returned to Montreal, and the subject of this sketch took a thorough course in the Montreal Business College, subsequently going to work in a grocery store in that city, continuing there until 1884, when he removed with his parents to Minnesota, locating on a farm in Terrebonne, this county, where his parents still reside. The same year that he migrated to Minnesota he was married to Miss Eva Erigon, an estimable young lady of Montreal.

In Terrebonne he served six years as Town Clerk to the general satisfaction of all residents therein. In 1891 he secured employment with the Monarch Elevator Company as grain buyer and local agent, and removed with his family to Red Lake Falls, remaining in their employ two years, at the end of which time he entered into employment in a like capacity with the Red Lake Falls Milling Company, is still so employed, having been in continuous service.

Mr. Crompe is immensely popular with the people of Red Lake Falls, as is evidenced by the fact, that while never seeking office, his friends have often prevailed upon him to accept some public recognition. Brought about in that way, he served two years as assessor, two years ago he was elected to the position of director on the school board of his home city, was elected to the city council at the last city election and this year was elected school treasurer. His popularity is not confined to the city of Red Lake Falls, but extends to the citizens throughout the county generally, having an extensive acquaintance with the farmers by reason of his long service as a grain buyer, and everywhere and by everyone who knows him he is recognized for his honesty and accommodating manners.

Of excellent habits, attached to his family, consisting of his wife and seven children, he is charitably disposed and is never too busy to extend assistance to a neighbor in trouble or in need. Of a long record as a trusted servant, a large experience with the keeping of books and the conduct of business, his perfect honesty never called into question, he is eminently fitted by nature and training to fill the office to which his friends are determined to elect him—that of Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, to the credit of himself and the satisfaction of all our citizens.

Card of Thanks.

Through the columns of the SPECTATOR I wish to express my sincere thanks to my friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness during the illness and after the death of my husband, and particularly to the Woodmen and Royal Neighbors for their assistance.

THE EDITORS AFLOAT

Minnesota Scribes Sail the Big Lakes and Enjoy the Grand Scenery.

At the Two Soos They Have a Carriage Drive and Visit the Steel Plants---At Duluth They Were Wined and Dined---A Short Run to Mesabe Iron Range.

It may be set down as a foregone conclusion, that if the Minnesota editors plan a summer excursion, that all the details will be so carefully matured that the participants are sure to have a good time. Last year it was felt to be a duty to take in the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, and the party, numbering nearly three hundred people, had a most enjoyable ten days' outing.

This year's excursion was planned by the same executive committee, and was designed more directly as one of real recreation. The eight days' outing for 1902 was closed by the return of the party to St. Paul, on Thursday morning, the 21st, and in no respect has it been behind any of the former trips in genuine pleasure and recreation, and yet there has been sandwiched in a large amount of education and information, such as can only be obtained by a number acting as a unit.

The trip just accomplished this year was by railroad to Duluth, and thence through Lake Superior and Lake Huron to Sarnia, at the head of St. Clair river. The association had previously made two trips on these great international highways, one to Buffalo and return on the Northwest, and the other to Mackinac Island and return on the Northland. These were very agreeable, and the committee felt assured that another lake trip would be acceptable.

The original plan for this year's excursion was fixed for June, to take in the Georgian Bay, but politics and political conventions interfered so much with the prospective attendance that a postponement was reluctantly made. The next point was, as to the time when an excursion could be made, and it was unanimously agreed that the middle of August was the only time left for this year, and that the limit of accommodation would be one hundred, because of the earlier bookings for this, the most desirable month of the year. With the time fixed, and the number to be accommodated, it was determined that the lake starting point should be Duluth, and the new steamer Huronic, of the Northern Navigation Company Line, as the proper ship for our down trip, leaving Duluth on the afternoon of Tuesday, August 12.

Gathering of the Clans.

The editorial party was gathered at the Windsor Hotel, on Monday, the 11th, and by the courtesy of the Great Northern road, represented by General Passenger Agent F. I. Whitney, two of the company's largest passenger coaches were placed at our disposal, and attached to the Eastern Minnesota, leaving St. Paul at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday. Duly equipped with baggage and coupon books, the party was promptly on board, and the run was made on the usual schedule, arriving in time for dinner at the St. Louis Hotel.

The day was most delightful, and the short available time in Duluth was well employed; and at the advertised time of starting for the ship all were on deck, ready for the move. It may here be mentioned that the Northern Navigation Company is a Canadian institution, and the Huronic, after leaving Duluth, makes no stops except at Canadian ports. She is the largest passenger and freight steamship combined now on the lakes, entirely new, and in commission only since the middle of June. To give the reader some idea of the latest development of steamship construction for the Great Lakes, the following are the official dimensions as they appear in her certificate of building: S. S. Huronic is built of open hearth steel throughout and is 325 feet over all, 43 feet beam, and 27 feet moulded depth. Engines are of the triple expansion type, 26x42 and 70x42 inch stroke, steam being supplied by four Scotch boilers, 12 feet 6 inches in diameter by 12 feet long, at a pressure of 175 pounds per square inch. Horse-power 2,400, gross tonnage 3,330, net tonnage 2,212.

This new vessel has first-class accommodation of the newest and best design for two hundred and seventy saloon passengers, having a double tier of cabins with outside staterooms. The dining-room is forward and is built the full width of the lower saloon, thus making it very spacious, and is well lighted by large windows, affording a view of the scenery and surroundings. It is finished in natural quartered oak and has a seating capacity for 150 people.

On the Waves.

In starting from Duluth we found that the Huronic had brought up a large party from Sarnia for the round trip, and altogether there were about 300 passengers aboard. The weather continued fine for the whole of our down trip, just as delightful as the most dyspeptic grumbler could wish for. At the call for the first meal on the Huronic we were notified that watches should be set one hour ahead, as all the meals would be served on eastern time. This was tough on the editors, who were accustomed to have meals at seven or eight o'clock, that they must change their habits for a week and get up at six o'clock in the morning.

Everybody was up bright and early on Wednesday morning to see the outlines of Pie Island and the approach into Port Arthur, which was reached at six o'clock by the new time. The delay here was for two hours, giving our party plenty of time to stroll up into the town and note the difference from our own American towns.

There is a very heavy freight traffic at this port and at Fort William, three miles up the Kaministiqua river, where several large elevators have been constructed to handle the Canadian wheat and oats from Manitoba and the far west provinces, and coal docks for handling coal into Manitoba, the transportation all controlled by the Canadian Pacific Railway. A new railway, the Canadian Northern, is being built from Fort William to Winnipeg, opening up a large territory for settlement, and will give access by rail to the Rainy river country.

This road will be opened up for travel during the coming month, and is said to be the picturesque route to Winnipeg, and will go almost in sight of Kakabeka Falls, second only in extent to Niagara. These falls are located about 28 miles from Fort William. This line of steamers seems to do a heavy freight business, loading at Sarnia all classes of merchandise from Ontario and other parts of Canada, and from the United States, and discharging the same at Port Arthur and Fort William, and reloading the products brought in by rail, carrying the same via Duluth to Sarnia.

The trip from Port Arthur down through the lake was a rare experience of beauty and enjoyment, just such a day as could not have been improved if made to special order. The running time from Port Arthur to the Soo is about twenty hours, and timed so as to reach the latter about six o'clock in the morning, leaving ample time for watching the operation of locking steamers and other vessels through.

At the Two Soos.

We were scheduled for a visit to the important industries at the Soo on our return trip, and therefore were glad to get started down the St. Mary river, the connecting link between the two lakes, Huron and Superior. Can it be possible to say anything too extravagant of the pleasure of this day's journey, with the bright sunshine overhead, the life-invigorating air, the peaceful scenic beauty, the gentle motion of the ship, the delightful company, the steady stream of passing ships—what more need we say, it was a perfect day of enjoyment with a fitting climax, the entrance into the harbor at Mackinac Island, the patriotic thrill at the sight of the three United States training ships, with the sailors lined on deck at attention, the grand salute fired in honor of the occasion of the first appearance of our beautiful ship in the harbor, the gathering of hundreds of citizens on the dock to extend greetings—these were sights to make the heart joyful. And then the two hours' drive, taking in the beauty sights of the island. Many of our party would have been glad to remain on the island waiting our return, but as this visit was at the pressing request of the committee, the return boat could not be expected to make a change from their regular course, as this line of steamers is not scheduled for the route by way of Mackinac.

Leaving the island about six o'clock in the evening, we had a continuance of the enchanting weather of the day, and the evening was closed by one of the most pleasant incidents of the trip by vocal concert gotten up by Messrs. Whitney and Meyst, and was in reality a first-class affair, interspersed with some excellent recitations. The concert was not confined to the editorial party, and some of the finest numbers were contributions from the other passengers, including two numbers from the boat's male quartet. And, by the way, it is worthy of remark that the table waiters are students from colleges and universities, who have thus the opportunity of a splendid vacation, and at the same time can earn money towards their educational expenses. A contribution was taken up at the close of the concert in aid of the Collingwood marine hospital, whose management was stated to be in the captain's wife as president of the board. The amount realized was $22.50.

After a good night's rest, our party found the steamer well on its course, and another choice day in store, with a bright sunshine, a gentle breeze and exhilarating air to make promenading most enjoyable, with the Michigan shore in sight about five miles distant, and the stream of boats passing up.

At ten o'clock Friday morning we were at Sarnia, having traveled a distance of 360 miles in Lake Superior and 250 miles in Lake Huron during two and a half days of perfect weather. Sarnia, our stopping point, is at the head of St. Clair river, which connects Huron with Lake Erie at Detroit, sixty miles distant, and has a population of about 15,000. Port Huron, on the American side, has a population of about twenty thousand.

Sarnia's Greeting.

The program for the editorial party was to dine at the Hotel Vendome, and a go-as-you-please until boat time to start on the return; but the officials of Sarnia were determined to show the same generous consideration that Minnesota editors had received on other occasions from the large-hearted Canadians, so that a committee, consisting of Wm. Askin, assistant manager of the Northern Navigation Company; John Boyd, agent of the Grand Trunk Railway; W. O. Wood, superintendent of the Rapid Railway Company; and H. C. McMorren, president of the Port Huron and Sarnia Ferry Company, met us on arrival, and announced that the particular elephant which they had on exhibition was the Sarnia tunnel under the St. Clair river, built for the Grand Trunk System, and that they had engaged a special train and two palatial observation coal cars, and the right-of-way through the tunnel to the American side, thence by trolley cars through the principal streets of Port Huron, and by the steam ferry across the river to Sarnia. These were interesting experiences which are only secured by such bodies of citizens as are represented through such progressive institutions as the Minnesota Editorial Association.

To give the reader an idea of the commerce of the Lakes which passes up and down the St. Clair river, we were assured that by exact computation there was a ship passing up or down equal to every seven minutes of time for the whole season of navigation. Just think for one moment, two hundred and five ships every twenty-four hours during two-thirds of the year.

The distinct feature of going through the tunnel came off with due eclat. Starting out with a special of two regular coaches, the party was transported to the mouth of the tunnel, where two coal cars were in waiting. These were provided with standing room, and the locomotive was placed in the rear with a brilliant head-light, and the cars were thus pushed forward at a moderate pace, the tunnel being entirely free from smoke, so far as the comfort of our party was concerned. The tunnel is 2¼ miles long, including the approaches on either side, and is a wonder of mechanical engineering and of modern necessity, as the requisite approaches on each side of the river and the ponderous ferry boats necessary to convey a modern train over a river of a half a mile wide with two hundred modern ships passing to and fro daily, could not be accomplished without great danger of daily accidents.

The St. Clair tunnel was commenced in September, 1888, and completed for freight traffic in October, 1891, and for passenger service in December, 1891. It is the longest submarine tunnel in the world. The tunnel is an iron tube 19 feet 10 inches in diameter. Total weight of iron in the tunnel is 50,000,000 pounds. The tunnel cost $2,700,000. 4,000 cars can be hauled through it in one day. It is termed the "link that binds two great nations." Over the tunnel flows the waters of the Great Lakes which tumble over Niagara Falls and eventually reach the Atlantic as the majestic St. Lawrence.

Port Huron's Pleasantries.

Port Huron is a beautiful little city, but the citizens were probably not aware of the distinguished party which was being piloted through their streets by their neighbors on the other side, as no literature was offered, nor any suggestion that the city was a rival for such trade as might come from their position at the head of a river carrying more produce than all the shipping of two thousand miles of the Atlantic coast.

The afternoon was thus very pleasantly spent, and at five o'clock we were gathered on the Steamer United Empire, homeward bound. We found this ship to be not so large as the Huronic, but for its day a first-class vessel. The editorial party had every accommodation necessary, and barring the unpleasant experience of about six hours of the first evening out, with fairly strong wind, no storm, but a moderately rough sea, and probably starting up too closely on the evening dinner, giving no opportunity for moving about or exercise (only one of the occasional incidents to the lake travel), there was a slight disposition to sea-sickness, so-called, not so serious, however, but nearly every one reported for the morning meal.

Saturday was ideal, just cool enough to enjoy the upper deck, and take in all the enchanting views of the St. Mary's river. At five o'clock Saturday evening we were again at the Soo. Here we were taken charge of by the representatives of the city council and W. B. Rosevear, representative of the Clergue interests at the Soo. A carriage drive on the Michigan side, viewing the business and residence streets, including a sight of Fort Brady, and the government buildings, and the great water power canal of the Michigan Lake Superior Company, 100 feet wide, 22 feet deep, and 2¼ miles long, from Lake Superior to St. Mary's river below the rapids, and the mammoth power house, 1,368 feet long, with capacity for 320 turbines, capable of transmitting over 50,000 horse-power of electricity. The canal was finished a few days before our arrival at the Soo, and the water was started in on the day that we were there, so that the inauguration of this great enterprise may be dated from the date of our 1902 excursion.

At the end of the carriage drive, Mr. Rosevear took the entire charge, and escorted the party to the new ferry boat Fortune, which had also been put into commission on that day, and we were quickly taken to the Canadian Soo, landing at the pulp mill dock. It was regretted that the pulp mills were not open, but it was after six o'clock on Saturday night. On leaving the dock a train was in readiness to convey the party to the Algoma Iron Works, a mile or so distant. These works run day and night, starting with pig iron furnaces, changing the molten iron into Bessemer steel, then casting into ingots or moulds, then allowed to cool, and afterwards roasted in hot furnaces until soft and bright red-hot through, picked up with giant pincers on a traveling crane, carried forward to the rolls, a concrete mass about eight feet long, eight inches wide and six inches or more thick, in through one roll, elongating, and back through another, each time lengthening out like a huge anaconda, until finally, every six minutes, out comes a perfect railroad rail, forty, fifty, sixty feet long, measured to a gauge, the ends sawed smooth and set out to cool.

The Big Pulp Mills.

This is only the outgrowth of necessity, as Mr. Rosevear explained: His company, or rather the Clergue interests, at first became interested in paper pulp, and some machinery was required that could not be manufactured in any machine shop then in the country; necessity forced the erection of a machine shop; so from one thing to another, the Clergue interests now own the land on which the wood grows necessary for their pulp mills, and for the manufacture of charcoal for their blast furnaces, the iron ore for conversion into pig iron, the railroads and cars necessary for transportation, the manufacture of the iron into steel, and the manufacture of the steel into all the necessary tools for the manufacture of the iron rails, the cars, and the locomotives, and finally the steamships necessary to convey their products to market.

But in addition to all this, they propose to furnish all the railroad iron for all the railroads to be built in Canada, and successfully outwit Yankee ingenuity. Mr. Rosevear has the title of general traffic manager, and he certainly has enough interests to keep one man busy. There is no use of bragging of Yankee energy alongside of the development of the Clergue interests, and we are glad that this general traffic manager gave us the opportunity to compare Canadian push and enterprise with our boasted Yankee superiority. Returning from this interesting sight, we were taken back on the boat to our ship. While going over, Mr. Rosevear was invited to describe the great interests which he represented, which he did in a modest manner, and we regret now that no notes were taken of his remarks, as dependence was placed upon the receiving of some special statistics which at this writing have not come to hand.

The return trip to Port Arthur was pleasant, but not so ideal as the down trip, but with ordinary summer wraps, life on the upper deck was in every way enjoyable. On Sunday afternoon, we had a light rain and some increasing wind, and whitecaps, but we were soon sheltered by the numerous islands near the approach to Port Arthur, so that we entered that port at nine o'clock in the evening. We were informed that the open lake had been quite rough during the night. We were detained at Port Arthur and Fort William for twenty-four hours, not on account of the rain or storm, but to unload and load up merchandise. Monday was unpleasantly wet at Fort William, but not enough to prevent the party from exploring the town. By evening the storm was over, and a delightful trip brought us to Duluth, practically one day behind our scheduled time.

As the delay had been thoroughly canvassed before coming into port, three-fourths of the party voted to remain over one day for the purpose of visiting the mines at Eveleth.

Two Harbors' Famous Ore Docks.

On our arrival at Duluth, and before leaving the dock, we were informed that immediately after dinner a special train was at our disposal to see the ore docks at Two Harbors and incidentally to be the guests of the Commercial Club of that progressive little city. The leading spirits in this bit of enterprise to get the editors to spend an afternoon in Two Harbors were Mr. James Coggswell, the editor of the Two Harbors Iron News, and Hon. Joseph Miller, railroad and warehouse commissioner, and who had the foresight to prepare a small folder showing what they had to recommend their town. We regret that space forbids the publication in detail, but a few facts must be given.

Two Harbors is the greatest iron ore shipping port in the world, having shipped up to this time nearly thirty-five million gross tons of iron ore, and will this year ship out altogether about six million tons.

There are five ore docks, with over two miles of loading frontage. Last year there were 1,053 cargoes sent out, an average of 4,626 gross tons to the cargo. The capacity of the docks is equal to 168,000 tons of ore, and 300 men are required in and about the docks. The average shipping season is nine months. The average train load from the mines is 2,000 gross tons, 2,240 pounds, the wooden cars holding 30 tons, the steel cars holding 50 tons. One schooner alone cleared from Two Harbors August 12th with 7,653 gross tons, equivalent to 8,571 common tons. Two Harbors has all the modern public necessities, such as water, sanitary, electric light and telephones, is the county seat of Lake county, has a good commercial club, and a public library, and a population of 3,500 well-to-do citizens. After viewing the docks, and noting the manner of loading ore into vessels, similar to loading grain from elevators, the ladies of the party were taken in charge by Mrs. Coggswell and other ladies of Two Harbors, whose names we have failed to obtain, and were handsomely entertained, each lady receiving a small souvenir to remember the occasion.

The gentlemen of the party were taken care of by the Commercial Club at their rooms, where a splendid lunch was served. About five o'clock the party started for the return to Duluth. The train was in charge of Conductor Wm. Weese and Engineer D. G. Hayes.

The citizens of Duluth, through their Commercial Club, had given our party notice that a banquet was on the program for Tuesday evening, the exercises to commence at nine o'clock. The banquet was served at the St. Louis Hotel, and about an equal number of prominent citizens of the city sat down with the editorial party, with Mayor T. W. Hugo acting as toastmaster. Mr. A. L. Preston, secretary of the Commercial Club, issued the menu, in the shape of a four-page newspaper, full of bright thoughts. The address of welcome was given by Mayor Hugo in his usual happy style, in which he did great credit to the city of Duluth.

The old veteran editor, R. C. Mitchell, of the Duluth Tribunal, seconded the mayor's welcome on behalf of the Press, and the response was made by Joseph Leicht, the president of the association. There were other addresses from Senator C. O. Baldwin, on "Duluth, its present and future;" by P. V. Collins, of the Northwestern Agriculturist, on "What the editors have seen and learned on their trip;" and from H. P. Hall, on "The objects of the Association." There were several fine musical numbers, besides the orchestra.

The banquet in every sense was a complete success, and the editors take great pleasure in acknowledging their appreciation of the courtesies received.

On the Iron Range.

Promptly at 8:30 Wednesday morning, the entire party was on hand for the excursion to the Iron Range, which was tendered by the Duluth & Iron Range, and the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern railroads. The only point that the editors could reach successfully was Eveleth, where the village authorities were prepared to give us entertainment. The party arrived at Eveleth at twelve o'clock, and after dinner were escorted to the big Fayall mine, where the operation of surface mining was visible.

This mine is credited with the largest output of any one mine on the range, and it is estimated that six million tons of ore will be marketed during the present year. The ore in this mine is what is called soft ore, separating into granules, and, as we understand it, can be scooped up like coal in the coal docks, with an occasional drilling to loosen sections of the ore. In connection with this surface mining, there is also a large amount of underground tunnelling and mining, the ore being brought up on an incline railroad, from a depth of two or three hundred feet.

The return to Duluth was made in good season, and at eleven o'clock Wednesday night, the excursionists were en route to St. Paul, where one of the most enjoyable excursions that has ever been projected ended on Thursday morning.

The success and pleasure of large excursions depends largely upon the good will of the many officials entrusted with the comfort of the party, and on this occasion the association must be congratulated on the many courtesies received. We can only give the names of a few of the men who made special effort for a good time for the editors:

Wm. Askin, assistant manager Northwest Transportation Company, Sarnia.

J. H. Runnings, city passenger and ticket agent Great Northern Railway, Duluth.

Albert L. Preston, secretary of the Commercial Club, Duluth.

Joseph G. Miller, railroad and warehouse commissioner, Two Harbors.

James Coggswell, editor of Two Harbors Iron News.

Odin Haldin, auditor of St. Louis county, Duluth.

H. C. Garrott, publisher of the Eveleth Mining News.

W. B. Rosevear, general traffic manager of Clergue interest, at the Soo.

The St. Paul Dispatch, and Minneapolis Journal, for copies of the papers sent to different points on our route.

James A. Butchart, of the Hotel St. Louis, for the hearty cheer and excellent service given the members.

Conductor George Smith and Engineer Ira W. Foote, of the special train to Eveleth, who also gave the party a taste of fast speed on the return trip, or three miles in 128 seconds.

Among the incidents of the Eveleth trip was the election of Secretary Preston, of the Duluth Commercial Club, as an honorary member of the Editorial Association; also the passage of a resolution favoring the opening of a college of mines in connection with the State University.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER

Cured by Pe-ru-na of Systemic Catarrh.

An Interesting Letter From Mrs. M. K. Bousch, of Richmond, and Her Little Daughter, Pearl.

MISS PEARL BOUSCH

MRS M. K. BOUSCH

Mrs. M. K. Bousch, Richmond, Va., writes:

"I had catarrh all through my system for two years and could get no relief. I was advised to try Peruna, and I have taken five bottles of it and am well and better now than I have been for years. I can advise any one who has catarrh of any part of the body to take Peruna. My little girl, who is eleven years old had catarrh, but was cured by Peruna. Before I began to take Peruna I was sick all the time, but now I am entirely cured and all praise is due Peruna.---Mrs. M. K. Bousch.

Miss Pearl Bousch writes: "When I was a baby I contracted catarrh, and was doctored by several good physicians, but none did me any good. My mother was taking Peruna at the time and gave some of it to me, and I soon began to improve, and am now well and fat as a little pig. I am twelve years old. The doctors told mother I had the consumption, but it was only catarrh." —Miss Pearl Bousch.

It is no longer a question as to whether Peruna can be relied on to cure all such cases. During the many years in which Peruna has been put to test in all forms and stages of acute and chronic catarrh no one year has put this remedy to greater test than the past year.

Peruna is the acknowledged catarrh remedy of the age. Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Peruna, has written a book on the phases of catarrh peculiar to women, entitled, "Health and Beauty." It will be sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

CRAZE FOR MARCH MUSIC.

Sousa Says Popular Music Is in Demand Everywhere—Rag Time in Europe.

"All over the world," said Bandmaster Sousa, "nothing goes like popular music. I can 'size up' my audience, as a general thing, before I have finished my second number. I gave them Wagner at Berlin. They liked it. But when—as an encore—I played one of my own marches, or an American popular melody, the applause was tremendous. In Sorrento, on the Fourth of July, I heard an Italian band play 'John Brown's Body,' and they played it in far less ragged fashion than they did one of my own marches, a few moments later.

"Most of our national melodies have been derived from foreign sources, but 'John Brown's Body' and 'Marching Through Georgia' have not. 'Glory, Hallelujah' originated in a Sunday school hymn in Charleston, S. C. Lord Kitchener's troops sang it in the Soudan. It will be sung as long as men march to war to military music."—

The News ❧ Of the Week

Washington Notes.

According to the military commanders all the troops will be withdrawn from China next spring.

The monthly statement of the coinage executed at the mints of the United States during August shows a total of $10,487,110.

The monthly statement of the government's receipts and expenditures shows that for the month of August the total receipts were $48,605,812 and expenditures were $43,113,610, leaving a surplus for the month of $5,492,202.

The monthly circulation statement issued by the controller of the currency shows that at the close of business Aug. 30, 1902, the total circulation of national bank notes was $361,282,691, an increase for the year of $3,863,336, and an increase for the month of $2,298,507. The amount of United States registered bonds on deposit to secure circulating notes was $322,941,680, and to secure public deposits, $124,667,150.

Accidental Happenings.

An explosion occurred on board the submarine boat Le Francais at Cherbourg. Several men were injured.

A spark fell into a keg of powder on the coal miners' float at Vincennes, Ind., and three men were badly burned by the explosion.

Twelve loaded freight cars on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad went through a bridge near Kemper, Ind., and three men were badly burned under the wreckage.

By the collapse of a temporary stand at the horse show at Denver, 200 persons, prominent Denver society people, occupying the boxes, were precipitated a distance of five feet. Three were seriously hurt and many were slightly injured.

An engine with six coaches filled with negroes on an excursion train coming to Birmingham from Greenville, Miss., was wrecked at Berry, Ala. H. M. Dudley, trainmaster, and twenty-five negro passengers were killed outright, and twenty-five more were fatally hurt. Engineer Cook, white, was fatally hurt. Doctors from all along the line were sent to the scene.

People Talked About.

Representative Reese C. De Graffenreid of Texas died of apoplexy at the Riggs house in Washington.

James Ellegood of Wicomico county was nominated for congress by the Democrats of the First Maryland district.

Lewis C. Baker of Whitewater, Wis., was nominated for congress by the First Wisconsin district Democratic convention.

Ernest Gantt, an attorney of Mexico, Mo., has been appointed claim agent for the entire system of the Chicago & Alton railroad.

Thomas Elliott, a prominent retired lumberman and a pioneer of Western Wisconsin, died at La Crosse, Wis, aged seventy-six.

H. H. Dickinson of Buffalo has been elected supreme receiver of the A. O. U. W. at the meeting of the supreme officers of the order held in Kansas City to succeed the late John J. Acker of Albany, N. Y.

David Gossard died in Hagerstown, Md., aged seventy-five years. He was twice married and the father of twenty-four children, twenty of whom are living. He is also survived by eighty grandchildren and eleven great grandchildren.

Judge Albert H. Horton, ex-chief justice of Kansas, died at his home in Topeka, Kan., after a long illness. Judge Horton was taken ill with pneumonia eight months ago. He recovered but the disease left a pulmonary affection.

Sins and Sinners.

Richard Williamson, colliery watchman, was beaten by strikers and left for dead at Scranton, Pa., but will recover.

A negro named Hog Wilson was hanged near Stephens, Ark., by a party of men. Wilson attempted a criminal assault on a young lady.

Sunday morning three American bandits held up the international express on the Sonora railroad three miles from Hermosillo. The express messenger shot them and they got nothing.

Peter Mortenson of Salt Lake, Utah, slayer of J. R. Hay, was sentenced to die Oct. 17. The laws of Utah give condemned murderers the privilege of choosing between hanging and shooting, and Mortenson decided to be shot.

George J. Barrett, who committed suicide at Springfield, Ill., has been receiver of the Springfield City Savings and Loan association. A few days ago the auditor examined the books, finding the association sound, but since July 1 the books showed errors and tangles.

The Montana state board of pardons, on recommendation of Gov. J. K. Toole, has granted a pardon to Henry E. Clark, whose real name is Emil Puggelies. He has been imprisoned for twelve years, his sentence being forty years. He was the outlaw who, with the famous "female highwayman," perpetrated many holdups before being captured.

Foreign Notes.

Professor Virchow, the famous scientist, appears to be near an end.

Hugo Scholtz, an engineer, attempted to throw a bomb into the carriage of Max Von Outmoun, a coal mine magnate, at Vienna, but it fell short of its mark and blew the would-be assassin to pieces.

The Vatican asserts that it has received assurance that President Loubet will not infringe on the pope's order that no Catholic ruler shall visit the Quirinal, as it was reported the French president would do shortly.

A parliamentary paper, reviewing the Boer war, shows that England employed 17,559 officers and 430,876 men in South Africa from the beginning to the end of the struggle. Of this number, 718 officers and 5,256 men were killed, 1,861 officers and 20,578 soldiers wounded, and 554 officers and 15,616 men died of wounds and disease.

Reports from St. Petersburg state that the czarina has given premature birth to a child. Her condition is not serious.

Nineteen Turks and twenty Bulgarians, including Captain Petroff, were killed in an encounter near Drekki.

A general strike movement has begun at Florence, and the metalworkers, printers, cigarmakers and joiners are already out.

Several shocks of earthquake were experienced at Gubbio, in the province of Perugia, Italy. A number of houses were destroyed, three persons were killed and many were injured.

It is reported that the owners of the American coal mines are still determined to attempt to capture the European markets. It is said that a syndicate of American and French capitalists is building a fleet of ships.

The lack of working harmony between the executive and the Cuban congress is now a matter of general discussion. It is apparent that President Palma cannot count on a majority either in house or senate.

A Manila correspondent of the Frankfort Zeitung says: "No other nation than the United States would have the patience to meet the stubborn resistance of the Filipinos in Samar with such humanity as, on the whole, has been the case."

President Roosevelt's speech on Monroeism has caused widespread attention at Vienna. The Neu Freie Presse thinks it was directed chiefly against Great Britain, and that it sounds like an answer to the conference of the colonial premiers.

A telegram from Larissa, Greece, reports an encounter between a detachment of Turkish troops and a band of thirty-five Bulgarians under Capt. Petroff, near Drekki. Nineteen Turks and twenty Bulgarians, the latter including Capt. Petroff, were killed.

Italy, India, Denmark and Siam have placed orders to the amount of nearly $1,500,000 for locomotives in Germany according to a report made public at the state department from United States Consul Langer at Solingen.

The rioting which occurred at Agram, Austria, Sunday, in connection with a demonstration on the part of the Croatian students against the Servian inhabitants, during which the police charged with drawn swords and many persons were wounded, was renewed Sunday evening. It was only quelled on Monday after severe military measures.

Otherwise.

Arkansas went democratic by 35,000. Seven democratic congressmen were elected.

The $500,000,000 meat trust may fall through, some of the firms balking at the last moment.

Cardinal Gibbons is ill of kidney troubles and some of the doctors are anxious for an operation.

President Ogden, of the civil service commission, is investigating the scandal of the sale in advance at New York of copies of questions prepared for the public examination. There were 1,200 candidates and the questions which were to be asked were peddled around at $50 a set.

WILL QUIT ISLAND

ENTIRE NORTHERN PART OF MARTINIQUE WILL BE EVACUATED.

FRANCE HAS THUS DECIDED

NUMBER OF DEATHS SINCE AUG. 30 ESTIMATED AT FIFTEEN HUNDRED.

BELIEVE ISLAND IS DOOMED

TOTAL DESTRUCTION OF MARTINIQUE IS PREDICTED—PANIC PREVAILS.

Paris, Sept. 6.—The government has decided that the entire northern part of the island of Martinique shall be evacuated. M. Doumergue, the minister for the colonies, states that the reconstruction of the island will depend entirely on the subsidence of the volcano.

A cable dispatch from the island of Guadaloupe announces the arrival of the French cruiser Suchet at Basse Terre, capital of Guadaloupe, and says that she reports that calm has been completely restored in Martinique.

The loss of 2,000 lives through the recent outbreaks of Mont Pelee referred to the deaths since Aug. 30, and not to the loss of life resulting from the reported outbreak of Sept. 3.

Awful Explosion of Soufriere.

Castries, St. Lucia, Sept. 6. — The eruption of Mont Pelee on Sept. 3 was not remarkable, but there was a terrific explosion from La Soufriere Sept. 3. The captain of the steamer Savan, now here, confirming the report, said that the vessel ran into dense clouds of dust when twenty miles southwest of St. Vincent at 2 o'clock in the morning of Wednesday. Absolute darkness prevailed soon afterward, and he changed his course to due west in order to avoid the ashes which were falling thick. The first officer could not see the captain two feet away, and only knew him by his voice. They did not see the sun until about 10 a. m. the same day.

The steamer Yare further reports that several more valuable plantations were destroyed at the time of the recent outbreak in addition to the townships referred to in previous dispatches, and adds that the anxiety and dejection of the surviving population is general.

Fifteen Hundred Were Killed.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The state department has received the following cablegram from United States Consul Jewell, at Fort-de-France, relative to the latest eruptions of Mont Pelee:

"Two violent eruptions of Mont Pelee, Aug. 30, destroying village of Moyne Rouge, Ajoupo Bouilloon, devastating area including Parnasse Mourne, Carbet, Morne Bourdon heights. Estimated 1,500 killed; many injured."

Many Fear for Martinique.

New York, Sept. 6.—It is generally believed that the island of Martinique is doomed to total destruction, and the fear is that when the catastrophe comes Guadaloupe will be visited by an all-destructive tidal wave, cables the Point-a-Pitre, Guadaloupe, correspondent of the Herald. Business is absolutely at a standstill. Few shops are open, and if it were not for the efforts of a small number of more valiant souls, hundreds would starve to death here because of their fear of a more terrible death.

ROUTED THE BANDITS.

Fanatical Filipino Leader Attacks a Town in Luzon.

Manila, Sept. 6.—Rios, a fanatical leader of the irreconcilable natives in the province of Tayabas, Luzon, attacked the town of Laguimanoc Sept. 3 at the head of thirty riflemen and 150 men armed with bolos. The band wantonly killed two women and one girl and wounded several other persons. A detachment of the native constabulary arrived unexpectedly at Laguimanoc while Rios' men were still there. They attacked and routed the bandits, killing several of Rios' followers, and have rounded up 700 men, many of whom are suspected of complicity in the attack. The guilty ones among the 700 men will be picked out and the remainder set at liberty. One of Rios' lieutenants who was captured said Rios was a direct descendant of God and that it was impossible for man to injure him. The constabulary have also captured one of Rios' mountain strongholds. Four detachments of constabulary are now following the main band of the outlaws.

BANK WRECKED BY DYNAMITE.

Robbers Hold Citizens at Bay and Escape With Little Money.

Lagrange, Ind., Sept. 6.—The Bank of Fremont, Steuben county, Ind., was entered by burglars early yesterday and the vaults and front of the building was completely wrecked by four charges of dynamite. The noise of the explosion awakened people living near, but they were met by armed men and at the points of revolvers were made to stay in their homes. A large amount of currency was in the safe, but the robbers overlooked the greater portion of it. When the robbers finished their work they entered carriages, driving north from the village toward the Michigan State line. There were six men in the gang.

Wrecked by Mob of Strikers.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 6.—The house of Lawrence Tarwoski, a non-union mineworker at Hudson, six miles north of here, was wrecked by a mob. His wife, who was alone, fled in terror from the place.

They Both Drown.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Sept. 6.—George Cerny, seven years old, was drowned in a mill race here last night. William Sutton, aged thirty-five, attempted to rescue the boy and also perished.

WAVES WASH OVER THEM.

Burial of Two at Sea Ends a Guilty Romance.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—At the bottom of the Atlantic ocean, a thousand miles off the coast of South America, lie the bodies of Otto M. Thumler and Mrs. Antoinette Young, wrapped in heavy tarpaulin and weighted down with iron. Their tragic fate marks the end of a brilliant career, the close of an unhappy romance, and leaves a sorrowing wife in Chicago to mourn for a husband who had proved untrue. Otto M. Thumler and the woman who passed as his wife were stricken with a strange disease resembling yellow fever while on board a steamer called the St. Nicholas, en route from Brazil to Portugal. They died within five hours of each other. Mrs. Thumler in Chicago knew that there was another woman who stood between them, but she did not know the full extent of her husband's perfidy until there came an unsigned cablegram to Bauer & Black, dated at Lisbon, and saying:

"Otto Thumler and wife died same day on the St. Nicholas and were buried at sea."

ELOPE ON A HANDCAR.

New Jersey Couple Pump Their Way Out of Reach of Angry Husband.

Washington, Sept. 6.—Out of Jersey have come many tales of the cunning of eloping couples, but none in truth or melodrama fit to be written on the same page with the adventure of George Stafford and Margaret Frack, who took flight on a Lackawanna handcar and pumped their way out of reach of the injured husband. In Wharton lives Oliver Frack, who is fifty years old, respected by his fellow townsmen. Though his hair is well mixed with gray, he was young enough to win a girl of twenty, and he married her six months ago. Only a month ago George Stafford came to live in Wharton. He is an athletic young fellow from Ohio, college-bred, who got a place in the mine company's office and passed the Frack house several times a day. Mrs Frack generally was on the veranda. Mr. Frack was toiling in the mines. The result was a flirtation, an elopement, arrest, forgiveness and a second elopement.

RAVAGES OF THE MISSOURI.

Erratic Stream Threatens to Make a New Channel.

St. Joseph, Sept. 6. — The ravages of the Missouri river just north of this city on large tracts of fertile bottom lands has reached such an alarming stage that a fleet of government steamers and barges has been brought into requisition for immediate action against the erratic currents. A sand bar is forming in such a manner that the main channel of the Missouri river at this point is being diverted to the Kansas side. The government engineers say if this continues the river will eventually cut a new channel, leaving St. Joseph with a steel railway bridge costing half a million dollars, high and dry.

LOGAN IS TURNED OVER.

Alleged Robber of Great Northern Train Now in Federal Custody.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 6.—Harvey Logan, alias Kid Curry, the alleged ringleader in the Great Northern train robbery, in which $40,000 worth of unsigned Montana bank bills were stolen, yesterday was turned over to the federal authorities, Judge Sneed of the circuit court ruling that the United States authorities be given concurrent jurisdiction of Logan under an agreement that they would not take him out of the state for trial. Logan can be tried for having unsigned bank notes in his possession and on the charge of having forged the names of bank officials to them.

EXPLOSION IN A CHURCH.

Several Persons Reported to Have Been Killed.

London, Sept. 6.—A special dispatch from Naples says the entrance of a lamplighter into the sacristy of the Church of Santa Lucia was followed by a terrible explosion, caused by escaping gas. A panic ensued, and people in the church rushed to the doors. A portion of the massive roof was blown off and the lamplighter was killed. Several persons were buried in the debris. It is reported that others were killed by falling debris.

STAGE TRAGEDY.

Real Murder Instead of the Imitation in the Play.

New York, Sept. 6.—Julia Pakey, an actress, shot Julius Bardor on the stage. The couple had been engaged, but Bardor's attentions had waned and he had given up his fiancee. Julia had to shoot Julius, who acted as her sweetheart. Bullets were placed in the revolver instead of blank cartridges with fatal results. Afterwards Julia Pakey committed suicide by opening her veins.

Importing Coal for Schools.

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—The public schools of this city are to be heated during the coming winter with coal imported from Europe and brought here in tramp steamers sailing under the British flag. This is the first time in the history of this city that the public schools have been compelled to secure fuel from outside the country.

State Soldiers Mustered In.

Whitewood, S. D., Sept. 6.—The new militia organization at Whitewood has been mustered in as Company K of the Second regiment, South Dakota State guard. The officers are Robert V. Carr, captain; F. M. Bonniwell, first lieutenant, and Alexander Blundell, second lieutenant. The muster roll contains forty names.

Is Charged With Murder.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 6.—Thomas Lewis, aged twenty-eight and unmarried, a miner living in Marquisville, has been arrested charged with the murder of sixteen-year-old Lena Peterson on April 13 last.

Boy Accidentally Killed.

Lake Preston, S. D., Sept. 6. — Johnnie Rask, eight years old, son of a farmer residing near here, was shot and instantly killed by his sister, whom he told the gun was not loaded.

OFF TO THE SOUTH

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT STARTS ON TRIP TO LAND OF DIXIE.

HE IS SLIGHTLY DISFIGURED

TELLS THE STORY OF HIS PROVIDENTIAL ESCAPE IN PITTSFIELD.

RULERS SEND CONGRATULATIONS

EXPRESSING PLEASURE AT HIS ESCAPE FROM SERIOUS INJURY.

Washington, Sept. 6. — Smilingly bowing his acknowledgement of the enthusiastic and prolonged cheering of an assemblage that fairly crowded the Baltimore & Ohio station here, President Roosevelt last night began his Southern tour with Chattanooga, Tenn., as the objective point.

The president appeared a little disfigured as a result of the Pittsfield accident, but apparently had quite recovered from the shock. He stopped to shake hands with those who pressed about him to congratulate him on his escape.

"Poor Craig," he frequently repeated in expressing his thanks to his well wishers. To a number he described the accident at Pittsfield. He said it was not the first time he had had so and referred to an incident in the battle of San Juan when gunshots struck down two men close behind him. The president told the Pittsfield story to a group in the car with feeling and emphasized it with gestures. He said he felt in normal condition again.

The personnel of the president's party is the same as that on his New England trip, except for the addition of S. B. Kege, the general agent of the Baltimore & Ohio railway, and Col. L. S. Brown, the general agent of the Southern railway. The president took dinner on the train shortly after his departure.

The Southern trip will be a somewhat hurried one and no stops will be made at points other than Wheeling, W. Va., Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tenn., and Asheville, N. C. The of the president is to attend the convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, in whose work he always has shown a deep interest. The train will reach Chattanooga at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning. Sunday will be spent in Chattanooga quietly and without public program. The party will visit the battle grounds during the day and the president will attend church in the evening. The president and party is scheduled to reach Washington on the return trip over the Southern railway at 6:30 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 10, and to leave half an hour later in a private car attached to a regular train over the Pennsylvania railway for Jersey City en route for Oyster Bay.

SEND CONGRATULATIONS

Rulers Express Pleasure That President's Accident Was No Worse.

Washington, Sept. 6. — President Roosevelt has received many messages of congratulation from abroad upon his escape from serious injury in the accident which occurred to him and his party Wednesday at Pittsfield, Mass., among them the following:

"London, Sept. 5.—To the President of the United States: The news of the accident has caused me the deepest concern. I earnestly trust to receive further assurance that it has not resulted in serious consequences to yourself. —Edward, R. I."

"Yildiz, Sept. 4. — His Excellency, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States: I have learned with great sorrow of the accident that has befallen you. Happily the accident has been attended with no serious consequence to your excellency. I extend you my deepest congratulations therefore. —Abdul Hamid."

TRIBUTE TO BRAVE MAN.

Secret Service Agents at Chicago Heap Flowers on Coffin.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The body of William Craig, the Chicago secret service agent who was killed in the accident that demolished President Roosevelt's coach near Pittsfield, Mass., arrived here yesterday in care of Hugh Craig, his brother. Secret service agents of this city took charge of the body and heaped the coffin with flowers. The funeral will take place to-day.

NO FIGHT ON MARCUS ISLE.

American Who Claims Ownership Reported Safely There.

London, Sept. 6.—A dispatch to the Times from Tokyo says that the Japanese cruiser Takachiho has returned from Marcus island. She reports that Capt. Rosehill, the American who claims the ownership of the island, arrived there on July 31, and that everything was amicably arranged.

WILL BE NO BLACK LIST.

West Virginia Miners Go Back to Work in Droves.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 6.—The news that the strike in the Pocahontas region has been declared off is having big effect in the Kanawha and New river fields. Information that there will be no "black list" will go a long way toward weakening the strike here. Adjt. Gen. Baker reported from Elkhorn that the strike is over there and that all collieries are hiring all the old men who apply for work.

MINNEAPOLIS DOES WELL.

Turns Out Good Crowd to the Fair Despite Unpromising Weather.

St. Paul, Sept. 6.—Minneapolis had an inning at the fair yesterday. Like St. Paul day, the weather was unpromising at the outset, but when the rift in the clouds came there was a general rush for the cars. During the latter hours of the morning the street railway company called into service every available car to handle the rush. The strangers who were in town to see the fair were evenly divided between the two cities. Although preparations had been made at the gates to handle a big crowd, the unpromising weather in the early morning encouraged the belief that the day would be light and the gatemen were hardly prepared for the crowd that came. In spite of this the people were handled nicely and there was no complaint made. The streets of the fair grounds were packed from noon until late at night. The attendance is estimated at about 40,000.

BALLOON ARTIST HURT.

Lands on the Roof of a House and Rolls to the Ground.

St. Paul, Sept. 6. — Earl Wagoner, who has been making the balloon ascensions at the fair since Jacob Hoffman was injured by a fall of 400 feet Wednesday evening, was slightly injured yesterday afternoon. He cut loose from the balloon in good shape, and made a very pretty drop. As he neared the ground he saw that he was going to land on a farm house and feared that he would be injured. He tried to avert the danger by jumping from his parachute while it was still about thirty feet from the ground. He misjudged his jump and landed on one corner of the house and then rolled off to the ground. He was badly scratched about the legs and arms and received a severe bruise on the body. His injuries did not incapacitate him for work and he made the ascension as usual in the evening.

IS A HOBOS' PARADISE.

The Marshal of a South Dakota Town Out Threshing.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Sept. 6. — The town of South Shore can truthfully be said to be the "Hobos' Paradise," and all because the man who holds the position of town marshal is at present working with a threshing crew in the country. As a result of his absence some of the hobo visitors to the town, upon making the discovery that the place is without a peace officer, take advantage of the opportunity to give the citizens a taste of frontier times. The council will be asked to appoint a temporary marshal.

POUNDS DYNAMITE SHELL.

Wisconsin Lad Expected to Live After the Experience.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Sept. 6. — Eddie Kalina, a lad ten years old, was nearly killed by the explosion of a dynamite cartridge. He had picked up the shell on the bluff east of the city, where the city water works reservoir is being built. Carrying it home he laid it on a stump and struck it with a hammer. The explosion badly lacerated his body about the groin, and nearly tore his left hand from his arm. He will live.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Punishment Confronts Men Who Disregarded Federal Judge.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 6. — Anton Staneck and Joseph Tyrdick, both of Yuba, Wis., are directed by order of the United States court to appear Sept. 18 and show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court for taking possession of two creameries owned by the Elgin Creamery company, now in the hands of a receiver.

HINES BUYS THE BUSINESS.

Chicago Lumber Concern Purchases Wisconsin Properties.

Hayward, Wis., Sept. 6.—The Edward Hines Lumber Company of Chicago has concluded another big deal here in the purchase of the entire plant of the North Wisconsin Lumber company, involving $1,000,000. It will take immediate charge of the sawmill and have all of the general merchandise and banking business of the old company.

HE FOUGHT WITH SIBLEY.

Death of Fred Melle, Who Settled in New Ulm as Early as 1856.

New Ulm, Minn, Sept. 6.—The death of Fred Melle in this city removes one of the pioneers of the state. He came to New Ulm in 1856 and has lived here ever since. He served with Sibley in his campaign against the Indians and has participated in all the affairs of the city and county from their organization. He was seventy-eight years old.

Thieves Rob Hotel Employes.

Stillwater, Minn., Sept. 6. — The servants' quarters of the Sawyer house were entered about supper time by a thief, who carried away four gold watches, two finger rings and $8 in cash belonging to employes of the hotel. The police made a search of every employe's room without getting any trace of the stolen property or a clue to the thief.

Express Messenger Falls Dead.

Baldwin, Wis., Sept. 6. — Express Messenger Ross, on Omaha train No. 4, dropped dead of heart failure while his train was at the Hudson depot.

Prisoner Escapes Jail.

Sibley, Iowa, Sept. 6.—Charles Tanner broke jail here and is still at large. Tanner is said to have stolen several bicycles in this vicinity.

The Murderer Weakens.

Sturgis, S. D., Sept. 6. — Ernest Lovewar, the half-breed who is sentenced to be hanged for the killing of George Puck and George Ostrander on Red Owl, is beginning to break down. The execution is set for Sept. 19.

Thief Robs Woman.

Storm Lake, Iowa, Sept. 6.—Mr. C. H. Billings, local manager of the Northern Telephone company, was robbed of $35. She left her purse in a drawer in the business office of the company.

GUNBOAT IS SUNK

GERMAN GOVERNMENT GETS SATISFACTION FROM HAITIEN REBELS.

SENT TO BOTTOM BY PANTHER

SURRENDER OF GUNBOAT IS DEMANDED BY GERMAN COMMANDER.

VESSEL IS FIRED BY HER CREW

PANTHER THEN COMPLETES JOB BY SENDING HER TO THE BOTTOM.

Cape Haitien, Haiti, Sept. 8.—The gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot, which was in the service of the Firminist party, has been sunk at the entrance of the harbor of Gonaives by the German gunboat Panther. Details of the occurrence are lacking. The crew of the Crete-a-Pierrot left her before she went down.

Called Upon to Surrender.

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, Sept. 8.—The German gunboat Panther arrived here Sept. 5 and received instructions from the German government to capture the Firminist gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot. She left immediately for Gonaives, the seat of the Firminist government. The Panther found the Crete-a-Pierrot in the harbor of Gonaives and the commander of the German gunboat informed Admiral Killick, on the Crete-a-Pierrot, that he must remove his crew and surrender his vessel in five minutes' time. Admiral Killick asked that this time be extended to fifteen minutes. This request was granted on the condition that the arms and ammunition on board the Crete-a-Pierrot should be abandoned when her crew left her. The crew of the Crete-a-Pierrot left the vessel

Amid Great Disorder.

At the end of fifteen minutes the Panther sent a small boat carrying an officer and twenty sailors, who were to take possession of the Firminist gunboat. When the seamen had arrived at a point about thirty yards from the Crete-a-Pierrot flames were seen to break out on board of her. She had been fired by her crew before they left her. The Panther then fired on the Crete-a-Pierrot until she was completely immersed. Thirty shots, all told, were fired.

There is much feeling here against the Firminists and their cause is considered to be a bad one. Soldiers are leaving here to attack St. Marc. Port-au-Prince is calm.

Held Up German Steamer.

The German gunboat Panther arrived at Port-au-Prince Sept. 5. It was announced from Cape Haitien Sept. 3 that the German steamer Markomannia, Capt. Nausen, belonging to the Hamburg-American Packet company, having on board arms and ammunition sent by the provisional government to Cape Haitien, had been stopped Sept. 2 by the Firminist gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot at the entrance to the harbor of Cape Haitien and that an armed force sent aboard the steamer from the gunboat took possession of the war munitions in spite of the protestations of Capt. Nausen and the German consul.

An Act of Piracy.

The seizure of the Markomannia has been characterized as an act of piracy. But a dispatch from Berlin to the Associated Press, dated Sept. 6, said German government circles did not take a tragic view of the seizure of the German vessel, but that satisfaction would be demanded. The foreign press agrees with the view held by the foreign representatives at Port-au-Prince, said the dispatch, that the action of the Crete-a-Pierrot was piracy, but it was not then known whether satisfaction would be demanded from Gen. Firmin or whether the result of the revolution in Haiti would be awaited.

Reports the Crew Drowned.

Paris, Sept. 8.—A brief cablegram has been received here from Cape Haitien, Haiti, dated Sept. 7, saying the Firminist gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot had been sunk by the German gunboat Panther and that the crew of the Crete-a-Pierrot had been drowned. The dispatch adds that Gen. Jean Jumeau, commander of the Firminist troops in the department of Artibonite, has taken the town of Mirabalis.

MOROS ARE VERY UGLY.

They Reject All Overtures on the Part of Americans.

Manila, Sept. 8.—Capt. J. J. Pershing, who is in command of the American forces in the Island of Mindanao, reports to Gen. Chaffee that several of the Moro chiefs whose followers have attacked American soldiers have rejected all friendly overtures and that he has been unable to reach any understanding with them. The breaking of negotiations with the Moros, Capt. Pershing reports, will probably bring on a crisis in the Moro situation. It is believed in Manila that a renewal of Moro attacks will result in retaliation by the American forces. The military records show that since the Bayan fight last May the Moros have made twelve attacks on American soldiers, killing four and wounding twelve, including one officer.

TRAFFIC IN HUMAN BONES.

Chicago Health Officials Uncover a Scandal.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Investigation into the methods of a number of undertakers in Chicago has prompted health department officials to believe they have unearthed a wholesale trafficking in human bodies. More than a score of undertakers are under suspicion, but as yet only direct evidence against two has been secured. They are E. Jackson, 2806 State street, and Cody Bros., 3900 Throop street.

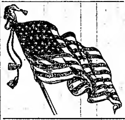
WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 10, 1902.



Hon. Halvor Steenerson has addressed a letter to the "Skandinaven," a paper published in Chicago that has broken into politics in the Ninth district of Minnesota, and has made some false accusations. In the letter Mr. Steenerson manages to place Mr. Grindeland, whose cause the Skandinaven champions, in the position warranted by his acts. Mr. Steenerson's letter is in part as follows:

September 9, 1902.

Editor "Skandinaven,"
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir: In numerous articles recently published in your paper the claim is made that the so-called "Steenerson Grain Rate case" amounted to nothing, that the railroads 'voluntarily' reduced the rate as low as ordered by the commission, and, further, that I had nothing to do with the case after it reached the courts and my interest in the farmers ended "when the money gave out," and more of like tenor.

The facts are: That when the Supreme court sustained the order of the commission the railroads in order to end the controversy offered to submit a new schedule of rates, in some cases lower and some higher than the rate fixed by the commission, and this offer it now appears was accepted by the commission and further proceedings to enforce the order have been abandoned. In this, however, the commission did not consult Elias Steenerson, the complainant, nor the undersigned. We never consented to this arrangement and under the law we had no control of the case.

In regard to my connection with the case I will simply say that being interested in farming I took that case and prepared it for trial before the commission and examined the witnesses and argued it, with the result that the order reducing rates was made. At that point my control of the case ceased, for the law imposed upon the attorney-general and the commission and such special counsel as they might employ the duty of carrying on the litigation in the courts. The attorney-general employed Mr. Clapp, who rendered able service and was paid out of the state treasury. I never lost interest in the case, however, although I was not permitted to have control, for as attorney for the complainant I looked after the case during the many years it dragged its slow length along in the courts. I had frequent consultation both with the commission and its counsel, and I was present at the argument in the supreme court.

I have never asked nor received any money for my services or expenses and therefore the charge that I abandoned the case when the money gave out is wholly untrue and I ask that it be corrected.

If the friends of Senator Grindeland are opposed to the doctrines established in the grain rate case,—the doctrine of state control over railway charges,—and prefer to depend upon "voluntary" reductions kindly granted to the people by a generous railway, they ought to go one step farther and favor railway consolidations as well. They are welcome to take this attitude and we are glad to know where to place them, but it seems to me that these scribblers are putting their candidate in a false light by attacking the principles established in the grain rate case. He has always been a friend of mine and I am sorry to see him placed in a false position. As no one claims that he had the remotest connection either with the grain rate case or the principles it involved, I cannot see why he should be placed in an attitude where he is made to appear to take the side of the railroads against the people.

It appears to me he is wronged in the house of his friends.

Respectfully,
Halvor Steenerson.

The senatorial fight in Polk county between A. D. Stephens and Hugh Thompson is waxing warm—very warm. The newspapers on both sides are indulging in unpleasant personalities which really do not help their candidates and certainly does not reflect much credit on the editors.

BYRON WAS BARRED.

Dean of Westminster Refused to Accept Statue of Poet.

Many years ago some admirers of Lord Byron raised a subscription for a monument to the poet, to be placed in Westminster abbey. Chantrey was requested to execute it, but on account of the smallness of the sum subscribed he declined, and Thorwaldsen was then applied to and cheerfully undertook the work.

In about 1833 the finished statue arrived at the custom house in London, but, to the astonishment of the subscribers, the dean of Westminster, Dr. Ireland, declined to give permission to have it set up in the abbey, and, owing to this difficulty, which proved insurmountable, for Dr. Ireland's successor was of the same opinion, it remained for upward of twelve years in the custom house, when (1840) it was removed to the library of Trinity college, Cambridge.

The poet is represented in the statue of the size of life, seated on a ruin, with his left foot resting on the fragment of a column. In his right hand he holds a style up to his mouth; in his left a book, inscribed "Childe Harold." He is dressed in a frock coat and cloak. Beside him on the left is a skull, above which is the Athenian owl. The likeness is of course posthumous. Thorwaldsen was born Nov. 19, 1770, and died on March 24, 1844.—Newcastle (Eng.) Chronicle.

A Model Surveyor.

The Kingman Leader-Courier tells of an early day county surveyor in Kingman county, Kan., who neither possessed any instruments nor could have used them if he had. His method of measuring land was to tie his ankles together with a cord that was just long enough to allow him to step one-fifth of a rod each time, and thus hobbled he would strike out, counting his steps until he had made a sufficient number to cover the desired distance.

The cord or string used by him in fastening his legs together, says the Leader-Courier, was made of rawhide, so that when he was traveling through the grass of a morning when the dew was on it would become wet and stretch nearly a foot, and so his steps were much longer of a morning than they were of an evening after the sun had dried the whong leather and shortened it. Consequently the man having his land surveyed in the morning would have much more in his quarter section than his neighbor who had his work done in the afternoon. These old surveys and corners then established cause annoyance even to this day.

The Kind of a Man He Was.

"I was in Washington once," said a man at the club, "when Tom Reed was the czar of the house of representatives. He was holding forth with earnestness on some theme to a group of friends when that man you see over there by the cigar counter pushed his way through the crowd, grasped Reed by the hand and said effusively: 'Hello, Tom, old boy! How do you do?'

"Reed responded in a manner that was more of a shake for the man than for his hand and went on with his talk. When our friend over there had edged out of the crowd, some one said: 'You didn't seem to be happy over him, Reed. Who is your friend, anyway?'

"Reed drawled out, 'He's a fellow from New York who knows more men who don't want to know him than any other man in the United States.'"—Detroit Free Press.

Thrifty Squanderers.

When Napoleon entered Genoa in 1805, the rich patricians of the city exerted themselves to gain the favor of the conqueror by all sorts of flattering attentions. The most elaborate of these was a banquet patterned after the famous one offered by Antony to Cleopatra.

The tables were set in an artificial garden, floating on pontoons, which were towed out to sea during the progress of the feast. At the conclusion of the banquet—again in imitation of Antony and Cleopatra—all the costly gold and silver plate was flung into the sea.

This little tribute of honor to the emperor was not so expensive as it seemed, for the floating garden was surrounded with nets, and the plate was subsequently recovered.

A Costly Bible.

The most costly book in the Royal library at Stockholm is a Bible. It is no wonder that it is considered precious, for there is not another like it in the world. In weight and size alone it is unique. It is said that 160 asses' skins were used for its parchment leaves. There are 309 pages of writing, and each page falls but an inch short of being a yard in length. The width of the leaves is twenty inches. The covers are solid planks four inches thick.

An Explanation.

"I suppose you will be glad to get away from congress and get a little rest."

"My friend," answered the statesman, "you misinterpret the situation. When a man goes to his own state, he has got to look after elections night and day. He goes home to hustle. If he's lucky, he gets to congress, where is a chance to rest."—Washington Star.

Like Father, Like Son.

"I'm determined to call the dear little fellow Marion," said Mrs. Henpeck.

"But think, my dear," protested Mr. Henpeck, pere, "if he should grow up, like me, to marry a—er—strong woman and push a baby coach himself and wash dishes, how easy it would be for people to change Marion to Mary Ann."—Philadelphia Press.

Love In the Museum.

"Will nothing move you?" pleaded the ardent wild man, who was as adept at lovemaking as he was at eating raw beef.

The fat lady glanced at her corpulent self and smiled. "Yes," she chuckled; "a derrick."—Chicago News.

Their Glasses Differ.

"The glasses that I use affect my eyes till I see double."—Beverages.

A woman can kiss a woman without knocking her hat off, but a man can't. —Atchison Globe.

DINED IN THE KITCHEN.

One Satisfactory Meal Grant Had After His Tour of the World.

"When General Grant stopped at the Palmer House in Chicago on his return from his tour of the world," said a man who was there at the time, "the steward was all but stupefied one noon at seeing the ex-president slide in at the kitchen door as though escaping from some one.

"'I am sorry to trouble you,' he said, as though asking a great favor, 'but may I have a little corned beef and cabbage?'

"'Why, certainly,' the steward replied; 'but shan't I send it out to you in the dining room?'

"'No,' he answered; 'I'll eat it right here if you'll let me sit down.'

"So a place on the rough board table, where the cook had been fixing the meat, was cleared, and Grant drew up a stool and set to, and the way he got away with that corned beef and cabbage was a caution. When he had finished, he laid down his knife and fork with a funny sigh of satisfaction, put one hand on the steward's shoulder and said:

"'Young man, I don't suppose you care for that at all, but if you had had to eat what I have for the past few months it would taste like a dinner for the gods. It tastes homey!'

"The ex-president had dined with everybody from the queen down, but that cabbage and corned beef doubtless reminded him of the time when he was not so well known, but probably far happier—when people in St. Louis called him 'captain' when they spoke to him and bought the wood he carted into town to sell."

Character at a Glance.

An insignificant nose means an insignificant man. An open mouth is a sure sign of an empty head (keep yours closed). A projecting upper lip shows malignity and avarice. Pointed noses generally belong to meddlesome people. Large eyes in a small face betoken maliciousness.

A retreating chin is always bad; it shows lack of resolution. A projecting under lip indicates ostentation, self conceit and folly. Fine hair generally betokens native good taste and intelligence.

A dimple in the chin is pretty, but indicates weak mental organization. High cheek bones always indicate great force of character in some direction. Fullness of the temples is supposed to show powers of mathematical calculation.

A small mouth, with nose and nostril also small, shows indecision and cowardice. Half shut eyes show natural shrewdness, together with lack of sincerity. Slow moving eyes are always found in the heads of persons of prudence and ability.—London Answers.

Wheat In Fable and History.

Possibly wheat was the corn so plenty in Egypt when famine drove thither Joseph's unnatural brethren. Wheat went with other precious things into the mummy cases and sealed jars stored in royal tombs. Today acres by the thousand laugh in hoarded grain said to have sprung from sparse kernels plundered by a ruthless explorer from a royal mummy's hand. Does it whisper now—this new-old Egyptian wheat—to its constant friend the sun, of Rameses and Pharoah—of Apis, the sacred bull—of Isis, Egypt's Ceres—of Osiris—the great sphinx—and Memnon's head, singing to hail the sunrise? If it would but speak aloud so mortals could comprehend, how our wisdom might be broadened! What a recasting of history must be wrought, and how we boasting moderns might hide diminished heads!—Everybody's Magazine.

A Tart Retort.

Lord Roberts once found himself the center of a circle of new friends in a London club. There was a very tall gentleman present, who, evidently believing himself to shine as a wit, seized every opportunity to raise a laugh at the other people's expense. On being introduced to Lord Roberts the wit bent down patronizingly to his lordship and remarked:

"I have often heard of you, but"—shading his eyes with one hand as though the famous general, being so small, could be seen only with difficulty—"I have never seen you."

To this Lord Roberts promptly replied:

"I have often seen you, sir, but I have never heard of you."

Why Savages Turn In Their Toes.

In the first place, the foot naturally takes that position when it has never been confined by boots or the ankle distorted by high heels. Convenience is also on the side of the natural position of the foot in the case of the savage, for he has to do much walking through long grass and undergrowth in forests. Consequently his progress would be much impeded if he turned his toes out to catch these obstacles instead of brushing them aside and outward, as he now does. Lastly, the savage uses his foot much more as a help to his hands than we do, and it is obvious that in doing this he must turn his toes in.

European Arithmetic.

At the custom house we were obliged to make a deposit of 8 francs 40 centimes on each wheel before entering Switzerland. Since that day faith in the advantages of higher education has wavered. There were nine bicycles, and the government official found the entire amount of our indebtedness by putting down 8.40 nine times and then adding up. Why should one vex one's self with the multiplication table when straight addition combined with unlimited time reaches the same result? —Caroline S. Donnett in Chautauquan.

Her Busy Business.

Towne—When Miss Gabbil told me she was in business, I couldn't help thinking she meant everybody else's business.

Browne—That's about right.

Towne—What you might call a wholesale business, eh?

Browne—Well, yes; except that she retails scandals at wholesale rates.—Philadelphia Press.

DREAD SKIN DISEASE.

Steps Taken to Eradicate Elephantiasis in the Samoas.

Stanford, Cal., Sept. 1.—Dr. Vernon Lyman Kellogg, head of the department of entomology, who accompanied Dr. Jordan on his summer trip to Samoa, has returned to the university, bringing with him many specimens of sea and animal life to be added to the national museum at Washington. His most special work in Samoa, however, from a practical point of view, was his investigation of the fallaria, a wormlike animal living on mosquitos and producing in human kind the dread skin disease elephantiasis. Almost half the native population of Samoa are afflicted with this disease and at the suggestion of Captain Sebree, U. S. N., governor of the American islands, Dr. Kellogg has devised a plan looking to the removal of the scourge by preventing the use of infected water, etc., by the natives.

Four Boy Counterfeiters Arrested.

Dubuque, Ia., Sept. 1.—Clyde, Ellis, Roy Gregory, Willie Edson and Frank Quinlan were arrested during the day charged with making and passing counterfeit dimes. The boys confessed and gave up moulds crudely made of brick.

BRIEF BITS OF NEWS.

A PAIR TO DRAW TO

ARE WAKING UP

BRITONS BECOMING WEARY OF UNCLE SAM'S COMMERCIAL SUPREMACY.

RETALIATION IS THREATENED

Will Not Stand Indefinitely Being Shut Out by the American Tariff While Keeping Open House for American Traders in the United Kingdom. Government Stirred Up by Commercial and Colonial Discontent.

London, Sept. 1.—The approaching expiration of the time limit for the completion of the Atlantic shipping combine is arousing the British press to all sorts of speculation regarding J. Pierpont Morgan's ultimate plans as well as the government's scheme for dealing with the combination. The promised statement of the premier, A. J. Balfour, on the reassembling of parliament is awaited with intense interest. The statement has already been printed that the government plans are complete and that the authorities are ready to make an effective countermove against the American syndicate. Inquiries made by the Associated Press in the best informed quarters indicate that this announcement is not true. The government has had to deal with so many powerful and conflicting interests that it has not yet been able to definitely decide on a plan of action. In spite of the opposition to a general subsidy scheme, well informed persons consider this to be the most likely solution, on the lines of a generous distribution of government support, not in behalf of one, but of several companies. The form which such assistance will take is still under discussion, there being considerable opposition to straight subsidies. There is no doubt that Mr. Balfour's announcement will include a scheme for a direct fast Canadian service, in which the Canadian Pacific railroad will probably participate, but not as originally planned as sole promoter and beneficiary. The indications point more and more to the drawing together of the Atlantic lines outside of the Morgan combine. One of the alliances which may be earliest expected is a combination of the Allan line and Elder Dempster & Co. The heads of the English lines are on the Atlantic outlook. Time is rather intensifying than allaying their jealousy of the American bid for the Atlantic trade and the government has been so thoroughly stirred up that it will not leave a stone unturned to allay the existing commercial and colonial discontent. In this connection it may be mentioned that the tariff discussions at the recent colonial conference were very intimately connected with the shipping situation. A leading shipowner and a close friend of the colonial secretary, Joseph Chamberlain, said to a representative of the Associated Press:

"America must not think that the imperial government is going to leave the colonies at the mercy of the shipping or any other trust. The discontent is acute enough now in many quarters of the empire. While Great Britain does not want a commercial war with the United States she will not stand indefinitely being shut out by the American tariff wall while keeping open house for American traders in the United Kingdom.

"The question of retaliatory duties is not so improbable as so many people imagine. There is no reason why the British colonial markets should not be opened to British goods on a preferential basis. We have been asleep here in England for a long time, but when we wake up America had better look out."

Sir Christopher Furness, who has been referred to as the possible head of the English financial syndicate which is likely to purchase the Cunard fleet as the nucleus for a British shipping combine, hinted at similar possibilities in his speech before the steamship meeting at Manchester, but as he was addressing a public meeting he was not so outspoken as the leading shipowner quoted above.

RUMOR GIVEN CREDENCE.

Portuguese African Possessions Sold to Great Britain.

New York, Sept. 1.—One of the most interesting features of the slack season in London is a revival of the rumor anent Delagoa Bay, cables the Tribune correspondent at London. It is asserted that the purchase of the Portuguese possessions in East Africa will be announced when parliament meets and that it will be followed by German acquisition of a portion of them, in accordance with a secret convention with Great Britain. There is no direct confirmation of this story from an authentic source, but there is circumstantial evidence that leads close observers to credit the rumor. Lord Milner's recent visit to Lorenzo Marques never has been satisfactorily explained, nor have the proposed annexations of Transvaal territory to Natal any significance unless the intervening district adjacent to the Portuguese frontier can be added. Men versed in Africa affairs are predicting the speedy purchase of Portuguese territory and the extension of Natal northward and material compensation to Germany for the neutrality maintained during the Boer campaign.

Cable in Working Order.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 1—News has been received via the steamer Cottage City that the cable between Skagway and Juneau is again in working order. Sergeant Bruck opened the cable for dispatches at noon on Aug. 25. The cable has given a great deal of trouble in the past but is said to be giving good service now and little trouble is anticipated in the future.

Dislocated Her Elbow.

Miss Madge Miller was painfully injured yesterday morning while out horseback riding. Her pony fell and rolled over her. She did not think she was badly hurt at first and went home to the Hotel Markham where it was discovered that her elbow was dislocated. Drs. Blomburgh and Pleth set the injured member and the patient is doing as well as could be expected. It is thought that she sustained no other injuries.

Do You Know Mme. Qui Vive.

Probably you do, for Mme Qui Vive has a national reputation as an inspiring friend of every woman with a beauty woe. Her "Woman Beautiful" department in the daily and Sunday issues of the Chicago Record Herald is a perennial source of joyous helpfulness to womankind. Her instructions on complexion ills are interlarded here and there with snappy little epigrams as "cheerers." The weapons she suggests to beauty seekers for the complete annihilation of beauty grievances do not include artificial methods—"factory" frizzes, rouge and other horrors being barred. She gives instructions on correct breathing, what to eat, how to bathe—in brief, how to become a healthy, wholesome woman. No wonder she is popularly known to many thousands of women.

FARM FOR RENT.—A farm of 240 acres known as the Mrs. Swanson place and one of the best in Red Lake county, comprising SE¼ and S½ of the SW¼, Section 26, Bray township, with 175 acres under plow, good pasture, hay meadow, and fine buildings. No one but a sober and industrious man having the necessary horses and machinery to properly handle such a place need apply. Will furnish seed and take half the crop. Hay and pasturage free, and if necessary will do all the fall plowing.

Street Visits St. Hilaire.

W. F. Street, county attorney of Beltrami and candidate for state senator subject to the republican primaries, spent a short time between trains here on Monday getting acquainted with his constituents. Mr. Street was well received and given much encouragement here, and reports from all over the district would indicate that he will land the nomination by a handsome majority.

His principal campaign issue is the drainage question in this district, and the securing of state aid for that purpose. He is deeply interested in this question which is really of the utmost importance to the district and particularly to Red Lake and Beltrami counties.

W. F. Street has certainly got the ability to successfully carry out the project if there is any possibility of so doing.

Track-Laying Machine.

A track-laying machine is used in Pennsylvania which, with a crew of 40 men, puts down two miles of track a day. It has a huge crane, 60 feet long, which projects forward over the road, and it hauls behind it a train of 16 flat cars loaded with ties and rails. Both rails and ties are seized at the proper juncture by the machinery and placed on the road in front of the train, forming the tract over which it passes. The best thing to build the road to good health is golden grain belt beer. Get a case of this pure, delicious and nourishing beverage and use it regularly. Removal of the Saw Mill.

There has been considerable talk here recently concerning the proposed removal of the saw mill from this place to Bemidji. The impression seems to have been that St. Hilaire would be left without any mill. The following items seem to be authentic and we give them for what they are worth.

The Red Lake Falls Gazette says: "Leo Steinert on Tuesday received a letter from Thos. Shevlin relative to the project of putting in a 75-barrel flour mill at St. Hilaire. Mr. Shevlin says it is true, the saw mill at St. Hilaire will not be retained at its present capacity, but that the plant will be converted into a single band saw mill. It had for some time been understood that the mill would be moved from St. Hilaire, and the latest decision of the lumber magnate will no doubt afford some relief to the St. Hilaire people. Mr. Shevlin is not sure that he can spare as much power as would be necessary to furnish power for a 75-barrel mill, and Mr. Steinert went to Minneapolis Tuesday to confer with him relative to the matter.

It is calculated the change in the St. Hilaire plant will reduce the capacity about two-thirds."

Saturday's issue of the Crookston Daily Times says:

"The Crookston Lumber Co. this morning began the work of clearing off the timber from the 100 acres of land on the south end of Bemidji Lake upon which it is to construct its big saw mill. It will take six months of active preparation and construction work to get this plant into running operation. It will cost about $300,000 and will be one of the most complete mill properties in Minnesota. The timber for this plant will be brought from the headwaters of the Mississippi and from along the line of the Minnesota & International Railway Co. in eastern Beltrami and northern Itasca counties.

Thos. Shevlin has given St. Hilaire assurances that a mill will be located there, despite the removal of the big mill to Bemidji. A single band will be installed at St. Hilaire."

—One of the most convenient things that has ever been offered to the people of St. Hilaire is the McKey Common Sense Waist and Hose Supporter. A complete line for boys and girls can be found at Rapp & Post's.

Montefiore's Rebuke.

A man who was once talking with the late Sir Moses Montefiore at a reception found the conversation so entertaining that he completely forgot the race of his companion and made some uncomplimentary remark about the Jewish features of a lady who was passing by. The mistake was no sooner made than it was perceived.

The unhappy man began to apologize profusely. "I ask a thousand pardons. It was so stupid of me to forget. You look angry enough to eat me. I beg you not to devour me."

"Sir," replied Sir Moses, "it is impossible. My religion forbids."—Peter's "The Jew as Patriot."

Capacity and Power.

A man is worth to himself just what he is capable of enjoying. This means the utmost enlargement of his capacity. He is worth to the world just what he is capable of imparting, and this means the utmost development of every power. These two, capacity and power, form the truest standard, the most accurate measure, of every man.—Cardinal, The College Student.

ALONE

She had not any word to say—
There was no one who stood by her;
For one misstep in life's young day,
When love had seemed so good to her,
She walked from all the world apart,
And kept her grief locked in her heart—
A comrade drear seemed Memory;
So all alone walked she.

But sang the blackbird in the brake,
It seemed his song was made for her;
And all along the calm blue lake
The lilies pure were laid for her.
The honeysuckle in the dew
Around her door its fragrance threw,
The ewe lamb by her side would lead,
And white doves there would feed.

I dream the Christ of Galilee
Who on the dread cross died for her,
When near to death her steps shall be,
The gate will open wide for her.
That angel hands will draw her in,
And lock without the old-time sin,
And on her brow again will press,
Her lost youth's happiness.

The Awakening of Princess Valerie.

BY CURRAN RICHARD GREENLEY.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Pretty Princess Valerie, they had called her, back in the little kingdom of Arstadt, when Duke Fritz had wooed and won her in the guise of the Count of Neinheim, and with the wily old Prime Minister had plotted against a girl's willfulness to give her the sweetest of love marriages. Well! That was years ago. Since then, only yesterday, a weary truth had come to Princess Valerie—that men may love; but men will tire, and the newest face has ever a charm.

It was a bitter smile that curved the proud red lips, as she watched Duke Fritz stroll under the lindens, murmuring pretty speeches into the dainty ear of the Countess Isobel. Countess Isobel of Hohenhauffen, the veriest flirt ever sent to overturn the peace of the little court of Auerstadt.

Valerie rested her hot cheek in her hand and gazed down at the sleeping boy, heir to the duchy, child of her love, all that was left of that love, Valerie told herself, as the countess' gay laugh rang up beneath the window.

She had been so happy, only last night, when that little vixen, Katherine de Graffenried, had spoken lightly in her hearing of Countess Isobel's latest conquest. Katherine had seemed properly dismayed when the duchess' angry face appeared between the portiers and bade her say out her meaning. She had wept and sobbed with a pretty reluctance, and then had come the story of the moonlight walks, of the rides in the forest and the little notes that went to and fro, and Valerie listened with death in her heart and a proud smile on her lips.

"Is that all?" she had asked. Then, at her bidding, the girl crept away, the malice half hid in her sleepy green eyes. Katherine hated the duchess, as her small soul hated all things gracious and lovely.

Poor, proud Valerie. All that night she lay in her great state bed with wide staring eyes "facing the future," she called it, with all a girl's high tragedy, with all a loving woman's pain. At breakfast, the duke came in to join her, with a song on his lips, and a rose in his buttonhole; but Valerie thought she knew whose fingers had plucked that rose, and she would have none of him, and the duke went away with a scowl on his handsome face and found the Countess Isobel upon the terrace, where a little later Valerie saw them talking together. She could imagine what they were saying, and her jealous heart throbbed nigh to bursting.

"Fool! fool!" she told herself. "Is not this the portion of royal women, the cross that goes with the crown?" but she had loved him so.

A dry sob arose in her throat and a blackness was before her eyes, all the day, as she moved through the stately rooms. Duke Fritz had carefully kept away from her. He was puzzled, hurt and a little resentful, yet he glanced wistfully toward her once or twice; but that inscrutable, cold smile lay on the lovely lips, repelling all approach, and unfortunately, Valerie never caught that look, only suffered and wound the scourge closer to her bared bosom.

When her women came to robe her for the evening she thrust aside the gay tissues, the shimmering satins, and bade them put on a trailing black gown of some misty material, cloudlike, sombre, from which the white marble of throat and bosom gleamed like frost.

Duke Fritz stood at her side until the tedious ceremony was ended; then he made his way to the Countess Isobel, and Valerie, glancing up, met the eyes of Katherine de Graffenreid filled with mocking laughter. The ebb and flow of the music, the glide of the feet over the polished floor, the murmur of voices, with their set speeches, came to her as through a mist. She had some wild thought of leaving it all and rushing out into the white night, of going to Rudolph, her brother, the king of Arstadt. She would claim his protection. Then a thought gripped her heartstrings—her child. She could not leave him, and the people of Auerstadt would never suffer their little prince to be raised in another land. No, she must stay and bear her martyrdom. Rudolph would be the first to bid her return, and Princess Valerie could have risen then and there, and beat her hands against the wall in sheer despair. Across the room, she could see the duke's fair head bent low above Countess Isobel; it was maddening.

"Highness, the prince is ill and should have the Herr doctor immediately."

A little page came hurrying down the long room and bowed before her, his face white and anxious. "Highness, the little prince is ill, and should have the Herr doctor immediately."

"Valerie!"

Valerie sprang to her feet, and an instant hush fell over the audience chamber, as she swept past the little knots of courtiers and laughing women, a princess, but yet a woman, who has heard the cry of her child in need of her.

A group of frightened attendants made way for her, as she fell on her knees beside the low, white bed. The rosy limbs, that she had kissed so short a time before, were rigid, and a blue shadow grew around the tightly drawn lips, as the child lay locked in one convulsion after another. To the end of her life she never knew whence came the strength that enabled her, when the doctor called for assistance, to brush aside the panic-stricken nurses, and herself force the clenched mouth open, while he poured the medicine down. What matter that the little white teeth ground upon her delicate fingers until the blood trickled down, the child had ceased to struggle, and the warm pink came back to the little face, and the tense limbs relaxed. With a burst of tears, she gathered the sleeping baby to her breast, and the old doctor's eyes were misty, as he laid a kindly hand upon the rebellious curls that had somehow slipped their fastening and tumbled in headlong beauty to her waist.

The minutes slipped by, as Valerie knelt with the child's cheek pressed against her own, then someone entered and closed the door, very gently. Valerie never stirred, scarcely conscious of anything but the fact that the child was given back to her arms—a thankfulness that almost blotted out the other great sorrow for a time. Duke Fritz knelt down beside his wife, and drew the dark head to his breast. For a moment she yielded to the sense of rest and peace, then pride awoke, and she drew haughtily away from him. "Why come to me? Where is the Countess Isobel? Is she indisposed that you should turn to me and the child?"

The duke sprang to his feet, his fair face flushing like a girl's. "Valerie!" There was a world of reproach in the mere word, and Valerie winced, half-guiltily. A long silence fell between husband and wife. Afar off in the distance, the midnight bell proclaimed the passing of another day, and the quiet lay over the city like a pall; only, here in the palace were flashing lights and anxious faces lingering in the corridors to know how fared the little prince. A long time, the blue eyes of the duke held the brown ones of Princess Valerie with that proud reproach; then, woman-like, she fell to sobbing upon his breast, knowing, without a word, that the wrong was right; and the duke asked no questions, but presently, stroking her curls, told her how the Countess Isobel, who had laughed down love and many suitors, was at last caught in the web of her own devising, and that the matter was a difficult one, as the man in question was a mere officer in the guards, the bare mention of whom as a husband for their imperious beauty had set the whole Hohenhauffen clan by the ears. In desperate case, the lovers had appealed to no less a person than the hereditary duke, and, though hereditary dukes are mighty in their small worlds, there are some things in which it is not safe to meddle, hence, all the walks and talks, in which the young officer had formed an anxious third, and which the little De Graffenried had forgotten to mention when relating the story to the princess.

"Why didn't they come to me?" demanded Valerie. There is nothing so provoking to the average woman than to find out that an interesting love affair, with all of its proper complications, has been going forward under her very nose and she not aware of it.

The duke pulled his long, fair mustache helplessly. "The truth is, the countess tried to tell you, but after you had left the terrace the little De Graffenreid came back and told her that you did not approve of her choice; in fact, desired that the subject should not be alluded to in your presence, and, naturally, she could not expect any sympathy from you."

"Oh!" said Valerie.

Ten minutes later, in the presence of the court that was still assembled in the audience chamber, Princess Valerie summoned Fraulein De Graffenried and bade her return at the earliest possible moment to her father's schloss.

Thus, the awakening of Princess Valerie.

HEALTHY IN OLD AGE.

How Altoona Physician Accounts for His Longevity.

A physician at Altoona is 99 years of age and still keeps up his practice.

This remarkable old man can thread a needle without the aid of a cane and walks without glasses.

He has voted for every president since he was 17 years old—some of them several times.

He chewed tobacco for three-quarters of a century and then eschewed it entirely. He also drank whenever invited.

He doesn't believe in medicine and has no use for doctors.

"The reason I have been enabled to outlive all my patients," said the doctor, "is very simple. I live a calm, well-ordered life. I am temperate in all things, perhaps a little more so in some. I can take my ax to-day, sir, and go out and split that cord of hickory wood yonder into as choice a lot of fine toothpicks as the law allows. And I can rassle the boots of any man in the county—boys under 75 barred. Oh, yes, I can put up my prescriptions all right. I always put 'em up by the sense of smell. Of course there may be fatal mistakes, but in this neighborhood nobody is ever much missed.

"Eh, what's that? How do I account for my extreme age? Ask me something harder. My age is accounted for by a continuous succession of years, months, weeks and days."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BE BRAVE.

The world is wide, remember this.
Nor shrink from fate's deep furrowed frown.
Woo fortune with your brightest smiles.
Don't let the world know when you're down.

It spoils your chance for future deeds,
To frame your face with dull care's crown;
Brace up, and higher hold your head.
Don't let the world know when you're down.

The world will bow in servile seat
To one who sways it with a frown;
Toss up your head, and flash your eye—
Don't let the world know when you're down.

If scandal's lip should seek to stain
The name you hold as honor's crown,
By your own life refute the lie,
Don't let the world know when you're down.

If bare your purse, your heart most sad,
Your life near crushed by sorrow's crown,
Then mask them well with song and jest,
Don't let the world know when you're down.

Journalist's Triumph.

Miss Janet Priest of Minneapolis has proved to the satisfaction of a coterie of self-satisfied players in her vicinity that in her case where there's a will there's a way, and, incidentally, that she is not what is called in the sporting section either a "piker" or a "bluffer."

Miss Priest is the dramatic critic of the Tribune in that city. Recently she commented adversely on a performance given by some members of the Frawley company. She was sarcastically asked if she could do better. Miss Priest is nervy and replied by studying one of the roles in question and appearing in one of the performances. She scored an immediate "hit" and has been asked to continue in the profession. But this she has refused to do and has returned to her former labors.

Wanted to Go Home.

Abe Hummel recently entertained a rural relative who was visiting New York for the first time, says the New York Times. He took his guest to Coney Island and showed him everything worth seeing, from Manhattan Beach down to the Bowery. The last place they inspected was a dime museum, where the wonderful curiosities greatly interested the stranger.

Suddenly the countryman caught sight of a large mirror, one of the distorting kind that makes a man look as if he had been run over by a steam roller. Mr. Hummel's relative gazed sadly at his elongated, attenuated reflection. Then he turned and said:

"Say, Abe, let's go home, quick! Gee-willikens! I never knew until now the meaning of the phrase 'the pace that kills.' Another day like this would be the death of me!"

Gossip From Tien-tsin.

A traveler in Tien-tsin, mentioning the razing of the walls of the ancient city, relates that the work was done chiefly by former boxers, hired for the purpose. Even the children on the streets made life unpleasant for these turncoats by taunting them with a two-line doggerel running as follows:

From our cakes you ate up all;
Now you've come to spoil our wall.

The reference in the first line is to the large flat cakes of unleavened flour, mixed with brown sugar, upon which the boxers were fed by the patrons of the movement in Tien-tsin. To many of them boxerism was merely a means of earning a living.

No Flying Trip for Him.

King Edward VII., as is well known, is much interested in matters relating to flying ships, and especially is he interested in Santos-Dumont and his efforts. A few weeks before the coronation it was extensively rumored that the king had quite made up his mind to accompany the clever young Brazilian in one of his aerial flights; that he had, in fact, made all arrangements for his travel through the air. A certain well-known scientific peer asked his majesty one evening, after dinner, whether the rumor concerning the royal aerial voyage was really true.

"Now, Lord——," answered King Edward laughingly, "is it likely that I would take this flying ship trip? The coronation has not yet taken place, and I can assure you that I wish to wear my earthly crown before I put on the other."—New York Times.

VOLUME XXII. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1902. NUMBER 9.

MARKS MANY HISTORIC SPOTS

Monuments and Tablets Erected on the Sites of Incidents Connected With the Great Sioux Outbreak.

The Minnesota Valley Statistical society has recently issued a pamphlet, historical and descriptive, of the monuments and tablets erected by the society in the Upper Minnesota valley, which is not only an interesting publication, but an important contribution to the history of the state. The society was organized at Morton, Renville county, in 1895, and its declared general purpose is the presentation of the authentic history of the Minnesota valley, including the preservation of historic sites and the commemoration of historic events, etc. The president of the society, Hon. Charles D. Gilfillan of Morgan, Redwood county, is an old and prominent citizen of the state, and the work of the organization, especially the incidental expenses, has been almost wholly under his patronage.

C. D. GILFILLAN.

The publication referred to was written by Maj. R. I. Holcombe, the society's historian. It describes the various monuments and tablets built by the society to preserve the sites of certain incidents and in honor of the devotion and important services of some of the characters, both whites and Indians, connected with the great Sioux Indian outbreak of the fall of 1862, in that part of the state, now embraced in Renville and Redwood counties.

According to the society's pamphlet, it is not generally understood, even by the citizens of Minnesota, that the violent outbreak and rebellion of the Sioux Indians in this state, in the fall of 1862, constituted in many respects the most formidable and important Indian war in American history. More Indians were engaged, more whites were killed, and more property was destroyed than in any other conflict or series of conflicts with the savages since the first settlement of the country.

In any former Indian wars not more, in the aggregate, than 500 white persons lost their lives. In the few days of the Minnesota massacre 868 men, women and children perished by actual count. Those killed whose remains were never found and the soldiers and citizens killed or mortally wounded in the hostile engagements with the Indians made the total death list number at least 950. The value of property destroyed was fully $1,000,000.

The massacres of Wyoming and Cherry Valley, which have been so often described, so befittingly commemorated in song and story and monument, and whose details are well known, are hardly to be compared in character and extent with the massacres of Sacred Heart and Beaver Creek, of which not one American in a hundred has ever heard. The defenses of New Ulm, Fort Ridgely and Birch Coulie were as gallant episodes as any that are recorded in the military annals of the Republic, and yet the American historian commonly gives them but the briefest mention, or omits them entirely from his pages.

The outbreak occurred in August, 1862, during a stirring and important period of the War of the Rebellion, when the attention of the country was engaged with the operations of the Union and Confederate armies in Virginia and Maryland, in Kentucky and Tennessee, and in Missouri and Arkansas. Writers and chroniclers of the time gave but passing attention and comment to what were alluded to as the "Indian troubles in Minnesota," and busied themselves with the greater events, involving the life of the nation.

The most important scene of the outbreak was at the Redwood Agency (or the "Lower Agency") of the Sioux, on the south bank of the Minnesota, in what is now Redwood county, two miles southeast of the village of Morton. There were two Sioux agencies, the Redwood and the Yellow Medicine, the latter situated near the confluence of the Yellow Medicine river with the Minnesota, and often called the Upper Agency. The Redwood agency was named for the little river about ten miles to the westward, or up the Minnesota from the Agency.

All about the former site of the Redwood Agency is classic ground. Here the great Indian reign of terror fairly commenced, and here, after it was suppressed, many of its participants were tried by a military commission for their crimes. Above and below, or westward and eastward, in the near neighborhood, were the Indian villages of the chiefs, Little Crow, Blue Earth, Traveling Hail, and Big Eagle to the west, and those of Wacouta, Wabasha, and Hushasha, from whence the sudden attack upon the unsuspecting white people of the Agency was made. At and in the vicinity of the Agency site, the Historical society has placed several monuments and tablets.

The first victim of the savage onslaught upon the Lower Agency was the most prominent of the entire outbreak, Hon. James W. Lynd. This gentleman was a native of Baltimore, born in 1830, but was reared and educated at Cincinnati. He had received a college education, and was a man of accomplishments and ability. Becoming interested in Indian studies, he came to Minnesota in 1853 and located among the Sioux. He thoroughly mastered the Indian language, and spent years in the study of the history and general character of the Sioux or Dakota tribe, and for some time prior to his death he had been engaged in revising for publication the manuscript of an elaborate work containing the results of his studies and researches. Under the circumstances, the greater part of this manuscript was lost. He was a man of versatile talents, had been an editor, lecturer, public speaker, and was a member of the Minnesota State senate in 1861. He was buried where he fell, in front of a trading house door, and the society has erected an appropriate monument over his grave.

In 1863, the Indian who killed Mr. Lynd was captured in what is now North Dakota by the scouts under Maj. Joseph R. Brown. His Indian name was Wnukon Wasechon Helyedin, meaning One Who Travels Like a Scared White Man,—or one who walks like a missionary. He was taken to Davenport, Iowa, where the other Indian prisoners were confined, and died in prison the following year.

PRESENT VIEW OF THE REDWOOD FERRY BATTLE GROUND.

Note — At the time of the battle the ferry rope ran between the figures 1 and 2. Capt. Marsh and his men were ambuscaded on the north side of the river on the ground shown immediately in the rear of figure 2.

The society marked with tablets and "markers" the former sites of trading houses at the Agency, the house where the Indians captured were tried for murder, rape and robbery, Chief Little Crow's house, and the site of Camp Pope, about two miles west of Redwood Falls.

The Lower Agency was located on the high bluff bank of the Minnesota river. A road had been graded down the bluff and led across the river to Fort Ridgely and the country below. The river was crossed by a ferry. The north ferry landing was the scene of the ambuscade of Capt. Marsh and his company (Company B, Fifth Minnesota Volunteers) on the afternoon of the first day of the outbreak, when the captain and twenty-three of his men were killed and five wounded. This affair is called in history the Battle of Redwood Ferry, and to mark the scene, the society erected a substantial granite monument with an appropriate inscription.

The society's pamphlet gives an interesting account of the deadly Indian ambuscade at Redwood Ferry. From this it seems that the startling news of the tragic scenes at the Lower Agency reached Fort Ridgely at about 10 o'clock on that day, (Aug. 18, 1862,) but the extent and formidable character of the great Indian uprising were not understood until several hours later. The messenger who bore the shocking tidings was J. C. Dickinson, the proprietor of a boarding house at the Agency, and who brought with him a wagon load of refugees, nearly all women and children. Capt. Marsh was in command of the fort, with his company (B, Fifth Minnesota,) as a garrison. Lieut. T. J. Sheehan, with Company C of the same regiment, had been dispatched to Fort Ripley, on the Upper Mississippi, near St. Cloud.

Sending a messenger with orders to Lieut. Sheehan, recalling him to Fort Ridgely and informing him that the Indians were "raising h—l at the Lower Agency," Capt. Marsh at once prepared to go to the scene of what seemed to be the sole locality of the troubles. He was not informed, and had no instinctive or derived idea of the magnitude of the outbreak. Leaving about twenty men under Lieut. T. P. Gere to hold the fort until Lieut. Sheehan's return, Capt. Marsh, with about fifty men of his company and the old Indian interpreter, Peter Quinn, set out for the Agency, distant about twelve miles—or, as the road then ran, perhaps fourteen miles—to the northwest. On leaving Fort Ridgely the captain and the interpreter were mounted on mules; the men were on foot, but the captain had directed that teams, with extra ammunition and empty wagons for the transportation of the men, should follow, and these wagons overtook the command "about three miles out."

In due time the little command came to the Redwood ferry, but there is confusion in the printed accounts as to the exact time. As the men were in wagons the greater part of the way, the distance, allowing for sundry halts, ought to have been compassed in four hours, at farthest. Half way across the bottom the captain ordered the men from the wagons and marched them on foot, perhaps a mile, to the ferry house and landing.

Meanwhile, on the way, the soldiers had met fifty fugitives from and seen the bodies of fourteen victims of the massacre; yet the commander, an officer of good judgment generally, and of some knowledge of the Indians, did not seem to comprehend the situation. The language of his dispatch to Lieut. Sheehan indicates that he believed the trouble was local and confined to the Redwood Agency. His conduct in marching straight forward, after he must have known that the uprising was, to some extent, at least, widespread, indicates his confidence in his strength to overcome any opposition he might meet. Peter Quinn, the old interpreter, with his forty years' experience in Minnesota, believed from the first receipt of the news that the danger was serious. On leaving Fort Ridgely with Capt. Marsh and his men, he said to Sutler B. H. Randall: "I am sure we are going into great danger. I do not expect to return alive." Then, with tears in his eyes, he continued: "Good-bye; give my love to all." Whether Quinn gave his opinions to Capt. Marsh, can never be known; if he did, their influence was ineffective.

When Capt. Marsh and his men reached the crest of Faribault's hill they saw to the southward, over two miles away on the prairie about the Agency, a number of mounted Indians. Of course, the Indians could and did see Marsh and his party. But knowledge of the coming of the soldiers had already reached the Indians, from marauders who had been down the valley engaged in dreadful work, and preparations were made to receive them. Scores of warriors, with bows and guns, repaired to the ferry landing, where it was known the party must come. Numbers crossed in the ferry boat to the north side of the river and concealed themselves in the willow to steady his men, to form them in line for defense, and to have them fire at least one volley. But now the Indians were in great numbers on the same side of the river, only a few yards away. They had secured possession of the log ferry house, from which they could fire as from a block house, and they were in the thickets all about. Many of them were naked, except as to breech clouts. Across the river, near the bank, were numbers behind the logs belonging to the Agency steam saw mill, and a circle of enemies was rapidly being completed about the little band.

While the conversation between White Dog and Interpreter Quinn was thickets near by. The boat was finally moored to the bank on the east or north side, "in apparent readiness for the command to use for its crossing, though the dead body of the ferryman had been found in the road." A tribute to this ferryman, who was a Frenchman named Hubert Millier, (though he is mentioned in some histories as Jacob Manley), and who stood to his post until he had passed over the last fugitive, is given in the booklet.

When the command reached the ferry landing, only one Indian could be seen. This was Shonka-ska, or White Dog, who was standing on the west bank of the river, in plain view. White Dog was considered a Christian, or civilized Indian. At one time he had been "Indian farmer" at the Lower Agency. He bore a good reputation in the country until the outbreak, and many yet assert that he has been misrepresented and unjustly accused. However, the military commission convicted him of disloyalty and treachery, and he was hung at Mankato, with thirty-seven others, in the following December.

A conversation in the Sioux language

HON. JAMES W. LYND.

was held between White Dog and Interpreter Quinn, Capt. Marsh suggesting the most of the questions put to the Indian through the interpreter. The surviving soldiers say that, as they understood the conversation, as it was interpreted by Mr. Quinn, White Dog assured Capt. Marsh that there was no immediate danger; that the Indians were willing, and were waiting to hold a council at the Agency to settle matters; and that the men could cross on the ferry boat in safety. [illegible]

While the conversation between White Dog and Interpreter Quinn was yet in progress, the latter exclaimed "Look out!" The next instant came a volley of bullets and some arrows from the concealed foe on the opposite bank of the river. They were armed chiefly with double-barreled shot guns loaded with "traders' balls," and their firing at the short distance was very destructive. Pierced with a dozen bullets, Interpreter Quinn was shot dead from his saddle at the first fire, and his body was well stuck with arrows. A dozen or more soldiers were killed outright and many wounded by the first volley.

Although the sudden and fierce attack by overwhelming numbers was most demoralizing, Capt. Marsh retained his presence of mind sufficiently yet in progress the latter exclaimed, "Look out!" The next instant came a volley of bullets and some arrows from the concealed foe on the opposite bank of the river. This was accompanied and followed by yells and whoops and renewed firing, this time from the Indians on both sides of the river. They were armed chiefly with double-barreled shotguns loaded with "traders' balls," and their firing at the short distance was very destructive. Pierced with a dozen bullets, Interpreter Quinn was shot dead from his saddle at the first fire, and his body was afterward well stuck with arrows. A dozen or more soldiers were killed out right and many wounded by the first volley.

Although the sudden and fierce attack by overwhelming numbers was most demoralizing, Capt. Marsh retained his presence of mind sufficiently to steady his men, to form them in line for defense, and to have them fire at least one volley. But now the Indians were in great numbers on the same side of the river, only a few yards away. They had secured possession of the log ferry house, from which they could fire as from a block house, and they were in the thickets all about. Many of them were naked except as to breech clouts. Across the river near the bank were numbers behind the logs belonging to the agency steam sawmill, and a circle of enemies was rapidly being completed about the little band.

Below the ferry a few rods was a dense willow thicket, from two to ten rods in width and running down the north or east bank of the river for a mile or more. Virtually cutting or forcing their way through the Indians, Capt. Marsh and fourteen of his men succeeded in reaching this thicket, from which they kept up a fight for about two hours. The Indians poured volleys at random from all sides into the thick covert, but the soldiers lay close to the ground, and but few of them were struck. Two men, named Sutherland and Blodgett, were shot through the body and remained where they fell until after dark, when they crawled out, and finding an old canoe, floated down the river and reached Fort Ridgely the next day. Of a party of five that had taken refuge in another thicket three were killed before dark. One of the survivors, Thomas Parsley, remained in the thicket with his dead comrades until late at night when he too escaped and made his way to the fort.

Gradually the imperiled soldiers worked their way through the thick grass and brush of the jungle in which they were concealed until they had gone some distance east of the ferry. Meantime they had kept up a fight, using their ammunition carefully, but under the circumstances almost ineffectually. The Indians did not attempt to charge them or "rush" their position, for this was not the Indian style of warfare in such a contingency.

About 4 o'clock p. m., when the ammunition was reduced to not more than four rounds to a man, Capt. Marsh ordered his men to swim the river and try and work their way down on the west side. He entered the river first and swam to about the center and there went down with a cramp. Some of the men went to his assistance, but were unable to save him. He was unwounded and died from the effects of the paralyzing cramps which seized him. Some days afterward his body was found in a drift, miles below where it sank.

After the drowning of Capt. Marsh, the command, then consisting of fifteen men, devolved upon Sergeant John F. Bishop. The men then resumed their slow and toilsome progress toward the fort. Five of them, including the sergeant, were wounded, one of them, Private Ole Svendson, so badly that he had to be carried. The Indians, for some reason, did not press the attack further, after the drowning of Capt. Marsh, and all of them, except Ezekiel Rose, who was wounded and lost his way, reached Fort Ridgely that night. Rose wandered off into the country, and was finally picked up near Hendrickson. Five miles from the fort, Bishop sent forward Privates James Dunn and W. B. Hutchinson, with information of the disaster, to Lieut. Gere.

The loss of the whites was one officer (Capt. Marsh) drowned, twenty-four men—including twenty-three soldiers and Interpreter Quinn—killed, and five men wounded. The Indians had one man killed, a young warrior of the Wah-pa-koota band, named To-wa-to, or All Blue. When the band lived at or near Faribault this To-wa-to was known for his fondness for fine dress and for his gallantries. He was a dandy and a Lothario, but he was no coward.

The affair at Redwood Ferry was most influential upon the character of the Indian outbreak. It was a complete Indian victory. A majority of the soldiers had been killed; their guns, ammunition, and equipments had fallen into the hands of the victors, the first attempt to interfere with the savage program had been signally repulsed, all with the loss of but one man. Those of the savages who had favored the war from the first were jubilant over what had been accomplished and confident of the final and general result. There had been but the feeblest resistance on the part of the settlers who had been murdered that day, and the defense made by the soldiers had amounted to nothing. There was the general remark in the Indian camps that the whites, with all of their vaunted bravery, were "as easy to kill as sheep."

If Capt. Marsh had succeeded in fighting his way across the river and into the agency, thereby dispersing the savages, it is probable that the great red rebellion would have been suppressed in less than half the time which was actually required. The friendly Indians would doubtless have been encouraged and stimulated to open and even aggressive manifestations of loyalty; the dubious and the timid would have been awed into inactivity and quiescence. As it was, the disaster to the little band of soldiers fanned the fires of the rebellion into a great conflagration of murder and rapine. Redwood Ferry was a miniature Bull Run in its effects.

Didn't Turn Out the Gas.

Senator Ellsworth tells the following story of a Western farmer who was visiting Albany for the first time:

"While standing in the lobby of the state capitol at Albany, talking to some friends a few weeks ago, I was introduced by one of my colleagues to a typical Western farmer, who had just arrived in the city the night before, and was being shown around the capitol building. The old fellow had never been in a large town in his life, and after telling me in his own quaint way of some of the sights and places he had seen in the city the previous night, he suddenly turned and said to me in somewhat confidential tones:

"'Say, before leaving home I had read about them fellers that blow out the gas and get suffocated, and I warn't fooled by that darned thing up in my room in the hotel. I seen a light in a glass bottle hanging on the end of a string, and I couldn't put the durned thing out. So I took the knot out of the string and put the bottle in the bureau drawer, and what yer think, senator? Blest if 'twarn't burning when I got up this morning.'"—New York Times.

DUPLICATES OF UNIQUE BOOKS.

Several Cases Where They Managed to Turn Up Within Very Short Time.

"There is, perhaps, nothing more certain to turn up than a second copy of a 'unique' book. For over four centuries the now famous 1493 edition of the Malermi Bible (Venice) was as completely lost as if it had never existed. Within about a month of each other two copies were discovered, one by Mr. Voynich in Italy and the other by the Duc de Rivoli in Vienna. Quite recently a third copy has been unearthed by a Continental book seller, and doubtless other examples will be found in due course. A fine copy is worth at least $1,500. The peculiarity of the 1493 issue is that many of the wood cuts are quite different from those in the 1490 and 1494 editions; four of these beautiful illustrations are reproduced in facsimile in Mr. Voynich's 'Second List of Books.'"—The Athenaeum.

Defacing London.

No more completely wanton innovation has been made in our time than the epidemic of tawdry gilt lettering upon the street fronts of London. The rapidity with which it has spread indicates the abject state of public opinion upon architecture. Twenty years ago a universal outcry would have been raised if any one had dared to propose spoiling whole streets with this frippery; now nobody cares. But the question arises, whether among the liberties of Englishmen that of defacing a great capital can reasonably be included.—London Builders' Journal.

King Edward's Kind Heart.

One of the kindest things the king ever did was some years ago, when he heard officially, before it was publicly announced, of the very sad accidental death in India of a young officer whose family he knew. His majesty was so afraid that the poor mother might hear of it suddenly, or see it in the papers the next day, that he sent for the boy's uncle that same evening and dispatched him into the country to break the news to his people.—The Scotsman.

HIS MEMORY LIVES

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF THE DEATH OF M'KINLEY IS OBSERVED.

SPECIAL EXERCISES ARE HELD

EVERY CITY, TOWN AND HAMLET PAYS TRIBUTE TO HIS MEMORY.

WIDOW'S PROGRAM NOT VARIED

ALL DAYS TO MRS. M'KINLEY HAVE BEEN MEMORIAL DAYS.

St. Paul, Sept. 15.—Yesterday, the first anniversary of the death of President McKinley, was observed throughout the length and breadth of the land, and apparently in every city, town and hamlet there was a memorial gathering of some nature.

The attendance at the various churches where memorial services were held was larger than usual and there were special programs in many churches, including the favorite musical numbers of the martyred president. Appropriate exercises were also held in the benevolent and other public institutions. Portraits of McKinley, festooned with crepe or flowers, were seen, and in many cases the floral tributes were as elaborate as on Easter. The death of the president was the basis of all the services and many were the eulogies pronounced. Churches of every sect and creed joined in observing the day and paying a tribute to the memory of the departed president.

In His Home City.

Canton, Ohio, Sept. 15.—There was a general observance of McKinley memorial day in the city which claimed him as its own. From almost every pulpit there was reference in prayer or in address to him and his work. His favorite hymns were used. The address that attracted most attention here was that given by Judge William R. Day, former secretary of state and a friend and adviser of McKinley for many years. The address was delivered in the First M. E. church, of which McKinley was a member and in which the public funeral was held Sept. 19, 1901. Although deeply conscious of the fact that it was just one year ago that her beloved husband died, Mrs. McKinley did not vary the program followed by her for several months. All days to her have been memorial days. Her usual trip to West Lawn cemetery was taken in the forenoon and she laid evergreens and flowers on the casket that contains the remains of the nation's martyred chief. Mrs. Garrett A. Hobart, who is her guest, went with her into the McKinley tomb and also laid a boquet of flowers on the coffin.

Displeases President Roosevelt.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 15. — Rev. Dr. Homer Washburn, rector of Christ Episcopal church, in the presence of President Roosevelt and his family and a congregation that filled the church to overflowing, yesterday preached a sermon in which he devoted considerable attention to "possibility of danger coming by and through the unguarded use of great wealth concentrated in the hands of a few," and of which he also stated that "if ever circumstances indicated that one was placed providentially in the executive chair of the nation, then circumstances that attended the promotion of Mr. Roosevelt so indicated." The first part of the rector's sermon was devoted to an eulogy upon the life and character of the martyred president, and to this President Roosevelt listened attentively. But when in the second part of the sermon Mr. Washburn took occasion to speak of the possibility of danger coming through certain trusts, and also to laud the president, Mr. Roosevelt became restive. His face colored and he plainly showed signs of disapproval of the rector's utterances. At the conclusion of the sermon he turned to Mrs. Roosevelt, who sat beside him, and whispered: "He shouldn't have done that."

After the services the president stated that he had requested Mr. Washburn to hold memorial services, but that he had no knowledge of what the sermon contained, nor had he any intimation that the rector would refer to the trusts or to himself.

Where the Tragedy Occurred.

Buffalo, Sept. 15.—The anniversary of the death of William McKinley was universally observed in this city. The pastors in all the churches paid tribute to the memory of the martyred president and the congregations sang his favorite hymns. "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Lead Kindly Light" were sung by the worshippers in small chapels and missions and gloriously intoned on the great organs in the larger churches, seemingly with special significance and fervor. In the afternoon a public meeting was held in the city convention hall.

Sang His Favorite Hymns.

Cincinnati, Sept. 15. — McKinley memorial services were held in all the churches of this vicinity yesterday. The attendance was larger than usual. There were special programs in many churches, including the favorite musical numbers of the martyred president. No day was ever more generally observed in sacred or secular circles here.

Specially Observed in New York.

New York, Sept. 15.—The first anniversary of the death of President William McKinley was specially observed in a large number of the churches of this city, while it was referred to by the pastors of almost all the others.

ROOSEVELT'S NEXT TRIP.

His Western Itinerary Being Prepared by Secretary Cortelyou.

Washington, Sept. 15. — Secretary Cortelyou is in Washington engaged in making out the itinerary of the president's Western trip, which will begin Friday next. Milwaukee will be the first stop in the Northwest where the president will leave the train. He will make a speech in Milwaukee and then proceed to St. Paul, where on Tuesday morning he will address the convention of the American League of Civic Improvement. The president will make a run through Minnesota and South Dakota, then down to Sioux City, Denison, the home of Secretary Shaw; Omaha and Leavenworth, Kan., back through Iowa, stopping at Clarinda, the home of Representative Hepburn; Des Moines and several other places in the state, and then to St. Louis on Oct. 1. From St. Louis he will go to Springfield, Ill., to attend the Illinois State fair, and then to Chicago for a day in that city and to attend a banquet in the evening. From Chicago the president will return to Oyster Bay. The trip will take two weeks and will be the most extensive taken by President Roosevelt.

VACCINATE WITH MILK.

Minneapolis Woman Tells How Law Is Evaded.

St. Paul, Sept. 15.—The citizens who are opposed to vaccination held an open meeting in Central hall, Sixth and Seventh streets, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Lora C. Little of Minneapolis made an address in which she stated that some of the doctors in her city vaccinated people with milk or water instead of virus. They did not believe in the efficacy of vaccination, and use mild and inoffensive fluids simply to satisfy the prejudices and caprices of those that insist on being inoculated. Mrs. Little also stated that there are doctors in Minneapolis who give certificates of vaccination to the children of parents who objected to the practice, while in fact the children had not been vaccinated. It was decided to hold another meeting Friday night. A committee was appointed to wait on the charter commission with the view of having the commission submit an amendment to the charter doing away with compulsory vaccination for school children.

BRIDEGROOM GOES CRAZY.

Wealthy Man Does Queer Things and Then Jumps Into the River.

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 15. — Miss Phoebe Grant Stephens and Charles Rabson, the latter of Atlin, B. C., were married at the home of the bride in this city Friday evening. Mrs. Rabson is the daughter of the late William Grant Stephens, a cousin of Gen. U. S. Grant, and has taught school in this city and at Elkhart, Ind. Her husband, who journeyed 4,000 miles to be married, is said to be the owner of two of the best gold mines in the Atlin district. About 3 o'clock yesterday morning he aroused his wife and despite her fears of this strange action, forced her to go out in the street with him. Forcing his way into a neighbor's house, he was knocked down. From thence the crazed man made his way to the river and jumped in. The body has not yet been recovered. He is said to have had a large sum of money on his person.

ACT OF FIENDS.

Nebraska Woman Assaulted and Murdered by Tramps.

Beatrice, Neb., Sept. 15.—Mrs. Kate Fourneil, living with her parents near Steinhauer, was Friday night criminally assaulted by tramps, who then murdered her and dragged her body into the yard, where they set fire to her clothing. When found her clothing was entirely burned from the body. The woman had been left in charge of the home by her mother and brother, who had gone to town, and who discovered her dead body when they returned Saturday. The men had evidently broken open the house, which they looted, after committing the crime. A pack of bloodhounds has been put on the trail.

CHOKE A BABE.

Strangled to Death and Swathed in Clothes Soaked in Acid.

San Francisco, Sept. 15.—The horrible death of an infant was reported to the police by the matron of a foundling home on Golden Gate avenue. A stylish carriage drove up to the home last night and a well dressed man deposited the child in the front yard. The man hurried back to the carriage, which also contained a woman, and the coachman lashed up his horses furiously. The babe had been choked insensible and its body was swathed in clothes saturated with gin and carbolic acid. The little one lived but a short time.

NEELY FIGHTS FOR CASH.

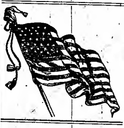
WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1902.



St. Paul, 3 p. m.—Republican congressional nominees:

1st district—Tawney.
2nd " —McCleary.
3rd " —Undecided.
4th " —Stevens
5th " —Fletcher.
6th " —Buckman.
7th " —Young.
8th " —J. Adam Bede.
9th " —H. Steenerson.

John Lind nominated for congress in Minneapolis district on democratic ticket.

The returns from the primary election so far indicate that Hon. Halvor Steenerson is the republican nominee for congress to represent the Ninth district. The opposition concedes his nomination by a handsome margin and there seems no room for doubt.

Hon. Halvor Steenerson has made a winning campaign against heavy odds and has won on his merits alone. He will go before the voters at the general election this fall untrammeled by any trust, corporation or monopolistic aid or influence. His platform is clear and defines absolutely where he stands regarding institutions of that nature.

He has stated openly that he is against railroad combines, trusts and everything of that kind which are so directly opposed to the public welfare. He is the candidate of the people and The Spectator predicts his election by one of the largest majorities ever known in the district.

If our memory is not badly at fault the editor of the Thief River Falls News made a poor guess as to the vote Valentine would receive in St. Hilaire. We believe Bro. Eastman really believed what he was told by some "workers" here, but then he didn't know which party was being "worked."

The primary election is over and St. Hilaire really need not feel ashamed of the vote cast.

A Languid Japanese Lady.

In a recent address in Tokyo a prominent Japanese educator said: "The indolence of Japanese ladies is something amazing. I know a daughter of a certain peer, but a brand new one, and this young lady's indolence is really beyond the idea of ordinary mortals. She will not even open her mouth of herself. As soon as the time to retire to her bed arrives she issues her order, 'Now I will retire,' and at once three or four maids spread the underquilts, help her, or, rather, make her, for she simply stands like a doll, to change her clothes, and at last the girl, swaddled in her night garment, is put to bed just like a person suffering from a serious illness, and so the poor thing goes to sleep and releases her maids from their trouble till the morning, when the daily routine is resumed. First of all she issues to the maids waiting in her anteroom this extraordinary order, 'I shall get up now,' and then the process exactly the reverse of that of the night before is forthwith commenced by the girls. Day after day this routine is gone through, and the spoiled child of the proud upstart peer forces herself from her mistaken notion as to dignity to lead the life of an invalid and to cripple the normal development of her body."—Chicago News.

Fish Proverbs.

"I have other fish to fry" one says in declining a task. "A pretty kittle of fish," says another, in designating a pretty bad mess. The "kittle" is the tackle of the fish boom, which may easily get into a sad snarl. "There are other fish in the sea," says the rejected suitor. "Mute as a fish," "Dead as a herring," "As uneasy as a fish out of water," "To fish for compliments," are among the best known figurative expressions referring to the finny tribe. "Very like a whale" we may refer at least to Shakespeare's time ("Hamlet," iii, 2). "White as whalebone" was coined when walrus ivory was taken for whale's bone. "The shark flies the feather" is a sailor's saying, indicating the fact that this voracious fish will not touch a bird. The use of the term "land shark" is not confined to seamen by any means. Shakespeare makes use of another nautical expression in "Twelfth Night." I. 8.

ALIASES OF THE PEANUT.

There Are Many Names For the Toothsome Palate Tickler.

Considering its universal popularity and excellent standing in agricultural circles, it is remarkable how many aliases there are under which the peanut travels. Whenever it is introduced to a new community the toothsome offering of the sod adopts a new name and comes forth with an additional sobriquet which makes it almost unrecognizable to its old acquaintances. If the "edible fruit"—as the dictionaries call it—had ever done anything to be ashamed of, the public might understand, but as things are the eccentricities of peanut nomenclature are absolutely astonishing.

Here in Virginia we designate our little friend principally as the peanut, but quite often we likewise allude to him as a "ground pea" and occasionally as a "goober." Over in England they call the same fruit ground nut, while it is variously known elsewhere as "earth nut," "Manila nut," "juront" and "pindar." The scientific patronymic, as we understand it, is Arachis hypogæa, and the family belongs to the genus of leguminous plants.

But, be its name what it may, a peanut is a peanut the world over, so far as its virtues go, and few are the human palates which decline to receive an introduction to it.—Richmond Dispatch.

A Different Sort of Leather.

A Pennsylvania physician tells a story about his servant which reminds one in a vague way of the "skinny side out and the woolly side in" rhyme. He had just hired a servant who, says the Philadelphia Telegraph, had some of the "ould dart" still clinging to her boots.

One morning he noticed his office windows were rather dirty, and, calling Bridget, he instructed her to clean them before he returned. At the same time he told her that he would stop and purchase a new chamois skin and send it home, and with this she was to clean the windows.

After he had gone his rounds he returned to his office. Glancing at the windows, he found them thickly streaked with grease. He called Bridget, and the following colloquy took place:

"Bridget, didn't I tell you to clean the windows?"

"Yes, sor."

"And didn't I tell you to use the new chamois?"

"Yes, sor."

"Well, did you use it?"

"Sure, I did sor."

"Let me see the chamois," said the doctor, and Bridget promptly brought it. Then for the first time he learned that his wife had left the house a half hour before him and had sent home some tripe.

Black and White.

Every crow is said to think its own nestling the whitest, but a white cat that had four kittens, of which three were white and the fourth was black, gave the first place in her affections to Sooty. Once they were all brought into the drawing room to be "shown off." Besides the humans the room contained a great Newfoundland dog. Hitherto cat and dog had been on friendly terms, but now pussy showed much anxiety lest the dog might harm her black pet especially. At last she seized it by the neck and bore it beneath the lowest piece of furniture, where the dog could not possibly crawl, but she merely mewed to the others to follow her as best they could. The black kitten owed all this care to its color, more happy in this respect than the black sheep which is said to be in every flock.—Exchange.

Holland.

Holland, known as North and South Holland, forms part of the northern part of the Netherlands. These provinces are composed of land rescued from the sea and defended by immense dikes. Holland was inhabited by the Batvi in the time of Cæsar, who made a league with them. It became part of Gallia Belgica and afterward of the kingdom of Austria. From the tenth to the fifteenth century it was governed by counts under the German emperors. Holland was at one time a Dutch republic. It was created a kingdom in 1806, and Louis Bonaparte, father of Napoleon III., was declared king.

Diplomacy.

"I always endeavor," said the matrimonial philosopher, "to take the wrong side of an inconsequential argument."

"With what object in view?" he was naturally asked.

Work That the Heart Does.

The work of the heart is the circulation of the life giving blood throughout the body. With each stroke or beat of the heart it projects something like six ounces of blood into the bodily conduits, throwing it for a distance of nine feet. That it does sixty-nine times a minute, 4,140 times each hour, 99,360 times in a day, 36,266,400 times in a year and 2,540,337,120 times in a lifetime of seventy years. The blood is propelled by the heart nine feet each beat, 207 yards each minute, seven miles an hour, 169 miles in a day, 61,817 miles in a year and 4,330,120 miles in the seventy years.

The total force exerted by the heart every twenty-four hours has been calculated to be equal to 124 foot tons—that is, if the whole force expended by the heart in twenty-four hours were gathered into one huge stroke such a power would lift 124 tons one foot off the ground. This being the daily force, that exerted in a year would be equal to 45,260 foot tons and that in a lifetime of seventy years 3,170,303. Such is the enormous amount of work performed by the human heart, which only weighs eleven ounces and is about the size of the closed fist.

Sailors' Curious Pets.

It has been said of the jackie sailor boy that he is so passionately fond of pets he must have something to love, if it is "only a cockroach in a 'baccy box." This statement was founded on fact, for one of the most remarkable pets of an English ship was a monstrous cockroach. He was four inches long and one inch broad.

One of the sailors had tamed him and built for him a cage with a little kennel in the corner of it. This insect prodigy learned to recognize his master's voice, and when he heard him call would hurry out from his kennel in response.

Among other odd pets that have been beloved by English sailors was a seal, who had a tank residence on board and a daily round of pleasure and duty, his pleasure seven meals a day, his duty a bath after each meal. Another was a deer, who would take a quid of tobacco with so much delight that the fellow feeling aroused by his appreciative taste made him a general favorite.

According to Formula.

Judge Pennypacker was once asked by his brother Harry during a session of court for the loan of $5. Harry walked to the desk and whispered the request in the judge's ear. The latter, looking down over the top of his glasses without the suggestion of a smile, said loud enough to be heard throughout the room:

"Put your application in writing and present it to the court in a proper manner."

Mr. Pennypacker, thinking the judge's insistence upon regularity to be merely regard for the dignity of the court, wrote out the request and handed it to the clerk of the court, who in turn passed it to the bench. The judge read it quietly and seriously and then interrupted the pending trial long enough to say:

"Application for a loan of $5 made to this court is received and refused."—Philadelphia Times.

Stopped For Once.

A citizen from the frontier, who never had been in Washington before, was visiting a friend in the nation's capital and was taken one day to the gallery of the senate while an important measure was under discussion.

A senator was delivering a long, prosy and apparently aimless speech, and the visitor soon grew tired of it.

"Why doesn't he say something worth listening to?" he whispered to his friend.

"Oh, he's merely talking against time."

"What's the good of that?" asked the other, aghast. "Time goes on just the same, doesn't it?"

"I suppose it does," replied his friend, looking at his watch and yawning; "but it doesn't seem to."

His Folded Arms.

"Madge, Harry asked me to be his wife last night."

"Oh, I am so delighted!" replied her friend. "How did it happen?"

"Well, you see, he just asked me, and I said 'Yes,' and then he stood up and folded his arms."

"Well, I never! Was he not more interested than that? Whatever did you do at such treatment?"

"What could I do? You see, I was in his arms when he folded them!"

Saxon State Dinners.

At Saxon dinners slices of bread were the substitutes for plates, and these generally went into the alms basket afterward. Grandees were treated to a silver platter placed beneath the bread, which last in course of time became discarded as people came to recognize the superior advantages of metal and pewter.

A Wealthy Citizen.

"That man Moneybags has so much money he doesn't know what to do with it."

"Indeed. How much has he?"

"Well, I don't know exactly, but he's got so much he doesn't have to endow colleges to get his name in the paper."—Baltimore News.

Sincerity.

Clerk—I would like to get off early, sir, as my wife wants me to do some odd jobs around the house while it is light enough.

Manager—Can't possibly do it.

Clerk—Thank you, sir. You are very kind.

A Diagnosis.

Myer—I wonder what causes concussion of the brain.

Ryder—A collision between two trains of thought, I suppose.

The Crookston papers announce that Miss Henrietta Londe, sister of Rev. A. M. Lunde, will be married on the 24th inst. to Dr. H. Holte, of Crookston. The bride to be was a general favorite in St. Hilaire during her residence here, and the groom is one of Crookston's leading medical practitioners, who enjoys the esteem and respect of all who know him. May all happiness be theirs.

Vote for St. Hilaire's most popular lady and cast your ballots for the lady of your choice at R. H. Duntley's confectionery store. The James McIntosh Co., of Minneapolis, having appointed R. H. Duntley sole agent for their famous confections will give away absolutely free, a beautiful five-pound box of their choicest bon bons and chocolates to the most popular lady. For further information call at Mr. Duntley's confectionery store.

Dr. F. A. Lanctot, ophthalmologist, who recently opened offices at Crookston, is a regular graduate of McCormick Optical college, Chicago. This school teaches that 80 per cent of all so-called diseases are not diseases at all, but are functional derangements, due wholly or in part to errors of refraction in the eyes and that no medicine is needed other than a correction of the defect coupled with proper rest, diet, etc., all natural rational propositions which have been proven time and again in practice.

Council Proceedings.

Special meeting of the village council held at the village hall September 15, 1902.

STEENERSON WINS!

The Crookston Statesman is Conceded the Nomination for Congress.

Crookston, Sept. 17, 2 p.m.---125 precincts including all county seats and large towns give Steenerson a plurality of 1200. Steenerson proved very strong in southern part of district. Grindeland practically concedes Steenerson's nomination.

Red Lake Falls, 2:30 p. m.—Steenerson carried Red Lake Falls by good majority.

Red Lake county almost even between Steenerson and Grindeland. Final result doubtful.

For county offices the following are nominated:

J. J. Weeks, clerk of court, rep.

Chas. Sampson, sheriff, rep.

W. J. Kelly, sheriff, dem.

Thos. A. Crompe, register of deeds, rep.

Jas. A. Wilson, supt. of schools, rep.

L. C. Simons, representative, rep.

O. H. Peters, auditor, rep.

Thos. Germo. Co. attorney, rep.

Jas. McIntyre, judge of probate, rep.

W. C. Smiley, Co. surveyor, rep.

Swedback leads for state senator.

The republican voters of the Ninth district turned out en masse yesterday to select, at the primary election, the men whom they wished to represent them in the various public offices. The fight for the congressional nomination was the centre of interest, and was one of the hardest contests ever known in the history of the state of Minnesota.

Of the five candidates in the field the contest lay between Hon. H. Steenerson, of Crookston; A. Grindeland, of Warren, and E. G. Valentine, of Breckenridge. All of these candidates used their best endeavors to land the nomination, and to their credit be it said, all of them avoided anything unjust or ungentlemanly during the campaign. There was nothing in the line of dirty politics and each one today stands higher in the public estimation than if their tactics had been different.

The returns so far received show that Hon. Halvor Steenerson, of Crookston, is the successful candidate. His nomination is conceded by the opposition and the party could not have chosen a better man.

The city of Crookston paid Mr. Steenerson a handsome tribute as is evinced by the following vote:

CITY OF CROOKSTON.

Steenerson	518
Grindeland	72
Valentine	55
Comstock	4
Smith	4

In the village of St. Hilaire the total number of votes cast was 134, divided as follows: Republican 100, Democratic 19, Populist 5, women's votes 10.

The vote on the republican ticket makes a good showing for the reason that the keen competition among the congressional aspirants brought out every available vote. Hard work was done for the three leading candidates, much of it being strictly quiet but in a measure effective. Halvor Steenerson succeeded, however, in getting a clear majority over all his competitors.

For state senator W. F. Street carried the town by a nice plurality, although his opponents used their best efforts. Street's friends were loyal to him as the vote proves.

For the various other offices competition was not so keen here but we give the vote in detail, as follows:

Bowling and Bowling.

On Saturday evening a team of the Red Lake Falls expert bowlers came up to try conclusions with a local team on the bowling alley here. The visitors arrived about 8 o'clock and both teams started bowling at once—for practice and comfort. The game proper commenced at the bowling alley at 9:30 p. m. and the visitors got defeated badly. It was real bad, because both teams should have lost according to the score which is as follows:

FIRST GAME.

RED LAKE FALLS		ST. HILAIRE
Koke	126	Cook	135
Bray	118	Rogers	133
LePlante	121	Mucke	120
Tessier	152	Henney	146

A Japanese Pierpont Morgan.

The richest man in Japan, Baron Eiichi Shibusawa, is at present in this country studying our industrial methods. He is president of the largest banking houses of his country; he is interested in five railroads, a director of stock companies capitalized to 200,000,000 yen, president of the largest steamship line, and owner of a ship yard, besides hundreds of smaller concerns. He and Pierpont Morgan, to handle their vast business with the greatest ease, need golden grain belt beer to rest their nerves and build up their health. It is a delicious tonic and nerve food. Keep it on hand and use it regularly. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

MILWAUKEE PEOPLE

Could Hardly Believe It. A Prominent Woman Saved From Death by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suppose a large number of people who read of my remarkable cure will hardly believe it; had I not experienced it myself, I know that I should not.

MRS. SADIE E. KOCH.

"I suffered for months with troubles peculiar to women which gradually broke down my health and my very life. I was nearly insane with pain at times, and no human skill I consulted in Milwaukee could bring me relief.

"My attention was called to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; the first bottle brought relief, and the second bottle an absolute cure. I could not believe it myself, and felt sure it was only temporary, but blessed fact, I have now been well for a year, enjoy the best of health, and cannot in words express my gratitude. Sincerely yours, SADIE E. KOCH, 124 10th St., Milwaukee, Wis."—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over diseases of women.

Women should remember that they are privileged to consult Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., about their illness, entirely free.

Were Men Scarce Then?

The advantages of the modern Portia are counterbalanced by an equally large number of difficulties that confront the woman lawyer. Mayor Low's secretary, James B. Reynolds, is still telling his friends a little fling he had recently at Miss Rosalie Loew, the attorney for the Legal Aid Society. Miss Loew was conducting a hearing before the mayor and called one morning to tell Mr. Reynolds she could not attend the afternoon session.

"I've got to go over to Ludlow street and get a man out of jail," she said by way of explanation.

"Oh," exclaimed Mr. Reynolds, in grave surprise. "Are they really getting as scarce as that?—New York Times.

Buzzard Likes Blue.

It has just been discovered, presumably by a French scientist, that the miniature buzzard commonly known in New Jersey and vicinity as the mosquito has a color sense so extremely keen that it exerts a great influence on its life and methods. It appears that rapacious insect has a pronounced preference for dark blue and a decided aversion to yellow. This fact should set the fashion in pajama color, and lead the bald headed Jerseyman to adopt the practice of incasing his dome of thought in a saffron envelope, like that of a ham, at night. It should also win benisons and shekels of gold and silver for the scientist who has discovered that the mystic minstrel of the marsh and mere is not color blind.

Followed Wrong Funeral.

They are telling a good story on a pair who were to have attended a funeral the past week. The pair got into the procession at the rear, and in going down Front street became thirsty, and stopped at a saloon to get a glass of beer. They thought that they could easily catch up with the cortege again, and so they ordered another glass each. Finally, they whipped up, and, as they supposed, soon were plodding on the tail-end of the procession. Now, it happened that they were following another funeral entirely, and this one turned into Mount Calvary. When they discovered their mistake they whipped up again and hustled for Green Lawn, but when they arrived the burial was over. The couple had to explain, and there is where they made a mistake.—Columbus Dispatch.

English as She Is Written.

The following paragraph is from a Korean newspaper, published in English: "Seoul, Korea, May 23, 1902.—Lately the police headquarters ordered to forbid the servants, etc., to run the horses fastly on the big streets as they sometimes pressed the children down and hurted them on the ground, and the police stopped a mapoo running a horse hardly on its back, but a number of soldiers came along quickly and captured the police away."—St. James Gazette.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

One cannot have everything in this world," said Mrs. Van Vorst. "One wants soup, and one wants salt in one's soup and occasionally there is a pinch too much. Still, a fact is a fact, and duty is duty, and one must eat one's soup, even if it is too salt.—Lippincott's.

NOT A RAY OF HOPE

STRIKE SITUATION GIVES NO PROMISE OF EARLY SETTLEMENT.

BOTH SIDES STILL REMAIN FIRM

THIS WEEK CONCEDED TO BE MOST CRITICAL SINCE STRIKE BEGAN.

PREPARING TO START MINES

FEARING INTERFERENCE THE SHERIFF IS CALLED UPON FOR PROTECTION.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 15.—For the first time in over a month there is not a single rainbow in sight anywhere on all the strike horizon.

What is more, it does not look as though there were a single peg left on which to hang one, unless it might be something the president himself might say or that somebody said he had said. But even this would have to be something pretty definite and specific to inspire the strikers with much hope.

For the first time since the strike began, nearly five months ago, Mr. Mitchell occupies the center of the stage alone and unsupported. All eyes are fixed upon him and on him alone for a hint as to what the next move will be. That this week is one of the most critical of any since the great struggle began is generally accepted as beyond question. Every illusion and delusion which has served to into the belief that the coal operators would concede to compromise something is now gone. Strikers and operators are face to face on precisely the same grounds on which they stood last spring when the strike was declared.

There are persistent rumors afloat here that the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company will to-day post notices at their forty-eight collieries in the Pottsville region offering the miners concessions to go to work. It is stated on seemingly good authority that a slight advance of wages will be offered.

Supt. Barnard of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western company's collieries in the Wyoming region last evening notified Sheriff Jacobs that additional men would be put to work to-day at the collieries which resumed operations last week and probably one or two more

Would Be Started Up.

Supt. Barnard fears that increased activity at the mines may cause interference upon the part of outside parties, and he requests the sheriff to furnish ample protection for the workmen. Sheriff Jacobs says he does not expect an outbreak, but will have a large force of deputies at hand to send any place in the region where trouble should occur.

President Mitchell is still silent on the conference held with Gov. Stone at Harrisburg on Saturday. He said last evening that there was no change in the strike situation.

To-day will begin the nineteenth week of the strike. The date on which senator Platt predicted that the strike would end has passed and the hope which was installed into the people in this locality because of that prediction has been succeeded by a feeling that the end is still far off.

Non-Unionist Killed.

Tamaqua, Pa., Sept. 15.—By the accidental discharge of a rifle in the hands of Hugh Black, a deputy in the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company's No. 4 stockade, near Nesquehoning, Saturday night, Paul Haulick, a non-union man, was instantly killed. Coroner Febler held an inquest yesterday. A verdict of accidental death was rendered.

KILLED IN THE STREET.

Tragedy the Outgrowth of the Union Pacific Strike.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 15.—Earl Caldwell, a machinist who recently came here from Chicago, was killed in the street here early yesterday. The tragedy is an outgrowth of the Union Pacific strike. Caldwell and another strikebreaker, who came into the city from the shops, were set upon by six men and terribly beaten. Caldwell's companion escaped, but when help came in answer to Caldwell's cries he was unconscious. He died soon afterward.

THOUGHT HIM A BURGLAR.

New Jersey Youth Shoots and Kills a Friend.

East Orange, N. J., Sept. 15.—Edward G. Taylor, nineteen years old, mistook his friend, Clarence White, an electrician twenty-one years old, for a burglar in the residence of Dr. Tifft Breckwith at 60 South Arlington avenue, shortly before 1 o'clock this morning and shot him through the right breast. White died almost instantly.

Mysterious Tragedy.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Ethel B. Dingle, a very pretty girl, lies dead from a wound in her throat while Leland Dorr Kent is in the homeopathic hospital, his throat also slashed, but not fatally. Kent's statement to the coroner has not been made public, but he claims that the girl wounded him and then killed herself. His story is doubted.

Burning Gusher Goes Out.

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 15. — The burning gusher went out of its own accord yesterday and last night the oil field was in darkness. It is believed the well choked itself up and that it will have to be cleaned before it will again produce oil.

Stop McGovern-Corbett Fight.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 15—Gov. Beckham yesterday directed Attorney General Pratt to proceed with legal proceedings to stop the McGovern-Corbett prize fight at Louisville.

Crop Conditions Are the Best.

According to the weekly crop report issued by the Northern Pacific the excellent condition throughout the state and Northwest will continue.

The cold weather and light frosts of the past week have not done any serious damage, except on the Dakota division, where late flax and vegetables suffered slightly.

Fall plowing is well under way and the potato crop promises to be a big one. The cereals are all coming up to the bright promises of the earlier reports.

Instant Relief from Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

Here is a case: Mr. T. Shepherd of Whitburn, Sunderland, Ohio, says: "My wife suffered severely from rheumatism, and neuralgia. She could not get one moment's rest and was nearly crazed with pain. Obtained instant relief and a permanent cure by using the contents of one bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. There is no other remedy in the world that will do this. The instantaneous effect which St. Jacobs Oil produces is a part of its half a century record." St. Jacobs Oil is sold in 25 cts. and 50 cts. sizes by all druggists. The words "Acts like Magic," "Conquers Pain," which have been used in connection with St. Jacobs Oil for more than 50 years are wonderfully and truly descriptive.

WHAT THE LIGHTNING DOES.

Between Seven and Eight Hundred Lives Lost Each Year From Electric Shocks.

It is probably not generally known, or even imagined, that every year in this country between 700 and 800 lives are lost by lightning stroke, and more than a thousand persons injured. During 1899 there were 4,253 animals—cattle, horses, mules, sheep or pigs—killed by lightning in the open fields, while the value of property destroyed, either directly or through fires caused by bolts, was estimated at $6,000,000.

There are numberless cases on record where whole herds of sheep and cattle have been struck with fatal effect. In one instance, in Colorado, ninety-one sheep were killed by a single stroke, and fifty-two in another. In Iowa where, during the year, 266 cattle were killed by lightning, the curious fact was noticed that 118 were found in close contact with wire fences. Their death was probably caused by the shock received from the fence, and not from the direct stroke, as it was evident in many cases, that the lightning struck the fence at some distance from the animals. If there had been sufficient ground connection from the fence, the cattle would probably have been saved.—Leslie's Monthly.

In Bed Three Months.

Oolitic, Ind., Sept. 15.—Mr. W. A. Terry of this place suffered for months with a very severe case of Kidney Trouble.

He was so very bad that he was almost confined to his bed for three months.

He tried many medicines but he could not get any relief till he commenced to use a remedy introduced here some time ago as a cure for Kidney Trouble, the name of which is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Terry says that the second day after commencing to use this remedy he could notice a very marked improvement in his condition and in a short time he was able to go about again.

He is naturally filled with gratitude to Dodd's Kidney Pills for the immense amount of good they have done him and says:

"I would recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to every sufferer from kidney or bladder trouble, for from my experience I am sure they are the best medicine to be had for all diseases of that nature."

Why the Ex-Speaker Was Glad.

Ex-Speaker Reed loves his joke as dearly in these days as ever he did in the times when he was so much in the public eye in Washington.

It is related that the other day he met a friend from a small town in the interior, where, in rapid succession, the cashier of its principal bank had been found a defaulter, a leading business man had failed dishonorably and been imprisoned, and the county clerk (living there) had been convicted of misappropriating public funds.

Mr. Reed greeted his friend very effusively, shaking his hand heartily and saying how pleased he was to see him. The friend, somewhat surprised at the extraordinary heartiness, said:

"Mighty glad to see you, Reed, but why all this—er—?"

"Why, because," replied Mr. Reed, "I'm so very glad to see a man from X—— out of jail!"—New York Times.

RECORD OF THE PAST.

The best guarantee of the future is the record of the past, and over fifty thousand people have publicly testified that Doan's Kidney Pills have cured them of numerous kidney ills, from common backache to dangerous diabetes, and all the attendant annoyances and sufferings from urinary disorders. They have been cured to stay cured. Here is one case:

Samuel J. Taylor, retired carpenter, residing at 312 South Third St., Goshen, Ind., says: "On the 25th day of August, 1897, I made an affidavit before Jacob C. Mann, notary public, stating my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. I had suffered for thirty years, and was compelled at times to walk by the aid of crutches, frequently passed gravel and suffered excruciatingly. I took every medicine on the market that I heard about and some gave me temporary relief. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and the results I gave to the public in the statement above referred to. At this time, on the 19th day of July, 1902, I make this further statement that during the five years which have elapsed I have had no occasion to use either Doan's Kidney Pills or any other medicine for my kidneys. The cure effected was a permanent one."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Taylor, will be mailed on application, to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents per box.

FIRE'S SAD HAVOC

MANY LIVES LOST AND MUCH PROPERTY DESTROYED IN WASHINGTON.

DEVASTATED BY FOREST FIRES

OVER THIRTY KNOWN TO BE DEAD AND DOUBTLESS MANY OTHERS PERISHED.

PROPERTY LOSS IS ENORMOUS

FIFTY SECTIONS OF FINEST TIMBER ON THE COAST IS DESTROYED.

Kalama, Wash., Sept. 15. — News reached here late last night that the forest fires on Lewis river have wrought sad havoc. D. I. Wallace, wife and two children were burned to death. They were camping in the woods when caught by the fire. Their wagon was found burned up, the charred bodies lying near. A twelve-year-old boy of Mrs. Hanley's also is dead. Mrs. John Polly and baby, and another, name unknown, and Mrs. James Hughes are dead. Fifteen are without clothing save gunny sacks. Five logging camps are burned out completely. The worst of the fire is on Lewis river about twelve miles above Wormland. The country is well settled and there are doubtless other casualties not yet reported. The fire has spread from Lewis river north to the Kalama river, and fifty sections of the finest timber on the coast are destroyed. Oak Point, twenty miles below here on the Columbia river,

Is Totally Destroyed.

There are no reports of lives lost, but the loss to property is estimated at about $300,000. A great fire is also raging in the northern part of the country. Everything combustible in its path is consumed. Hill's camp is reported destroyed; Muckley Bros.' No. 2 camp is also burned-out; Moreland's camp is badly damaged. Seven donkey-engines were ruined. Two men from Barr's camp are reported missing. In Cowlet county five people are dead and two missing, with only partial reports from the burned district. A courier just arrived from Lewis river states that there are only two houses left standing on the river from Trait's place to the head of the river, a distance of thirty miles, and that no less than fifteen persons have perished.

Hundreds of People Homeless.

Portland, Or., Sept. 15.—About 300 people are left homeless in Multnomah and Clackamas counties as a result of the forest fires that have raged for the past week. In the fire that destroyed the town of Palmer, near Bridal Veil, two boys named Hamilton were caught while trying to escape from the flames and burned to death. The timber losses in Clackamas county have been immense and the whole length of the Clackamas river presents nothing but vistas of ruined settlements. The most distressing losses have been those suffered in the vicinity of Spring Water, Clackamas county, and Leatz. There is no way of securing a correct estimate of the loss, but it will certainly exceed $1,000,000 in this state.

MOB AFTER "MESSIAH."

English Clergyman Who Affirms That He Is Christ Is Roughly Handled.

London, Sept. 15. — Extraordinary scenes, verging upon riot, occurred at Clapton, where nearly 5,000 persons attempted to mob a former Episcopalian clergyman named Smyth Piggott, who is now leader of an eccentric sect called the "Agaphemonites." Piggott last week announced himself as the Messiah. Exposures of the man, which filled many columns in the newspapers, heightened public interest in the matter to such a pitch that yesterday Piggott was taken from the mob only by the efforts of mounted policemen. In spite of warnings the chapel in which Piggott held services yesterday was invaded by jeering crowds, but in the face of howling disorder Piggott again affirmed that he was the Christ.

STEALS AIRSHIP PLANS.

Paris Watchmaker Fined for Theft of New Balloon Invention.

Paris, Sept. 15. — The courts have condemned a watchmaker named Lombard of St. Maxient to pay $200 for stealing the ideas of Ernest Cuyer, an inventor of a new navigable balloon intended to be entered in the St. Louis fair contest. M. Cuyer is a civil engineer and has been studying the airship for many years. He devised one and intrusted the construction of certain parts to Lombard. As the latter took much longer over the work than was necessary, Mr. Cuyer urged him to hurry. Afterward he made inquiries and discovered that the watchmaker, who had been furnished with the complete plans of the invention, had built a model on his own account and was negotiating for its sale.

BROKEN TRUCK.

It Causes a Freight Wreck in North Dakota.

Mandan, N. D., Sept. 15.—Northern Pacific through trains were delayed by a freight wreck twenty miles west of Mandan. The wreck was caused by a broken truck. Twelve cars were ditched. Passenger train No. 3 was held at Mandan. A brakeman of the freight was seriously injured.

Countess Suspected of Murder.

Rome, Sept. 15.—The Countess Bon Martini, wife of Count Bon Martini, who was assassinated at Bologna by Tullio Murri, his brother-in-law, has been arrested on the charge of complicity in the murder of her husband. It is alleged that the countess spurred her brother to commit the crime.

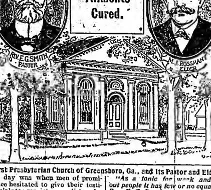
PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR PRAISES PE-RU-NA.



First Presbyterian Church of Greensboro, Ga., and Its Pastor and Elder.

THE day was when men of prominence hesitated to give their testimonials to proprietary medicines for publication. This remains true to-day of most proprietary medicines. But Peruna has become so justly famous, its merits are known to so many people of high and low stations, that no one hesitates to see his name in print recommending Peruna.

The highest men in our nation have given Peruna a strong endorsement. Men representing all classes and stations are equally represented.

A dignified representative of the Presbyterian church in the person of Rev. E. G. Smith does not hesitate to state publicly that he has used Peruna in his family and found it cured when other remedies failed. In this statement the Rev. Smith is supported by an elder in his church.

Rev. E. G. Smith, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Greensboro, Ga., writes:

"Having used Peruna in my family for some time it gives me pleasure to testify to its true worth.

"My little boy seven years of age had been suffering for some time with catarrh of the lower bowels. Other remedies had failed, but after taking two bottles of Peruna the trouble almost entirely disappeared. For this special malady I consider it well nigh a specific.

"As a tonic for weak and worn out people it has few or no equals."—Rev. E. G. Smith.

Mr. M. J. Rossman, a prominent merchant of Greensboro, Ga., and an elder in the Presbyterian church of that place, has used Peruna, and in a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, writes as follows:

"For a long time I was troubled with catarrh of the kidneys and tried many remedies, all of which gave me no relief. Peruna was recommended to me by several friends, and after using a few bottles I am pleased to say that the long looked for relief was found and I am now enjoying better health than I have for years, and can heartily recommend Peruna to all similarly afflicted. It is certainly a grand medicine."—M. J. Rossman.

Catarrh is essentially the same wherever located. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Drunk Carried the Load.

Mr. Bruce, a prominent prohibitionist, residing in Syracuse, was on his way home one cold night, when he found a man lying on the sidewalk in a drunken stupor and in imminent danger of being frozen to death. Arousing him with great difficulty, he finally got him on his feet, and, recognizing him as a neighbor, said in a disgusted tone:

"Well, Miller, I suppose as you are too drunk to walk, I will have to carry you home. I don't object to carrying you, but I don't like to carry that load of whiskey you have in you."

"That is all right, Mr. Bruce," said the weary one; "you carry me, and I will carry the whisky.—New York Times.

Students "Raised the Winds."

State Historian Hugh Hastings says that a few months ago a young professor in Union college entered a clothing store in Schenectady and ordered a suit of clothes. He was astonished when the dealer said to him: "Shall I send the bill to your father? I'll make it $50, and give you the balance now." Investigation disclosed the fact that a number of college students in this way "raised the wind." They caused exorbitant bills to be sent to their fathers and pocketed the difference.—New York Times.

Is the Negro Increasing?

The rapid increase of the slaves under the excellent hygiene surroundings of the old plantations produced quite enough of them and to spare without bringing in any more. It is an established fact, owing to the hygienic condition of the old plantations, that if the rate of increase of the negro for the first 100 years of slavery had been maintained up to the present time, we would now have a negro population of 26,000,000, and yet there are now barely 9,000,000 in this country with an equal number in our newly-acquired territory. At present I know of no Southern city where the negro birth rate equals their death-rate.

Monuments and Tablets Erected on the Sites of Incidents Connected With the Great Sioux Outbreak.

Upon and about the battlefield of Birch Coulie the society has placed several monuments or markers, which serve to identify important points of the battle ground. The site of this hallowed ground is about two and one-half miles east and north of the present village of Morton, in Renville county, on the west side of the great ravine called Birch Coulie.

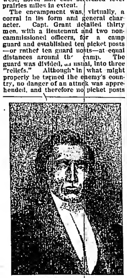
The incidents leading to the battle of Birch Coulie may be very briefly related. Gen. Sibley occupied Fort Ridgely with his relief force on the 27th of August, nine days after the beginning of the outbreak. On the 31st he dispatched a force of about 15 men to the lower agency with instructions to ascertain, if possible, the position and condition of the Indians, and to bury the bodies of the victims of the massacre which might be found en route. This force, which was under the command of Maj. Joseph R. Brown, was composed of Company A, Sixth Minnesota Infantry, under Capt. H. P. Grant; seventy mounted men of the Cullen guard under Capt. Joseph Anderson; some volunteers, soldiers, and citizens; a detail of other soldiers from the Sixth regiment and the militia force, and seventeen teamsters with teams. The next evening several of the citizens returned to the fort.

The command reached the lower agency on the 1st of September. Capt. Grant, with his company and the wagons, proceeded up the valley on the north side of the Minnesota to the mouth of Beaver creek, thence up the creek about three miles, and then marched east about six miles to near the head of Birch Coulie. This portion of the command buried the bodies of Capt. Marsh's men killed at Redwood Ferry and those of perhaps forty citizens at various points on the route. On Beaver Creek "some thirty bodies" were buried. On the way, too, in the Minnesota bottom, a German woman, named Mrs. Justina Krieger, who had been badly wounded by the Indians, and was hiding in a marsh, was rescued and carried along.

Maj. Brown and Capt. Anderson, with the "Cullen Guards," crossed the river at the Redwood Ferry, went to the agency, buried the bodies of the slain there, and went up the river, or westward, to the location of Little Crow's village, which the Indians had abandoned a few days previously. Nothing was seen which indicated that a hostile Indian had been in that vicinity for four days, although careful examination was made. Recrossing the Minnesota at a ford opposite Little Crow's village, the party ascended the bluff on the north side, and reaching the prairie road eastward to the Birch Coulie, where Capt. Grant's company had already encamped.

The camp selected by Capt. Grant was on an excellent site. It was upon level ground, convenient to wood and water, and less than half a mile from a road running between Fort Ridgely and Fort Abercrombie, on the Red River of the North. A growth of fairly good timber fringed the Coulie on either side, and in the channel was plenty of good running water. To the west, north and east stretched level prairies miles in extent.

The encampment was, virtually, a corral in its form and general character. Capt. Grant detailed thirty men, with a lieutenant and two noncommissioned officers, for a camp guard and established ten picket posts—or rather ten guard posts—at equal distances around the camp. The guard was divided, as usual, into three "reliefs." Although in what might properly be termed the enemy's country, no danger of an attack was apprehended, and therefore no picket posts worth the name were established. The camp guard posts were only about 100 yards from the corral. Maj. Brown assured the men that they might sleep as soundly "as if in their mothers' feather-beds" and the weary soldiers lay down to rest in fancied security.



JOHN OTHER DAY.

Of a truth the Indians had fallen back from the lower agency to Yellow Medicine four days before Maj. Brown reached Little Crow's village. The gallant and faithful scouts, Antoine Frenier, William L. Quinn and George McLeod, had ridden up to opposite the upper agency and learned that the savages were there in great numbers. They had left their villages about the lower agency in some haste and alarm, after their repulse and defeat at Fort Ridgely. With the exception of some scouts left behind to watch the whites, they retired to the Yellow Medicine and the mouth of the Chippewa river, where were the villages of the Wahpetan band, generally composed of friendly Sioux.

A few days after the Indians arrived at Yellow Medicine their scouts reported that Gen. Sibley and his command had reached Fort Ridgely and that New Ulm had been evacuated. Soon the chiefs and head soldiers determined to move down on the south side of the Minnesota to New Ulm, to there cross the river and get in the rear of Fort Ridgely, and then their future operations would be governed by circumstances. At the same time 150 warriors were to go from the Yellow Medicine to the "Big Woods" and harass the country about Forest City and Hutchinson, and to seize a large quantity of flour said to be in a mill in that quarter. Little Crow took charge of the "Big Woods" expedition, sending the rest of his band under Gray Bird, a farmer Indian, but now Little Crow's "head soldier," down the river with the other bands of Wabasha, Wacouta, Hushasha, Mankato, Big Eagle, Shakopee and the rest of the Medawakantons and Wahpekootas. The savage forces left the Yellow Medicine on the 31st of August.

When, on the evening of Sept. 1, the advance of the Indians reached Little Crow's village, on the high bluff on the south side of the Minnesota, they saw on the north side, out on the prairie, some miles away, Capt. Anderson's company marching from Beaver creek eastward toward the Birch Coulie. They also saw in the village signs that white men had been there only a few hours before, and, from the trail made when they left, concluded that these were the men they could see to the northward. Some of the best scouts were soon sent across the valley to follow the movements of the mounted men, "creeping across the prairie like so many ants." A little after sundown the scouts returned with the information that the mounted men had gone into camp near the head of Birch Coulie, and that they numbered about seventy-five men. At this time, and until they attacked, they did not know of the presence of Capt. Grant's company.

PRESENT VIEW OF THE BATTLE FIELD OF BIRCH COULIE.
The view is looking north. The cross in the right, near the timber, marks the site of the corral where the whites were attacked and besieged for 36 hours.

Had the Indians persisted in their original plan to proceed quietly on their way down the south side of the river, unobserved by the whites, and paid no attention to the company of mounted men they had discovered, the result would have been most disastrous. But, with their hundreds of warriors, the temptation to fall upon the small and apparently isolated detachment of seventy-five men was too great to the Indian nature to be resisted. It was determined to surround the camp that night and attack it at daylight the next morning. About 200 warriors were selected for the undertaking. These were the bands of Red Legs, Gray Bird, Big Eagle and Mankato, with perhaps some four other bands. The leaders were subchiefs, with the exception of Gray Bird, who was the head soldier of Little Crow's band. Little Crow himself, with 150 warriors, was off on the expedition to the Big Woods towards Forest City and Hutchinson.

When darkness had come good and black and sheltering, the Indians crossed the river and valley, went up the bluffs and on the prairie and soon saw the corral of the whites. Cautiously and warily they approached the camp and had no difficulty in surrounding it, for the sentinels were at such short distance from it—not more than a hundred yards or so. The ground was most excellent for a mere camping ground, but badly chosen for a battlefield. On the east was the Birch Coulie, with a high bluff bank and fringed with timber; on the north was a smaller coulie or ravine running into the main coulie; on the south was a swale much lower than the camp; on the west was a considerable mound, and all these positions were commanding and within gunshot of the corral. The Indians could fire from concealed and protected situations, and nearly all of them had double-barreled shotguns loaded with buckshot and large bullets called traders' balls.

The Indians under Red Legs occupied the Birch Coulie, east of the camp. Some of Mankato's warriors were in the coulie and some in the swale to the south. Big Eagle's band was chiefly behind and about the knoll to the west, and Gray Bird's was in the ravine and on the prairie to the north. While they were waiting to begin the attack during the night, some of the warriors crawled through the prairie grass unobserved to within fifty feet of the sentinels, and it was seriously proposed to shoot them with arrows—making no noise—and to rush the camp in the darkness.

In the dark hour just before dawn Capt. Anderson's cook, who was early astir, had his suspicions of danger aroused by noting that some of the horses with lifted heads were staring intently toward the west, and manifesting indications of uneasiness. Some fugitive cattle which had been gathered up and driven along with the command, and which had been lying down south of the corral, rose one after another and began to move slowly towards the corral, as if retreating from danger. The cook had quietly awakened his captain and was talking to him of what he had seen when the alarm was given.

Sentinel William L. Hart of Anderson's company was on duty on the post between the eastern border of the corral and Birch Coulie. He was in conversation with Robert Gibbons, a comrade in his company. The dawn was coming faintly from the east when, looking in that direction across the Birch Coulie, Hart saw what he at first thought were two calves galloping through the tall grass of the prairie toward the coulie. In another moment he saw that the objects were two Indians skulking along and trailing their guns at their sides. "They are Indians," cried Hart to his companion, and instantly fired. As if he had given the signal, suddenly came a deadly roar from hundreds of Indian guns all about the camp, and the battle had begun. In the rain of bullets Gibbons was mortally wounded, but Hart ran to the corral unhurt and fought through the battle, living to become an officer in the police force of St. Paul, where he died in 1896.

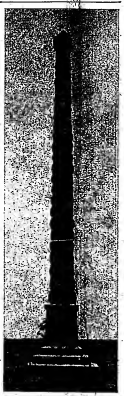
The details of the battle belong to other publications and have been frequently given. At the first alarm nearly all of the men instinctively sprang to their feet. In obedience to orders Capt. Grant's company attempted to fall into line, and the swift, well delivered volleys of the Indians struck down thirty men in three minutes. The horses, too, tied at the borders of the corral, fell fast, and their bodies were utilized as breastworks. The fight lasted all of that day, all of the succeeding night and until about noon of Sept. 3, or thirty-six hours. All this time the men on the firing line were without water, the limited supply in the camp being given to the wounded. As Big Eagle, one of the chiefs who was in the battle, says: "Owing to the white men's way of fighting, they lost many men; owing to the Indians' way of fighting, they lost but few." The loss of the whites was 20 men killed, 4 mortally wounded, perhaps 60 wounded more or less severely, and nearly every horse killed. The Indian loss was small. According to Big Eagle, indorsed by Heard, it was two killed and "several wounded."

About 9 o'clock in the morning of the first day's attack the pickets at Fort Ridgely sent in word that they could hear the report of guns in the distance to the northwest. Investigation made it certain that there was a battle in progress between Maj. Brown's command and the Indians. Col. Sibley at once sent a reinforcement. He dispatched to the relief Col. Samuel McPhail, with fifty mounted men, three companies of infantry and two small cannon, the whole force numbering 240 men.

The relief force made a swift march to near the Birch Coulie, over the Abercrombie road. On nearing the coulie a large force of Indians appeared to the left, or south, of the advance. A demonstration was made against them by Capt. Merriman's company and they fell back. The command moved forward half a mile when a very strong line of Indians was seen directly in front and on the left flank. Col. McPhail halted and prepared to fight. Two scouts of Capt. Potter's mounted company were sent forward, but soon had their horses shot under them and were chased back to the column.

The Indians were advancing and had well nigh surrounded the command, when Capt. Hendricks opened on them with his artillery and drove them back. Col. McPhail "did not deem it prudent to advance further," and sending two messengers, Lieut. T. J. Sheehan and William L. Quinn, to Col. Sibley with a report of the situation, he moved his force to a commanding position about two miles east of the coulie, where he formed a strong camp, throwing up some rifle pits, and awaited the arrival of the colonel with the general command from Fort Ridgely.

As soon as McPhail's messengers reached him Col. Sibley at once marched to the relief of the now two imperiled commands. He marched during the night, joined Col. McPhail in the forenoon of Sept. 3, moved against the Indians and by noon, without any more serious fighting, they had all been driven away from their positions about the coulie. Recrossing the Minnesota, they speedily fell back again to the Yellow Medicine. Col. Sibley returned to Fort Ridgely.



MONUMENT TO THE FAITHFUL INDIANS AT MORTON, MINN.

During the fighting the wounded whites were given the best surgical and medical aid possible, by Dr. J. W. Daniels, assistant surgeon of the Sixth Minnesota, and special surgeon of the expedition. He had a hard and trying task, for he was under fire all of the time, but he did his duty faithfully and efficiently.

Monument to the Faithful Indians.

In December, 1899, the Minnesota Valley Historical society completed the erection of a monument in recognition and commemoration of the conduct and services of the Indians who were truly loyal and faithful to the whites during the great Sioux war of 1862. It is believed that this is the only structure of the kind ever erected in the United States. The most that has ever been done to honor the services of those Indians who have been of eminent service to the whites during the wars between their tribes and the pale faces, has been to give them honorable mention in the pages of history and make them the subjects of song and story.

The Faithful Indians' monument stands on the state's ground near Morton, Renville county, a hundred feet from where the Birch Coulie battle monument stands. The structure is fifty-two feet in height and built wholly of granite from local quarries, the greater part coming from the quarries at Redwood Falls. An appropriate inscription tells its purpose. The surrounding ground has been furnished with substantial iron seats for the accommodation of visitors; and the site is a most commanding one, giving a good view, for miles up and down the Minnesota valley, of the historic locality.

LITTLE PAUL.

The society made three requirements for those whose names were to be cut in the granite die of the commemorative monument, making the list a roll of honor in all respects. 1. The subjects were to be full-blooded Indians. 2. They were to have been truly loyal to the whites throughout the entire period of the outbreak, from its inception, on the 18th of August, 1862, until the close of that year. 3. They were to have actually, by personal effort and in a practical manner, saved the life of at least one white person.

After careful and thorough investigation the society decided that the names of but five Indians, four men and a woman, were, at present, entitled to the distinction of a position in the monument's inscription. The claims of scores of others were presented, but in the society's opinion they did not meet the full requirements demanded. They either were not Indians of full blood, or they were not truly loyal throughout the war, or they did not directly save the life of a white person; indirect service could not be accepted. The names selected were these: Am-pa-tu-to-ki-cha, Mah-za-koo-te-maune or Iron That Shoots Walking, commonly called Little Paul; To-wan-i-ta-ton, or Face of the Village, whose English name was Lorenzo Lawrence; Anah-wang-maune, or Walks Alongside, whose English name was Simon, or Simon Anahwangmaune, and Mah-kah-ta-he-iya-win, or Woman Who Travels on the Ground, whose English name was Mary Crooks.

Of the services rendered by these Indians the society's pamphlet says that among other loyal and important services John Other Day led sixty-two white persons from their imperiled condition at the Yellow Medicine agency through a dangerous route to Shakopee. His conduct throughout was faithful, and he rendered practical service in many ways.

Little Paul rendered invaluable service to the whites by his continuous and successful efforts to prevent the massacre of the white captives in the hands of the hostiles. The Indians were divided in sentiment on this proposition and Paul planned and promoted their dissensions, divided and distracted their councils, and by his earnest and spirited speeches created a public sentiment that led to the salvation of the wretched prisoners.

Lorenzo Lawrence conveyed from the hostile Indian camp to Fort Ridgely ten persons—Mrs. Jannette E. De Camp and her three children and Mrs. Magloire Robideaux and her five, making a perilous trip down the Minnesota river in canoes above the Yellow Medicine to the fort.

Simon Anahwangmanoe was faithful from first to last, especially distinguishing himself later in the trouble by taking from a perilous captivity to freedom a white woman and her three children. From the hostile camp near Red Iron's village he took a Mrs. Neumann (or Newman) a German woman, and her three children to his tepee, and finally restored them to their friends. He placed them in his one-horse wagon, and with his son, a boy of twelve or fourteen, named Ka-tab-te, escorted them in safety to Fort Ridgely.

Mary Crooks signalized her loyalty to the whites and her devotion to humanity by saving the lives of Mrs. Urania S. White and her infant son, Frank B. White, the latter then but a few months old. Early in the morning of the second day of the outbreak, when Mrs. White and her infant were helpless captives in the Indian camp, Mary Crooks sought them out, brought them to her tepee, and she and her husband carefully protected them from harm thereafter, until they were released by Gen. Sibley's army at Camp Release. Mrs. White, who now lives in Todd county, Minnesota, testifies freely and fully regarding the generous care she received while in the hands of this noble woman.

"At the proper and appropriate time the name of another Indian woman will be added to the list above given. This will be that of Snahnah (Tinkling) now Mrs. Maggie Brass of Santee Agency, Neb. She it was who purchased from her Indian captor a young white girl fourteen years of age, Mary E. Schwandt, and carefully preserved her from all harm during the six weeks of her captivity, or until Gen. Sibley and his army came to Camp Release. The faithful Snahnah gave her only pony as the purchase price of the poor young captive, whose entire family, with the exception of a younger brother, had been murdered, and who was herself in awful peril. Mrs. Brass is yet living, and the society deemed it fitting to inscribe only the names of deceased persons on the monument.

Altogether, the work of the society is most valuable to Minnesota history, and will be better appreciated as time passes. There is much other work of the same character to be done, and much more that ought to be done.

Defacing London.

No more completely wanton innovation has been made in our time than the epidemic of tawdry gilt lettering upon the street fronts of London. The rapidity with which it has spread indicates the abject state of public polution upon architecture. Twenty years ago a universal outcry would have been raised if any one had dared to propose spoiling whole streets with this frippery; now nobody cares. But the question arises whether among the liberties of Englishmen that of defacing a great capital can reasonably be included.—London Builders' Journal.

Liberal, Indeed.

THE FRENCH GIRL.

Gallic Author Gives Us His Ideal in an Interesting Book, "Les Demi-Vierges."

The author of "Les Demi-Vierges" has now set to work upon raising the young French girl to his ideal. In his new work, "Lettres a Francoise," M. Marcel Prevost assumes the role of Fenelon and Madame de Maintenon, his theories of course being modernized; indeed, from the educational point of view, "de la derniere modernite." Francoise is to learn Latin and Greek, and at the same time to become an accomplished housewife. But her education is not to be confined to the library nor the home. She must be initiated into the secrets of rural life and learn something of agriculture.

Here are one or two admirable sentences from this interesting and unexpected book: "Our young ladies of a former generation never came into contact with the soil, hence much of their frivolity and inanition. Now we like the soil to make us realize that the material world is our own provisionally only, and that individual efforts in any direction are but a feeble portion of the collected efforts of humanity. To plant an oak is indisputably a piece of altruism, since those to follow us will enjoy its shade." The author also dwells upon the exhilaration of out-of-door life and its beneficent effects alike to body and mind.—The Scotsman.

Age of the London Bridge.

London bridge is to-day seventy-one years old, for it was opened by William IV. and Queen Adelaide on Aug. 1, 1831. Their majesties went in grand procession from Buckingham palace to Somerset house, and thence by barge to the bridge. The awnings of the royal barge were removed, that a full view of the royal pair could be had along the whole line. At London bridge a grand pavilion had been set up close to the site of Old Fishmongers' hall. It was constructed of standards captured in a hundred fights, canopied in crimson, and decorated with massive shields. When the king stepped ashore he said to two members of the new London bridge committee: "Mr. Jones and Mr. Routh, I am very glad to see you on London bridge. It is certainly a most beautiful edifice, and the spectacle is the grandest and the most delightful in every respect that I ever had the pleasure to witness." This, of course, was before any one thought of building an annex to Westminster abbey.—London Daily News.

DETROIT EXTENDS WARM WELCOME TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

STREETS PACKED WITH PEOPLE

TUMULTUOUS CHEERS GREET THE PRESIDENT AT EVERY APPEARANCE.

TRAGEDY IS NARROWLY AVERTED

CHILDREN NEARLY TRAMPLED ON BY THE PRESIDENT'S HORSES.

Detroit, Sept. 22. — For the second time in its history the City of the Straits is entertaining the chief executive of the nation. President Theodore Roosevelt arrived in the city at 8 o'clock yesterday over the Michigan Central railroad. He found Detroit awaiting his arrival in gala attire. Flags were flying from every staff in the down-town section and the city was bright with bunting. Pictures of Roosevelt greeted the eye at every turn. Throughout the day the president was greeted with tumultuous cheers at his every appearance.

Immediately on his arrival the president was driven to the Hotel Cadillac. At 10:30 o'clock he attended services at the Fort Street Presbyterian church. He drove from there to Gen. R. A. Alger's residence, where he was entertained at luncheon. He returned to the Cadillac soon after 3 o'clock, only to leave again in a short time for a drive about the city.

Visits a Dying Man.

During the drive he called at St. Mary's hospital at the wish of Thomas K. Doherty, a local veteran of the Spanish-American war who is dying of consumption in the hospital. The president remained at Doherty's bedside for some minutes, chatting. Then he returned to the Cadillac, where he dined with a party of friends.

The chief executive occupied a carriage belonging to the police department on his afternoon drive. Capt. Guyman, in police uniform, had the reins, and as the president stepped in he remarked laughingly: "Captain, this looks as though you were going to lock me up." Washington avenue was crowded with people and the air rang with cheers as the horses started up the avenue at a sharp trot. The president's party drove out Woodward avenue four miles to the boulevard which encircles the city. This was followed to its intersection with Jefferson avenue at the approach to Belle Isle bridge. The intention had been to drive back by way of Jefferson avenue, but here the crowd on the watch for the president's coming was so great as to seriously impede the progress of the party and the carriages were turned into more secluded streets.

Tragedy Is Narrowly Averted.

Two little girls had a narrow escape from being trampled upon by the horses attached to the president's carriage. They had darted out suddenly from the curb almost under the horses' feet. Capt. Guyman was compelled to the animals back on their haunches to keep them off the children. The occupants of the president's carriage were brought to their feet in trembling anticipation of a tragedy, and it was only by a hair's breadth that the little ones escaped. Then it was that the route was changed to less congested streets. The party drove until sundown.

To-day will be a very busy day for the chief executive and his party. The president will address the convention of Spanish war veterans at 10 a. m.; at 11 o'clock he will be driven to the steamer Tashmoo for a ride on the river, returning at 3 o'clock; at 4 o'clock he will review the parade of veterans and military, a unique feature of which will be the Twenty-first regiment of Essex fusiliers from Canada; at 8 p. m. he will attend the banquet of the veterans in Light Guard armory, where he will make the address of the evening.

GREETED WITH JEERS.

Life of National Guardsmen Is Made Miserable.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 22. — The Hudson Valley Railroad company, whose motormen have been on strike for three weeks, operated cars yesterday under great difficulty, as each car had to be accompanied by a dozen or more national guardsmen. No attempt was made to run the cars on schedule time, and the passenger traffic, as a whole, amounted to almost nothing. The unruly element was very much in evidence at Waterford, Stillwater, Mechanicsville, Balston Spa, Saratoga Springs, Fort Edward and Glens Falls, as at each of these places crowds greeted the motormen and soldiers with jeers and epithets and verbally assaulted the few passengers.

CATTLE TRAIN WRECKED.

Animals Are Crushed in Collapse of Railroad Cars.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 22. — A stock train consisting of forty-two cars bound for Chicago left the track yesterday while passing a switch at Arvilla. Twenty-two cars of cattle and horses were piled up in the ditch. Five hundred head of stock were killed or so badly injured that they were killed by employes.

Rain Saves Crops.

Denver, Sept. 22.—Continuous rainfall over the entire eastern slope of the Rocky mountains from Montana to Mexico have saved late crops and allayed fears of a shortage of water. It will make grazing good.

Four Men Perish.

Covington, Ky., Sept. 22.—By a cave-in at the Stack mines four men, all colored, lost their lives. The body of one was recovered and it is thought the force of men now at work will soon reach the others.

DRAMATIC SCENE IN CHURCH.

Clergyman Ends Trial by Handing In His Resignation.

Keokuk, Iowa, Sept. 22.—The case of Rev. P. L. Henness before the Iowa conference of the Methodist Episcopal church ended Saturday night as abruptly as it had begun, when the accused pastor resigned in a dramatic manner. After the trial committee appointed by Bishop Hamilton and composed of thirteen prominent divines, had been in session far into the night, Mr. Henness himself took the stand. He said it was evident to himself and to his attorneys that he was not to have fair treatment, and then he handed the parchments of his ordination in 1887 and his resignation from membership in the church as well as from the ministry. Turning to his wife, who was present, the self-unfrocked minister exclaimed: "Woman, behold the wreck of a man you have made." His wife broke down at this exhibition. The committee immediately closed its session, having lost its jurisdiction of the case. Mr. Henness, after maintaining silence stubbornly for a year, said that the reason he left his wife was for continual "nagging," which broke down his health and rendered it impossible for him to do ministerial work. The charge against him before the conference was simply his separation from his wife, whom he agreed to support but refused to live with. No question of immorality was involved.

YOUNG HERO SAVES 200 LIVES.

Flags Crowded Train Just in Time to Prevent Frightful Accident.

Winona, Minn., Sept. 22.—To Fred Anderson, a young man of this city, belongs the credit of having saved from death a train load of passengers on the Northwestern road. By the exercise of quick wit he flagged the Northwestern train that was bearing down on a horse and wagon caught on a high trestle near Stockton in the darkness. The escape of the trainful of passengers was a narrow one, for when the train was brought to a standstill the pilot was within two feet of the horse and wagon. Had the train, which crosses the trestle at a speed of sixty miles an hour, struck the obstruction, the engine and cars would have been precipitated into the depth below, with great loss of life.

THROWN FROM A CAR.

Minneapolis Society Belle Seriously Hurt at Racine.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 22.—Miss Katherine L. White, a society belle of Minneapolis, was seriously injured near Racine college yesterday afternoon by being thrown from an electric interurban car. The young woman had come to the city to accompany her nephew to the college, the most exclusive boys' school in the state, and was landing from the car to go to the school when the accident occurred. The car started before Miss White was able to step from the platform, and she was thrown with great force to the ground. She has been injured internally and is under the care of physicians.

Confidential Agent at Milwaukee Skips Out but Is Caught.

Milwaukee, Sept. 22—W. P. Leppere, who has since Jan. 14, 1901, been wanted in Milwaukee on a charge of embezzling $2,000 from Jones, Evans & Co., formerly of this city, but who have since removed to Chicago, has been captured at Donald, B. C., and Detectives McManuss and Schweitzer have gone there for the purpose of bringing him back. Leppere was the confidential agent for Jones, Evans & Co., and was intrusted with large sums of money in their brokerage office in Michigan street. When he arrives in this city representatives of Jones, Evans & Co. will come from Chicago to prosecute him.

Northwestern Men Who Will Be Admitted as Cadets.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 22.—Of the 117 candidates examined by the civil service commission for admission to the naval academy only thirty-two passed mentally. It is thought that a number of the candidates who were only slightly deficient will be admitted by the examining board. Those from the Northwest who passed were: J. B. Wright, Minnesota; H. F. Swenson, South Dakota; L. M. Atkins, Montana; H. W. Cleveland, Wisconsin; F. E. Follet, Wisconsin; F. G. Fletcher, Iowa.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Man Who Is Alleged to Have Tortured Another Is Arrested.

Mandan, S. D., Sept. 22. — Sheriff Weeks yesterday arrested A. J. Harrob and turned him over to the sheriff of Gage county, Neb., who took his prisoner away without requisition papers. Harrob is charged with being implicated in the murder of David Jones in 1897 in Gage county. Frank Olds, reported to have been guilty with Harrob, has turned state's evidence. It is reported that Olds and Harrob tortured and killed Jones for his money.

Monuments and Tablets Erected on the Sites of Incidents Connected With the Great Sioux Outbreak.

Upon and about the battlefield of Birch Coulie the society has placed several monuments or markers, which serve to identify important points of the battle ground. The site of this hallowed ground is about two and one-half miles east and north of the present village of Morton, in Renville county, on the west side of the great ravine called Birch Coulie.

The incidents leading to the battle of Birch Coulie may be very briefly related. Gen. Sibley occupied Fort Ridgely with his relief force on the 27th of August, nine days after the beginning of the outbreak. On the 31st he dispatched a force of about 15 men to the lower agency with instructions to ascertain, if possible, the position and condition of the Indians, and to bury the bodies of the victims of the massacre which might be found en route. This force, which was under the command of Maj. Joseph R. Brown, was composed of Company A, Sixth Minnesota infantry, under Capt. H. P. Grant; seventy mounted men of the Cullen guard under Capt. Joseph Anderson; some volunteers, soldiers, and citizens; a detail of other soldiers from the Sixth regiment and the militia force, and seventeen teamsters with teams. The next evening several of the citizens returned to the fort.

The command reached the lower agency on the 1st of September. Capt. Grant, with his company and the wagons, proceeded up the valley on the north side of the Minnesota to the mouth of Beaver creek, thence up the creek about three miles, and then marched east about six miles to near the head of Birch Coulie. This portion of the command buried the bodies of Capt. Marsh's men killed at Redwood Ferry and those of perhaps forty citizens at various points on the route. On Beaver Creek "some thirty bodies" were buried. On the way, too, in the Minnesota bottom, a German woman, named Mrs. Justina Krieger, who had been badly wounded by the Indians, and was hiding in a marsh, was rescued and carried along.

Maj. Brown and Capt. Anderson, with the "Cullen Guards," crossed the river at the Redwood Ferry, went to the agency, buried the bodies of the slain there, and went up the river, or westward, to the location of Little Crow's village, which the Indians had abandoned a few days previously. Nothing was seen which indicated that a hostile Indian had been in that vicinity for four days, although careful examination was made. Recrossing the Minnesota at a ford opposite Little Crow's village, the party ascended the bluff on the north side, and reaching the prairie road eastward to the Birch Coulie, where Capt. Grant's company had already encamped.

The camp selected by Capt. Grant was on an excellent site. It was upon level ground, convenient to wood and water, and less than half a mile from a road running between Fort Ridgely and Fort Abercrombie, on the Red River of the North. A growth of fairly good timber fringed the Coulie on either side, and in the channel was plenty of good running water. To the west, north and east stretched level prairies miles in extent.

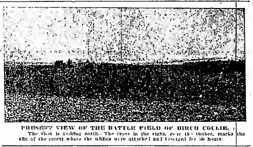
The encampment was, virtually, a corral in its form and general character. Capt. Grant detailed thirty men, with a lieutenant and two noncommissioned officers, for a camp guard and established ten picket posts—or rather ten guard posts—at equal distances around the camp. The guard was divided, as usual, into three "reliefs." Although in what might properly be termed the enemy's country, no danger of an attack was apprehended, and therefore no picket posts worth the name were established. The camp guard posts were only about 100 yards from the corral. Maj. Brown assured the men that they might sleep as soundly "as if in their mothers' feather-beds" and the weary soldiers lay down to rest in fancied security.

JOHN OTHER DAY.

Of a truth the Indians had fallen back from the lower agency to Yellow Medicine four days before Maj. Brown reached Little Crow's village. The gallant and faithful scouts, Antoine Frenier, William L. Quinn and George McLeod, had ridden up to opposite the upper agency and learned that the savages were there in great numbers. They had left their villages about the lower agency in some haste and alarm, after their repulse and defeat at Fort Ridgely. With the exception of some scouts left behind to watch the whites, they retired to the Yellow Medicine and the mouth of the Chippewa river, where were the villages of the Wahpeton band, generally composed of friendly Sioux.

A few days after the Indians arrived at Yellow Medicine their scouts reported that Gen. Sibley and his command had reached Fort Ridgely and that New Ulm had been evacuated. Soon the chiefs and head soldiers determined to move down on the south side of the Minnesota to New Ulm, to there cross the river and get in the rear of Fort Ridgely, and then their future operations would be governed by circumstances. At the same time 150 warriors were to go from the Yellow Medicine to the "Big Woods" and harass the country about Forest City and Hutchinson, and to seize a large quantity of flour said to be in a mill in that quarter. Little Crow took charge of the "Big Woods" expedition, sending the rest of his band under Gray Bird, a farmer Indian, but now Little Crow's "head soldier," down the river with the other bands of Wabashaw, Wacouta, Hushasha, Mankato, Big Eagle, Shakopee and the rest of the Medawakantons and Wahpekootas. The savage forces left the Yellow Medicine on the 31st of August.

When, on the evening of Sept. 1, the advance of the Indians reached Little Crow's village, on the high bluff on the south side of the Minnesota, they saw on the north side, out on the prairie, some miles away, Capt. Anderson's company marching from Beaver creek eastward toward the Birch Coulie. They also saw in the village signs that white men had been there only a few hours before, and, from the trail made when they left, concluded that these were the men they could see to the northward. Some of the best scouts were soon sent across the valley to follow the movements of the mounted men, "creeping across the prairie like so many ants." A little after sundown the scouts returned with the information that the mounted men had gone into camp near the head of Birch Coulie, and that they numbered about seventy-five men. At this time, and until they attacked, they did not know of the presence of Capt. Grant's company.



PRESENT VIEW OF THE BATTLE FIELD OF BIRCH COULIE.

The view is looking north. The cross in the right, near the timber, marks the site of the corral where the whites were attacked and besieged for 36 hours.

Had the Indians persisted in their original plan to proceed quietly on their way down the south side of the river, unobserved by the whites, and paid no attention to the company of mounted men they had discovered, the result would have been most disastrous. But, with their hundreds of warriors, the temptation to fall upon the small and apparently isolated detachment of seventy-five men was too great to the Indian nature to be resisted. It was determined to surround the camp that night and attack it at daylight the next morning. About 200 warriors were selected for the undertaking. These were the bands of Red Legs, Gray Bird, Big Eagle and Mankato, with perhaps some four other bands. The leaders were subchiefs, with the exception of Gray Bird, who was the head soldier of Little Crow's band. Little Crow himself, with 150 warriors, was off on the expedition to the Big Woods towards Forest City and Hutchinson.

When darkness had come good and black and sheltering, the Indians crossed the river and valley, went up the bluffs and on the prairie and soon saw the corral of the whites. Cautiously and warily they approached the camp and had no difficulty in surrounding it, for the sentinels were at such short distance from it—not more than a hundred yards or so. The ground was most excellent for a mere camping ground, but badly chosen for a battlefield. On the east was the Birch Coulie, with a high bluff bank and fringed with timber; on the north was a smaller coulie or ravine running into the main coulie; on the south was a swale much lower than the camp; on the west was a considerable mound, and all these positions were commanding and within gunshot of the corral. The Indians could fire from concealed and protected situations, and nearly all of them had double-barreled shotguns loaded with buckshot and large bullets called traders' balls.

The Indians under Red Legs occupied the Birch Coulie, east of the camp. Some of Mankato's warriors were in the coulie and some in the swale to the south. Big Eagle's band was chiefly behind and about the knoll to the west, and Gray Bird's was in the ravine and on the prairie to the north. While they were waiting to begin the attack during the night, some of the warriors crawled through the prairie grass unobserved to within fifty feet of the sentinels, and it was seriously proposed to shoot them with arrows—making no noise—and to rush the camp in the darkness.

In the dark hour just before dawn Capt. Anderson's cook, who was early astir, had his suspicions of danger aroused by noting that some of the horses with lifted heads were staring intently toward the west, and manifesting indications of uneasiness. Some fugitive cattle which had been gathered up and driven along with the command, and which had been lying down south of the corral, rose one after another and began to move slowly towards the corral, as if retreating from danger. The cook had quietly awakened his captain and was talking to him of what he had seen when the alarm was given.

Sentinel William L. Hart of Anderson's company was on duty on the post between the eastern border of the corral and Birch Coulie. He was in conversation with Robert Gibbons, a comrade in his company. The dawn was coming faintly from the east when, looking in that direction across the Birch Coulie, Hart saw what he at first thought were two calves galloping through the tall grass of the prairie toward the coulie. In another moment he saw that the objects were two Indians skulking along and trailing their guns at their sides. "They are Indians," cried Hart to his companion, and instantly fired. As if he had given the signal, suddenly came a deadly roar from hundreds of Indian guns all about the camp, and the battle had begun. In the rain of bullets Gibbons was mortally wounded, but Hart ran to the corral unhurt and fought through the battle, living to become an officer in the police force of St. Paul, where he died in 1896.

The details of the battle belong to other publications and have been frequently given. At the first alarm nearly all of the men instinctively sprang to their feet. In obedience to orders Capt. Grant's company attempted to fall into line, and the swift, well delivered volleys of the Indians struck down thirty men in three minutes. The horses, too, tied at the borders of the corral, fell fast, and their bodies were utilized as breastworks. The fight lasted all of that day, all of the succeeding night and until about noon of Sept. 3, or thirty-six hours. All this time the men on the firing line were without water, the limited supply in the camp being given to the wounded. As Big Eagle, one of the chiefs who was in the battle, says: "Owing to the white men's way of fighting, they lost many men; owing to the Indians' way of fighting, they lost but few." The loss of the whites was 20 men killed, 4 mortally wounded, perhaps 60 wounded more or less severely, and nearly every horse killed. The Indian loss was small. According to Big Eagle, indorsed by Heard, it was two killed and "several wounded."

About 9 o'clock in the morning of the first day's attack the pickets at Fort Ridgely sent in word that they could hear the report of guns in the distance to the northwest. Investigation made it certain that there was a battle in progress between Maj. Brown's command and the Indians. Col. Sibley at once sent a reinforcement. He dispatched to the relief Col. Samuel McPhail, with fifty mounted men, three companies of infantry and two small cannon, the whole force numbering 240 men.

The relief force made a swift march to near the Birch Coulie, over the Abercrombie road. On nearing the coulie a large force of Indians appeared to the left, or south, of the advance. A demonstration was made against them by Capt. Merriman's company and they fell back. The command moved forward half a mile when a very strong line of Indians was seen directly in front and on the left flank. Col. McPhail halted and prepared to fight. Two scouts of Capt. Potter's mounted company were sent forward, but soon had their horses shot under them and were chased back to the column.

The Indians were advancing, and had well nigh surrounded the command, when Capt. Hendricks opened on them with his artillery and drove them back. Col. McPhail "did not deem it prudent to advance further," and sending two messengers, Lieut. T. J. Sheehan and William L. Quinn, to Col. Sibley with a report of the situation, he moved his force to a commanding position about two miles east of the coulie, where he formed a strong camp, throwing up some rifle pits, and awaited the arrival of the colonel with the general command from Fort Ridgely.

As soon as McPhail's messengers reached him Col. Sibley at once marched to the relief of the now two imperiled commands. He marched during the night, joined Col. McPhail in the forenoon of Sept. 3, moved against the Indians and, by noon, without any more serious fighting, they had all been driven away from their positions about the coulie. Recrossing the Minnesota, they speedily fell back again to the Yellow Medicine. Col. Sibley returned to Fort Ridgely.

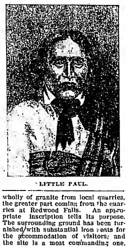
MONUMENT TO THE FAITHFUL INDIANS AT MORTON, MINN.

During the fighting the wounded whites were given the best surgical and medical aid possible, by Dr. J. W. Daniels, assistant surgeon of the Sixth Minnesota, and special surgeon of the expedition. He had a hard and trying task, for he was under fire all of the time, but he did his duty faithfully and efficiently.

Monument to the Faithful Indians.

In December, 1899, the Minnesota Valley Historical society completed the erection of a monument in recognition and commemoration of the conduct and services of the Indians who were truly loyal and faithful to the whites during the great Sioux war of 1862. It is believed that this is the only structure of the kind ever erected in the United States. The most that has ever been done to honor the services of those Indians who have been of eminent service to the whites during the wars between their tribes and the pale faces, has been to give them honorable mention in the pages of history and make them the subjects of song and story.

The Faithful Indians' monument stands on the state's ground near Morton, Renville county, a hundred feet from where the Birch Coulie battle monument stands. The structure is fifty-two feet in height and built wholly of granite from local quarries, the greater part coming from the quarries at Redwood Falls. An appropriate inscription tells its purpose. The surrounding ground has been furnished with substantial iron seats for the accommodation of visitors; and the site is a most commanding one, giving a good view, for miles up and down the Minnesota valley, of the historic locality.



LITTLE PAUL.

The society made three requirements for those whose names were to be cut in the granite die of the commemorative monument, making the list a roll of honor in all respects. 1. The subjects were to be full-blooded Indians. 2. They were to have been truly loyal to the whites throughout the entire period of the outbreak, from its inception, on the 18th of August, 1862, until the close of that year. 3. They were to have actually, by personal effort and in a practical manner, saved the life of at least one white person.

After careful and thorough investigation the society decided that the names of but five Indians, four men and a woman, were, at present, entitled to the distinction of a position in the monument's inscription. The claims of scores of others were presented, but in the society's opinion they did not meet the full requirements demanded. They either were not Indians of full blood, or they were not truly loyal throughout the war, or they did not directly save the life of a white person; indirect service could not be accepted. The names selected were these: Am-ps-tu-to-ki-cha, Mah-za-koo-te-maune, or Iron That Shoots Walking, commonly called Little Paul; To-wan-a-ta-ton, or Face of the Village, whose English name was Lorenzo Lawrence; Anah-wang-maune, or Walks Alongside, whose English name was Simon, or Simon Anahwangmaune, and Mah-kah-ta-he-iyn-win, or Woman Who Travels on the Ground, whose English name was Mary Crooks.

Of the services rendered by these Indians the society's pamphlet says that among other loyal and important services John Other Day led sixty-two white persons from their imperiled condition at the Yellow Medicine agency through a dangerous route to Shakopee. His conduct throughout was faithful, and he rendered practical service in many ways.

Little Paul rendered invaluable service to the whites by his continuous and successful efforts to prevent the massacre of the white captives in the hands of the hostiles. The Indians were divided in sentiment on this proposition and Paul planned and promoted their dissensions, divided and distracted their councils, and by his earnest and spirited speeches created a public sentiment that led to the salvation of the wretched prisoners.

Lorenzo Lawrence conveyed from the hostile Indian camp to Fort Ridgely ten persons—Mrs. Jannette E. De Camp and her three children and Mrs. Magloire Robideaux and her five, making a perilous trip down the Minnesota river in canoes above the Yellow Medicine to the fort.

Simon Anahwangmanne was faithful from first to last, especially distinguishing himself later in the trouble by taking from a perilous captivity to freedom a white woman and her three children. From the hostile camp near Red Iron's village he took a Mrs. Neumann (or Newman) a German woman, and her three children to his tepee, and finally restored them to their friends. He placed them in his one-horse wagon, and with his son, a boy of twelve or fourteen, named Ka-tah-te, escorted them in safety to Fort Ridgely.

Mary Crooks signalized her loyalty to the whites and her devotion to humanity by saving the lives of Mrs. Urania S. White and her infant son, Frank B. White, the latter then but a few months old. Early in the morning of the second day of the outbreak, when Mrs. White and her infant were helpless captives in the Indian camp, Mary Crooks sought them out, brought them to her tepee, and she and her husband carefully protected them from harm thereafter, until they were released by Gen. Sibley's army at Camp Release. Mrs. White, who now lives in Todd county, Minnesota, testifies freely and fully regarding the generous care se received while in the hands of this noble woman.

"At the proper and appropriate time the name of another Indian woman will be added to the list above given. This will be that of Snahnah (Tinkling) now Mrs. Maggie Brass of Santee Agency, Neb. She it was who purchased from her Indian captor a young white girl fourteen years of age, Mary E. Schwandt, and carefully preserved her from all harm during the six weeks of her captivity, or until Gen. Sibley and his army came to Camp Release. The faithful Snahnah gave her only pony as the purchase price of the poor young captive, whose entire family, with the exception of a younger brother, had been murdered, and who was herself in awful peril. Mrs. Brass is yet living, and the society deemed it fitting to inscribe only the names of deceased persons on the monument.

Altogether, the work of the society is most valuable to Minnesota history, and will be better appreciated as time passes. There is much other work of the same character to be done, and much more that ought to be done.

Defacing London.

No more completely wanton innovation has been made in our time than the epidemic of tawdry gilt lettering upon the street fronts of London. The rapidity with which it has spread indicates the abject state of public opinion upon architecture. Twenty years ago a universal outcry would have been raised if any one had dared to propose spoiling whole streets with this frippery; now nobody cares. But the question arises whether among the liberties of Englishmen that of defacing a great capital can reasonably be included.—London Builders' Journal.

THE FRENCH GIRL.

Gallic Author Gives Us His Ideal in an Interesting Book, "Les Demi-Vierges."

The author of "Les Demi-Vierges" has now set to work upon raising the young French girl to his ideal. In his new work, "Lettres a Francoise," M. Marcel Prevost assumes the role of Fenelon and Madame de Maintenon, his theories of course being modernized; indeed, from the educational point of view, "de la derniere modernite." Francoise is to learn Latin and Greek, and at the same time to become an accomplished housewife. But her education is not to be confined to the library nor the home. She must be initiated into the secrets of rural life and learn something of agriculture.

Here are one or two admirable sentences from this interesting and unexpected book: "Our young ladies of a former generation never came into contact with the soil, hence much of their frivolity and inanition. Nothing like the soil to make us realize that the material world is our own provisionally only, and that individual efforts in any direction are but a feeble portion of the collected efforts of humanity. To plant an oak is indisputably a piece of altruism, since those to follow us will enjoy its shade." The author also dwells upon the exhilaration of out-of-door life and its benefits alike to body and mind.—The Scotsman.

Age of the London Bridge.

London bridge is to-day seventy-one years old, for it was opened by William IV. and Queen Adelaide on Aug. 1, 1831. Their majesties went in grand procession from Buckingham palace to Somerset house, and thence by barge to the bridge. The awnings of the royal barge were removed, that a full view of the royal pair could be had along the whole line. At London bridge a grand pavilion had been set up close to the site of Old Fishmongers' hall. It was constructed of standards captured in a hundred fights, canopied in crimson, and decorated with massive shields. When the king stepped ashore he said to two members of the new London bridge committee: "Mr. Jones and Mr. Routh, I am very glad to see you on London bridge. It is certainly a most beautiful edifice, and the spectacle is the grandest and the most delightful in every respect that I ever had the pleasure to witness." This, of course, was before any one thought of building an annex to Westminster abbey.—London Daily News.

IS IN GALA ATTIRE

DETROIT EXTENDS WARM WELCOME TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

STREETS PACKED WITH PEOPLE

TUMULTUOUS CHEERS GREET THE PRESIDENT AT EVERY APPEARANCE.

TRAGEDY IS NARROWLY AVERTED

CHILDREN NEARLY TRAMPLED ON BY THE PRESIDENT'S HORSES.

Detroit, Sept. 22. — For the second time in its history the City of the Straits is entertaining the chief executive of the nation. President Theodore Roosevelt arrived in the city at 8 o'clock yesterday over the Michigan Central railroad. He found Detroit awaiting his arrival in gala attire. Flags were flying from every staff in the down-town section and the city was bright with bunting. Pictures of Roosevelt greeted the eye at every turn. Throughout the day the president was greeted with tumultuous cheers at his every appearance.

Immediately on his arrival the president was driven to the Hotel Cadillac. At 10:30 o'clock he attended services at the Fort Street Presbyterian church. He drove from there to Gen. R. A. Alger's residence, where he was entertained at luncheon. He returned to the Cadillac soon after 3 o'clock, only to leave again in a short time for a drive about the city.

Visits a Dying Man.

During the drive he called at St. Mary's hospital at the wish of Thomas K. Doherty, a local veteran of the Spanish-American war who is dying of consumption in the hospital. The president remained at Doherty's bedside for some minutes, chatting. Then he returned to the Cadillac, where he dined with a party of friends.

The chief executive occupied a carriage belonging to the police department on his afternoon drive. Capt. Guyman, in police uniform, had the reins, and as the president stepped in he remarked laughingly: "Captain, this looks as though you were going to lock me up." Washington avenue was crowded with people and the air rang with cheers as the horses started up the avenue at a sharp trot. The president's party drove out Woodward avenue four miles to the boulevard which encircles the city. This was followed to its intersection with Jefferson avenue at the approach to Belle Isle bridge. The intention had been to drive back by way of Jefferson avenue, but here the crowd on the watch for the president's coming was so great as to seriously impede the progress of the party and the carriages were turned into more secluded streets.

Tragedy Is Narrowly Averted.

Two little girls had a narrow escape from being trampled upon by the horses attached to the president's carriage. They had darted out suddenly from the curb almost under the horses' feet. Capt. Guyman was compelled to the animals back on their haunches to keep them off the children. The occupants of the president's carriage were brought to their feet in trembling anticipation of a tragedy, and it was only by a hair's breadth that the little ones escaped. Then it was that the route was changed to less congested streets. The party drove until sundown.

To-day will be a very busy day for the chief executive and his party. The president will address the convention of Spanish war veterans at 10 a. m.; at 11 o'clock he will be driven to the steamer Tashmoo for a ride on the river, returning at 3 o'clock; at 4 o'clock he will review the parade of veterans and military, a unique feature of which will be the Twenty-first regiment of Essex fusiliers from Canada; at 8 p. m. he will attend the banquet of the veterans in Light Guard armory, where he will make the address of the evening.

GREETED WITH JEERS.

Life of National Guardsmen Is Made Miserable.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 22. — The Hudson Valley Railroad company, whose motormen have been on strike for three weeks, operated cars yesterday under great difficulty, as each car had to be accompanied by a dozen or more national guardsmen. No attempt was made to run the cars on schedule time, and the passenger traffic, as a whole, amounted to almost nothing. The unruly element was very much in evidence at Waterford, Stillwater, Mechanicsville, Balston Spa, Saratoga Springs, Fort Edward and Glens Falls, as at each of these places crowds greeted the motormen and soldiers with jeers and epithets and verbally assaulted the few passengers.

CATTLE TRAIN WRECKED.

Animals Are Crushed in Collapse of Railroad Cars.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 22. — A stock train consisting of forty-two cars bound for Chicago left the track yesterday while passing a switch at Arvilla. Twenty-two cars of cattle and horses were piled up in the ditch. Five hundred head of stock were killed or so badly injured that they were killed by employes.

Rain Saves Crops.

Denver, Sept. 22.—Continuous rainfall over the entire eastern slope of the Rocky mountains from Montana to Mexico have saved late crops and allayed fears of a shortage of water. It will make grazing good.

Four Men Perish.

Covington, Ky., Sept. 22.—By a cave-in at the Stack mines four men, all colored, lost their lives. The body of one was recovered and it is thought the force of men now at work will soon reach the others.

DRAMATIC SCENE IN CHURCH.

Clergyman Ends Trial by Handing in His Resignation.

Keokuk, Iowa, Sept. 22.—The case of Rev. P. L. Henness before the Iowa conference of the Methodist Episcopal church ended Saturday night as abruptly as it had begun, when the accused pastor resigned in a dramatic manner. After the trial committee appointed by Bishop Hamilton and composed of thirteen prominent divines, had been in session far into the night, Mr. Henness himself took the stand. He said it was evident to himself and to his attorneys that he was not to have fair treatment, and then he handed the parchments of his ordination in 1887 and his resignation from membership in the church as well as from the ministry. Turning to his wife, who was present, the self unfrocked minister exclaimed: "Woman, behold the wreck of a man you have made." His wife broke down at this exhibition. The committee immediately closed its session, having lost its jurisdiction of the case. Mr. Henness, after maintaining silence stubbornly for a year, said that the reason he left his wife was for continual "nagging," which broke down his health and rendered it impossible for him to do ministerial work. The charge against him before the conference was simply his separation from his wife, whom he agreed to support but refused to live with. No question of immorality was involved.

YOUNG HERO SAVES 200 LIVES.

Flags Crowded Train Just in Time to Prevent Frightful Accident.

Winona, Minn., Sept. 22.—To Fred Anderson, a young man of this city, belongs the credit of having saved from death a train load of passengers on the Northwestern road. By the exercise of quick wit he flagged the Northwestern train that was bearing down on a horse and wagon caught on a high trestle near Stockton in the darkness. The escape of the trainful of passengers was a narrow one, for when the train was brought to a standstill the pilot was within two feet of the horse and wagon. Had the train, which crosses the trestle at a speed of sixty miles an hour, struck the obstruction, the engine and cars would have been precipitated into the depth below, with great loss of life.

THROWN FROM A CAR.

Minneapolis Society Belle Seriously Hurt at Racine.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 22.—Miss Katherine L. White, a society belle of Minneapolis, was seriously injured near Racine college yesterday afternoon by being thrown from an electric interurban car. The young woman had come to the city to accompany her nephew to the college, the most exclusive boys' school in the state, and was landing from the car to go to the school when the accident occurred. The car started before Miss White was able to step from the platform, and she was thrown with great force to the ground. She has been injured internally and is under the care of physicians.

EIGHTEEN MONTHS A FUGITIVE.

Confidential Agent at Milwaukee Skips Out but Is Caught.

Milwaukee, Sept. 22—W. P. Leppere, who has since Jan. 14, 1901, been wanted in Milwaukee on a charge of embezzling $2,000 from Jones, Evans & Co., formerly of this city, but who have since removed to Chicago, has been captured at Donald, B. C., and Detectives McManus and Schweltzer have gone there for the purpose of bringing him back. Leppere was the confidential agent for Jones, Evans & Co., and was intrusted with large sums of money in their brokerage office in Michigan street. When he arrives in this city representatives of Jones, Evans & Co. will come from Chicago to prosecute him.

IN ANNAPOLIS.

Northwestern Men Who Will Be Admitted as Cadets.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 22.—Of the 117 candidates examined by the civil service commission for admission to the naval academy only thirty-two passed mentally. It is thought that a number of the candidates who were only slightly deficient will be admitted by the examining board. Those from the Northwest who passed were: J. B. Wright, Minnesota; H. F. Swenson, South Dakota; L. M. Atkins, Montana; H. W. Cleveland, Wisconsin; F. E. Follet, Wisconsin; F. G. Fletcher, Iowa.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Man Who Is Alleged to Have Tortured Another Is Arrested.

Mandan, S. D., Sept. 22. — Sheriff Weeks yesterday arrested A. J. Harrob and turned him over to the sheriff of Gage county, Neb., who took his prisoner away without requisition papers. Harrob is charged with being implicated in the murder of David Jones in 1897 in Gage county. Frank Olds, reported to have been guilty with Harrob, has turned state's evidence. It is reported that Olds and Harrob tortured and killed Jones for his money.

MAKE A GOOD HAUL.

Sneak Thieves Rob Sioux City Men of Money and Valuable Watch.

Sioux City, Iowa, Sept. 22.—Burglars entered the homes of two business men of this city last night and secured $300 in cash and a gold watch and chain. Julius Pappe lost the cash and Dave Davidson the watch, valued at $150. Mr. Pappe's money was in bills and was taken from his pockets. Entrance was gained through a window in both instances.

Shot by Burglars.

Goldfield, Colo., Sept. 22.—Gus Kale, night marshal, was shot and killed in a battle with burglars in Stowe's drug store early yesterday. Two shots pierced his heart, another entered the mouth and another shattered his hand.

Prefers Death to Prison.

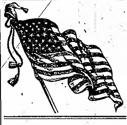
WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 24, 1902.



The primary election law has received its test in the state of Minnesota. Just now it would be hard to state whether or not it has proven satisfactory.

This law has successfully defeated the "packed convention" and has forced the candidate to go forth among the masses and make his merits or de-merits known to the voter direct. This has made the campaign for nomination really the most expensive altogether that the state has ever had. Now the question arises if the nominees under the primary election law are the men best qualified either to look after the public welfare or the interests of the political party which nominated them.

Under the old law, a candidate was nominated by a convention of his party, and he had to show to the convention that he was possessed of either merit or the necessary "pull" before he could secure the nomination. In some instances it has happened that a weakling would be nominated by his "friends"—who had the "pull"—because they needed a tool to aid their projects or because they wanted to "kill him off." But, generally speaking, those conventions nominated the best men in their party.

Under the new primary law the possibility of nominating a man for office, for personal or corporation purposes, is rendered well nigh impossible. It also makes it impossible to "kill off" an incapable candidate for the reason that he is incapable of insufficiently advertising his incapability and the people vote for him blindfolded.

In some cases the voters have chosen the best man, at the primaries, and in others they have nominated men whom they knew nothing of and who are absolutely incompetent to fill the duties of the office which they seek.

Which system do the people prefer? The question will be answered when the elected nominees prove their efficiency as office holders.

It is a pretty good idea to follow your wife's advice once in a while. Ole Dahl, a Mankato blacksmith, got up very early the other morning to go to work but his good woman persuaded him it was too dark. So Ole sat himself down to read until daybreak when just then a bolt of lightning struck the blacksmith shop. This make it light enough to work all right but Ole has been hugging himself ever since for doing what his wife wanted him to for once.—Ralph W. Wheelock, in Minneapolis Tribune.

The Oldest Death Sentence.

The oldest death sentence extant is found in the Amherst papyri containing the trials of state criminals in Egypt, about 1300 B. C. The criminal in this case was found guilty of magic, which his judges state "was worthy of death, which he carried out, and he killed himself," apparently by stabbing, as to the Japanese "hori kori," which is also of very ancient origin.

Among less civilized peoples drowning would seem to have been the earliest method of legal punishment, for about 450 B. C. the Britons killed their criminals by throwing them into a quagmire. Of other than capital punishments the oldest recorded comes from Chaldea, where it was enacted some 6,000 years ago that when any one maimed a slave "the hand that thus offended should pay him each day a measure of corn."

The "Gold Snake."

A Mexican superstition, very common among miners in that country, relates to the "gold snake." This species of serpent is perfectly harmless and very handsome, being green in color and with a golden iridescence in its scales. Faith is entertained that wherever a gold snake makes its nest there is a ledge containing the precious metal, and there are many miners who will locate a claim at once if they find a gold snake.

Revenged.

It was apparent that the barber was highly pleased.

"What has happened?" asked the man with the towel round his neck.

"I dislocated my shoulder to the spring," he answered.

"Well?"

"The doctor who set it got out of this chair just before you came in. If his wife recognizes him when he gets home, it'll only be by his voice."

Warning Against Forest and Prairie Fires

Office of State Forest Commissioner.
St. Paul, Minn., March 4, 1902.

Chapter 196 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for 1895 (Act of April 18th) constitutes Supervisors of towns, Mayors of cities and presidents of village councils Fire Wardens, and it is made their duty to take precaution to prevent forest and prairie fires, and if they occur, to go and extinguish or control them, and in emergencies to call upon any able-bodied male person, over eighteen years of age, to assist. Reports of such fires with particulars tending to fix responsibility therefor shall be made within reasonable time—usually within a week. The Forest Commissioner is required to provide and sign an abstract (as herein) of the penalties under said law, and it is made the duty of the County Commissioners of each county to cause said abstract to be published in at least three issues of the official paper in their respective counties each year between the 15th of April and 1st of November, and they are hereby instructed to publish this notice entire. Under said law.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the state prison not over ten years or both:

Any person who maliciously sets or causes to be set on fire any woods, prairie, or other combustible material whereby the property of another is destroyed and life is sacrificed.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three months.

Any person refusing, without cause, to assist fire wardens in extinguishing forest or prairie fires.

Any fire warden who neglects to perform his duties.

Any person who wilfully, negligently or carelessly sets on fire, or causes to be set on fire, any woods, prairies or other combustible material thereby causing injury to another.

Any person who shall kindle a fire on or dangerously near to forest or prairie land and leave it unquenched, or who shall be a party thereto.

Any person who shall use other than incombustible fire wads for firearms or carry a naked torch, firebrand or other exposed light in or dangerously near to forest land.

Any person who shall wilfully or heedlessly deface, destroy or remove this or any other warning placard posted under the requirements of the above mentioned Act.

Any railroad company wilfully neglecting to provide efficient spark arresters on its engines; or to keep its right of way to the width of 100 feet cleared of combustible material; or which shall fail to comply with other provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

The following are liable to a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50:

Any railroad employe who wilfully violates the provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

Any owner of threshing or other portable steam engine who neglects to have efficient spark arresters, or who shall deposit live coals or hot ashes without extinguishing the same.

R. C. DUNN (State Auditor,)
Forest Commissioner.

O. C. ANDREWS,
Chief Fire Warden.

Cruelly Crushed.

William Bliss when president of the Boston and Albany railroad was once called before the railroad committee of the Massachusetts legislature to testify on traffic matters, and a young member who was serving his first term undertook to examine him.

"I want you to tell me how much it costs to haul a freight car from Boston to Springfield," said the member.

"I don't know," replied Mr. Bliss.

"You don't know?"

"That was the answer I gave."

"What are you, anyway?"

"President."

"Of what?"

"The Boston and Albany railroad."

"Well, sir," began the legislator in rising voice, "if you are William Bliss, president of the Boston and Albany railroad, and you don't know what it costs to haul freight from Boston to Springfield, who in the name of heaven does know?"

"No one that I know unless it is a member of the Massachusetts legislature who is serving his first term."

Another member continued the examination.

"Old Patch," the Forger.

It was about the year 1784 that the first forgeries on a very large scale were discovered by the Bank of England, and these were done by one man, known from his favorite disguise as "Old Patch." By a large issue of notes spread over a long period he defrauded the bank of more than £200,000, and, having only one confidant, his mistress, great difficulty was experienced in tracing the source of the forgeries. "Old Patch" in his checkered career of lottery office keeper, stockbroker and gambler had given banknotes careful study and acquired a knowledge of engraving, paper making and printing. He made his own ink, manufactured the paper and printed the notes on a private press. In various disguises he hired boys from the streets to present the notes. Suspicion was at last aroused by his movements. He was thrown into prison, where he cheated the law by hanging himself in his cell.—London Chronicle.

A Telling Retort.

Fault was found, says the Christian Endeavor World, with the way in which the shorthand writers reported the speeches in a legislative body. They retaliated by giving the speech of one of the members exactly as he made it, with the following result:

"The reporters—ought not to—the reporters ought not to be the ones to judge of what is important—not to say what should be left out—but—the member can only judge of what is important. As I—as my speeches—as the reports—as what I say is reported sometimes, no one—nobody can understand from the reports—what it is—what I mean. So—it strikes me—it has struck me certain matters—things that appear of importance—are sometimes left out—omitted. The reporters—the papers—points are reported—I mean—to make a brief statement—what the paper thinks of interest—is reported."

Sunday in England.

Few people are aware how strict a Sabbath is still legally ordained in England. The Lord's day observance act forbids not only Sunday trading, but also every possible occupation—walking, riding, rowing or any game—and strictly enjoins upon all subjects over nine years of age attendance at church. At the opening of every assize the royal proclamation for the preservation of morality is read. People who are then present for the first time are astonished to hear that the monarch forbids and calls upon the magistrates to punish absence from divine service on Sundays, any playing of cards or other games of chance or haunting of public houses on the same day. Everybody found in an inn during service hours is liable to a fine of 80 cents, the landlord to a penalty of $2.40, and for a successful prosecution church wardens are entitled to a reward of $10. As recently as 1864 Isaac Walton, a manservant, was fined $2.30 for refusing to attend church on Sunday when ordered there by his mistress. About the same time a mother was prosecuted by her son and actually imprisoned for not attending church.

Don't Do It "Just For Now."

Many young people form habits which cripple and handicap them for life by doing things "just for now." They let things drop wherever they happen to be "just for now," thinking that they will put the hook, the tool, the letter or the article of clothing later where it belongs. When these young people grow up to manhood and womanhood, they find that the habit of putting things down anywhere "just for now" has become a tyrant that fills their lives with confusion and disorder. It takes no more time or effort to put a thing where it belongs in the first place than it does later, perhaps less, and the chances are that, if you do not do so at the proper time you never will. Even if it costs you a little inconvenience at the moment to put everything in its proper place, to do everything at the proper time, the orderly and methodical habits which you cultivate in this way will increase your power and usefulness a hundredfold and may save you much trouble and mortification in the future.—Success.

Tried Hard.

At a trial at Auburn, Pa., one of the witnesses was a green countryman unused to the ways of the law, but quick, as it proved, to understand its principles. After a severe cross examination, says an exchange, the counsel for the government paused, and then, putting on a look of severity, exclaimed:

"Mr. Wilkins, has not an effort been made to induce you to tell a different story?"

"A different story from what I told, sir?"

"That is what I mean."

"Yes, sir; several persons have tried to get me to tell a different story from what I have told, but they couldn't."

"Now, sir, upon your oath, I wish to know who those persons are?"

"Well, I guess you've tried 'bout as hard as any of them."

Displayed Same Strength.

"Pa!"

"Well, Willie."

"You wouldn't pick sis out for a strong woman, would you?"

"Hardly. Your sister is a quiet, gentle girl."

"Well, that's all you know about it. She just puts it on. Why, I heard that big man that's been calling here tell his chum last night that she threw him over. I don't know what it was, but if she threw him over anything she's a bird."—Chicago Post.

Prevention of the Flight of Birds.

To prevent birds from flying without the barbarous and injurious system sometimes practiced of cutting their wings it will be found sufficient to tie together with a thread three or four of the largest feathers of one wing. This destroys the balance, the wings do not act symmetrically in the air, and flight is rendered impossible. Fowls, pigeons, etc., may be kept within bounds in this simple fashion.

Merely Misplaced.

"Captain," said the cabin boy, "is a thing lost when you know where it is?"

"No, you fool," answered the captain, who, being a wise man, abhorred frivolous questions.

"Well, sir, your silver teapot is at the bottom of the sea."

Exit cabin boy.—New York Times.

It Wouldn't Work.

"I found," said the man who frequents the races, "that I seemed to win every second day, so I made up my mind to take a fresh start and bet only every second day."

"And how did you come out?"

"Well, I think I must have started the scheme the wrong day."—Chicago Post.

The Kind of Judge He Wanted.

The story is told of an Irishwoman who tried to console her husband with the remark that he would have a fair trial and an upright judge. "Yerra, woman," replied her spouse, "what'd I want wid an upright judge? What I wants is a judge that'll lean a little."

Opportunity.

Opportunity has all her hair on her forehead, but when she has passed you cannot call her back. She has not tuft whereby you can lay hold on her, for she is bald on the back part of her head and never returns.—Rabelais.

The average amount of water that should be taken daily is from two to four pints, or from four to eight glasses. More water should be drunk in hot weather than in cold.

Mrs. Fred Miller and daughter Madge left Monday evening for Milwaukee after a pleasant summer spent here. Their many friends regret that they are not likely to return again next year.

W. C. Smiley, the genial candidate for county surveyor, was here yesterday between trains. He was on his way to Thief River Falls from Bemidji where he was as a witness in an important law suit.

Julius Zachgo and T. Bryson were here Monday from Fisher looking over the creamery plant. They are prominent in farming circles at Fisher and are interested in a creamery for their home town.

—One of the most convenient things that has ever been offered to the people of St. Hilaire is the McKay Common Sense Waist and Hose Supporter. A complete line for boys and girls can be found at Rapp & Post's.

E. G. Otterness, of Cannon Falls, spent a few days here last week visiting his brother, Nels Otterness. During his stay he discovered a bargain in 400 acres of land in Wyandotte and River Falls townships and promptly purchased the same from Julius Pleth.

Services in the M. E. church next Sunday at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. These will be the closing services of the conference year which ends Oct. 1st. It is expected also that this will be the pastor's last Sunday in St. Hilaire, as he goes to conference on Monday next, and will in all probability be appointed to another field of labor. The pastor would be pleased to have a large attendance Sunday morning and evening.

Dr. F. A. Lanctot, ophthalmologist, who recently opened offices at Crookston, is a regular graduate of McCormick Optical college, Chicago. This school teaches that 80 per cent of all so called diseases are not diseases at all, but are functional derangements, due wholly or in part to errors of refraction in the eyes and that no medicine is needed other than a correction of the defect coupled with proper rest, diet, etc., all natural rational propositions which have been proven time and again in practice.

Good Roads Convention, Grand Forks, Sept. 25th and 26th.

For the above convention the Great Northern Railway will sell half rate excursion tickets from St. Hilaire to Grand Forks and return, good going September 24th, 25th, and 26th; good returning until September 27th.

—Go to B. H. Duntley's for a "Tschida's Leader" 5-cent cigar.

J. Barton and O. J. Fellman hired a team Sunday afternoon to go and visit a friend named Olson who resides in this vicinity. In some way the team took the wrong road and finally landed them in Thief River Falls where they spent a few hours. They had a good time and returned early—in the morning.

Yesterday morning Drs. Pleth and Blomburgh performed an operation on Ole Peterson, amputating the right leg just below the knee. Mr. Peterson has suffered with a diseased leg for years and was practically a cripple. He is resting easily and the indications are that the operation will prove an entire success.

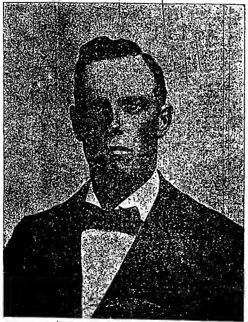
Wm. Hannay underwent a delicate surgical operation on Saturday for the removal of a ganglion from the sympathetic nerve near the base of the brain. The operation was performed by Dr. Pleth, assisted by Dr. Blomburgh and Drs. Tupper and Gamble, of Thief River Falls. It was a complete success and the patient is doing well.

The directors of the creamery association held a business meeting last Wednesday at which the resignation of G. A. Brooks as secretary was accepted and K. O. Gigstad chosen in his place. W. A. Sorsoleil was elected to the presidency of the organization. The reason for Mr. Brooks resigning is that he has sold out his farm and intends going west in the near future.

C. H. Remington, L. L. Remington and Chas. Hull, of Laporte City, Iowa, were here a few days last week. The latter gentlemen have invested extensively in real estate in this vicinity and contemplate moving here in the coming spring. They will bring with them large outfits of high grade stock and machinery, and will undoubtedly soon take leading positions in the farming community.

—If you want a good serviceable pair of shoes for men, ladies, boys, misses' or children go to Hanson's One Price Store.

—Get your herring, brick cheese and primost at Hanson's One Price Store.



S. A. Swanson,

Candidate for Senator—61st Legislative District.

SOLOMON A. SWANSON, of Red Lake Falls, is the unanimous choice of the Peoples' party voters of the Sixty-first legislative district for state senator, and in addition has received the hearty endorsement of the Democratic organizations.

Mr. Swanson was born in Fort Lee, New Jersey, June 26, 1874, and is the eldest of a family of eight children born to Peter and Ingri (Anderson) Swanson. His parents were natives of Sweden, and are now residents of Black River township, Red Lake county, where they located in 1881. They arrived at Crookston April 12 of that year, and our subject was then but seven years of age. The snow was three feet deep, when the father, guided by his brother Andrew, chose the farm on which he now resides. The family remained with relatives until spring, when a frame building 16x24 was erected and farming was begun with an ox team. Crookston, twenty-five miles distant, was for three years the nearest railroad point.

For sixteen years our subject remained on the farm and was educated in the public schools. He began teaching and later attended the state normal at Moorhead, and he also took a course in the Crookston business college. In 1896 when Red Lake county was organized, he was appointed the first register of deeds, having already become identified with the public interests of the county. In 1899 he was appointed official abstracter by the county commissioners, and he then engaged also in the real estate business. In the campaign two years ago he was the choice of the Peoples' party for representative, and his strength at home is best shown by the vote he received in Red Lake county. Three candidates were in the field, Mr. Swanson receiving 994 votes, Chas. G. Rapp (Rep.) 718 and James Meehan (Dem.) 465. Both of the opposing candidates were old residents of the county and exceptionally strong and popular men. By reason of the fact that Beltrami county gave Mr. Rapp a majority of over 500 that gentleman was elected by a small plurality. This year the Democrats will have no candidate for state senator, and have endorsed Mr. Swanson, and as the combined vote of the two parties will be considerably larger than the Republican vote there is every reason to believe that Mr. Swanson will win by at least 800 or 1000 majority in the district.

Besides the combined vote of the Democrats and Populists Mr. Swanson will receive the votes of many Republicans who are acquainted with his standing in the community and his ability as a business man.

10,600,000,000 Pennies.

The United States has minted over 10,600,000,000 pennies and yet they disappear like pins, no one knows where they go. Despite the vast number in circulation there is a constant shortage. Around the holidays and at Fourth of July millions of small boys are hoarding their pennies and the rest of the world has a penny famine. It might be said right here that this is about the only sort of famine golden grain belt beer will not relieve. If you are thirsty and hungry this beer refreshes and nourishes you at once. Keep a case on hand and use it regularly to get the most pleasure and greatest benefit from it. Order of the nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Insurance News.

Insurance men of the West who read the daily column of insurance information in The Chicago Record-Herald keep pace with the times and are prepared for all emergencies and contingencies that have grown into the insurance business. The column "With Insurance Men" gives in compact form all the latest doings in the insurance world, and is conceded by insurance men everywhere to be the best and most up-to-date report published by any newspaper in the United States. The Record-Herald does not copy its information from insurance journals, but secures it first hand from managers, agents and companies and by telegraph from its own special correspondents, by telephone and in special cable dispatches from abroad. The New York service of the Record-Herald's Insurance department is equaled by no other paper. In fact, The Record-Herald is the only daily newspaper that gives insurance men the first information daily on every important event in the insurance business.

Opium Among Thieves.

After a gun (crook) has grafted for some time his nervous system becomes affected and he needs a stimulant. Most of grow addicted either to opium, choloral, morphine or whiskey. Even at this early period I began to take a little opium, and when a grafter is doped he is very reckless. I will say one thing for opium, however. That drug never makes a man careless of his personal appearance. A grafter who drinks will do down and out as a bum, but an opium fiend never forgets to dress well.—Leslie's Monthly.

DON'T GIVE UP.

Don't be discouraged by past efforts to find relief and cure from the myriads of ills that come from sick kidneys. You may pass nights of sleepless tossing, annoyed by frequent urination. Your back may ache like a toothache or sudden twitches and twinges of backache pain make life a misery. Perhaps you have nervous spells, are weak, tired-out, depressed. There is a cure for all of this and for every trouble of the bladder and kidneys. Read this case and note it tells how well the cure was tested:

Charles Lindgren, sealer of freight cars on the L. S. & M. S. R. R., La Porte, Ind., says: "I have greater faith in Doan's Kidney Pills to-day than I had in the fall of 1897 when I began taking them and made a public statement of the result. At that time I had suffered with lameness and soreness of the back, which was so excruciating that I could scarcely turn in bed; and Doan's Kidney Pills completely cured this trouble. I am always ready to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills personally to anyone requiring a kidney remedy. After a lapse of three years I make this statement, which shows my undoubted faith in the preparation."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine, which cured Mr. Lindgren, will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, 60 cents per box.

Had Crazy Spells.

West Pembroke, Me., Sept. 22.—The thirteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. A. J. Smith suffered with a peculiar affliction, which her mother describes as follows:

"It is two years now since she was first taken with crazy spells.

"They kept on coming at intervals, and I could get nothing to do her any good.

"The doctors gave me no encouragement. They all said they could not help her.

"The crazy spell would last about nine days, then she would be well about nine days, but would eat very little and was very yellow. Even the whites of her eyes were yellow.

"I heard that Dodd's Kidney Pills were a great remedy for young girls, and decided to try them.

"After taking one box she was completely restored, and she has not had one bad spell since. Of course we continue to use the pills, and she used altogether five boxes last fall.

"In March I thought I saw symptoms of the spells again, and I got six boxes, of which she has taken four, and is in splendid health.

"Her case was certainly a remarkable one, and we are very thankful to Dodd's Kidney Pills for the great good they have done my daughter."

LOOK FOR CLASHES

CONDITIONS IN THE COAL MINE REGION APPROACHING A CRISIS.

MILITARY READY FOR TROUBLE

STRIKERS BECOMING AGGRESSIVE AND OUTBREAKS ARE FREQUENT.

FUSILADE OF STONES AND CLUBS

UNRULY MOB GETS AFTER A WATCHMAN FROM ONE OF THE MINES.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 22.—It is the opinion of the military men and the coal operators that conditions are rapidly approaching the point where there will be a serious clash between the soldiers or deputy sheriffs and the riotous element of the strikers. The daring attacks in the Schuylkill region with the soldiers near has shown the spirit of the men.

Preparations are being made to answer calls for help to-day and the troops will be in readiness for rapid marching. In the Wyoming and Lackawanna regions the warnings of Sheriffs Jacobs and Schadt that further violence will compel them to ask for troops has not prevented more outbreaks. Saturday night and yesterday morning there were several attacks upon non-union men and their houses. The strikers near Edwardsville were bold enough to threaten to attack the house of James McGuire, a watchman at the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Woodward mine.

Threw Sticks and Stones.

He appealed to the company and the sheriff was requested to send guards there. He replied that the deputies could not do police duty of that sort. The company then sent officers to guard the house. Despite this the attack was made about 1 o'clock yesterday morning, and because they did not know in which of the four houses McGuire lived the mob attacked all of them. About a hundred were in the crowd and were armed with stones and clubs, and the fusilade was terrific. Windows and window sashes were carried away, doors were smashed in and the houses badly wrecked. The guards fired a number of shots, to which the mob replied and some fifty shots were fired, but none of the guards were hurt, and so far as known the mob escaped without injury. At the first alarm Sheriff Jacobs was notified and sent deputies in a carriage. They arrived after the attack began and dispersed the crowd. Three men were arrested, charged with being the ringleaders, who threatened the life of McGuire. In default of bail they were committed to jail.

WONDERFUL PLUCK OF BOY.

Carries His Amputated Leg to Hospital, Sixteen Miles Away.

Easton, Pa., Sept. 22.—With one leg cut off below the knee and the other gashed to the bone, Eugene Pickel, seventeen years old, of this city, was carted sixteen miles to the Easton hospital, where he is lying in a critical condition. Young Pickel was working at a portable sawmill near Leithsville, in Lower Saucon township, when he was caught under a log that was being cut, and, held prisoner, he was carried to the fast-revolving circular saw. His cries for help did not summon aid until the blade had severed his right leg and had cut a deep gash in the left leg. It was an hour and a half before surgical aid could be secured and the flow of blood was stopped. Pickel was then loaded into a wagon and brought here. On the way to Easton he critically examined the severed portion of the amputated limb, which he insisted on bringing home with him.

BOERS MUST PAY FOR WAR.

Colonies Will Be Required to Dig Up $500,000,000.

London, Sept. 22.—The Daily Mail this morning says the government has decided that the new South African colonies are to be required to pay $500,000,000 toward the cost of the South African war. The colonies are, however, to be allowed ample time in which to make this payment; it will not be collected under the extension of trade and expansion of revenue permit. Consequently the loan will not be floated for two or three years. Mining profits will probably be taxed 10 per cent more than they were before the war, and money will also be obtained by granting all kinds of concessions and mineral rights.

KILLED HIS FATHER.

Boy Feared That His Mother's Life Was in Danger.

Woonsocket, R. I., Sept. 22. — Because he desired to protect his mother from violent treatment at the hands of her husband and fearing also that his own life was in danger, William C. Bonin, aged twenty, shot and killed his father, John C. Bonin, yesterday. The tragedy occurred at the factory boarding house, where his father was proprietor, at Slatersville, North Smithfield. There were present at the time also five small children of the family. After the shooting young Bonin went to his room, put on his best clothes and waited for the officer, who had been called by his mother.

Boxers Not Subdued.

London, Sept. 22. — In a dispatch from Shanghai the correspondent of the Standard declares that Boxerism in the province of Sze Chuen has not been subdued. The Boxers are now threatening three cities.

Coghlan to Go South.

Boston, Sept. 22.—Rear Admiral Joseph B. Coghlan has raised his flag on the Olympia and awaits orders to proceed to the Isthmus of Panama to assume charge of the affairs in that vicinity.

Montana Democrats Break Even.

Helena, Mont., Sept. 20—Democratic primaries were held in several counties last night. Clark and Heinze show about equal strength. In Butte several bolts were indulged in and all sorts of strategy resorted to to secure advantage. Nearly all counties will have contesting delegations at the state convention.

Forest Fires Burn Fiercely.

Tillamook, Or., Sept. 20—Word comes from Sand Lake that four farmhouses have been destroyed by forest fires which continue to burn fiercely on Wilson river.

RESULT OF A DRUNKEN ROW.

Three Italian Miners in West Virginia Are Killed.

Philippi, W. Va., Sept. 22. — Three Italian miners, were shot and killed in a drunken row at Berryburg. One white man was also shot and seriously injured. Another Italian was badly cut with a razor. The latter is charged with the shooting and is in jail.

Another Horse Is Stolen.

Winona, Minn., Sept. 22.—In spite of the meeting of the sheriffs in this part of the country and the extra precautions that are being taken all through Southern Minnesota, horse thieving is still going on. Last night a valuable driving horse, with saddle and bridle, was stolen from John Watts, a farmer living about four miles south of St. Charles.

Fatal Runaway.

Aberdeen, S. D., Sept. 22. — R. P. Humphrey, a farmer near Ipswich, was killed on Friday in a runaway accident. While mowing with a high-spirited team they ran away, throwing him in front of the sickle, which cut and mangled him in a frightful manner. He died a few hours after the accident. His relatives live at Cambria, where his remains have been taken for burial.

Embezzler Pleads Guilty.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 22. — Moses T. Hale, former city treasurer of Colorado Springs, charged with embezzlement of $10,000 of city funds, has withdrawn his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. Judge Leeds suspended sentence, saying that it appeared that the shortage which was incurred through the defendant's generosity to friends had been settled by his brother.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION IS SYSTEMIC CATARRH.

[Pe-ru-na is the only Systemic Catarrh Remedy known to the Medical Profession]

MRS. IDA L. GREGORY
A LEADING CLUBWOMAN OF DENVER, COLO.

Mrs. Ida L. Gregory, President of the Poets and Authors Club of Colorado, President of Colorado Art Club, Director of School of Industry and Design, Vice President of Sherman Art League, is One of the Leading Club Women of Colorado.

In a recent letter from 2 Grant avenue, Denver, Colo., this prominent lady says:

"Some years ago my husband suffered from nervous prostration and advising with a friendly druggist he brought home a bottle of Peruna. His health was restored from its use, his appetite was increased and restful sleep came to him. I therefore heartily endorse Peruna, as an honest remedy worthy the good things which are said of it."—Ida L. Gregory.

Nervous prostration is so frequently associated with systemic catarrh that some doctors do not distinguish between the two. In systemic catarrh the disease has pervaded the whole system and there is a constant loss of vital fluids from the mucous membranes.

A great many people are doctoring for nervous prostration who would be immediately cured by a course of Peruna. Peruna makes clean, healthy mucous membranes. By this preservation of the fluids the weakening drain of their discharge is prevented.

The medical profession is just beginning to awaken to the fact that chronic catarrh, especially systemic catarrh, will soon produce a condition so nearly resembling nervous prostration that it is very difficult to tell one from the other.

Peruna cures these cases without fail.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

It beats all how some dealers will impose on their customers by offering them, when Alabastine is called for, cheap kalsomines that will spoil their walls. Such action is certainly prompted by the devil and such methods will not commend themselves to honest dealers. Alabastine, a durable cement base wall coating, not a kalsomine, costs no more to apply than cheap dope that spoils your walls and injures the health of your family. Alabastine is a dry powder, comes in packages, mixes with cold water, in white and fourteen beautiful tints, for use on plastered walls, wood ceiling, brick or canvas, superior to paint or paper. Mexican Mustang Liniment

Over-pleasure is as hard on the muscles and joints as over work. The best thing to do to get the body right after a long bicycle ride is to rub the sore, stiff parts well with Mexican Mustang Liniment. No better remedy made for bruises, cuts and chafing.

EVERY CHILD BORN INTO THE WORLD with an inherited tendency to distressing, disfiguring humours of the skin, scalp, and blood, becomes an object of the most tender solicitude, not only because of its suffering but because of the dreadful fear that the disfiguration is to be lifelong and mar its future happiness and prosperity. Hence it becomes the duty of mothers of such afflicted children to acquaint themselves with the best, the purest, and most effective treatment available, viz., THE CUTICURA TREATMENT.

Warm baths with CUTICURA SOAP, to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle, gentle anointings with CUTICURA OINTMENT, to instantly allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, are all that can be desired for the alleviation of the suffering of skin-tortured infants and children and the comfort of worn-out, worried mothers. A single set is often sufficient to cure when the best physicians fail.

Resume of the News.

Fresh Reliable Brief

Washington Notes.

Secretary Root has ordered the establishment of a school of training at every military post for officers, including lieutenants and captains of less than ten years' service as commissioned officers.

The leave of absence given J. F. Kellar, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, has not been canceled as it was shown he was personally conducting a political campaign in California.

General Superintendent Machen of the free delivery system of the postoffice department, has framed estimates aggregating between eleven and twelve million dollars for the free delivery service in the United States during the next fiscal year.

Col. Charles Smart, assistant surgeon general, has been designated as chief surgeon of the division of the Philippines and will soon leave for Manila by orders of the war department. Col. Smart will look into the cholera situation especially.

Secretary Shaw has under consideration the advisability of increasing government funds on deposit at national bank depositories to the full market value of bonds on deposit with the government as a means of relieving the stringency in the money market.

Accidental Happenings.

John T. O'Sullivan, labor editor of the Boston Globe, and prominently identified with national and state labor organizations, was killed by a train at Lynn, Mass.

with agricultural stores and implements, at Lincoln, Neb., burned, causing a loss of $15,000. The inmates in the asylum wings set up a fearful din, but were restrained behind bars. Incendiarism is charged.

J. Charles Collles, at one time a highly successful artist, was found dead in his room in a boarding house in New York. The coroner's verdict is that death was due from gas from a jet that was accidentally turned.

Fire destroyed $75,000 worth of business property at Laplato, Mo. The fire originated in Ward's drug store, burning two banks, the postoffice, four drug stores, a clothing store, the Masonic hall, a hardware store and a number of warehouses.

An explosion occurred in the Stofford mine of the New Central Coal company at Fairmont, W. Va. Four men were killed and six probably fatally wounded. Several others were badly hurt. Gas in the mine became ignited from the firing of a blast.

The Oceanic Steamship company's liner, Mariposa, which has arrived at San Francisco from Tahiti, reports the destruction, near Papeete, on Sept. 1, of the missionary schooner, Southern Cross. No lives were lost, but the vessel was broken into pieces on the coral bound beach.

People Talked About.

Rev. J. E. Jenkins, pioneer minister of the Cumberland Presbyterian church in Indiana, is dead, aged seventy-seven.

Justice A. H. Ellis of the Kansas supreme court, died at Topeka very suddenly. He had been in bad health for several months.

BURNED AT STAKE

NEGRO SUFFERS AWFUL PUNISHMENT FOR A HEINOUS CRIME.

WHITE WOMAN WAS HIS VICTIM

ASSAULTED AND MURDERED—ALMOST DECAPITATED WITH RAZOR.

SAYS HE DESERVED THE FATE

QUARREL WITH HIS WIFE LEADS SUSPICION TO THE NEGRO.

Corinth, Miss., Sept. 29.—Writhing in the flames of burning fagots piled high by hundreds of citizens, Tom Clark, alias Will Gibson, a young negro, was burned at the stake here early yesterday, after having confessed to one of the most atrocious crimes in the history of Northern Mississippi, the assault on and murder of Mrs. Carrie Whitfield, on Aug. 19 last. Before the torch was applied Clark stated that he deserved his fate. Last August Mrs. Whitfield, the wife of a well-known citizen, was found dead in her home. Investigation showed that the woman had been assaulted, and her head was practically severed from her body, a razor having been used in the bloody work. Both Whitfield and his wife were related to several of the most prominent families of the South, and the indignation of the populace knew no bounds. Corinth and the surrounding country was scoured in an effort to apprehend the murderer, but diligent search failed to Disclose His Identity.

A committee of twelve citizens was named to continue the search for the murderer, and these men have been very active in their work. On Monday last it became known that Tom Clark, a negro living near here, had had trouble with his wife, and the latter threatened to disclose the secret of a crime. Officers apprehended the woman, and she told the officers of her belief that Clark had murdered Mrs. Whitfield. Clark was arrested and brought before the committee of twelve in Corinth. The negro finally confessed to the murder and to a number of other crimes that he had committed. He said that several years ago he killed two men on an excursion train in Mississippi. He told of an outrage perpetrated by himself upon a negro woman, and also of the theft of $1,500 from a physician at French Camp, Miss. After hearing the confession the committee decided that the negro should be hanged from a telegraph pole in the street. Clark

Said He Deserved Death,

but asked that the execution be delayed so that he could have a farewell interview with his mother and brother, who live in Memphis. The request was granted and the two relatives were telegraphed for, but it was learned that they were in Mississippi. Meanwhile the news of the negro's arrest and confession spread rapidly over the surrounding country, and yesterday's incoming trains brought hundreds of people into the city to witness the execution. The crowds become so great that at midday the main street of the town was ordered cleared and the announcement was made that it had been decided to burn Clark at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

At 3 o'clock the prisoner, heavily manacled, was taken from the jail by a police officer, and, followed by a large and excited crowd of men and boys, was led to the east gate of the negro cemetery, which is situated in the western part of the city. Fagots and wood had been piled high and the negro was securely fastened to the iron rod. Clark was asked if he cared to make a statement. He again said that he deserved the fate proposed for him, and asked that a letter be delivered to his mother and brother. He appealed to his brother to care for his children properly, and admonished them to beware of evil company. Finally all was in readiness and the word was given to fire the funeral pile. The husband and brother of Clark's victim stepped forward and applied the torch, and in a moment the flames leaped upward, enveloping the trembling negro in smoke and fire. The clothing of the doomed man was soon ignited, and as the flames grew hotter the skin began to parch. The negro moaned piteously at this juncture, and the agonizing look upon his face told of the awful torture he was undergoing. Finally his head fell forward upon his breast, and in a few seconds all was over. The flames were fed by the crowd until the body was burned to a crisp. Then the gathering in an orderly manner dispersed, and the town soon assumed its normal appearance.

POTATO CHOKES AND KILLS HIM.

While Eating in a Restaurant a Tuber Sticks in His Throat.

Helena, Mont., Sept. 29.—George Gilmore, a laborer who came down from Yellowstone Park, where he had been employed during the summer, choked to death while eating supper at the Union restaurant at Livingston. A piece of potato stuck in his throat and he was dead before assistance could be summoned.

CHICAGO MAY BURN PEAT.

Swamps Near South Chicago May Furnish City With Fuel.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Peat cut from the swamps near South Chicago and dried until fit for fuel may be put on the market as a rival of high-priced coal, if experiments now being made are successful.

Residents of that district have noticed the beds of burning peat, which were ignited in the summer, often burned long after winter began, and have been known to continue through the year.

SAYS CHIEF AMES GOT MONEY.

Minneapolis Woman Testifies That She Paid Tribute by Direction of the Police Official.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 29.—In the trial of Former Superintendent of Police Fred W. Ames for extortion Saturday May McIntosh gave the first evidence directly connecting the defendant with the collection of money from women. She related how he had called on her and notified her to pay no more money to Irwin Gardner, who had been the go-between. He had told her to call at his office and get further instructions.

Soon after Joe Cohen, the new intermediary, called with a detective and notified her to leave the monthly payments in numbered envelopes at his jewelry store.

She then went to Col. Ames and asked if it was all right to pay money to Cohen. She testified that the chief had replied that it was all right, and that she was to pay the same amounts to Cohen that she had previously paid to Gardner. She followed these instructions and was not molested by the police.

She has been ordered by the present administration to pay a monthly fine of $100 in the municipal court.

GIRL IS PARBOILED.

Little Daughter of an Anoka Man Suffers Tragic Death.

Anoka, Minn., Sept. 29.—Alice Bibeau, the seven-year-old daughter of David Bibeau, fell in a steam well just south of Reed & Sherwood's office and was literally parboiled.

Death came before she could be rescued. With her companions she was playing over the well, and in some way the board covering became loosened, letting the little one drop into the eight-foot reservoir, containing a foot and a half of hot water from condensed steam.

Her nine-year-old sister made a wonderfully heroic effort to save her sister, standing in the opening and reaching down through the hot steam. Again and again she tried, and it is believed inhaled some of the hot vapor. She lies in a critical condition at her father's home.

SICILY AGAIN STRICKEN.

Total Number of Deaths Now Placed at 200.

Syracuse, Sicily, Sept. 29.—A fresh storm burst over the district of Santa Maria yesterday and many houses were destroyed. The stormy weather continues generally throughout Sicily. It is now believed that 200 persons perished at Modica during the tornado. In one instance a family of ten persons were drowned in bed. The village of Sortino has been practically destroyed and forty-three persons were drowned. The water rose in the church to a height of twelve feet. Many children lost their lives.

There have been some disgraceful scenes of pillage from the ruins and from bodies, which show the necessity of more troops to keep order.

The total damage as the result of the cyclone is expected to amount to over $2,500,000.

CRIMINAL CAREER CHECKED.

Clever American Thief Caught Trying to Rob London Mail Boxes.

London, Sept. 29.—Henry Conrad, who was caught in a daring attempt to get a wax impression of a key to a mail-box in the center of the financial district in London, has been identified by Inspector Forest of Scotland Yard as Charles Fisher, a well-known American forger and thief. Forest arrested him in London five years ago for a forgery committed in Cincinnati, for which he was convicted in Ohio and only released a few months ago. His wife, who is a very clever woman known as "Sheeney Rachael," is also in London. The attempt to get an impression of the mail box key was very cleverly conceived, and but for the exceptional alertness of a postman it would have succeeded.

RECEIVERS ARE ASKED.

Plan to End the Coal Shortage Is Proposed.

Boston, Sept. 29.—A committee of citizens, headed by the publishers of a Boston newspaper, has sought relief in the courts from the present coal shortage by asking for a receiver for the coal companies and coal-carrying roads.

The petitioners asked that a receiver be appointed for the benefit of all concerned, on the same terms and manner and with such agents and servants and with such rates of wages and other conditions of employment and at such prices for goods produced and sold as the court shall from time to time adjudge proper.

KILLED AT HIS POST.

Stray Shot Hits Fireman on a Fast Freight.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Sept. 29.—Joe Kouehn, the fireman on train 55 of the Milwaukee road, was shot and instantly killed while the train was running about thirty-five miles an hour yesterday.

The accident occurred as the train was passing Becher lake just south of Pembine.

The fireman was sitting in his accustomed place in the cab, and it is supposed that the shot was a stray one from some hunter.

Heinze's New Party.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 29.—F. Augustus Heinze last night organized his new political party, to be known as the Anti-Trust Democracy. The primaries are called for Monday, Sept. 29, and the convention for the following day.

Big Fire at Stockton, Cal.

Stockton, Cal., Sept. 29.—One of the biggest fires in the history of Stockton started last night in the agricultural pavilion. That structure, together with all its contents and most of two residence blocks were burned to the ground. The approximate loss is $500,000, less than half insured.

Marines Still on Guard.

Colon, Sept. 29.—The situation on the isthmus remains unchanged. Free transit between Colon and Panama obtains, and American marines and bluejackets are still traveling on all trains.

MORE TROOPS OUT

GOV. STONE SENDS SHERIDAN TROOP OF CAVALRY TO STRIKE REGION.

SHERIFF SAYS IT IS FORGERY

DID NOT SIGN THE CALL SENT TO GOV. STONE FOR ADDITIONAL TROOPS.

THE SOLDIERS USE THEIR GUNS

FIRE AT SUPPOSED STRIKERS WHO THREW STONES AT THEM.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 29.—Gov. Stone yesterday ordered the Sheridan troop of Tyrone to report to Gen. Gobin for duty in the anthracite strike territory. The troop left Tyrone last night by special train under orders to reinforce the Thirteenth regiment at Olyphant. Camp equipage was shipped from the state arsenal in this city in a special car which was attached to the troopers' train at Tyrone. The Governor's troop of Harrisburg and the Second Philadelphia City troop will remain on duty at Shenandoah. This cavalry was asked for yesterday by Col. Watres, who is to command of the troops stationed at Lackawanna.

The colonel says the ordering out of the troops is not the result of any fresh outbreaks. He says the collieries at which trouble has been taking place are far apart and that the cavalrymen get over the ground more readily than infantry.

Calls It a Forgery.

Sheriff Knerr of Columbia county says he did not sign or authorize his name to be signed to the telegram which was sent to Gov. Stone asking that troops be sent to Centralia.

The following telegram was sent to the governor last night:

"Shenandoah, Pa., Sept. 28.—William A. Stone: Sheriff Knerr says the call for troops for Columbia county is a forgery. Gen. Gobin says he will send troops to Centralia to make arrests. Action certain to cause complications and injustice. We guarantee peaceful surrender of all accused persons to civil authorities. Telegrams to sheriff and the general will show truth of these statements.

Soldiers Open Fire.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 29.—Late last night shots were fired at strikers or supposed strikers for the first time since the troops went afield. At Grassy Island colliery, half a mile from the Thirteenth's camp, two soldiers from Company A were stationed in a patch of underbrush as a part of the outpost of the camp. A volley of stones descended all about them, and one of them hit one of the soldiers and felled him to the ground. The two soldiers shot at fleeting figures and a relief detail, attracted by the shooting, scoured the country for two hours in a fruitless search for the stone throwers.

At 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning a shot was heard on a hillside near the camp and the searchlight was turned in the direction whence the shots came. The man with a gun was descried running to the cover of the woods. The rays of the searchlight were kept upon him and after a short chase a couple of soldiers from the outpost on the hill ran him down. He proved to be Michael Gaughan, the high constable of Olyphant borough. The only explanation he vouchsafed to Col. Watres was: "I wanted to try out our soldiers and see if they are to be depended upon."

Ready to Begin Work.

Shamokin, Pa., Sept. 29.—It is widely rumored here that a determined attempt will be made in this vicinity this week to resume operations at some of the local collieries. During the past few weeks many men have applied for work, it is alleged, and their names have been taken, with the understanding that they will return to their work when an effort is made to resume. At some of the collieries quite a large number of men are now employed.

Answered by Mitchell.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—President Mitchell yesterday issued a long address replying to recent utterances made by President Baer, Mr. Hewitt and others. Mr. Mitchell goes into the miners' side of the controversy at some length and gives a clear explanation of the claims made by the United Mine Workers.

Takes Guests to London.

London, Sept. 29.—James Henry Smith of Chicago has brought to London most of the house party he has been entertaining at Kingussie, Perthshire, including Sydney Tailer. He secured several suites of rooms for his guests at Claridges. They had splendid shooting in Scotland, and all of the party enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

Burned-out Firm Buys Store.

Marshall, Minn., Sept. 29.—Baldwin & Loveridge, whose big department store was destroyed by fire early Thursday morning, have bought Langland's department stock at a lump figure, at once assuming possession.

Mrs. Mackay Still Ailing.

London, Sept. 29.—Mrs. Mackay is still undergoing treatment for a heart weakness at Mannheim, but she leaves there next week to visit her daughter at Zurich. Later on she goes to Paris, whence she sails for the United States with her husband's remains early in November.

Fought Over Clay Pipe.

Paris, Sept. 29.—A fatal duel occurred near Paris this week between two law students of Polish birth. The quarrel arose over a clay pipe which one of them had broken.

YAQUIS ON WARPATH.

Vigorous Opposition to Having Their Lands Confiscated.

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 29.—A report reaches here from Mexico that the Yaqui Indians still refuse to have their lands confiscated by the Mexican government, and in consequence are on the warpath.

Farms are being laid waste by the Mexican troops, and women and children scattered over the republic. The Yaquis refused to accept the decree of the government, which means that the lands of the Indians will be thrown open to settlement. The lands are the best in the republic for agricultural purposes.

The report which reaches Fort Worth indicates that there are still about 1,000 well armed Yaqui Indians on the warpath, who fight at every opportunity with the desperation of the Boers. These warriors are divided into small bands, who harass the Mexican troops at every opportunity and make frequent raids into the valleys to burn, pillage and kill.

APACHES ARE UGLY.

They Persist in Leaving Reservation and Going to a Festival.

Santa Fe, N. M., Sept. 29.—One hundred Apache Indians from the Jicarilla reservation in Northern Rio Arriba county are camped in the Picuris mountains ready to go to the San Geronimo festival at Taos Pueblo next Tuesday and Wednesday, despite the positive orders of the agent. Another band of Apaches is trespassing on the land of the Santa Clara and other Pueblos, and bad blood exists on that account. United States Attorney Abbot has orders from Washington to send a posse to take the Apaches back to the reservation.

SHOTS ARE EXCHANGED.

Violent Demonstrations Against Hudson Valley Railway.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Violent demonstrations against the Hudson Valley Railway company have caused shots to be exchanged, and there were two men locked up in the county jail yesterday charged with being implicated in the attack upon the company's property. The trouble developed Saturday night, when attempts were made to burn the bridges between this place and Ballston Spa. Obstacles were also placed on the tracks.

TWENTY-SIX DIE IN WRECK.

French Express Train Leaves the Rails and Many Are Injured.

Paris, Sept. 29.—Twenty-six people have been killed and a score of people have been injured as the result of an accident to an express train running from Lille to Paris. The train left the rails while crossing the switch at Arleux, where it did not stop, and while going at great speed.

Killed by Rowdies.

Centralia, Mo., Sept. 29.—Ed Chapman, nineteen years old, ticket agent at Brown's Station, five miles from here, was shot and killed yesterday by rowdies. He had told some men who were intoxicated to leave the premises. Later as he sat at his telegraph key a shot crashed through the window, striking him in the forehead, and he fell back dead.

Ask President to Interfere.

New York, Sept. 29.—Petitions are being circulated throughout the country by members of the various organizations comprising the American Federation of Catholic Societies asking President Roosevelt to use his good offices to end the coal strike. The members of the societies making up the federation number at least half a million persons.

Bulgarians Lose Heavily.

Constantinople, Sept. 29.—Official telegrams received here say that 300 Bulgarian revolutionists, who were surrounded by Turkish troops at Vodena, in the vilayet of Salonica, and who succeeded in forcing the cordon after a sanguinary fight, lost 52 men killed and 112 men wounded. The Turks also suffered severe losses. The pursuit of the Bulgarians continues.

Mysteriously Murdered.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 29.—William Godeau, a cotton handler, was shot and killed by some unknown persons. Godeau went into his back yard to investigate some disturbance there, taking a shotgun with him. Shortly afterward two reports of a gun were heard, and neighbors who rushed to the scene found Godeau dead with two bullet holes in his head.

Attempted Murder and Suicide.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 29.—Joseph Emerson of Vicksburg yesterday shot and seriously wounded Miss Rosa Borowski, and, turning the weapon upon himself, inflicted a probably fatal wound. It is presumed that the young woman did not look with favor upon Emerson.

Defaulter's Body Found.

Vienna, Sept. 29.—The body of Edmund Jellinek, the defaulting official of the cashier's department of the Vienna Laender bank, has been found in the Danube at Altenwoerth, near Krems. He disappeared from Vienna Sept. 18. His embezzlements amounted to $1,150,000.

Losses by Prairie Fire.

Aberdeen, S. D., Sept. 29.—Prairie fires burned over a large tract of country between Putney and Houghton. Large quantities of hay were destroyed, and at least one barn. The town of Houghton was in danger and had a narrow escape from a big scorching.

Korean Emperor Well.

Berlin, Sept. 29.—An official telegram from the Korean legation here says the emperor of Korea is alive and in the best of health.

The Seoul (Korea) correspondent of the Paris Figaro said in a dispatch published Sept. 26 that the emperor of Korea was reported dead.

Logrollers Are Matched.

Grantsburg, Wis., Sept. 29.—Thomas E. Fleming of Minneapolis and John Pike of this county have been matched for a logrolling contest here Oct. 11, to decide championship of the state.

USE KNIFE AGAIN

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SUBMITS TO ANOTHER OPERATION ON HIS LEG.

FIND THE BONE IS AFFECTED

PHYSICIANS SAY THE OPERATION WILL HASTEN HIS RECOVERY.

NOT LEAST CAUSE FOR ALARM

GIVE EVERY ASSURANCE THAT THE PRESIDENT WILL SOON RECOVER.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Another operation was performed yesterday on the abscess on the left leg of President Roosevelt. In the former operation a simple needle was used to relieve the trouble, but yesterday the surgeons with a knife made an incision into the small cavity, exposing the bone, which was found to be slightly affected. The president's case has been progressing satisfactorily, but it is believed by the physicians that the further operation will hasten his complete recovery. While none of the doctors is willing to be quoted, they give the most positive assurances that there is not the least cause for alarm, and that on the contrary there is every indication of a speedy recovery; that the

is very slight and will not result in any impairment of the president's limb, and that there is no evidence whatever of any matter that would produce blood poisoning. They confidently expect that the president will be on his feet within a reasonable time, and with his robust constitution to assist recovery soon will be himself again.

Dr. Newton M. Shaffer of New York, who long has been acquainted with the Roosevelt family and has attended the president's children at various times, and who also is a well known bone specialist, joined the president's physicians in their morning consultation at 10 o'clock. It was noticed that there has been a slight rise in the president's temperature and an increase in local symptoms, and the conclusion was reached that would be hastened by making an incision of the wound for the purpose of relieving the slight tension or swelling which was present, and also to drain the wound. The operation was performed between 2 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon. An application of cocaine was used to allay the pain. The president stood the operation very well, and subsequently expressed his satisfaction at the successful result. Dr. Rixey, the surgeon general of the navy, performed the operation, assisted by Dr. Lung, the president's regular physician. Dr. O'Reilly, who was also present with the other physicians, is the surgeon general of the army, and heretofore has been consulted regarding the case. Dr. Edward R. Stitt, another of those present, is in charge of the naval museum of hygiene and medical school.

Take a Roseate View.

The physicians last night took a roseate view of the president's prospects for getting out again. He has become somewhat restive because of his close confinement and the physicians are considering the advisability of permitting him to take a ride in a few days. The physicians say the question is now simply one of the healing of the wound, and reiterate that this will be hastened by the operation made yesterday.

Late in the evening Dr. Shafer authorized in the most positive manner, the statement that there is not the least cause for alarm regarding the president's condition, but, on the contrary, he said, he could give every assurance of the belief that the president would soon recover.

INDICTED FOR BRIBERY.

Cleveland Doctor Is Accused by the Grand Jury.

Cleveland, Sept. 29.—The grand jury returned an indictment against Dr. F. W. Daykin "for offering a bribe to a city official."

Dr. Daykin was arrested some time ago on the charge of having paid $2,000 to Councilman Charles Kohl to vote against the granting of a franchise to a natural gas company. Kohl made the matter public and turned the money over to Mayor Johnson.

THEIR BOAT CAPSIZED.

Two Wisconsin Boys Are Drowned While Chasing Ducks.

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 29.—Anton Heigl, aged twelve years, and Jesse Cobbs, eleven years, were drowned in the lagoon at North Park. They had gone out in a skiff and were chasing ducks, when they capsized.

Buffalo Bill's Horse Burned.

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 29.—Among the eight horses destroyed in a barn which burned at Proctorknott yesterday was "Smoky," formerly Buffalo Bill's favorite horse. "He was a superb animal in his day, and when he got old Col. Cody gave him to his sister, Helen Cody Wetmore of this city. Frederic Remington's masterpiece is said to be a picture of Buffalo Bill mounted on Smoky.

Killed While at Play.

Hastings, Minn., Sept. 29.—The remains of Joseph, the thirteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lautner of this city, who was accidentally shot by a companion while playing at La Crosse Saturday, arrived here last night. Tommy Lautner and his mother went from here last week to attend the La Crosse fair.

Farmer Loses His Home.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 1, 1902,

The coal miners' strike has assumed such serious proportions that the government offices, in nearly every branch, will be forced to suspend operations because of the shortage of fuel. The engraving and printing departments are most directly affected and the public is threatened with a shortage of paper money and postage stamps.

Under such conditions the government should have the power of intervention. In other words the administration should be empowered to assume the operation of public utilities where the individual owners fail to supply the goods according to the government requirements. The question is: Can the government govern?

If you know Gov. VanSant you know a man that is fearless in the discharge of public duties. He is a candidate for re-election and has established a record. His opponent might do just the same. But what does the voter want to do about it?

It's an even bet that the city of Thief River Falls—and some other places—will show a marked change politically on November 4th. That is, of course, in comparison with the vote cast at the primary election.

Now that the primaries are over what are you going to do when the election comes on? Will you vote the same ticket you did at the primaries straight through?

True Literature.

We are inclined on the whole to believe that the stimulus to literary production exists within and not without the man. It is not external circumstances, poverty or riches, sickness or health, greatness or humbleness, that determine the productions or output of genius. It is the characteristics of the man that determine not what he shall learn or what he shall think, but what he shall do. A stimulus from without, such as poverty, may start production, of course, but that is merely the physical awakening of a disposition that in any circumstances would have been awakened in some way at some time. True literature is the voice of the soul calling from the windows of the house of clay in response to those things of life that touch the nature of the soul that speaks.—London Spectator.

No Charge.

A group of representatives were one day telling stories of their experience in court when one of them contributed this incident from Arizona, says a western newspaper:

Out in one of the border towns a case was in progress, one of the lawyers being an eastern man who was new to the country.

"Will you charge the jury, your honor?" he asked when the evidence had been submitted.

"Oh, no; I guess not," replied the judge. "I never charge them anything. They don't know much anyhow, and I let 'em have all they can make."

A Prescription.

A schoolteacher in Frome, England, sent this to the father of one of his pupils: "I beg to inform you that in my opinion your son is suffering from myopia, and his case requires prompt attention." The next day the boy brought back this written request: "Mister, please knock it out of Jim, as I ain't got time."

The Samoan Language.

Speaking of the flexibility of the Samoan language, Mrs. Isobel Strong says that the little word "ta" means: I, we too, to beat with a stick, to play on a musical instrument, to reprove, to tattoo, to open a vein, to wash clothing by beating and to turn a somersault.

The world's coalfields cover at least 1,250,000 square miles.

Special Inducements to Liberality.

"What are your rates?" asked the prospective victim of the lady fortune teller.

"I can't afford to tell you anything but disaster for 50 cents," replied the lady, "but for $1 I'll agree to tell you a good fortune with no bad luck in it." —Ohio State Journal.

Warning Against Forest and Prairie Fires

Office of State Forest Commissioner.

St. Paul, Minn., March 4, 1902.

Chapter 196 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for 1895 (Act of April 18th) constitutes Supervisors of towns, Mayors of cities and presidents of village councils Fire Wardens, and it is made their duty to take precaution to prevent forest and prairie fires, and if they occur, to go and extinguish or control them; and in emergencies to call upon any able-bodied male person, over eighteen years of age, to assist. Reports of such fires with particulars tending to fix responsibility therefor shall be made within reasonable time—usually within a week. The Forest Commissioner is required to provide and sign an abstract (as herein) of the penalties under said law, and it is made the duty of the County Commissioners of each county to cause said abstract to be published in at least three issues of the official paper in their respective counties each year between the 15th of April and 1st of November, and they are hereby instructed to publish this notice entire. Under said law,

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the state prison not over ten years or both:

Any person who maliciously sets or causes to be set on fire any woods, prairie or other combustible material whereby the property of another is destroyed and life is sacrificed.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three months.

Any person refusing, without cause, to assist fire wardens in extinguishing forest or prairie fires.

Any fire warden who neglects to perform his duties.

Any person who wilfully, negligently or carelessly sets on fire, or causes to be set on fire, any woods, prairies or other combustible material thereby causing injury to another.

Any person who shall kindle a fire on or dangerously near to forest or prairie land and leave it unquenched, or who shall be a party thereto.

Any person who shall use other than incombustible fire wads for firearms or carry a naked torch, firebrand or other exposed light in or dangerously near to forest land.

Any person who shall wilfully or heedlessly deface, destroy or remove this or any other warning placard posted under the requirements of the above mentioned Act.

Any railroad company wilfully neglecting to provide efficient spark arresters on its engines; or to keep its right of way to the width of 100 feet cleared of combustible material; or which shall fail to comply with other provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

The following are liable to a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50:

Any railroad employe who wilfully violates the provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

Any owner of threshing or other portable steam engine who neglects to have efficient spark arresters, or who shall deposit live coals or hot ashes without extinguishing the same.

R. C. DUNN (State Auditor,)
Forest Commissioner.

C. C. ANDREWS,
Chief Fire Warden.

FIRING A SALUTE.

The Way Two Naval Greenhorns Did It on a Warship.

"On one of Uncle Sam's warships once," said a naval officer, "we had enlisted among our able seamen two Irishmen, Mike and Barney. They had come aboard three days after they had landed in the country, but they learned some things so quickly that they had acquired a very definite idea of the meaning of the Fourth of July long before the day arrived, which was something like a month after we had sailed on our cruise. It chanced that the two were on an early morning watch together when Independence day dawned, and they at once began to plan for its proper welcome. They seemed to realize, you see, that there was necessity for an unusual display of patriotism.

"Barney suggested they fire a salute from one of the forward eight pounders, but Mike feared that would rouse the entire ship. 'Niver moind,' answered Barney. 'Do ye hold a bucket forninst the muzzle, an' 'twill deaden the sound.' And three minutes later that gun went off with such a roar as brought every man of the crew out of the midst of peaceful dreams.

"I sent for Barney. 'Now, my man,' said I, 'tell me everything.'

"'Sure,' he faltered, 'it was only a bit uv a celibration because uv our indipindence.'

"'And where's Mike?' I demanded.

"'Captain, dear,' he groaned, 'he wint afther a bucket uv wather, an' if he comes back as quick as he wint he's due roight now.'"

And then the officer closed his story with the simple statement, "But Mike was never recovered."

Sinister Motives.

Two men—William Jones and John Smith—were neighbors and deadly enemies. They often crossed swords in court and out of it, and Jones, being what might be called more clever than Smith, invariably got the better of the encounter. In the end so cowed was Smith that the slightest move on the part of Jones made him nervous and suspicious, and with the remark, "I wonder what object he has in this?" he coiled up all his reserve faculties to combat the fresh attack which poor Jones never contemplated.

One day a friend called on Smith and greeted him with:

"Well, old man, have you heard the news?"

"No," said Smith. "What news?"

"Jones is dead. He died last night at midnight," replied the other.

Smith paused, drew a hard breath, raised his hand to his forehead and thought, then blurted out:

"Dead, did you say—Jones dead? Great heavens, I wonder what object he has in this?"

Bleeding by Bowshot.

That all diseases can be cured by bleeding is still firmly believed by several savage tribes, and especially by the Papuan negroes.

When one of their physicians becomes convinced that it is necessary to bleed a patient, he goes several feet in front of him and then, drawing his bow, he fits a sharp-pointed arrow to it and after a careful aim fires the arrow into the vein which he desires to open. The arrow, it is said, invariably goes straight to the mark, and the thorn or splinter of glass with which it is tipped does the work as successfully as a lancet.

Moreover, the patients never show the slightest fear, since they are convinced that from the moment the arrows pierce their veins they will begin to recover.

Books Named From the Bible.

A close acquaintance on the part of authors with the terse and expressive phrases in the Bible is plainly shown in the titles of a host of books. Among the titles taken directly from the Bible, says the Saturday Evening Post, are the following:

"If Sinners Entice Thee," "The Day of Temptation," "The Favor of Princes," "Wayfaring Men," "Weighed and Wanting," "The Wages of Sin," "Black, But Comely," "Dross," "In Cedar's Tents," "The Valley of Decision," "The Unjust Steward," "Sons of the Morning," "Visiting the Sin," "The Quick or the Dead," "The Prodigal," "The Bondwoman," "Tinkling Cymbals," "The Crown of Life," "Unleavened Bread," "A Laodicean," "The Birthright," "The Garden of Eden," "The Story of the Innumerable Company," "The Wings of the Morning," "Until the Day Break," "The Mantle of Elijah," "They That Walked in Darkness," "I Go a-Fishing," "The Tents of Shem," "The Snare of the Flower," "Give Me Thine Heart," "Mine Own People," "The Measure of a Man," "Resurrection," "The Market Place," "From My Youth Up," "His Brother's Keeper," "The Hosts of the Lord" and "On the Face of the Waters."

Shock After Burns.

Shock, which is always present in severe burns, requires the administration of stimulants. The amount of shock or collapse after any bad injury or sudden fright differs with the character of individuals. Some succumb to it much more readily than others. When serious, the temperature drops below normal, the face is pale, pinched and anxious, the pulse slow and feeble, the body bathed in a cold perspiration. Sometimes there is shivering. Sometimes the mind wanders. Place the patient at once in a horizontal position, the head slightly raised. Administer stimulants, alcoholic or aromatic vinegar. If whisky or brandy is used, give from a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of hot water every ten minutes until five or six doses have been taken. Surround the body and legs inside the thighs and under the armpits with hot water bags, hot stones—anything to give warmth—but take care not to burn your patient. If the injury is to the head, follow the same treatment, but omit the alcoholic stimulant.

Apples and Currants.

If the liver is sluggish, refusing to work, so that the bile flow is deficient and so all fats remain undigested, the eating of either apples or an abundance of currants will effect a magical change. The jaded organ will be stimulated; all the digestive juices act; the food is all absorbed, and soon the appetite cries for more. Therefore the apple and the currant have been called appetizers because they are the means of bringing appetite to those in search of it. The apple being in season longest has the usual claim to favor as an appetizer, but the currant is almost as deserving of the claim. But it has more waste in the shape of fiber and skin than is found in the apple, the proportion in the currant being over 4½ per cent, while in the apple it is only 3 1-5 per cent.

Why Teak Wood Is Durable.

The teak, which has passed into proverb as the best material for shipbuilding, is superior to all other woods from the fact that it contains an essential oil which prevents spikes and nails driven into it from rusting. This property is not possessed by any other wood in the world and furnishes an explanation of the fact that ships built of teak are practically indestructible. Some have been known to last for 150 years, and when broken up their beams were as sound as when first put together.

A South African Animal.

There is a curious looking animal in South Africa that looks for all the world like a piece of toast with four legs, a head and a tail. It resembles a pussy cat about the forehead and ears, but its nose is distinctly that of a rat, while its tail is not very dissimilar to that of a fox. This strange animal is called the aardwolf and doubtless dwells in South Africa, because, judged by his looks, he would not be admitted into good animal society anywhere else.

Misinformed.

Smith (angrily)—I understand you said my face was enough to stop an automobile?

Jones—I certainly never said anything of the kind.

Smith—Then I must have been misinformed?

Jones—That's what you have. Instead of stopping at sight of your face, any reputable automobile would increase its speed.

Why He Desired a Cannon.

It is related that an Indian chief once approached General Crook and wanted to borrow a cannon.

"Do you expect me to loan you a cannon with which to kill my soldiers?" the old veteran inquired.

"No," the chief replied; "kill soldiers with a club. Want cannon to kill cowboys."

Her Idea of It.

"Would you marry a man whose wife had secured a divorce from him for cruelty?"

"I could tell better after I saw the woman."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Fickle Creature!

A man likes an industrious woman when he is hungry, but after he has eaten he likes to be amused by an idle woman who has had time to curl her hair.—Atchison Globe.

Fire escapes were first made in Paris in 1761.

A Marrying Man.

"Are you a marrying man?" was asked of a somber looking gentleman at a recent reception.

"Yes, sir," was the prompt reply; "I'm a clergyman."

"Centsitive."

"An Albany man has sent a cent to the treasury conscience fund."

"Must have a centsitive conscience."

"Or a penurious one."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

County of Red Lake } SS

In the matter of the petition of Lars Lien and others, for a public ditch in the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

The above entitled matter came on duly to be heard by and before the Board of County Commissioners of the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, at a special meeting of said board duly called for the purpose of hearing and considering the petition for said ditch in the above entitled matter, on the 11th day of September A. D. 1902, at 1 o'clock p. m. of said day; and it appearing by proper evidence that due notice has been given of the pendency of said petition and of said time of hearing thereon and that George A. Ralph, the civil engineer appointed by this board to survey the route of said ditch, has completed his work and duly filed his report thereon in the office of the County Auditor of said county, and that the Viewers appointed by said board to view and report upon said work have duly completed their labors and made and filed their report in due form of law in the office of said County Auditor, the said board of county commissioners did, at the time above specified; proceed to hear said petition and said Viewers' report thereon; and said board having duly considered said petition and heard all the parties interested for or against the construction of said ditch and all other matter pertaining thereto, find as follows, to-wit:

FIRST: That the said civil engineer has completed his work and made and filed his report thereon in all respects according to law.

SECOND: That the viewers appointed herein have duly completed their labors and have made and filed their report thereon according to law.

THIRD: That the estimated benefits to be derived from the construction of said work are greater than its total cost, including damages awarded.

FOURTH: That the damages and benefits arising from the construction of said ditch have been duly awarded and assessed, and that said reports of said engineer and said viewers are complete and correct.

FIFTH: That notice of this hearing of said petition and of said viewers' report and said engineer's report has been duly given, published and posted and mailed as by law required, and that proofs of said service of said notice have been duly made and filed in the office of the County Auditor of said county.

Now, Therefore, as conclusions from the foregoing findings, we, the Board of County Commissioners of the county of Red Lake State of Minnesota, at said special session of said Board held at the said time above specified, being satisfied that the proposed ditch will be of public utility and conducive to public health and public benefit and convenience, do hereby locate and establish the said ditch according to the report and specifications of said Civil Engineer made and filed herein; and do hereby establish and confirm the report of the viewers made and filed herein.

It is Further Ordered, That the damages awarded to the persons and corporations named in the viewers' report herein, in excess of benefits, be paid out of the County Treasury of said county on warrants to be drawn and attested by the Auditor of said county and signed by the chairman of this board of county commissioner, and delivered to the persons entitled thereto as provided by law.

Given under our hands this 11th day of September, A. D. 1902.

Silk Cotton Tree.

Although the silk cotton tree is a native of South America, there is one specimen of it in Nassau, Bahama islands, that has flourished wonderfully and is one of the greatest curiosities on the island. It was planted more than 200 years ago by John Miller.

The roots seem to be unable to find their way down after the manner of ordinary roots and so swell up like great buttresses radiating round the trunk of the tree, rising from the ground to a height of from six to twelve feet. They reach out to irregular distances, gnarled and twisted in the most curious fashion. They turn and bend and double a point in all sorts of unexpected ways and make dark hollows and ravines, where the darkies believe the elves and gnomes make their home.

The great seed pods are filled with a fine, soft fleece of silk, which the natives use for filling their pillows and mattresses. There are several specimens of the tree on the island of New Providence, but this one is monarch of them all.

A Fly That Kills Horses.

All white men who visit regions in Africa infested by the tsetse fly have much to say about it. There is now evidence that the tsetse is moving gradually to more northern regions, and the cause is supposed to be that South Africa is depleted of its large game, much of which is moving northward to get away from hunters, and the tsetse fly is going with it.

The insect is only a little larger than the ordinary house fly, and it resembles the honeybee. Its sting is hardly as annoying as that of the mosquito, but near the base of the proboscis is a little bag which contains its poison. It lives on the blood of animals, and only a few species are fatally affected by its bite. Cattle, horses and dogs, however, cannot live when bitten by the tsetse fly. Natives who herd cattle and travelers who depend on horses and oxen must avoid the fly regions or lose their stock. For human beings its bite has no serious consequences.

To Promote Marriages.

It is a superstition in some parts of England that after a young couple have departed for their honeymoon hot water should be poured on the threshold in order that other marriages may follow. With this end in view the bride's girl friends will sometimes drench the doorstep with boiling water from kettles heated for the purpose of keeping the threshold warm, says Home Notes.

In Iceland another plan is in vogue There the bride, on reaching her husband's house, has to give a dinner cooked with her own hands to show how well she has been instructed in the parental home. If she succeed in pleasing the guests, her skill does not only redound to her own honor, but also to that of her whole family, and her sisters, having shared in her educational advantages, are considered likely to make good wives.

A Menace to Vessels.

The fiction of the mysterious loadstone mountain which drew the nails out of ships that approached near enough has a certain foundation in fact, says the Siecle, only the fact has suffered by expansion. On the coast of Norway, near Jœdern, there is a sand dune of nearly three-quarters of a mile in length. The sand is mixed with particles of loadstone, and when a ship comes in the vicinity the compass becomes irregular, and the vessel is entangled in a kind of whirlpool and thrown ashore.

A Wasted Snub.

Clarice—Katharine is always looking out for important people, so I determined not to notice her at Mrs. Chic's reception.

Clarence—How did it work?

Clarice—Oh, she didn't even notice that I didn't notice her.—Brooklyn Life.

The Maddening Printer.

"I wish to say to the congregation," said a country clergyman lately, "that the pulpit is not responsible for the error of the printer on the tickets for the concert in the Sunday school room. The concert is for the benefit of the arch fund, not for the arch fiend."

Resentful Man.

"What did he say when you promised to be a sister to him?"

"He looked at me earnestly for a moment or two and then said that it would be much more consistent if I would make it an aunt."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

He Stooped.

A little girl's father had a round bald spot on top of his head. Kissing him at bedtime not long ago, she said:

"Stoop down, popsy, dear; I want to kiss the place where the lining shows."

Karl J. Peterson, of Wyandotte, returned home from Crookston on Saturday morning. He was there in the hospital seeking relief for a cancer of the stomach, but without avail, and returned in a very low condition.

William Eikhoff and Anton Anderson went to Red Lake Falls Monday to attend the meeting of the county board. Will took a fall out of some of the politicians by declaring he would run for sheriff as an independent candidate.

The log drive for the East Grand Forks mill has passed this point and the rear is now at Red Lake Falls. Foreman Pat Sullivan expects to leave in a couple of days for Crookston from which point he will continue to superintend the driving work.

—If you want something nice in men's ties, call at Hanson's One Price Store.

—You will find a big assortment of boys' pants at Hanson's One Price Store.

Miss Tessie Hughes last week purchased the saddle pony recently owned by Miss Madge Miller and yesterday took her first spin on the animal's back. Despite predictions to the contrary she proved to be a veteran in the saddle and is still able to attend to her duties in the bank.

On Thursday last J. B. O'Brien, secretary of the local camp of the M. W. A., received a draft for $1,000, payable to Mrs. Mary Twing, in full for the insurance carried by her husband, Ed. Twing, in the Woodmen. Mr. Twing died about five weeks ago and the payment is certainly prompt.

The accounts of the late J. W. Peterson have been left at this office by Alex Thompson, administrator, for collection. Any person knowing themselves to be indebted to Mr. Peterson will please call and settle before Nov. 1st. After that date the accounts will be turned over to an attorney and collected by legal process.

August Willnow and Orrin Hodgdon, prominent citizens of Renville county, were here Thursday looking over the farm lands in this vicinity and visiting with F. S. Whirry, who is an old friend. They left Friday for Bemidji where Mr. Hodgdon has a son in business. They expressed themselves as well pleased with the country here and will probably return shortly and make investments in real estate.

The fire department was called out Monday by a fire alarm from the saw mill. The boys responded promptly but soon discovered that their services were not needed as the blaze was caused by John Taylor, the barn boss, burning a pile of brush behind his residence. The fire as seen from the mill seemed to be in Mr. Taylor's house, and the alarm was promptly turned in. It was a well meant mistake.

About 4 o'clock last Thursday morning Messrs. Johnson and Sanderson discovered that a fire had started in their threshing separator which had been moved from M. McAndress' place to E. G. Holm's. The rig was damaged considerably before the fire could be extinguished. As the fire in the engine had been dead about 9 hours the owners suspect that the blaze was started by an incendiary and Mike Johnson says he will pay $75 for proof of the party who did the job.

J. S. Stadsvold, one of the leading jewelers of Crookston, died last Wednesday at his home in that city of tuberculosis of the stomach, aged 38 years. He leaves a widow and two small sons to mourn his loss. Three sisters of Mrs. Stadsvold's reside in St. Hilaire; they are, Mrs. Anton Anderson, Mrs. Hendrickson and Miss Ellen Syverson. The deceased was a prominent lodge man in Crookston and carried insurance in several orders. The funeral occurred on Sunday and was largely attended.

GOV. VAN SANT HERE.

Governor S. R. VanSant was here between trains this morning on his way to Red Lake Falls where he speaks this evening on the political issues of the day. He was accompanied by Peter Hanson and S. G. Iverson, the republican nominees for secretary of state and state auditor respectively. Gov. VanSant and the gentlemen accompanying him are making a tour of inspection of state ditches and in that capacity they visited Red Lake county. They are taking advantage of the opportunity and will deliver campaign speeches to-night at Red Lake Falls.

Gov. VanSant has proven himself as governor to be a man for the people, and there seems no question but that they will thoroughly endorse his actions and re-elect him.

It looks as though Gov. VanSant has strength enough to carry the entire ticket through in safety.

A HARD STRUGGLE.

When you have a bad back, a back that's lame, weak or aching it's a hard struggle sometimes to find relief and cure, but it's a harder struggle when the dangers beset you of urinary disorders, too frequent urination retention of the urine with all the subsequent pains, annoyances and suffering. There are many medicines that relieve these conditions, but you want a remedy—a cure. Read this statement; it tells of a cure that lasted:

Veteran Josiah Heller, place of residence 706 South Walnut St., Urbana, Ill., says: "In the fall of 1889 I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Cunningham's drug store in Champaign, and after taking the remedy conscientiously I made a public statement of the results. I told how Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me of kidney trouble, disposed of my lame back and the pains across my loins, beneath the shoulder blades, etc. During the interval which has elapsed I have had occasion at times to resort to Doan's Kidney Pills when I noticed warnings of another attack, and on each and every occasion the result obtained was just as satisfactory as when the pills were first brought to my notice. At this time I just as emphatically indorse the preparation as I did several years ago."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine which cured Mr. Heller will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

Painting a Portrait of the Dead.

David Col, the famous genre painter, one day was asked by a peasant to paint a portrait of his father. The young artist said he would be delighted, and inquired when the father would be able to give him a sitting. The peasant replied, "Oh, he is dead!"

"How would you have me paint his portrait?" replied the artist.

"Look here," said the peasant, "this picture on the easel—whom does it represent?"

"St. Anthony."

"You are sure it is St. Anthony?"

"Yes."

"Did he come here to sit?"

"Of course not."

"Of course not."

"Then, you see, you are quite able to make a dead man's portrait."

Col yielded, and after making inquiries concerning the old man, set about painting the portrait. The peasant, seeing it for the first time, fell on his knees and cried bitterly.

"Why do you cry?" asked the painter.

"Because my father has grown so ugly."—Brooklyn Eagle.

SHE CRIED WHEN SHE PUT HER CLOTHES ON.

This is what Miss Jessie Stephenson of 30 Hartington Road, Aberdeen, says when writing to the Proprietors of St. Jacobs Oil, the remedy which cured her:

"I was very bad with rheumatism. I could not put my clothes on without crying out. I always had to have assistance to dress myself. I obtained a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil, and after its contents were used I was much better. I used the contents of two more bottles, and now I am able to do my work as usual. I would recommend anyone troubled with rheumatism to use St. Jacobs Oil."

Miss Stephenson's present condition is a very great contrast to what it was before she used St. Jacobs Oil; then she was practically helpless, suffered the greatest agony—but now she is free from pain, and able to do her work. Surely such evidence as this is most convincing that St. Jacobs Oil "Conquers Pain."

The Silent Garden

I know a garden folded in
  By close clipt yew and lichened wall
That holds the sunshine all day long—
  Where winds move gently, if at all.

There, like saved souls in Paradise,
  Whose peace is made, whose rest is won—
The white stoled lilies offer up
  Their golden heart before the sun.

There the carnations are ablaze,
  And, where the dark yews sigh and stir
As in a cloister set apart,
  The wholesome hearted lavender.

Across the silent, sunny space
  Down the straight paths, along the grass
Among the bending lily stalks,
  Light treading shadows softly pass.

This is that garden ever still,
  Beneath a changeless smile of sky,
Where, 'mid the scent of lavender,
  Walk Memory and I.

—Arthur Ketchum, in Munsey's.

Isabel Crathmore's Revenge.

BY ALTA MAYE.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Society was on the "qui vive." To-night was Mrs. Larkin's "Grand Annual Ball" at her beautiful home, 45 Grand boulevard, acknowledged by all to be the most "swagger" thing of the South Side set. She was unquestionably the leader—vivacious, brilliant and such a charming personality. Her face indicated high ideals and such a womanly purpose in life, beautiful in contour and dazzling in the freshness of its tints. Every one loved her. Whenever she gave anything it was a social topic, every one vied with each other in artistic robes.

Isabel Crathmore was surprised to find an extra slip in her invitation. She picked it up and scanning it, read:

"Dearest Isabel: Do look your very, very best to-night. Harold Vance, my husband's college chum, is to be here. Frank says he is the 'Lion of New York;' fancy he will fascinate Chicago. Want you to captivate him. Lovingly, Jennie Larkin."

Isabel thought and pondered. Harold Vance, where have I met him! His name sounds so familiar; I certainly have heard of him. Finally it all came to her. West Baden—he was one of her friend's party of twelve, three years ago. She now remembered it all perfectly. How madly in love her dearest friend, Kathoryn Frisbie, had been with him, the long glowing letters day after day telling her of Harold Vance, of his great superiority over other men; that he was "the one and only." Finally they were engaged and how happy she was. They were to be married in the summer. Then came the last letter, and such a sad one telling how cruelly he had left her without one word of explanation! Poor Katharyn! She had never heard from her since. She was doubtless pining away in some nunnery. Isabel's heart ached for her. She thought, how can I meet this man, this monster, who treated Katharyn so shamefully. But I cannot give up the ball; it is the one thing of the year. What shall I do? What can I do? She covered her face with both hands for some moments, then suddenly arose exclaiming, "I will go! I will do it!" That's excellent! I'll avenge her; I'll make him love me, and oh! I'll despise him so. Then he must ask dear Katharyn's forgiveness."

The night was beautiful. Isabel had taken great precaution in her toilet—her maid thought she never knew her so exacting. Gowned in her gorgeous robe of heavenly blue she looked dazzling. As she walked into the room she looked brilliantly radiant, every move of her graceful figure gave an instant impression of perfection. She saw Mrs. Larkin advancing with Harold Vance. Isn't he handsome, thought Isabel. Poor Katheryn shall be avenged; how I do despise him.

Her reflections were terminated by the introduction and Harold Vance saying, "An additional pleasure, Miss Crathmore, I have heard Katharyn speak of you so often." Isabel was stunned to think he would have the audacity to speak to her of one he had treated so heartlessly. He had autographed her programme, and when after several dances he came to claim her, the soft strains of the music, the exquisite floor, the beautiful gowns, and such waltzing, such gracefulness, all tended to change the tenor of her mind. She had never met any one who danced so divinely. It seemed almost like fairyland. She regretted it must end so soon. In their little "tete-a-tete" after, she was fascinated against her will by the dark gray eyes of the picturesque youth by her side.

Isabel thought and pondered.

There was a touch of embarrassment to his manner now and then that seemed to exact sympathy. On every side was gaity. Men laughed and women chatted. He was telling her of his hopes, of his ambitions. All too soon, she was claimed for the next dance.

Receptions, balls, dinners, they met almost daily, and with the magic of a woman's art, she consoled him. He always had a loyal friend, always had one great comforter. Amid such fidelity, such constancy, Isabel forgot aught else. She determined to make him love her at any cost; she must avenge Katharyn.

Finally, Mrs. Larkin's last reception of the year, society had been doting on it. The house was brilliant in a sort of a luminous haze—beauty and wit mingled.

Isabel looked charming in a fairy creation of pure white. What a moving scene of enchantment, she thought. After a moment she began to pick her friends out from the maze, in which every one at first seemed confused in one magic sensation.

Harold Vance came immediately to her, and speaking low said: "Miss Crathmore, there is something I must tell you to-night." "He loves me, oh! he loves me; it must be that he loves me," thought Isabel.

"Miss Crathmore, there is something I must tell you to-night."

The reflection restrained her for a moment, but she was mastered by a fear that was far more terrible. Should he know her love? No, a thousand times, no. She would not fail, she would avenge poor Kathoryn, no matter what the cost. She could keep her secret—it was hidden in the dark recesses of her heart. Then she began to chide herself for being in grief when she should be happy. Every plan was nearing fulfillment.

She went to the farther end of the conservatory. She wanted to be alone, to think, to cool her burning face against the cool pane. She looked out into the night and asked the wierd, silent vale of darkness to tell her—tell her what to do. No sound seemed to be in the transparent air, no cloud in the unveiling sky, just the night creeping off as if in fear of awakening the sleeping morn. She gazed across the soulless immensity, heard nothing, saw nothing but the dark abyss of her own despair. She fell to thinking of her love for him; she could see his face outlined against the night. A face of marvelous sweetness and great spirituality, she thought, a man of implacable temper and imperious soul. Her great love for him came before her with such awful vividness, that her self-righteousness was overthrown; her pride seemed tottering. "I cannot cover my life with blackness, and leave such a blasphemous lie on my soul to avenge Katharyn. He is my life, my all. It is wicked, wicked, the abominable impulse for revenge is gone and something so sweet and tender has taken its place—a something that seems to lift the promise of hope. To confess to him now would be cruel. It would wound his beautiful faith in me. She must, she would show her love for him, she could not carry out this plan of revenge."

"He loves me, he loves me; that is surely what he longs to tell me. How happy I shall be in his love. There was only that one shadow on my contentment and happiness, and I am sure he can explain that. It begins to appear to me now like a gleam of sunshine."

She was attracted from her reverie by a slight rustling of palms, and looking up saw Harold in search of her. She could scarcely still her heart's wild beating. Every pulsation seemed like music telling her how deeply, how passionately he loved her. "I have been looking all over for you," Harold said, as he came up and seated himself beside her, "and really Miss Crathmore, this is the happiest day of my life."

"Why the happiest," queried Isabel with the joyousness of love in every tone.

"I must tell you," continued Harold, "Katharyn Frisbie and I were married secretly a year ago. She is coming from New York to-night. She is my life, my all, and to-morrow we can announce our marriage to the whole world. Read her telegram."

But Isabel with a strange inarticulate, "Oh!" had fallen prostrate among the palms. The great strain of the social world had proved too much for her, society said.

True merriment may be distinguished from false by the fact that it bears reflection; we can think of it with pleasure next day and next week.

RUNG UP HUSBAND'S WAGES.

Conductor's Wife Makes Tissue Paper Lamp Shade With Bell Punch.

Mackenzie is a conductor on an owl train on the "L," consequently he does his sleeping in the daytime.

Now, as everyone knows who has occasion to use the elevated after 12 o'clock, the fares, after passing certain points on the line, are collected by the conductors, who, for the purpose of registration, carry the little bell punches once so familiar on the surface lines.

One afternoon last week he was roused from his diurnal slumbers by his industrious little wife who brought out for his admiration a lamp shade made of colored tissue paper. She had made it with her own pretty hands, and its scalloped border was perforated with innumerable little holes, through which the light of the parlor lamp would fall on the table.

"Tell me if you think it pretty," demanded Mrs. Mackenzie, holding the shade out for her husband to inspect it.

"It looks lovely," began Mackenzie; but as he scrutinized it more closely he turned pale and said hoarsely: "You made those holes with my bell punch."

"Yes, dear," said his dear little wife blithely, "while you were asleep. It was so convenient to punch holes with. But what makes you speak that way?" demanded the little woman, greatly alarmed at the sudden change which had come over the unfortunate Mackenzie.

"Oh, nothing," he replied, "only you've rung up enough fares on that lamp shade to use up six month's salary. Every one of those holes will cost me five cents, that's all."

And the unhappy Mackenzie, in the agony of his spirit, groaned aloud.—Chicago Tribune.

PAT AND HIS ANVILS.

His Indignation Not Unnatural Under the Circumstances.

Pat was sauntering around the Erie Basin looking for work. Noticing a gang of men loading a large steamer alongside, he walked up to the foreman and asked:

"D'yez want any more hands, cap'n?"

There were a few men carrying anvils singly from the quay above along a plank on to the ship.

"Can you carry those anvils?" inquired the foreman.

"Shure," replied Pat, with a smile of a man who had an easy job on.

"Very well, you can start now."

"What's the pay, mister, beggin' yer pardun?"

"Piece work—two cents for each one you carry on to the ship."

Pat instantly stripped, seized an anvil, and carried it with ease across the plank, and on to the ship. With the view of doubling his pay, he picked up a couple the next journey, and was walking along the sylvan path when the plank broke and down went Pat into the water with both anvils—one in each hand.

Nothing was seen but a bubble for a while.

Presently Pat appeared on the surface of the water for the first time and yelled out:

"Hello, there! Chuck me down a rope, or begorra Oi'll dhrop these blankety things!"

Big Doings—In Hash.

The Inquisitive Person was sure he had struck a hot trail. The Railroad Magnate and the Steel Trust Handle had conversed on the veranda of the hotel for five minutes and the I. P. had overheard them.

"Something is doing in the world of commerce," he confided to the Steady Thinker. "I heard the Magnate remark to the Handle that the community of interests was a necessary feature in the composition of the whole, and that he hoped he'd be successful in forming the combination properly."

"Yes," remarked the Steady Thinker, "but you didn't hear it all. He said, furthermore, that he always used a little thickened milk for a merger, and——"

"Thickened milk!" exclaimed the Inquisitive Person. "Why, what was he talking about, then, I wonder?"

"Didn't you know?" said the Steady Thinker. "The Magnate was giving the Handle his recipe for corn beef hash. That's all!"—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

Are Poets Born or Made?

Authorities seem to agree that poetic talent is somewhat capricious, and that, though great poets are great by nature rather than by training they rarely transmit their gifts to their children. Heredity may have some influence on their talents, but recent investigations do not agree on details. Francis Galton, the great English authority, states that, with poets and artists, the influence of the female line is enormously less than the male, while Drs. Chaslin and Mobius, two French investigators, have come to an exactly opposite conclusion. In a recent discussion at the Paris Medico-Psychological Society Dr. Chastin stated that the mother of a poet is always intellectually gifted, whereas the son of a stupid woman is always stupid. Apparently the question will bear further study.—Success.

Held in Reserve.

The thriftiness of a London shopkeeper is illustrated in a story told of a dry goods dealer. The merchant in question possessed a very excitable temperament, and on hearing his assistant say to a lady customer, "No, we have not had any for a long time," unable to countenance such an admission he turned to the lady, fixed his eyes on his assistant, and said: "We have plenty in reserve, madam—plenty upstairs." The lady looked thunderstruck, and then the assistant informed his master that his reply was to her remark: "We have not had any rain lately."

TRADES UNION DISCIPLINE.

British Workmen Fined for Allowing Apprentices to Help, Even When Fingers Were Being Mashed.

The story of the Spanish princess being allowed to burn to death in the presence of her attendants, because for them to have touched her would have been a breach of etiquette, is generally regarded as the example, par excellence, of old-time idiocy, but a recent example of trade union methods would appear to run it close. A workman, engaged in guiding a cable into a conduit, got his fingers caught between the cable and the conduit. The men at the other end continued to pull, being unaware of the mishap, but an apprentice, seeing the serious situation of affairs, rushed up and pulled back the cable. A delegate of the union, having witnessed the affair, reported the workman for having broken the rules of the order. The injured man had to go before the executive to explain his conduct, and although his damaged hand was a strong witness in his defense, he was fined "for allowing an apprentice to do helper's work—to-wit, assisting a journeyman drawing wire into a conduit." Discipline is all very well in its way, but with such master minds at work one need not wonder that we suffer so much from intelligent competition.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Catch in the Back.

Grand View, Iowa, Sept. 29th.—Mrs. Lydia Parker of this place, says:

"I was troubled with backache all the time for years. When I would stoop over a catch would take me in the back, and I could not straighten up for some time.

"I tried everything I could think of, but got no relief till I sent and got Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I used one box and part of another before the trouble all left me, but now I am well and strong, and I have not been troubled with my back for some months.

"I believe my cure is a permanent one, and I am very grateful, indeed, to Dodd's Kidney Pills for what they have done for me.

"I would most heartily recommend them to anyone suffering with lame back, for I believe they will cure any case of this kind."

In Hate Evil Hall's Home.

Mrs. Sabrina Watts Hall of Jonesboro, Me., celebrated her ninety-eighth birthday on Sept. 8, and during the evening some fifty or sixty of her neighbors and friends gathered at her home and passed the evening with her. Several useful presents were left. Although Mrs. Hall has nearly reached the century mark, she is still bright and active, retaining her faculties to a remarkable degree. She resides with her daughter, Miss Laura, in a house that was built 105 years ago by Hate Evil Hall, father of her late husband, Horace C. Hall. Her father, Samuel Watts, Sr., assisted the citizens of Machias in the capture of the British war vessel, Margaretta on June 12, 1775, in the first naval battle of the Revolutionary war. Maine can boast of but few such remarkable women as Mrs. Hall.—Bangor (Me.) Commercial.

GOOD TRUSTS AND BAD ONES

PRESIDENT HILL SPEAKS AT GRANT COUNTY FAIR

He Says That if a Man Does Wrong He Should Be Punished, but That if He Does Right He Should Be Protected.

Elbow Lake, Minn.—The chief attraction of the Grant county fair, held here recently, was the speech of Mr. J. J. Hill on the second day.

When Mr. Hill was introduced he was greeted with cheers, and frequently as he proceeded with his talk he was applauded or joined in with the audience in a laugh. He dwelt largely on the relations between the farmers and the railroads. He drew on his own personal experience for much of what he told his audience, but with terse and pertinent comment on present conditions. He gave President Roosevelt's cure for trusts a sly dig, and justified in an abstract way the formation of the Northern Securities company. Mr. Hill spoke as follows:

"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: I want to assure you this afternoon that it is a matter of unusual pleasure to meet you here. I am glad to see the farmers here with their wives. It is a privilege that I enjoy to meet the people who have come into this part of the country and made it what we see it to-day.

"It is a few months more than thirty years since I first passed through this part of the state. At that time the outpost was a little store on the hill by the old—what we may call the old—church at Evansville. After leaving Evansville we stopped all night at Mrs. Burne's, and the next night we stopped on the prairie all night and walked to keep warm. It was on the 10th of March, and I assure you it was very cold. Now, to me this is an unusual pleasure, and there is no place where I could meet with more pleasure than in your county. The change that has occurred is gratifying, and it must be gratifying to you in that you have been able and it is always gratifying to me to know that I have been able in some way to aid in bringing about this change. The country looks beautiful to-day, and I see within and without the town not only the cause of the change, but the fruit of it as well. I see good stock. I see nice cattle, and just as good sheep as you will find in any part of the country. Years ago, back in 1883, we had a very dry season after the grain was planted. Until July 3 not a drop of rain fell in the northern part of the state, particularly in the Red river valley, but notwithstanding the long drouth, after the rain fell they got a three-quarter crop. I felt then that the farmers should not have all their eggs in one basket. I thought they should have a greater diversity of things on their farms. If a man lost his wheat crop and he had half a dozen good fat steers to sell he could get some money and bridge over for another year.

To Work the Change,

"I decided to raise cattle on my farm at Lake Minnetonka. I had to buy my experience. I bought some fancy cattle at very extravagant prices. My fences were let down. With a little reward to the men I could find the cattle. Sometimes they would come after I had rewarded them a few times and offer to tell me where the cattle were, and said they would find them for so much. I presume it was the ferocious stare of the bull that tore down the fences, but I made up my mind that I could not in my lifetime succeed as I wanted, and I sent men to the country and bought up a large number of bulls for three or four years, and to-day I saw as handsome cattle in your own county as a man would wish to see. It did me good as I saw before me proof that my endeavor

Had Not Been In Vain.

Now, I can say to you that no one in the state or out of it has such a great interest in the people of the state and the people who are cultivating the land as myself. No man has a greater interest—put it all on selfish gain if you want to—in the welfare of the producers than I have, because if your labor is wasted what becomes of me? If you are poor, I am poor. I am glad to see the evidence of your prosperity, for we must share your prosperity with you. It can't be otherwise.

"All that we have been doing, all that I have tried to do in the way of building up the success of the country, is on the ground that the man who cultivates the soil must make the money before he can pay it, and in that we have the foundation of our own prosperity, and our company has been prosperous. All the transcontinental lines that have been built across the continent either in Canada or the United States have been subsidized, with the exception of our own. All of those of this country have failed from one to three times, except our own, and the only credit we can take to ourselves for being able to avoid these failures is that we have tried to bring the to apply to railroad enterprise—never to undertake to do more than we could afford to do and not to run ahead in a wild speculative career but going ahead cautiously; if the soil is good and the climate is good to be patient and encourage the people. When you have these ideas fixed in your mind you have the key that must solve the difficulty. We have now come to the point where our road has been extended to the Pacific ocean. We have there the largest forests of pine timber growing on this continent and the finest I have seen in the world. The lumber trees in Minnesota are practically all counted.

"A few years ago the country east of Detroit north of the Chesapeake and south of the Great Lakes drew its supply of lumber from Michigan and later from Wisconsin. During the earlier times in Michigan lumber was worth 50 to 60 cents a thousand, but to-day it is worth $12 a thousand in the tree. Fortunes were made in Wisconsin pine lands. The foundation for Cornell university was laid from an investment in Wisconsin timber lands. We have on the Pacific coast

Enormous Forests.

"You want them here. They want them as far south as Baltimore and as far east as Portland, Me. Now, bear this in mind: What helps you, what you need and what we need is the assistance of each other, and to help each other bear our burdens. The people who own and manufacture that lumber on the coast are seeking a market for it. These efforts affect you beyond the price of lumber; they affect you by contributing so many tons of freight to haul over our lines. We have gathered all these tons from the Pacific coast and from beyond the Pacific.

"There are four or five times as many trains on the line as there were years ago, but the capital of the road is practically the same. The increased earnings and the increased amount of business has placed us in position where we can reduce rates, but we have our dividend every year. We have got to a point where we can earn our dividends. That is all we can get. If we earned three dividends we would only divide one. We get 7 per cent on our stock and it is a safe investment. That is good enough and we ought to be satisfied. Some people try to persuade you than we want to eat you up; that we want your farms. Some think that I dine off the fresh roast shoulder of my neighbors every day, but I assure you that I don't. (Applause and laughter). I don't want to. I don't eat any more than I ever did, I don't wear any more than I ever did and I am easily satisfied with both. (Laughter.) But if you will consider this on the lines I have stated you cannot this year declare or in all time separate the land from the railroad. A man might quarrel with the railroad company or become dissatisfied or for any other reason sell his land and move away, and I might sell out and some one else might come and run the railroad, but the railroad will be there and the land will be there and they will have the same contest and they will prosper together or be poor together now and forever to the end of time."

As to Trusts.

Mr. Hill then alluded to his recent visit to the coast and to his meeting there with the farmers of Washington and to the pleasant interview he had with them. He declared that he liked to meet farmers because they are nearest to the soil. He praised the law-abiding spirit which obtains among all agricultural communities and the patriotism which has at all times characterized the farmers of the country. Continuing he said:

"Your chairman said that there are a great many people apprehensive of the great industrial enterprises which are being carried on, and well they may be. There are so-called industrial enterprises whose only industry is in running printing presses to print shares of stock. I tell you, if there is no harm in an enterprise, if there are five or ten of them that are good there is no bad in them, and when you put them together there is no bad in the entire mass. But if the object is to get something for nothing, to get something that does not belong to them, to get money out of another man's pocket, the money he has worked for, and put it into their own—if that is the object it is all wrong; but some of these great enterprises are absolutely sound and right."

Opposes Congressional Control.

Mr. Hill referred to the steel works of Krupp and Carnegie as examples of enterprises which are right. The molding trust, the leather trust and the bicycle trust and others he referred to as among those which are not intended to be prosperous. Continuing, Mr. Hill said:

"Some people advocate, our president advocates, turning everything over to the congress. What sort of a congress would we have after awhile if all the business of the country were turned over to it? I think they would be doing business in the hall of congress, but the business they would do would not bring business to you that you want. I think I should hold every man responsible for himself and his own acts. If he does wrong, punish him; if he does right, protect him. When that is done those questions will take care of themselves. When I took the Great Northern railroad twenty-three years ago there were 380 miles of finished track and they were at work on 300 more. Now we have 6,000 miles. The road carried then 238,000 bushels of wheat, and no oats, no barley and no flax. This year it will carry of wheat, oats, barley and flax

A Hundred Million Bushels.

We pay taxes to the state on our earnings, amounting to 3 per cent of our gross earnings. The earnings from China, Washington, Idaho and all roads running through Minnesota contribute to the state treasury. I think that this year we will pay the state $450,000 or about one-sixth of all we get for hauling the grain crop of the state, and in hauling the grain crop we do not work for nothing—I mean it costs us something to haul it. Our business is made up of small things. I suppose you would call it a day's work to haul a ton of freight ten miles if the roads were heavy and get home at night with your team. A difference to us of a copper cent in hauling a ton ten miles means a difference of $3,000,000.

"Mr Hill then recited the improvements which have been made in the condition of the road, and the bearing these improvements have on rates. He showed that the interest of the railroad and the farmers is the same and that he as a railroad manager would not do anything that would be against the interests of the farmers. Mr. Hill supplemented the remarks of Prof. Shaw in advising the farmers to be better farmers and to produce more from less land. He thought that the diversity of crops and the raising of cattle would be better than to devote so much of the land to wheat. Coming back to the original matters, Mr. Hill continued.

"There is not one single dollar represented in the capital of the Great Northern road that has not behind it one hundred cents in honest money. I do not want my name connected with any enterprise that is trying to get something for nothing."

Got Even With Boat Combine.

Mr. Hill told how his efforts toward reducing rates on grain had been thwarted by the consolidation of the lake boats in making a corresponding raise.

"What did we do then?" said Mr. Hill. "We built six schooners to carry grain from Superior to Buffalo and the other boats have not declared a dividend since. We didn't want to go into the elevator business at Buffalo, but we had to in order to keep the other elevators from overcharging and working other extortions. As a result, the elevator charges of Buffalo is now ½ cent a bushel where it was 1½ cents. I can't work always. In a few years I've got to go away. I can't take anything with me. It is better that all should work. Some don't, but Col. W. Watterson down in Louisville has told you what sort of people they are. Now, if anything comes up to bother you or if you have troubles let me know. I like to help you bear your burdens. I am glad to have been here and I thank you for your attention."

At the close of his address Mr. Hill held an informal reception at the door of the hall and shook hands with hundreds of the farmers and their wives. He chatted with them about stock and grain and on dozens of subjects which were of common interest. He cracked jokes with them and often broke into a hearty laugh at some remark made by a farmer whose hand he held. He held another small reception in the parlor of the hotel and then he and his party left for St. Paul.

FOSTERING EXPERT GUNNERY.

President Gives His Reasons for Doing So—He Says Gun-Pointers Have a Gift.

President Roosevelt, in commenting on the Mayflower prize contest, recently, said to the writer, speaking with great earnestness:

"I want to do everything I can for the enlisted man in the army or navy who rises above his fellows. The gun-pointer has got to be born with a natural capacity for that sort of thing. Training won't give him this gift, but if he has it and then has the training, he becomes a winner. It is so with the sportsman in the field. Even the fisherman has the special gift of knowing best how to get a good string. This gift the American people have in rare degree, in many respects, and I want to see it cultivated all the while."

It is in the same spirit and with a like end in view that the president has promised to do all in his power to make a success of the international Olympian games of 1904, to which he will send bodies of soldiers and sailors to take part in shooting contests, open to similar representatives of all other nations.—Leslie's Weekly.

CONFERENCE IS A FAILURE

PRESIDENT'S EFFORTS TO END THE COAL STRIKE WITHOUT AVAIL.

MITCHELL'S FAIR PROPOSITION

LEAVE DIFFERENCES TO A TRIBUNAL APPOINTED BY PRESIDENT.

OPERATORS SQUARELY REFUSE

RECOGNITION OF UNION IS ROCK ON WHICH CONFERENCE SPLIT.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The coal conference between the president and representatives of the operators and miners came to an end at the temporary White House yesterday afternoon with a failure to reach an agreement. Apparently the rock upon which the conference split was recognition of the miners' union.

The president had urged the contending parties to cease strife in the interests of the public welfare. The miners, through the president of their union had expressed a willingness to submit differences to arbitration of a tribunal to be named by the president and enter into an agreement to abide by the terms fixed by the arbitration for a period of from one to five years. The employers, through the presidents of the railroad and coal companies and a leading independent mine operator, had squarely refused arbitration; had denounced the miners' labor organization as a body with which they could and would have no dealings; had demanded federal troops to insure complete protection to workers and their families in the mining region, and court proceedings against the miners' union, and had offered, if the men returned to work, to submit grievances at the individual collieries to the decision of the judge of court of common pleas for the district of Pennsylvania in which the colliery was located. There the matter ended.

It was a remarkable chapter in the economic history of the country that was written yesterday. For the first time the president of the republic had intervened in the difficulty between the great forces of capital and labor in an effort to avert what he himself regarded as a great national calamity. The result was to bring the principals in the great controversy face to face with the whole country eagerly intent and watchful of their doings. Technically the issues between the two great forces the president summoned the representatives of the contending forces to the national capital, and, forgetting his own acute suffering, besought them for love of the great country wherein they dwelt, and out of pity for the countless throng of suffering poor, to adjust their differences and work together in peace for the common weal.

Stand as They Did Before

The views of the contenders in the great industrial struggle were so extreme and wide apart that there was no middle ground possible, and so the conference came to an end without any agreement for its continuation.

The conference had lasted six hours, including a recess of three hours between the morning and afternoon sessions taken to enable the miners and operators to prepare written responses to the president's appeal. The immediate parties to the strike say they will Continue as Heretofore.

What course the administration will take next no one is prepared to say. One of the operators, as he left the White House with closely set jaw, was asked regarding this, and replied:

"If any one knows what the president will do next, that is more than I know."

Fourteen men, including the president, were in the second story front room at the temporary White House during the momentous conference. President Mitchell and three of his district leaders represented the miners, and five railroad men and an independent operator, the employers. With the president were Attorney General Knox, Commissioner of Labor Wright and Secretary Cortelyou.

During the conference the president listened to both sides with the greatest eagerness. Immediately after its adjournment his physicians, Surgeon General Rixey and Dr. Lung, insisted on making an examination of his wound and redressing it. Apparently no ill effects had resulted from the excitement of the day, and after a later call at 8 o'clock Dr. Lung announced that the president's condition was satisfactory.

It was announced at the White House last night that the president had no comment to make on the conference.

Two Hundred Injured.

Maysville, Ohio, Oct. 4. — Fifteen hundred persons were thrown several feet to the ground last night by the collapse of the reserve seats in a tent where a show given by local talent was in progress. Two hundred were injured, some seriously.

To Fight the Landlords.

Dublin, Oct. 4.—The lord mayor of Dublin, presided at an enthusiastic meeting of Nationalists at the Mansion house last evening when a special fund to enable the United Irish league to fight the landlords' association was inaugurated.

Ryan Knocks Out Two.

Kansas City, Oct. 4.—Tommy Ryan, the champion middle-weight pugilist, last night met Jack Beauscholte and Barney Walsh and knocked both men out in less than five rounds.

TRAGEDY IN A BREWERY.

Victim of Affray Says It Was an Accident.

New Ulm, Minn., Oct. 6.—Christ Schwer yesterday shot and fatally wounded Ed Lemk. The bullet struck Lemk in the face, below the right eye and lodged beneath the brain back of the ear. He has but one chance in a hundred of recovery. The two men were in a brewery drinking beer, and a witness says that they quarreled about some girls, when Schwer called Lemk some names and said he would shoot him, at the same time drawing his revolver and firing. As soon as he fired he exclaimed: "Who loaded my gun!" and made a bolt for the alley. He tried to get a rig at two livery stables and failed. He then started toward Turner hall, when he met Albert Pfaender, an attorney, to whom he told of the shooting and asked what he should do. Mr. Pfaender took the gun away from him and told him to give himself up to the authorities which he did. The wounded man was able to speak, and says that there was no quarrel and that Lemk was fooling with the gun, when he told him to be careful or he would get into trouble. Lemk replied that he didn't care, when the gun was discharged.

INSANE MAN IS KILLED.

Has for Some Time Terrorized a Portion of Wisconsin.

Marinette, Wis., Oct. 6.—The insane man who is supposed to have shot and killed John Koucha, a St. Paul fireman who was fatally wounded in his cab last week while the train was speeding along at twenty-five miles an hour, was killed Saturday twenty-five miles west of Wausaukee. Otto Wenzel, a cook in Charles May's lumber camp, shot him as he was coming toward the camp and he died an hour later. For a week the entire country around Amberg, Pembine and Dunbar has been in a state of alarm over the presence of the insane man, whose identity is yet unknown, but whose name is supposed to be Raymond. The hunters left the woods, men in lumber camps kept their rifles loaded waiting for him, and on all the trains people were warned not to go on the platforms between Amberg and Pembine. Saturday morning Wenzel saw the insane man coming toward the camp. He warned him to stop, but the fellow never heeded him. He fired a shot over his head, but he kept right on, and the next shot struck him over the heart.

OLD ACTOR DIES SUDDENLY.

Death of Edward H. Sanker at Minneapolis to Be Investigated.

Minneapolis, Oct. 6. — Edward H. Banker, an old and well known actor who has been appearing as the blind fiddler in the "Night Before Christmas" at Jacob Litt's theaters in the Twin Cities, died under mysterious circumstances. A missing pocketbook supposed to have contained $100 is one reason for investigation. Mr. Banker was sixty-seven years old. His theatrical experience began in New York in 1850, and since that time he has played with Booth, Jefferson, and nearly all the great actors of the country. He has a daughter living in the East. Mr. Banker was a charter member of New York Lodge No. 1 of Elks.

ACCUSE MAN AND WIFE.

Wealthy Farmer Is Victim of Rifle Shot.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 6.—Gus Anderson, a farmer residing three miles from Tower, was shot and killed by a person at Tower. No arrests have yet been made, but a man and his wife are suspected of the shooting, which was done with a rifle, in the presence of Thomas Fenlon, who sells jewelry in the lumber camps. Anderson was well-to-do and well known on the Vermilion range. Particulars are meager. The shooting is said to have occurred as a result of dispute over a bill, or the manner of payment.

INDIAN GUILTY OF MURDER.

Basil Thunder Admits Pounding Life Out of Squaw.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 6.—Basil Thunder pleaded guilty of the murder of a woman named O-Bon-Bahmushke and was sentenced to Stillwater for a term of sixteen years. It was manslaughter in the first degree, committed in a box car with a club in the vicinity of Red Lake Falls last May. The woman was said to have been in a squaw house of ill fame conducted by a Bemidji white man.

Norwegian Lutheran Hospital.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 6. — The United Norwegian Lutheran churches of this section of the state have decided to erect a general hospital in this city. A number of lots have been purchased on Mill street south and the incorporators have sufficient money subscribed to justify them going ahead with the building. The structure will be three stories in height and will cost about $10,000. Bids for the foundation were called for Saturday. It is expected the hospital will be ready for occupancy by Christmas.

Merely Manslaughter.

Winona, Minn., Oct. 6.—The jury in the case of Edward Murphy, charged with murder in the first degree, for killing William Pfanschmidt, in St. Charles last April, after being out eighteen hours, brought in a verdict of manslaughter in the third degree. The defense gave notice of a motion for a new trial.

Ends His Weary Life.

Balaton, Minn., Oct. 6.—Ola Swanson, a farm hand working six miles north of town, shot and killed himself. He left a note saying he was tired of living.

Sensational Murder Trial.

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 6.—The trial of Mrs. Lange and her brother, charged with the murder of Mr. Lange, the woman's husband, opens at Mound City this week. The trial promises to be a sensational one.

Booze Vendor Sentenced.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 6.—In the United States court here William Brunetto was convicted of selling liquor to Indians and sentenced to pay a fine of $400 and spend five months in jail.

HAS ANOTHER PLAN

CONFERENCE ON THE STRIKE SITUATION IS HELD AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

MEN WILL SOON BE AT WORK

BELIEF IS EXPRESSED THAT SOMETHING HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED.

ALL ARE BOUND TO SECRECY

NO HINT OF THE CONCLUSIONS REACHED WAS GIVEN OUT.

Washington, Oct. 6.—In an earnest effort to expedite the adjustment of the coal strike problem another conference over the situation was held at the White House yesterday and adjourned after three hours of deliberation. No statement was given out as to the conclusions reached and every participant absolutely refused to discuss what had taken place during the meeting. Besides the president there were present at the conference Secretary of War Root, Secretary of the Navy Moody, Attorney General Knox, Postmaster Gen. Payne and Carroll D. Wright, United States commissioner of labor. The last named was summoned to attend the conference on account of his expert knowledge of the situation. The conference began shortly after 10 o'clock, the time fixed by the president. The president in expressing his views at the outset of the conference and showed a deep feeling. His voice at times could be heard down stairs. Several times during the conference Secretary Cortelyou was summoned into the room and directed to prepare certain matters for consideration of the president and his advisers. This was taken to indicate that some action of one nature or another was about to be consummated. When the conference adjourned all those who had joined in it declined to talk. The utmost efforts were made to guard against publicity.

Talked Earnestly

The known facts are that the president has reached the conclusion that he has nothing to expect save refusal from a further appeal to the coal presidents, and, therefore, has decided to look for relief of the situation from the miners' side. He feels that he can hardly expect them to make the sacrifice of all of their contentions without holding out at least a and the question before him is as to his ability to do this. He can pledge himself to appeal to congress to examine into the justice of the miners' complaints and remedy them so far as lies in the power of the legislative branch. Also he can suggest to Gov. Stone of Pennsylvania that he cause the Pennsylvania legislature likewise to make an inquiry. But these pledges would be given only on condition that the men go at once into the mines and get out with all speed the coal for which the people are suffering. To adopt this course means the continuance of the policy of exerting moral suasion to end the strike.

That the parties to the conference feel that they have accomplished something was made evident by the expressed belief of one of the conferees that the miners would soon be again at work.

EXPECT MUCH DISCORD.

Strikers Said to Be Disheartened Over Failure of Conference.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 6.—Before daybreak yesterday a squad of Thirteenth regiment men, stationed near the Grassy Island colliery, came across an Italian striker named Guiseppe Papriello, prowling about the outpost with a shotgun. He fired in the direction in which the soldiers were approaching, afterward alleging he was shooting at a bird. Col. Watres had received information that Papriello was receiving arms and ammunition, and a detachment of two companies was sent to his house. The soldiers found there 1,200 rounds of cartridges for shotguns. No arms, however, were found. Papriello was turned over to Sheriff Schadt.

Twice Saturday night sentries about the Thirteenth's camp were stoned and early in the evening a train bearing troops from Olyphant to Birdseye encountered a pile of rocks and a felled tree across the tracks.

It is expected that to-day will witness no end of disturbances. The strikers feel that Friday's conference at the White House will dishearten many of their members and that it will be necessary to do the most energetic kind of picketing to prevent additions to the working forces at the collieries. The soldiers are also anticipating this and some serious clashes are not unlikely.

Tightening Up Their Lines.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 6.—The Washington conference between President Roosevelt, the coal operators and the representatives of the anthracite coal mineworkers having been without result, the strike leaders are now engaged in tightening up their lines and preparing themselves to combat any movement by the operators to break the ranks of the strikers.

Blown Up With Dynamite.

Tamaqua, Pa., Oct. 6. — Early yesterday a section of track on the Silver Creek branch of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad was blown up with dynamite. The explosion shook the houses in New Philadelphia and Silver Creek. When the workmen's train reached the scene of the explosion a force of fifty deputies was on hand to escort them to the colliery.

FUNERAL OF EMILE ZOLA.

French Author Followed to the Grave by Many Thousands.

Paris, Oct. 6.—The remains of Emile Zola were laid at rest yesterday with simple but impressive ceremonies. It was such a funeral as Zola himself would have wished, without pomp, but with the serried ranks of thousands of workingmen, many accompanied by their wives, sorrowfully marching behind his coffin. Municipal guard, mounted and on foot, lined the route, but except for a company of infantry, which rendered military honors to the body as it was carried from the house to the hearse, they were there as guardians of order and not as participants in the ceremony. Former Capt. Dreyfus marched in the funeral cortege, according to the authority of the prefect of police, but he passed completely unnoticed by the crowd. A little distance behind him came Mme. Dreyfus, accompanied by her father. Dreyfus sent a handsome wreath, which was placed beside the coffin. Among the masses of spectators which lined the route there were probably many who were not admirers of Zola, but the deep respect for the dead which is inherent in Frenchmen prevented a discordant note.

MOROS IN UTTER ROUT.

Forty Forts Captured and Enemy Defeated.

Manila, Oct. 6. — Capt. John J. Pershing's column has completely routed the Macin Moros in the island of Mindanao, killing or wounding a hundred of them and capturing and destroying forty forts. Two Americans were wounded.

Tuesday the Moros retired to their largest and strongest fort on the lake shore, and Wednesday Capt. Pershing attacked them with artillery. The Moros abandoned the fort early Thursday, after fifteen hours' bombardment, and Thursday Capt. Pershing destroyed the rest of the forts and returned to Camp Vicars.

It is believed the moral effect of the defeat of the Moros will be great. Gen. Davis has ordered that hostilities be stayed in order to permit the sultan of Bacolod and other hostile sultans to make peace. The sultans of Maciu were confident of their ability to defeat the Americans and vowed before the fight to enter slavery voluntarily if they themselves were defeated.

WILL NOT REVIEW THE PARADE.

President Roosevelt Must Not Again Tax His Strength.

Washington, Oct. 6. — President Roosevelt will not review the parade of the G. A. R., at which it was expected he would occupy the reviewing stand in front of the White House. The official statement issued Saturday night that he would have to exercise extreme care indicated that it would be impossible for him to review the veterans, and the direct statement that he will not do so was made on an official authority yesterday. The president has not yet been able to rest his foot on the floor and his physicians have forbidden him again to overtax his strength as he did the past week.

OFFER OF COAL LANDS.

Kentucky Land Offered to the Government Without Compensation.

New York, Oct. 6.—Another offer of coal lands has been made to President Roosevelt to relieve a possible coal famine. Mrs. Johanna C. Samuels, formerly of Nashville, Tenn., and Washington, D. C., but who has been in New York several months organizing a railroad and other projects, has written to President Roosevelt offering him a tract of mining land in Kentucky, to be mined by the government without compensation to the donor during the continuance of the strike.

MAY AND BRADLEE WED.

Cablegram From Buenos Ayres Bears the News.

New York, Oct. 6.—A cable dispatch was received in this city announcing the marriage at Buenos Ayres of Putnam Bradlee Strong and May Yohe. The dispatch was addressed to Emmanuel H. Friend, who acted as their counsel here and was as follows:

"Married Buenos Ayres, second.
—"May Strong."

ONE BRIBER CONVICTED.

Robert McClure Snyder Must Go to Prison.

St. Louis, Oct. 6.—Robert McClure Snyder, banker and promoter, was convicted of bribery in the criminal court and was sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the state penitentiary after the jury had considered for fifty minutes its verdict on the case which had occupied an entire week in presentation.

WINTER IN TEXAS.

Four Inches of Snow Falls in the Panhandle Country.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 6. — A four-inch fall of snow occurred in the extreme north portion of the Texas Panhandle. It covered the ranch of the Texas Capital Syndicate and extended west to New Mexico. It is the earliest snow on record. The cold in the western part of the state down to the Rio Grande is intense.

STEAL FORTUNE IN BONDS.

Prefecture of Police of Paris Cables News of the Crime.

New York, Oct. 6. — Capt. Titus received a lengthy telegram from the prefecture of police of Paris informing him that a big bank robbery had been committed in that city and asking the captain to search for $150,000 in French government bonds.

Chained to the Track.

Cripple Creek, Colo., Oct. 6.—Sheriff Henry Robertson levied on a Pullman car for taxes amounting to $635 which the Pullman company has neglected to pay, and in order to prevent the removal of the car, has chained it to the track.

Suicide Epidemic.

Ottumwa, Iowa, Oct. 6.—There is an epidemic of suicide among the women of Ottumwa. The third in three days took poison Saturday night. Mrs. J. W. Green will die.

TROOPS ON GUARD

CALLED OUT TO MAINTAIN ORDER IN TOWN OF GLENS FALLS, NEW YORK.

POLICE FORCE WAS POWERLESS

DISTURBANCE CAUSED BY SYMPATHIZERS OF STRIKING STREET CAR MEN.

THROW SCARE INTO THE RIOTERS

SOLDIERS RESPOND TO STONE-THROWING WITH VOLLEYS OF BULLETS.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Oct. 6.—As a result of renewed activity by the striking motormen of the Hudson Valley Electric Railway company soldiers of the national guard are again guarding the peace of this town, and, though yesterday saw no rioting, an uneasy feeling prevailed.

The riotous mob which held possession of Glens Falls for four hours Saturday night was composed of sympathizers with the strikers and the police force was powerless against it. The riot was precipitated by the arrest of a man who made insulting remarks to one of the non-union employes, and each car passing through was the object of a demonstration. At Cool's switch four cars were stalled at one time. They were soon abandoned, the non-union motormen and conductors placing themselves in the hands of the police for protection or deserting to the strikers. The car and a fusillade of bricks and stones hurled at the cars. Conductor Currier of Brooklyn was so badly injured by rough handling and by being hit in the head with missiles that he is in the hospital in a serious condition. The last car from the north, which came into town about 11 o'clock, carried mail sacks, which were removed to the railway offices. About this time Company K, national guard, under Capt. Mott, made its appearance and, marching to the jail, took the motormen and conductors under protection. In marching to the cars demonstrations were made and the militia used the butts of their guns and threatened to shoot several times.

Windows Were Smashed

Under a heavy guard of soldiers the seven stalled cars were run down toward the power house, followed by a mob. In the outskirts of the city riotous demonstrations were made and stone-throwing indulged in, to which the soldiers responded shooting in the air, however. Further on a pole had been sawed in two, and, falling on a car, delayed further progress. Chief of Police Patterson fired at two persons who attempted to prevent him closing a window in the jail and who threatened him with revolvers. He thinks he hit one man. Mud was thrown at cars and passengers in Fort Edward yesterday.

By Volleys of Bullets,

There was no rioting last night as the company did not attempt to move any cars, Capt. Mott being unable to furnish enough men to guard them and the property of the railway. The militia and police compelled everyone to move along. Several unruly persons refused to move, insulted the militiamen and were promptly knocked down by the soldiers. The police then made several arrests.

CASEY'S STRICT ORDERS.

No Troops or Ammunition to Be Carried on Isthmian Railroad.

Colon, Colombia, Oct. 6.—Under recent orders issued by Rear Admiral Casey, who is at Panama on the battleship Wisconsin, no Colombian military officer or troops or ammunition will be allowed to be transported across the isthmus by rail unless by special permission. This order ignores the passes issued by the railroad company.

Exchange at Barranquilla is rising by leaps and bounds. An American dollar is now worth $85 dollars in Colombian paper currency.

MINISTER A PRISONER.

Senor La Forest Is Now in the Hands of the Liberals.

Kingston, Jam., Oct. 6.—The British steamer Para, belonging to the Royal Mail service, arrived here yesterday from Colon. She brings reports of a serious situation at Santa Marta, Colombia, whither the British cruiser Retribution has proceeded for the purpose of affording protection to the railroad there and other British interests. According to the reports brought by the Para, fighting is still going on at Santa Marta between the Colombian revolutionists and the government forces. The Magdalena river is completely cut off from communication. The revolutionists hold Teneriffe, near Santa Marta, and have four quick-firing guns at this point. Last week the force at Teneriffe captured Senor La Forest, Colombian minister of state, who was coming from Bogota.

Killed in Running Fight.

Oering, Neb., Oct. 6.—Clarence Fullerton, a farmer, was shot and killed yesterday by Walter Houstin in a running fight in which Fullerton was the pursuer. Stories circulated by Houstin about Fullerton and his housekeeper, it is said, caused the fight.

Texans Displeased.

Columbus, Tex., Oct. 6—A mob from Eagle Lake took Utt Duncan, a negro, from the county jail here and hanged him. Late at night Duncan, improperly clad, entered the telephone office at Eagle Lake, where Miss Lena Harris, the night operator, was alone.

Prince Cut Up.

Athens, Oct. 6.—Crown Prince Constantin of Greece was painfully injured by the overturning of a motor car in which he was riding near Villa Tator. His head and face were cut.

Of Special Interest to Women.

It is doubtful if any other newspaper in the United States caters so successfully to the varied interests of the home as does the Chicago Record-Herald. There is a fashion article in every issue; a department devoted to interesting items of unending variety concerning matters in which women have special interest. Mme. Qui Vive's "Woman Beautiful" column, in which questions concerning the toilet, etc., are answered and useful hints are given: "Meals for a Day," including menus and recipes for the three meals every day, and in addition the "Stories of the Day" column on the editorial page, S. E. Kizer's humorous "Alternating Currents," the boys and girls' page and Dr. Withrow's article on the Sunday school lesson in the Friday issues; also entertaining and valuable book reviews, and in the Sunday issues numerous special fashion, household and other articles, all very interesting to the sex, including the best full page of fashions appearing in any newspaper; "How to be Healthy and Beautiful," by Mrs. Henry Symes, "A page for the Home Dressmaker" and two full pages beautifully colored, reproducing the latest fashions.

Try This—Drop a Penny.

Have you ever noticed the interest that money attracts even if it is only a single cent? The next time that you see a copper coin dropped in a street car just observe. Every eye in the car will turn to the spot where it dropped, and there will be manifested a real general concern over its recovery. Two or three heads are likely to come in contact over the point of its disappearance, and then their owners will draw suddenly back and try to appear unconcerned, but in another second they are again leaning forward.

The man who dropped the cent is usually the first who appears to have brushed memory of the trivial occurrence aside, but just as soon as the eyes in the car have turned from him his own are sure to go back to the floor in the hope that the truant coin will be seen.

When he has gone, there is a renewed interest among the passengers, for the stage of "finders keepers" has arrived, and those near the spot of disappearance become quite diligent until they are aware they make a center of attraction. But interest in that little coin is not lost while there is a passenger left, and when the car is empty the conductor takes his turn and resurrects the cent.—New York Herald.

Making Them All One.

An elderly minister is fond of telling of a "break" he once made at a double wedding of two sisters. It was arranged that the two couples should be married with one ceremony, the two brides responding at the same time and the two bridegrooms doing the same. There had not been any previous rehearsal, as the minister had come a long distance and had reached the church but a few minutes before the time for the ceremony.

All went well until it came time for the minister to say, "And now I pronounce you man and wife."

It suddenly became obvious to the minister that the usual formula would not do in the case of two men and two wives, and he could not think of any way of making "man" and "wife" plural in the sentence. In his desperation and confusion he lifted his hands and said solemnly:

"And now I pronounce you, one and all, husband and wife!"

A Bet and Its Odds.

A notorious gambler, who died some time ago, once wagered a thousand dollars to one that six would not be thrown with a pair of dice ten times in succession. His offer was taken up by a fellow clubman. The dice were brought, and his opponent actually threw six nine times in succession. The gambler then offered $470 to be free of the bet. The other man declined, had his tenth throw and failed to get another six.

Just to show how very little the average man knows about the doctrine of chances a well known mathematician has pointed out the real odds about this bet. The chances were no less than 60,466,175 to 1 against six being thrown ten times in succession; therefore the real bet should have been about $000,000 to 1 cent against such a thing happening.—Pittsburg Gazette.

Varnish From Seaweed.

A kind of seaweed which is plentiful on the coast of China furnishes an admirable glue and varnish. When dried, it is waterproof, and it is employed to fill up the interstices in bamboo network, of which windows are frequently constructed in that country. It is also utilized to strengthen and varnish paper lanterns.

Warning Against Forest and Prairie Fires

Office of State Forest Commissioner,
St. Paul, Minn., March 4, 1902.

Chapter 196 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for 1895 (Act of April 18th) constitutes Supervisors of towns, Mayors of cities and presidents of village councils Fire Wardens, and it is made their duty to take precaution to prevent forest and prairie fires, and if they occur, to go and extinguish or control them; and in emergencies to call upon any able-bodied male person, over eighteen years of age, to assist. Reports of such fires with particulars tending to fix responsibility therefor shall be made within reasonable time—usually within a week. The Forest Commissioner is required to provide and sign an abstract (as herein) of the penalties under said law, and it is made the duty of the County Commissioners of each county to cause said abstract to be published in at least three issues of the official paper in their respective counties each year between the 15th of April and 1st of November, and they are hereby instructed to publish this notice entire. Under said law:

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the state prison not over ten years or both:

Any person who maliciously sets or causes to be set on fire any woods, prairie or other combustible material whereby the property of another is destroyed and life is sacrificed.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three months.

Any person refusing, without cause, to assist fire wardens in extinguishing forest or prairie fires.

Any fire warden who neglects to perform his duties.

Any person who wilfully, negligently or carelessly sets on fire, or causes to be set on fire, any woods, prairies or other combustible material thereby causing injury to another.

Any person who shall kindle a fire on or dangerously near to forest or prairie land and leave it unquenched, or who shall be a party thereto.

Any person who shall use other than incombustible fire wads for firearms or carry a naked torch, firebrand or other exposed light in or dangerously near to forest land.

Any person who shall wilfully or heedlessly deface, destroy or remove this or any other warning placard posted under the requirements of the above mentioned Act.

Any railroad company wilfully neglecting to provide efficient spark arresters on its engines; or to keep its right of way to the width of 100 feet cleared of combustible material; or which shall fail to comply with other provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

The following are liable to a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50:

Any railroad employe who wilfully violates the provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

Any owner of threshing or other portable steam engine who neglects to have efficient spark arresters, or who shall deposit live coals or hot ashes without extinguishing the same.

R. O. DUNN (State Auditor,)
Forest Commissioner.

C. C. Andrews,
Chief Fire Warden.

LOCAL NEWS.

C. G. Repp drove to Red Lake Falls Monday on business.

Mrs. E. L. Elkhoff spent Monday night at Crookston attending to business matters.

For Rent.—Four large rooms over M. L. Hanson's store. Apply to Mrs. E. L. Elkhoff.

D. J. Campbell, one of the real estate hustlers of Crookston, was here Saturday on business.

Eddie, the little son of the late J. S. Stadsvold, is here from Crookston for a visit with relatives.

J. W. Wheeler, the Crookston banker, was a visitor here this morning on his way to Red Lake Falls.

Mrs. H. R. Robertson came up from Crookston Monday for a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Amos.

A. Anderson, Sr., whose home is in Sanders township, is confined to his bed by an attack of kidney trouble.

T. J. Thorkelson went to Red Lake Falls Monday in search of material to complete the new drug store building.

Thos. Little went to Crookston Saturday evening to attend to some business matters and visit old acquaintances.

H. E. Ives returned yesterday from St. Paul where he has been for a week visiting friends and looking after business affairs.

Chas. Holt, representing the Jno. Kinwei Brewing Co. of Crookston, was here yesterday interviewing local dealers in liquid beverages.

Martin Britt, an expert bricklayer, came up from Detroit Thursday to do the pressed brick work on the front of the new drug store building.

The great cloak sale at Red Lake Falls Friday and Saturday is worth attention. See announcement of Theo. LaBissoniere in another column.

Rev. A. E. Skogsberg, of Minneapolis, will preach in the Mission church next Monday, Oct. 13th, at 2 o'clock p. m. All are cordially invited to attend.

P. G. Paradis, Clarance Running and A. F. Ittner were among the number who went from here to Red Lake Falls Saturday to take in the football game.

The football team of the Ada high school were here Saturday morning on their way to Red Lake Falls where they had a game to play in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Pleth left Saturday evening for a visit to Faribault and St. Paul where Mr. Pleth closed up some real estate deals. They returned yesterday morning.

A special representative of the Philadelphia Cloak and Suit Company will be here in a few days and conduct a special sale of ladies' cloaks and suits at Rapp & Post's store.

Herman Schultz who lives about three and one-half miles southwest of Wylie, has just completed a handsome new residence on his farm, and his friends will celebrate the occasion with a grand ball and supper at his place next Saturday night.

Dr. Blomburgh was called out to Wyandotte Saturday evening to attend to J. H. Rice, an old man who is quite ill and whose malady seems to be a case of general debility.

R. H. Aimer returned Saturday after a two months' vacation spent visiting with friends in different places. He enjoyed his trip thoroughly and feels much improved in health.

A sociable will be given by the ladies of the Swedish Lutheran church on Water street next Saturday evening, Oct. 11th, at 8 o'clock, in connection with an auction. All are welcome.

O. A. Wiete came down from Hallock Saturday to spend a few days with old friends here before going to Kalispell, Mont., where he has accepted a more remunerative position than he had at Hallock.

Christ Olson, one of the old time residents of St. Hilaire, having been at one time proprietor of the Central House in this village, is reported as being quite ill at his home in Rocksbury township.

M. E. Nash, socialist nominee for governor of Minnesota, and Hon. Valentine Putnam, of St. Louis, Mo., will be in St. Hilaire on the 22nd inst., and give addresses on the political issues of the day at the village hall.

At Red Lake Falls Saturday afternoon a game of football was played between the high school teams of Red Lake Falls and Ada. As was expected the Red Lake Falls team proved the victors by a score of 12 to 5.

Mrs. Andrew Hall and daughter Alice left Thursday evening for Washington, D. C. They will spend about a month taking in the sights at the national capital and visiting relatives in New Jersey and New York before returning.

The accounts of the late J. W. Peterson have been left at this office by Alex Thompson, administrator, for collection. Any person knowing themselves to be indebted to Mr. Peterson will please call and settle before Nov. 1st. After that date the accounts will be turned over to an attorney and collected by legal process.

M. A. Hutton, who enjoys the distinction of having been the first treasurer of Red Lake county, was here Friday circulating a petition to be nominated and make the run as an independent candidate for the same office. Mr. Hutten was well received by the people of St. Hilaire and received a great many signatures to his petition.

A deal was closed today whereby L. M. Roland disposed of his butcher shop and the property on which it is located to H. M. Hanson, of Milan, Minn. The consideration amounted to better than four figures in dollars and the new owner will take possession about Nov. 1st. Mr. Hanson has had considerable experience in the butchering business and the people of St. Hilaire will find that he will conduct the meat market in a fully up to date manner.

Prolific Swine.

A. Dainard claims to own a brood sow which, for her age, is a record breaker. On April 13 she gave birth to a brood of eleven young pigs all of which did well and were sold at a good price. On Monday last, less than six months after the first brood was born, the same sow became the mother of a litter of fourteen. Of these thirteen are alive and happy as pigs can be. The sow in question is a half bred Cheshire and is only one and one-half years old. As Mr. Dainard has no way to keep the mother he says he will sell her as soon as the youngsters are old enough to do without her.

For County Surveyor.

P. O. Hagglund, populist nominee for county surveyor, is a candidate for re-election to the office which he has creditably filled ever since the organization of Red Lake county.

In 1899 he proved himself to be possessed of sufficient brains and backbone to start the first drainage ditch in Red Lake county. This ditch was pushed through to a successful finish and at considerable cost to Mr. Hagglund, although he received no personal benefit and very little sympathy. This ditch proved to be a very good thing for the country, and today ditching is considered one of the greatest benefits to the county and is being extensively indulged in.

The ditches now finished and those being constructed have brought upwards of $100,000 into circulation in the county, and have resulted in untold benefits to the land drained. Money has been circulated and lands improved; there are better crops and better roads. The increase in the price of Red Lake county lands proves these facts and today this county holds a leading place among the agricultural districts of Minnesota.

That such conditions exist in this county today is due principally to Mr. Hagglund's efforts as a promoter of drainage. He is a man thoroughly qualified to fulfill the duties of the office, is experienced, honest, and in every way a man to be depended upon. A vote for Mr. Hagglund for county surveyor is a vote for the best man available for the position; one who has been tried and found absolutely reliable.

Don't forget to vote for P. O. Hagglund on election day—Nov. 4th.

—Ladies will find it to their interests to call at E. M. Hoff's and look over his new fall stock. They will find that the goods and prices are right.

—Fresh oysters at the Ideal Lunch Room at all hours.

American Trolley in St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg is to have an American street railway. Two millionaires of Pittsburg have obtained the franchise to build 200 miles of track in the Czar's capital. This is one of the most valuable franchises in Europe, and the fact that it goes to Americans is another illustration of our success in the world's work. A part of this success is due to the inborn confidence Americans have in their own ability. This confidence comes with drinking golden grain belt beer, for it makes men strong and healthy and well able to do their best. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Notice is hereby given that on the 23rd day of October, 1902 at one o'clock p. m., at the auditor's office in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Rocksbury and Sanders Ditch No. 1 of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, state of Minnesota, by their order bearing date Sept. 12, 1902, viz: In sections of 100 feet each, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified in said engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimated cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond to be approved by the auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated Oct. 7th, 1902.

SHOWING THE WAY.

Most of our readers know all about the aches and pains of a bad back, very few people are free from sick kidneys as the kidneys are the most over-worked organs of the body and "go wrong" at times no matter how well the general health may be. The trouble is so few understand the indications of kidney trouble. You are nervous, tired out and weary, have stitches, twinges and twitches of backache pains, but lay it to other causes; finally the annoyance and suffering attendant with urinary disorders, retention of the urine, too frequent urination makes you realize the seriousness of it. At any stage you should take a remedy that will not only relieve but cure you. Read the following and profit by the lesson it teaches:

C. J. McMurray, a resident of Freeport, Ill., address 47 Iroquois St., says: "I have greater faith in Doan's Kidney Pills to-day than I had in the fall of 1897, when I first took that remedy and it cured me of an acute pain across the back and imperfect action of the kidneys. Since I made a public statement of these facts and recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to my friends and acquaintances, thoroughly believing as I did both from observation and experience that they would do just as they were represented to do. I am still pleased to reindorse my statement given to the public shortly after I first began to use the remedy."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine, which cured Mr. McMurray, will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

It Caused a Laugh.

Joseph Grismer, of "Way Down East," tells the following story on himself:

"During an engagement at the old Bush Street theater, in San Francisco, we were playing that melodramatic piece, 'The Burglar.' I was the hero, a burglar, and in one scene I had to rush on the stage, lock the door and exclaim: 'Aha, I have locked the door and put the key in my pocket!' Instead of saying this, however, I rushed on, went through the business, and then exclaimed, very dramatically: 'Aha, I have locked the key and put the door in my pocket!'

"It was some time before the play could be resumed."—New York Times.

A GREAT SUFFERER FROM RHEUMATISM.

Cured by St. Jacobs Oil.

Mr. E. G. Moore, of 7, Phillips Street, Kingsland:

"I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism for many years, during which time I tried many remedies, from which I received but very little relief. Being advised to use St. Jacobs Oil, I did so, and am happy to say that after a few applications I felt great relief, and continuing its use I can now say I am perfectly well. St. Jacobs Oil is, in my opinion, a thing which should be in every household."

What a blessing, and what hours of suffering, pain and misery would have been saved had Mr. Moore adopted the wiser course and used St. Jacobs Oil at first, instead of wasting time and money on worthless embrocations and nostrums with which, unfortunately, the market is flooded. The public should not lose sight of the fact that St. Jacobs Oil has conquered pain for more than fifty years, and it isn't going to stop doing the same thing now or at any future time.—Fifty years' record of pain conquering is a record to inspire confidence.

OF INTEREST TO TAXPAYERS

Constitutional Amendments and Their Importance to the People of Minnesota.

Religion and taxation have been the most fruitful of all sources of war and national trouble. It is fortunate, therefore, for Minnesota that there seems no disposition at the coming election to make taxation a party issue. It is, however, one of the most important subjects upon which the people will have to vote.

When the tax commission was named to formulate a wholly new code for the state and report on it in nine months to an extra session of the legislature which was expected to act upon and pass it in twenty days, many, perhaps most of the people of this great commonwealth thought the tax problem was settled. Students of taxation, however, either smiled or, if wiser, spoke approvingly, hoping that this start on the road might result in much good. The commission's report truly says: "At no time in modern history has the thought of students of economic subjects been as earnestly directed to the subject of taxation as at present."

There is no doubt in any one's mind that the present system of taxation in Minnesota is antiquated. The state has outgrown it. It is crude, works injustice, is unequal and does not meet the present needs of the state. But what the remedy should be, how in so rich a state with such varied industries and sources of wealth property should be reached and taxed is a question on which few would agree. It is therefore impossible to make it a party question and it is wise that neither party has attempted it. There was a day when there was little wealth in Minnesota outside the farm.

The mode of life and property of the people were equally simple and primitive and the taxation question was easy of solution. But now this is one of the richest states in the Union and its interests are among the most complex. No interest, unless it is still that of the farmer, is paramount and of this, the assessed valuation of all acre property with its improvements, even including the iron mines, but little more than equals the value of city and village property. In 1860, two years after the present constitution was framed, the total assessed valuation of the state was $36,753,408. Last year it was $600,980,614, while this year the mere increase in the assessment will be four times as much as the total valuation when the present constitution was adopted. Such a change in conditions is almost beyond conception and it is no wonder that the constitutional restrictions of a constitution drawn in those days of primitive poverty should be wholly inadequate to meet the conditions of modern wealth. As was to be expected, the tax commission when it began its work, almost immediately found that it was simply impossible, under the present antequated constitutional provisions, to make a satisfactory tax law. It says in concluding its report: "In conclusion, the amendment of the tax provisions of the constitution, for the reasons urged in this report, should be early effected. In their present form they are an insuperable obstacle to proper legislation."

This subject of taxation is before the people of Minnesota as a result of the tax commission report. Naturally hampered as they were by limitations of the constitution, even as able men as composed that commission could not frame a bill that would meet the situation. As was said, tax experts knew from the first this could not be done, but hoped for good results from the agitation of the subject sure to follow the report. Certainly those good results have followed. The extra session with the commissioners' report as a text, was a great school in taxation. Hearing after hearing was had in joint session and in open sessions before the tax committees, at which representatives of the state's varied interests were heard, where the farmer and banker, franchise magnate and tax student, the practical man of business and the theorist gave their views on taxation. From all this mass of testimony the members of the house and senate and, through the newspaper reports, the state at large, secured a great amount of information in regard to the subject of taxation and a surprising interest was aroused in the subject. Anything as to taxation was read carefully and eagerly and still is.

The immediate result of all this process of education was an amendment to the constitution which is to be voted upon by the people Nov. 4. It certainly is creditable to the legislature that this amendment was treated purely as a business measure. At no time in either house or senate was the vote in any sense divided on party lines, and the final passage of the amendment was by a practically unanimous vote in both houses. There was but one vote against it in the senate and three in the house. Such unanimity, considering the subject, is remarkable and is the strongest kind of testimony as to the excellence of the amendment.

It is of interest to consider this amendment in connection with the tax commission's report, which is one of the most important state documents ever submitted to a Minnesota legislature. In framing the amendment which will be voted upon at this election, a special regard was evidently paid to the suggestions in the report. For instance, the report considers quite exhaustively the subject of taxation of mortgages and says that the present constitution made it impossible to handle the subject as they thought wise.

The amendment makes it possible to cure this evil by a recording fee, or light uniform tax on all mortgages when recorded.

Again the report says: "No marked reform in the taxation of personal property can be effected until the legislature is afforded greater freedom of action in the matter of legislation upon the subject." This is clearly along the line of the modern methods to leave the legislature so far as possible free to fix a system of taxation subject only to public opinion. There is danger in going too far in this direction, and the amendment, as it goes to the people, is considered by the tax student as on the whole a wise compromise in this regard. It does not bind down the legislature too closely, nor limit its powers too narrowly. It rather marks out a course by suggestion than by set limitations. It says rather what may be done than what can't be done, and gives as a rule an alternative in method. The exemptions also, are not wide, being only schools, burial grounds, public hospitals and libraries, colleges, charities and church property when used for religious purposes, and public property. These all, save a very few, will concede should be free from taxation as none are profit-sharing and they are strictly for the public good. Also the limit to which the personal property of each individual may be exempt is increased to $300, but only one member of a family can take advantage of this.

In the matter of an income tax the commission's report says: "Every system of taxation is deficient which does not provide for a reasonable income tax. Minnesota would take a proud step forward by wholly abrogating a tax on credits and adopting a progressive income tax." Later it quite fully discusses the subject, and in conclusion again says: "While it is not permissible to impose an income tax under the present constitution the subject is too important to be disregarded in the deliberations of the commission or omitted from this report. It is due the legislature and the people of the state that they be advised of the views of the commission on the subject." On no branch of the subject of taxation has public opinion changed more here in America than on this. Where it was formerly looked upon as justifiable only as a last resort as a war measure, it is now generally approved. Now, even the wealthy, while naturally opposed in the main to an income tax, admit its justice and that the money product of a man's brain is just as properly subject to taxation as the product of the labor of his hands. The proposed amendment permits an income tax if the people demand it and puts Minnesota in this regard at the front of progressive states in taxation. But it does not make this form of taxation obligatory, but leaves the legislature to say if personal property of any class, credits, stocks, bonds or tangible personalty shall be taxed on the income or on value.

Inheritances is another kind of estate that has never been successfully reached here, though in the states furtherest in advance in taxation matters, estates which come through inheritance are taxed when they pass through probate. Such an estate is one that comes not through our own effort, but by the accident of birth, and as the public is at the expense in each county of maintaining a separate office for the protection of such property and of the rights of heirs, it is but considered just that at least the largest estates should pay a special tax for such protection. This is recommended in the report and provided for in the amendment.

The report is exhaustive in its consideration of the taxation of franchise companies.

It points out that the tangible property of a public franchise company often does not begin to represent the actual value of the company's property. That with street railway, gas, electric lighting, water, telephone and such companies, the greater value may be in the franchise itself.

There are two methods of reaching such companies. At present only their tangible property, such as cars, tracks, poles, wires, plants, machinery, real estate, etc., are taxed, but the amendment permits the reaching of their other property by either of two ways: By getting at the actual value of the franchise, which is the right the law gives such a company to do business, or by a gross earnings tax. The latter is simply an income tax applied to such corporations, and is the same method that is now used in taxing steam railways.

Other advanced stands taken in this amendment are also along lines proposed by the commission. For instance again, the report says: "Public interests would undoubtedly be best guarded under a constitution which divests a legislature of the power of entering into a contract with respect to taxation. Every tax system should rest upon the rules of uniformity and equality and a legislature should not therefore be vested with authority to violate them."

Along these lines the amendment first of all specifically prohibits the surrender suspending or contracting away of the power of legislation. This makes it impossible to fix a form of taxation for corporations, or for any other class of persons, or property, that a future legislature could not change. It provides further that all taxes for "state purposes" shall be uniform throughout the state. The word "state" is used because of the clause which provides that when a special tax levy for state purposes is not necessary that then there shall be "county option" in taxation. In view of the fact that the revenue tax will probably be reduced next year to less than one mill and that the increased tax on railroad gross earnings alone would amount to a half of the total revenue tax raised, it is not at all improbable that in the very near future there may be no direct tax levy for state purposes; that all state taxes will come from the railroads, franchise companies and inheritance taxes, foreign corporation and income taxes. Then each county would be free to assess and tax its own property in its own way, according to its own local interests, to meet its own local expenditures for roads, bridges, schools and general expenses. This is again along the most advanced thought of many tax students and places Minnesota among the states such men are eagerly watching for developments.

So it is that the passage of this proposed tax amendment is being watched with interest by public men in all states. The proposed amendments and there are four of them, will come first on the ballot. This tax amendment will read as follows:

"Amendment to sections one (1), two (2) and three (3) of article nine (9) of the constitution, providing for a tax on real estate mortgages and on the franchises of corporations, and upon the income of corporations and individuals in excess of the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000) per year."—"Yes."—"No." Each elector voting upon such proposed amendments shall place a cross (X) mark in the space opposite the word "Yes" or "No" as he favors or opposes it. And just here comes in a peculiar consequence of the constitutional provision which requires that no amendment to the state constitution can be carried or adopted unless it receives a majority of all the votes cast at the election. This makes it necessary that to carry this or any amendment over half of all those who vote at the election shall put the cross (X) opposite the "Yes," for those who do not mark the amendment at all are counted with those who mark "No."

For example, if there were 200,000 votes cast in all at the election and on 100,000 of them the voters had voted for the amendment and not one vote was marked against it, yet it would not carry for it would need just one more vote to make a majority of all the votes cast. So the importance of every one voting on the amendment who favors these changes in the methods of taxation can easily be seen. In no other state, we believe, is there any such requirement for passing a constitutional amendment, yet it is not a bad idea to make the people study such a question and actually register their votes upon it, if they wish it adopted.

LAWYER'S MEAN ACT

GOT EVEN WITH MANKIND'S ENEMY, THE BOOK AGENT

Half Day's Time and Much Physical Exertion Spent in Vain Endeavor to Make a Man See Where His Best Interests Lay.

The lawyer's office was on the fourth floor of one of the old buildings in the downtown district that have no elevators. The book agent, after having laboriously climbed the stairs and approached unsuccessfully every one else in the building, had arrived at the lawyer's office with his illustrated history of the late Spanish-American war, with an addition giving an account of our troubles in the Philippines, and a department covering fully each one of our foreign possessions, the latter department containing complete details concerning the difficulty with the Sandwich Islands and the Hawaiian revolution.

The book agent explained all this and much more, but the lawyer wasn't impressed.

"I don't want the book," he said several times.

"You don't want it," said the book agent, "because you think you don't need it. Now, anything a man needs he wants."

Then he spent an hour and a half trying to convince the lawyer that he would find the book a daily invaluable aid in his business, but the lawyer couldn't see it. Having plenty of time to spare, however, and enjoying the conversation of the book agent, he sat with his feet resting on his desk and allowed the book agent to talk away to his heart's content. At the end of the afternoon, when the book agent had talked himself completely out, the lawyer again repeated:

"I don't want the book."

"I'll tell you," he said finally; "don't be hasty in this matter. Think it over carefully. I know you will decide to take the book. You can't help it. You need the book; you've got to have it. I'll come back and see you again."

He wrapped up his sample editions, packed them away, and bade the lawyer "good-day."

"I'll drop in again," he said assuringly as he paused at the door, "and I think I'll find that you have changed your mind."

His steps sounded down the stairway as he made his way out of the building, and as the noise of them died away the lawyer rose, went to his window, raised it, and looked down.

The book agent emerged on the street below and the lawyer yelled to him:

"Hey," he cried.

The book agent looked up. The lawyer beckoned to him, and the book agent disappeared within the building again with alacrity.

"You called me back," he said breathlessly and with a beaming countenance as he made his appearance again at the lawyer's door.

"Yes," said the lawyer. "I just wanted to say that you needn't drop in again."

Then he shut the door, while the book agent wandered up and down the hallway for a few moments in a blind, helpless sort of way before he discovered the stairway and descended four floors into the outer world.—Chicago Tribune.

A Famous Oak Tree.

The oak tree under whose branches Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A Douglas held a political debate in 1868 is still standing in Bloomington, Ill., in the yard of E. M. Bowen. It appears to be centuries old. In 1858 the tree marked an inclosure then known as Henshaw's pasture, a former public meeting place. George Henshaw, the owner, was a Democrat. He arranged to have the debate there, being an admirer of Douglas. The two candidates for United States senator had engaged in a series of debates and the one held in Bloomington attracted voters from far and near. A platform for the candidates was constructed directly under the boughs of this old oak. Its shade protected the audience as well as the speakers. Only three men are now living in Bloomington who heard the famous orators. They are John Dawson, Adam Guthrie and W. S. Depew.

In the Good Old Days.

The most memorable ride in English history was that of Sir Arthur Owen, which placed the Hanoverian dynasty on the throne of Great Britain. The act of settlement, by which, in 1701, parliament elected the house of Hanover to the British throne, was passed by only one vote, and this casting vote was given by Sir Arthur Owen, the member of parliament for Pembrokeshire. He arrived at Westminster, dusty and travel-worn, only just in time to record his vote, having ridden with furious haste from Wales for the purpose on relays of horses kept at all the posting houses along the route. To that ride Britain owes its Georgian era; hence its Queen Victoria and Edward VII.

The Truth is Sometimes Cruel.

To tell the truth when it ought not to be told is often the meanest thing a newspaper or a person can do. It is easily possible for a truth to do more harm than a lie. We believe the worst habit of the worst newspapers is hunting up and printing truths that are not called for by any public interest, and the effect of whose publication is to bring shame and sometimes ruin upon individuals or families. Men and women have been driven to suicide by having their early mistakes or misfortunes served up in sensational newspapers for no other purpose than to make racy reading. Some of the most detested social pests are persons who plume themselves on their love of truth. Between the man or woman who will tell a white lie to shield another, and the one who in season and out of season insists on telling "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," commend us to the former.

A LEARNED ENGLISH HORSE.

When His Master Fell Asleep He Went Up the Private Driveway—Saved Him From Prosecution.

It is a wise horse that knows his own Blackstone, and very thankful must the carman, charged recently with being drunk in charge of a horse and cart, have felt to his learned Rosinante for her keen legal acumen and decisive action. When this good steed felt her reins go slack, and heard, likely enough, the stertorous breathing of her lord and master, she pulled herself together and thought out a plan for escaping the penalties that would befall them if they were found thus incapable on the public road. Taking the bit between her teeth and the matter into her own hands, she calmly walked up the private drive of a house in Green Lanes. In the garden she was found, with her master fast asleep, and in spite of her no doubt intelligent protests, was taken to the police station. In the morning the young carter was charged with the offense above mentioned; but it appeared, in the course of the case, that no one had seen him in charge on the public highway, and so the case fell through. Verily, a perfect treasure of an animal, who could so provide for her driver's safety; we hope the carter appreciated his steed's value.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Supervisor's Story.

Lockport, N. Y., Oct. 6th.—Mr. George P. Penfold, supervisor for the First ward of the city of Lockport, has written the following letter for publication to the newspapers:

"It gives me great pleasure to recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a cure for Kidney Trouble.

"My kidneys troubled me more or less for years, and treatment by local physicians only gave me partial and temporary relief.

"An old friend, knowing my trouble, advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, telling me at the same time how much they had helped him.

"I used, altogether, six boxes, and found a permanent cure.

"This was two years ago, and I have not since been troubled in any way with pains in the back, or any of the many other distressing difficulties arising from diseased kidneys."

PE-RU-NA NECESSARY TO THE HOME.

A Letter from Congressman White, of North Carolina.

PE-RU-NA IS A HOUSEHOLD SAFEGUARD.

No Family Should Be Without It.

PERUNA is a great family medicine. The women praise it as well as the man; it is just the thing for the many little catarrhal ailments of childhood.

The following testimonials from thankful men and women tell in direct, sincere language what their success has been in the use of Peruna in their families:

Louis J. Scherrinsky, 103 Locust street, Atlantic, Iowa, writes:

"I will tell you briefly what Peruna has done for me. I took a severe cold which gave me a hard cough. All doctors' medicines failed to cure it. I took one bottle of Peruna and was well.

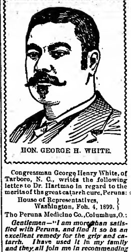
"Then my two children had had coughs accompanied by gagging. My wife had stomach trouble for years. She took Peruna and now she is well.

"I cannot express my thanks in words, but I recommend your remedy at every opportunity, for I can conscientiously say that there is no medicine like Peruna. Nearly everyone in this town knew about the sickness of myself and family, and they have seen with astonishment what Peruna has done for us. Many followed our example, and the result was health. Thanking you heartily, I am."—L. J. Sherrinsky.

Mrs. Nannie Wallace, Tulare, Cal., President of the Western Baptist Missionary Society, writes:

"I consider Peruna an indispensable article in my medicine chest. It is twenty medicines in one, and has so far cured every sickness that has been in my home for five years. I consider it of special value to weakly women, as it builds up the general health, drives out disease and keeps you in the best of health."—Mrs. Nannie Wallace.

Peruna protects the family against coughs, colds, catarrh, bronchitis, catarrh of the stomach, liver and kidneys. It is just as sure to cure a case of catarrh of the bowels as it is a case of catarrh of the head.



HON. GEORGE H. WHITE.

Congressman George Henry White, of Tarboro, N. C., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman in regard to the merits of the great catarrh cure, Peruna:

House of Representatives,
Washington, Feb. 4, 1899.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."

Very respectfully,
George H. White.

Peruna is an internal, scientific, systemic remedy for catarrh. It is no palliative or temporary remedy; it is thorough in its work, and in cleansing the diseased mucous membranes cures the catarrh.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

BAER CALLED DOWN

GOV. ODELL SHARPLY RESENTS AFFRONT OFFERED BY COAL OPERATOR.

AN AS BULLHEADED AS EVER.

OPERATORS DETERMINED NOT TO RECOGNIZE THE MINERS' UNION.

GOV. ODELL WILL FIND A REMEDY.

MAKES A PROPOSITION WHICH IS TURNED DOWN, BUT WILL KEEP AT IT.

New York, Oct. 11.—"What do you mean by politicians? I want you and all the other operators to understand that I am the governor of New York, the chosen representative of seven million people, and that I am here in this matter solely in that capacity and to relieve if possible an intolerable situation. And what is more, I intend to use every power at my command to do it."

Gov. Odell made this statement yesterday to President Baer of the Reading railroad, in the presence of United States Senators Platt of New York and Quay and Penrose of Pennsylvania. It was the culmination of a rather heated interview in the office of Senator Platt and the result of the first meeting between Gov. Odell and President Baer.

Mr. Baer was not in the best of humor when, accompanied by E. B. Thomas, chairman of the board of directors of the Erie railroad, he entered Senator Platt's office. The conference was begun by a statement made by Senator Penrose that the situation was that some solution must be found at once. He suggested that the operators should incline to some concessions toward a settlement.

Becoming Serious,

"If you mean by that," said President Baer, "that we are to recognize the existence of a labor union, I tell you right now that the operators will consider no such proposition."

Gov. Odell was on his feet in an instant. Holding a half-burnt cigar in his hand and white with excitement, he said:

"Are we to understand that no kind of a conciliatory proposition will receive consideration at the hands of the operators?"

"I did not say that," answered Mr. Baer, "but I do say, and I reiterate it, that we will not accept political advice or allow the interference of politicians in this, our affair."

Then it was that Gov. Odell made the statement attributed to him at the beginning of this article.

Baer Makes an Apology.

President Baer, evidently appreciating that he had gone too far, bowed to Gov. Odell and said:

"Governor, I beg your pardon. No personal affront was intended, and we will listen to any suggestions you may have to make; but again I repeat that we must refuse to recognize the union as represented by Mr. Mitchell."

"I believe," said the governor, "that your position from a public view is absolutely untenable. If coal operators, railroad men and other business men can combine for mutual profit and protection, there is no reason why laboring men should not."

"What is the proposition," said Mr. Baer, coldly.

"Just this," said Gov. Odell. "I am sure that the labor organization of which Mr. Mitchell is head, desires him to be fair with the general public. If the operators will consent to give the men

Five Cents a Ton Increase

I will personally present it to the miners, and I believe they will accept it. It is a fair proposition."

"Does this mean, Gov. Odell, that we are to recognize the miners' union?" Mr. Baer asked.

"It certainly does," answered Gov. Odell quickly, "and there is no reason why you shouldn't."

Mr. Baer and Mr. Thomas rose to go, Mr. Thomas remarking that the matter would be presented to the other operators and that an early answer would be forthcoming. Mr. Baer said:

"We are to meet a committee of the manufacturers' association on Tuesday and we may have an answer then."

After the conference the governor said:

"The coal operators may postpone this matter until Tuesday, but I don't propose to postpone it. They are not acting fairly toward the people. I believe I shall Find Some Remedy."

About 5 o'clock John Mitchell, accompanied by L. M. Hammerling of Wilkesbarre, called and had a long conference. While this was going on a dispatch announcing that the operators refused to consider the terms offered by the governor was received.

When the conference was over Gov. Odell refused to say what had occurred, and Mr. Mitchell was equally reticent. It is believed, however, that Gov. Odell presented his proposition for settlement to the leader of the miners' union and that Mr. Mitchell said that he would present it to the district presidents in the hope it would be accepted.

Gov. Odell said: "Mr. Mitchell was eminently fair, and showed a disposition to adjust the serious situation."

End Seems Far Off.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 11. — Disappointment followed the news received from New York last evening that the conference held in that city for the purpose of settling the miners' strike had failed to reach an agreement. It is feared in business circles that the struggle will continue for some weeks yet. The strike leaders will make every effort to hold their men in line, trusting to cold weather to bring the operators to terms.

The operators will make another determined effort to start up additional collieries next Monday, and in case the militia cannot furnish the necessary protection a number of local operators will petition the governor as to the advisability of calling on the president for federal troops.

THE UNION ILLEGAL.

Operators Call Upon President to Proceed Against Miners.

New York, Oct. 11.—David Wilcox, vice president and consul for the Delaware & Hudson Railroad company, and one of those present at the recent conference called by President Roosevelt at Washington, has sent to President Roosevelt a letter demanding that the federal government proceed against the miners' organization in the courts on the ground that it is a conspiracy to prevent interstate commerce. Mr. Wilcox, it is said on authority, represents all the coal operators in this action and was selected as their spokesman.

—o—

Washington, Oct. 11. — President Roosevelt has received the communication from David Wilcox of the Delaware & Hudson company referred to in the dispatch from New York, and has referred it, together with the former one, of which Mr. Wilcox speaks, to the attorney general.

Has Done All He Can.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Close advisors of the president who have conferred with him over the coal situation, said last night that, in their opinion there is no further action the administration can take on its own initiative to bring the strike to an end. They say the administration is ready to do whatever is possible, but that it has taken all the action that is practicable.

MONSTER GROCERY COMBINE.

Entire Grocery Trade Will Be United Under One Head.

St. Louis, Oct. 11.—The Interstate Grocer of St. Louis says a combine, to include every wholesaler of groceries in the United States is in the course of formation. The paper will say:

"The details of the plan are not yet public property. They will not be until after Nov. 5 next, when the initial steps toward forming the combination will be taken in Detroit. George D. Hanford of New York city is engineering the deal. In a few days the entire wholesale grocers trade of the United States will receive invitations to this meeting. Already a large number of the leading wholesale grocers in the East have been personally seen by Mr. Hanford or his representatives, and nearly all of them have expressed a willingness to be present."

CHOPPED BY A MANIAC.

Boy Crazed by Mental Over-Exertion, Kills His Mother and Sisters.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 11. — While laboring under mental aberration, the result of the strain of perfecting an appliance for an air brake for which applications are pending at the patent office in Washington, D. C., Charles Cawley, a seventeen-year-old boy of Homestead, Pa., killed his mother and one sister and fatally injured four other children. He also tried to kill his two older brothers, but was detected, overpowered and turned over to the police. The weapon used was an axe, with which he crushed and hacked his victims beyond recognition.

SCATTERED ALONG THE TRACK.

Man Cut Into Bits By a Train On the Northwestern.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 11. — The body of an unknown man was discovered yesterday morning strewn along the Northwestern railroad track in this city. Hair, teeth and bones were scattered over half a mile. One hand and one foot were found 200 yards from the trunk. Identification was impossible. The man had been dressed in overalls, dark coat and hat and had red hair. He is thought to be a stranger who was hanging around the station last night and to have been intoxicated.

HIS LIFE A FAILURE.

Made and Lost Four Fortunes, and Then Committed Suicide.

New York, Oct. 11.—Having made and lost four fortunes and finding himself broken in health and almost Penniless at the age of seventy, Chas. W. Lewis, a well known promoter and member of a leading Fifth avenue club, has ended his life with morphine. He was a native of England and had no relatives here.

MONTGOMERY WARD WINS.

Chicago Lake Front Is Preserved for Park Purposes.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Montgomery Ward has won his long fight for the preservation of the entire lake-front for park purposes, the supreme court of Illinois having denied a rehearing of the case. Attorneys for both sides consider the question as settled and the litigation ended.

The whole tract from Randolph street to Park row, and from Michigan avenue to the harbor line, or breakwater, is thus secured permanently for a park and the erection of any building in the area is prohibited.

Sharkey Out on Bail.

New York, Oct. 10.—Thomas J. Sharkey, who is charged with being responsible for the death of Nicholas Fish, banker, and who is under indictment for manslaughter in the first degree, has been released on $7,500 bail by Recorder Goff, after three weeks' imprisonment. Originally the amount of bail was fixed at $15,000.

WILL USE TROOPS

ATTEMPT TO BREAK STRIKE UNDER PROTECTION OF MILITARY.

MINERS ASKED TO GO TO WORK

OPERATORS PROMISE PROTECTION FOR THOSE WHO RETURN TO WORK.

NO SETTLEMENT IS IN SIGHT

BOTH SIDES AS DETERMINED AS EVER TO FIGHT IT OUT.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 13.—The Erie company last night posted notices at its collieries at Pittston requesting all striking employes to return to work to-day.

The company assured all men who returned ample protection. This is believed to be the first move on the part of the coal companies to break the strike under the protection of troops. The strikers and citizens generally are not expecting anything to develop in the strike-affected territory but are eagerly following events in New York and Washington. There is a feeling, which is growing quite general, that some development in the direction of a settlement is near at hand. It looks as though there will be very little or no increase in the production of coal during the next week. The miners are as firm to-day in their declarations not to return to work until they get some concession as they have been heretofore.

Conference With Morgan.

New York, Oct. 13.—Developments in the coal strike situation were lacking here yesterday. J. P. Morgan spent the day on board his yacht, the Corsair, lying in North river, and the visit of two men during the afternoon gave rise to the report that another important conference was being held, but the identity of Mr. Morgan's visitors could not be learned and it could not be learned if their presence had any connection with the coal strike. It was reported that George F. Baer was one of the two men who left the yacht in a launch about 4 o'clock yesterday. This could not be verified, however. Mr. Morgan did not leave the yacht last night.

Other than an interview with John E. Markle nothing was given out, and Mr. Markle simply stated there was no settlement in sight and no settlement could be made except by the miners going to work independently. "The situation is unchanged," he said, "except that conditions are improving in the coal regions." Mr. Markle would not comment on the visit of Secretary Root Saturday or his own conference with Mr. Morgan.

Morgan Sends for Baer.

Reading, Pa., Oct. 13. — George F. Baer, president of the Reading company, left here late last night on a special train for New York. His sudden departure was occasioned by a telegram reported to have been sent him by J. P. Morgan. Mr. Baer declined to state the object of his trip. In answer to a question, he said:

"You know as much about it as I do."

Root Calls on Morgan.

New York, Oct. 13.—Elihu Root, secretary of war, came to this city Saturday morning and had a conference with J. P. Morgan on board the yacht Corsair, lying at anchor in North river, off West Thirty-fifth street. Mr. Root's departure from Washington was accompanied and preceded by reports that his trip to this city was concerned with the coal strike. When asked about his visit here Mr. Root shook his head and smiled, but made no answer. Mr. Morgan would not answer questions.

Refuses to Talk About It.

Washington, Oct. 13. — Secretary Root, who returned to Washington last night, refused to discuss his interview with J. P. Morgan Saturday, further than to say that he did not carry a message from the president to Mr. Morgan and did not telegraph the president from New York Saturday, as has been stated.

Secretary Root spent some time at the temporary White House last night in consultation with the president regarding the coal strike. Nothing could be ascertained as to what took place.

This Week Will Tell.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 13.—This is the beginning of a week which is generally believed will put to a test the claim of the operators that they will be enabled to start up their collieries if given protection, and the counter claim of the United Mineworkers' organization as expressed in Wednesday's resolutions that the strikers will not return to work without concessions, even though the entire military force of the United States should be here to protect them.

With a determination to prove their claim the operators have for the past week been making a superhuman effort to secure men. That they have succeeded to some extent is evidenced by announcements made with some positiveness that various collieries will resume operations in the course of a few days.

The United Mineworkers' leaders continue to assert that the military can do nothing toward inducing men to return to work, and that all the men who could be induced to go back to work without concessions are already back.

THIEVES SCOURGE PARIS.

Bicycle Dealers Now Advertising Unstolen Machines.

Paris, Oct. 13. — The Paris bicycle thief has become such a scourge that dealers feel it necessary to take cognizance of the matter in their advertisements. Not once, but several times lately, the following has appeared in the daily papers: "Lady's bicycle for sale; has not been stolen."

INDIANS ARE CUTTING UP.

Prospects or Trouble in the Black Hills.

Belle Fourche, S. D., Oct. 13.—Indians are causing much trouble in the vicinity of the Moreau, north of here 125 miles. They are off the reservation in large numbers, and are burning the prairies, killing game out of season and indulging in other acts of mischief. Several fires have been started on the prairie recently, and sheep and cattle men are kept constantly on the lookout to preserve their range. All fires so far started have been extinguished before much damage could be done, but it is only a matter of a short time until the entire country is swept unless the Indians are called back. These Indians are from the Cheyenne and Standing Rock agencies, and besides being of a mischievous bent, are exceedingly impudent. S. A. Lathrop of Belle Fourche, game warden for Butte county, received word that the Indians were killing antelope out of season, and immediately set out for the Moreau, accompanied by four deputies, intending to arrest the offenders. He has just returned to Belle Fourche without bringing any prisoners, the Indians showing fight and threatening to annihilate his party. He was reinforced by eight other men before encountering the Indians, but there were only five men in the party who were armed. The Indians surrounded his party and compelled the release of several Indians who had been placed under arrest. Mr. Lathrop is preparing to return to the region with a stronger force. He is promised assistance from the stock men, and unless the Indians have left the section there will be trouble.

SHOT BY AN EDITOR.

Doctor Is Fatally Wounded and His Assailant Cannot Be Found.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 13.—J. W. Kelly, editor of the Inter Mountain, last night shot Dr. A. H. Cayley, a prominent resident of Butte. Cayley, it is believed, will die. Officers are searching for Kelly. The shooting occurred between 11 and 12 o'clock Saturday night, but so quiet was the affair kept that the police did not hear of it until late last evening. Kelly, it is said, suspected intimacy between a woman of whom he was enamored and Dr. Cayley, and Saturday night he lay in hiding and surprised the two in the woman's room. Kelly, with a pass key, got into the room and immediately opened fire. The first shot went wild and Cayley grappled with Kelly, but was felled by a blow from the butt of Kelly's revolver. With the prostrate man on the floor Kelly again fired, the bullet taking effect in Cayley's shoulder. The missile was deflected by the shoulder blade, Ranging down, it passed through the left lung and, stopping near the spinal cord, completely paralyzing the victim. At a late hour last night the doctors expressed no hope for Cayley's recovery. Kelly, who is still at large, is believed to be hiding in the city. His capture is thought to be a matter of but a few hours. Dr. Cayley is one of the best known physicians in the city and is married. Kelly is single.

CAPITAL SACK OF IT.

Proposed Merger of Freight and Passenger Lines of Great Lakes.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 13. — It is definitely learned here that Capt. W. M. Binger, president of the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior Transportation company, is at work trying to bring about a merger of the freight and passenger lines of the great lakes. It is also definitely learned that Eastern capital stands ready to finance the deal when the plan has been worked out. The only thing that would appear at this time to defeat the deal would be the placing of too high valuation on vessel property by owners. Rates will not be increased under the merger. The idea is to maintain tariffs. The merger may not include all the freight and passenger lines, but will to as great an extent as possible.

MAD DOG BITES DOGS.

Owners of Bird and Hunting Dogs Suffer Losses Because of Rabies.

Grand Rapids, Wis., Oct. 13.—Two weeks ago a setter dog became mad and bit a great many dogs before he was captured. Since that time over twenty dogs, some of them valuable bird and hunting dogs, have been killed to avert the possibility of their becoming mad. Yesterday another case was developed, hydrophobia being well advanced, and before anything serious could happen the animal was shot. A case of hydrophobia has been reported at Altdorf, where the dog bit a woman and a number of cattle before he was shot.

FIRST TOUCH OF WINTER.

Snow Falls in Northern Minnesota and in South Dakota.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 13. — The first snowstorm of the season reached this city last night, rain changing to snow at 8 o'clock.

—o—

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 13.—Light rain fell yesterday, followed by snow, which fell steadily for an hour yesterday afternoon.

MINNESOTA MURDER.

Bartender at Knife River Is Shot by a Frenchman.

Two Harbors Minn., Oct. 13.—John Allen, employed as bartender at Anderson's saloon at Knife River, seven miles from here, was shot by Louis Vavanar, a Frenchman, and died at the Knauff hospital a few hours later. Vavanar is in custody.

Boy Accidentally Shot.

Lehigh, Wis., Oct. 13.—A ten-year-old boy named Joe Figolski, living one mile from here, was accidentally shot through the stomach while playing with a revolver he had taken from the house without his parents' consent.

Hit on Head by Timber.

Sleepy Eye, Minn., Oct. 13.—George Pass of Mankato, contractor, who is building the Congregational church, was seriously injured about the head by a falling timber. Concussion of the brain is feared.

BANDITS ARE BOLD

SUCCEED IN ROBBING TRAIN DESPITE WARNING TO COMPANY.

THEY SECURE $50,000 IN GOLD

OFFICIALS NOTIFIED, BUT CHANGING OF SPOT FOR HOLD-UP FOOLS THEM.

EXPRESS SAFE IS BLOWN OPEN

POSSES WITH BLOODHOUNDS ARE ON THE HUNT FOR THE ROBBERS.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 13.—Plunder valued at $50,000, most of it gold coin, was secured by three bandits, who held up the Pacific coast express on the Burlington road just outside this city early yesterday morning.

The robbery was a bold one and carried out with a perfection of detail that prevented serious opposition by the train crew or the necessity for injuring any one in either party. The whole affair was completed in an hour, and the robbers had a good start before an alarm could be given.

Officials of the railroad had been warned in advance of the intention to rob the train, which was to carry a large sum of gold. The plan was to commit the crime near St. Joseph, Mo., a section famous for such deeds, but apparently the gang learned that their scheme had been "tipped off," so they shifted the scene. When no attack was made at the spot expected, the railway men concluded the robbery had been abandoned.

Bloodhounds on the Trail.

The railroad has offered a reward of $1,000 for the capture of the robbers and posses with bloodhounds are searching the entire district.

Train No. 41 reaches Lincoln at 12:55 a. m., and leaves for the Northwest ten minutes later. It was a few minutes late yesterday morning and was in charge of Conductor C. A. Lyman and Engineer A. L. Clayburg. On the crest of the hill midway between the city and town of Woodlawn the engineer saw a red light waved across the track and brought the train to a stand-still.

Two men sprang quickly into the cab, covering Clayburg and his fireman with revolvers. They lost no time in giving their orders and were just as promptly obeyed. The express car was cut from the balance of the train and run ahead a short distance. The robbers found the door locked, and after commanding Messenger William Lupton to open it and getting no response fired two or three shots into the car. The door was then opened.

Dynamite Wrecks Safe.

A heavy charge of dynamite on the safe literally tore it to pieces. The contents were taken out and the robbers prepared to go. The two men who were in the car politely bade the trainmen good morning, jumped from the car and disappeared in the darkness. The passengers were not molested, nor were the trainmen asked for their belongings.

The man hunt was continued Sunday and the highwaymen seemingly have distanced their pursuers. A heavy rain has made the following of the trail even with bloodhounds out of the question.

RESULT OF DRUNKEN ROW.

Two Indians Killed and Another Is Dying.

Traverse City, Mich., Oct. 13.—Two Indians were killed and another is dying as a result of a drunken row at the camp of the C. L. & C. railway at Sutton Bay yesterday. Charles Amutid and three brothers named Joe, Bernard and Jim Ferdinand became involved and Joe Ferdinand was shot four times and killed. The other Ferdinand (Bernard) was wounded. Amutid turned on the surviving brother. The latter whipped out a knife and used it with terrible effect. Amutid was stabbed fifty times and fairly cut to pieces. Bernard is in a critical condition from his wounds.

FATAL ACCIDENTS IN DULUTH.

Man Crushed to Death by an Elevator and a Newsboy Is Drowned.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 13.—C. W. Swanson of Minneapolis, an expert for the Otis Elevator company, met a terrible death yesterday afternoon in Panton & White's department store. He got caught between a freight elevator and the platform on the second story, and his brains were dashed out. Mr. Swanson leaves a family in Minneapolis.

Claude, the nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown of West Duluth, a newsboy, was drowned yesterday while offering his papers to the boats at the lumber docks.

HER BODY IN THE RIVER.

Aged Woman Is Supposed to Have Committed Suicide.

Faribault, Minn., Oct. 13. — The body of Mrs. D. Suisse, who lives east of town, was found in the river north of here this morning. She had been absent from home two days, and is supposed to have committed suicide. She was sixty years old and leaves a family.

Dies Away From Home.

Faribault, Minn., Oct. 13. — Francis Donnelly, a prominent farmer residing near Yankton, S. D., died here of pneumonia while visiting relatives. He was seventy-seven years old. The body will be taken home for burial.

Shot in Self-Defense.

Hurley, Wis., Oct. 13.—A Finlander named Strange shot and killed Peter Caski at Pence. Strange was called from his bed and roughly used by Caski and a companion and he shot in self-defense.

PRINCE AT WHITE HOUSE.

Roosevelt Welcomes Son of the Ruler of Siam.

Washington, Oct. 13. — His royal highness, Chowfa Maha Vajiravudh, crown prince of Siam, accompanied by his suite, reached Washington on a special train at 8 o'clock Saturday morning. During their stay here they will be the guests of the nation. After breakfast in their private apartments at the Arlington hotel the crown prince and his party donned their court dress and, escorted by a squadron of the Second United States cavalry, were driven to the temporary White House to pay their respects to president Roosevelt. The greetings between the president and the prince were cordial on both sides. There were no formal speeches. The prince expressed his admiration for the country, the little of it he had seen, and spoke of the impressive appearance of the American cavalry. President Roosevelt responded pleasantly. He asked the prince about his proposed itinerary and expressed the hope he would visit the military and naval academies and also spend some time examining the industries of which the country was so proud. The audience lasted not more than five minutes.

SULTAN IS DEFIANT.

Rejects the Friendly Overtures of Gen. Sumner.

Manila, Oct. 13.—The sultan of Bacolod, Mindanao, has rejected the friendly overtures of Gen. Sumner, commander of the American forces in Mindanao, in a defiant letter in which he invites war. The sultan says:

"The sultan of Bacolod desires war forthwith. He wishes to maintain the religion of Mohammed. Cease sending letters. What we want is war. We do not desire your friendship."

Friendly Moros report that the sultan of Bacolod is fortifying his strongholds. He is in possession of many rifles. It is expected that an American column will be sent from Camp Vicars to capture and reduce the Bacolod stronghold. It has not been decided when the move is to be made.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY IN MANILA

Bogus Dollars Made in China and Circulated in the Philippines.

Manila, Oct. 13.—Counterfeit American silver dollars are being made in China and circulated here extensively. The suspicion is held that some of this money was shipped from San Francisco. The dollars are of silver and of standard weight. They have been detected through the improper stamping of the word "Liberty" on the goddess. The low price of silver insured to the makers of this counterfeit money a profit of 100 per cent. American silver circulates as gold in the Philippines.

TO QUIT THE 'PINO KIDS.

Superintendent of Instruction Resigns at Manila.

Manila, Oct. 13. — Commissioner Bernard Moses, head of the department of public instruction for the Philippine Islands, has written a letter to Gov. Taft resigning the commissionership in order that he may return to the University of California, where he occupies the chair of history and political economy.

DEATH ANGERS A MOB.

Girl Is Killed by Car and Police Rescue Employes.

Cleveland, Oct. 13. — Ida Fried, a four-year-old girl, was crushed to death by a street car on Orange street. The neighborhood is composed largely of Jewish residents. Two thousand people quickly assembled and made demonstrations against the conductor and motorman, who locked themselves in the car. Fifty policemen had difficulty in dispersing the crowd.

POISONED BY CAKES.

Mother Mistook Arsenic for Baking Powder.

Omaha, Oct. 13.—Arthur Moran and three children, aged 7, 9 and 11 years, were poisoned yesterday by eating cakes in which arsenic had been placed by the mother, who mistook it for baking powder. The two younger children are in a critical condition, and it is thought they will die. The oldest child and the father will probably recover.

BURGLARS' BIG HAUL.

Jewelry Worth $15,000 and $700 in Money Is Stolen.

Short Hills, N. J., Oct. 13.—Fifteen thousand dollars' worth of jewelry and $700 in money were stolen from the country residence of Arthur Coppell, a banker of New York. The thieves conducted their operations so quietly that none of the household was awakened.

THREE BOYS DROWNED.

Supposed to Have Met That Fate While Sailing.

Traverse City, Mich., Oct. 13.—Three boys of well known families are supposed to have been drowned in Traverse bay. The boys went for a sail Saturday. They did not return and yesterday their boat was found on the shore about half a mile from the city.

MAY AND "PUT" MARRIED.

Civil Ceremony Is Performed at Buenos Ayres.

Buenos Ayres, Oct. 13.—It has been disclosed that a civil marriage ceremony between Putnam Bradlee Strong of New York and May Yohe was performed Oct. 3 by the registrar of the first section here.

Causes Heavy Damage.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 13.—A severe wind storm and a deluge of rain struck this city late last night. South of the city the damage is heavy, many barns and outbuilding being blown down and orchards ruined.

Hangs Himself in Church Belfry.

Washington, Oct. 13. — Edward T. Krantz, aged 65 years, was found dead last night in the belfry of the Trinity Methodist church. He was hanging by a rope and the coroner says it is a case of suicide.

CASEY FOR PEACE

AMERICAN ADMIRAL WOULD LIKE TO SEE THE REVOLUTION ENDED.

COLOMBIANS ARE UNPATRIOTIC.

ADVISES THEM TO QUIT FIGHTING, AS IT RUINS THE COUNTRY.

WILL STAND NO NONSENSE.

GUNBOATS THAT ENTER BEYOND DEAD LINE WILL BE SUNK.

Panama, Colombia, Oct. 11.—A conference between the government representative and Rear Admiral Casey took place yesterday. The admiral subsequently said the object of the conference was to see if the government and the revolutionists could come to some agreement or arrange the basis for such agreement.

He could not say much on the subject, for he had only one side of the question. He considered, however, that the terms offered in President Marroquin's amnesty decree were liberal.

His only idea in conferring with the authorities here was to end the strife, which he considered unpatriotic, for it not only ruins the country but delays the steps being taken looking to the completion of the canal. He did not see from the arguments he had heard that there was much difference in the principles of the Colombian parties, except in matters relative to the church.

Upheld by Either

Admiral Casey is studying the terms which the government offered and in a day or two will send a communication to Gen. Herrera, the revolutionary commander, expressing his views on the situation, and will propose that the general hold a conference with Gen. Salazar, the government commander.

Admiral Casey received last Saturday Gen. Herrera's answer to Commander McLean's communication notifying him that the United States had assumed control of the railroad line, but he would not divulge the contents of the letter, a copy of which he sent to Washington. According to report Gen. Herrera's note is couched in very strong and offensive language.

Regarding his refusal to allow the Colombian government to transport troops on the railroad, the admiral said the United States had taken this action in order to maintain free transit.

Must Not Bombard Panama.

It is not known how long the United States forces will prevent the government from using the trains to transport troops, but it is admitted that Admiral Casey will not allow Gen. Herrera to bombard Panama, and it is asserted that if the revolutionary gunboat Padilla comes within a limit assigned by the American admiral the latter will sink her. On the other hand, he will not permit the government gunboats to provoke the Padilla into venturing within the limit referred to.

COLOMBIA KICKS.

Orders of Admiral Casey Probably Have Been Misunderstood.

Washington, Oct. 11. — The Colombian government, on complaint of Gen. Salazar, in command of the forces on the isthmus, has remonstrated with the United States minister at Bogota respecting Admiral Casey's reported refusal to allow troops and munitions of war to cross the isthmus. The Colombian government said it did not see how it could suppress the rebellion if it were not allowed to move troops freely in its own territory.

The officials here are confident that Admiral Casey's order has been misunderstood. They feel sure that if he stopped the transfer of Colombian troops or war munitions it was only for some temporary reason. The Colombian government has been assured in a courteous manner that the United States government has no intention of trenching on Colombian sovereignty, which is guaranteed by special treaty provision.

HONORS DEAD HEROES.

Secretary Root Names New Batteries on the Sea Coast.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Secretary Root has conferred the names of a number of soldiers who have distinguished themselves on the new sea coast batteries. At the Presidio he has named batteries in honor of Second Lieutenant Henry M. Boutelle, Second Lieutenant Blaney and Second Lieutenant Baldwin, all killed in action. At Fort Monroe he has named Battery Anderson after the defender of Fort Sumter and other batteries after Prof. Church of West Point, D. E. Russey after the builder of Fort Monroe, Eustis after the first commandant of the artillery school, and Gatewood after a celebrated Indian fighter. At Fort Mott, N. J., Brig. Gen. Lewis G. Arnold, a veteran of the Florida war, and the war of the rebellion, and Brig. Gen. Harper, killed at Kenesaw mountains, have had their names given to batteries.

SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Coal Supply at Schenectady, N. Y., Gives Out.

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 10.—The 4,000 pupils in the eleven public schools of this city were sent home to-day because of the coal supply giving out. The authorities of the city will have to close the schools indefinitely.

Early Pioneer Dead.

Belle Plaine, Minn., Oct. 11.—Mrs. E. E. Chatfield, aged 85 years, is dead here. She was the widow of Judge Chatfield. They came to Minnesota in 1853 and to Belle Plaine in 1854, being among the first settlers here.

Women Organize Band.

Avoca, Minn., Oct. 11.—The ladies of this city organized a ladies' band here last night, consisting of twelve pieces. They have secured instruments and the services of Prof. Ed Bach as instructor.

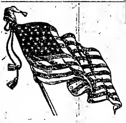
WEDNESDAY, OCT. 15, 1902.



The hard coal magnates complain that the unions which are backing up President Mitchell are controlled by ignorant foreigners and irresponsible boys, and assert that if the intelligent workmen were allowed to decide matters the strike would end very soon. Be this as it may, some one is going to be impertinent enough to ask who introduced ignorant foreigners and irresponsible boys into the coal regions in the first place.—Ralph W. Wheelock in Minneapolis Tribune.

Public sentiment in favor of the re-election of Governor VanSant is daily growing stronger. It is right that such a feeling should prevail because Gov. VanSant has proved himself a man to be relied upon in time of danger to the public welfare. His prompt and decided action in the great railroad merger case won him a national reputation and showed conclusively that he was able and willing to guard the people of Minnesota against an evil which threatened to demoralize the public interests.

The opposition has every reason to be alarmed at the sentiment of the people and should easily realize the hopelessness of their efforts to defeat the governor. If ever a public official deserved re-election it is Samuel R. VanSant.

It has been many years since the people of this portion of Minnesota have had an opportunity to vote for a man who has the ability to become a leader in legislative matters national or international and thoroughly take care of the interests of his constituency. This year this opportunity presents itself in the candidacy of Hon. Halvor Steenerson for congress.

Mr. Steenerson is a man who not only has the ability to properly represent the Ninth district in congress, but also enjoys the respect of all who know him as being strictly honorable in all his dealings. He is one whom the people can trust to look after their interests and the candidate who should be elected by one of the biggest majorities ever given a congressman in this state.

A Drawback.

"Well, James, how are you feeling today?" said the minister to one of his parishioners, an old man suffering from chronic rheumatism. "You are not looking as brisk as usual."

"Na, sir," replied the old fellow sadly. "I've been gey unfortuit the day."

"How, James?"

"Weel, sir, I got a letter fra a Glasca lawyer body this mornin' tellin' me that ma cousin Jock was deid an' that he had left me twa hunner poun'."

"Two hundred pounds!" repeated the minister. "And you call that hard luck? Why, it is quite a fortune for you, James."

"Aye," said the old man sorrowfully, "but the stipid lawyer body didna pit eneuch stamps on his letter, an' I had a hale saxpence to pey for extra postage."—London Tit-Bits.

Starting the Conversation.

"I don't know what the trouble is," said the hostess in a tone of great annoyance. "My guests seem very distant and unsocial. I wish I could think of some way to start them talking to one another."

"That's very easily done," answered Miss Cayenne. "Is there a musician present?"

"Yes."

"Get him to play or sing something."—Washington Star.

The Lapse of Time.

When two married men who haven't seen each other for some time meet, one of them always says before they separate, "Let's see—how old is your oldest now?" And then, after he gets the answer, he adds, "It is astonishing, isn't it, how time does fly?"—Somerville (Mass.) Journal.

A Soft Answer.

"Keep, yer temper, laddie. Never quarrel wi' an angry person, especially a woman. Mind ye, a soft answer's aye best. It's commanded, and, forbye, it makes them far madder than onything else ye could say."—London Tit-Bits.

Counterbalanced.

Mrs. Brown—But consider, my dear, the long wait you give him for his.—Illustrated Bits.

Warning Against Forest and Prairie Fires.

Office of State Forest Commissioner.
St. Paul, Minn., March 4, 1902.

Chapter 196 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for 1895 (Act of April 18th) constitutes Supervisors of towns, Mayors of cities and presidents of village councils Fire Wardens, and it is made their duty to take precaution to prevent forest and prairie fires, and if they occur, to go and extinguish or control them; and in emergencies to call upon any able-bodied male person, over eighteen years of age, to assist. Reports of such fires with particulars tending to fix responsibility therefor shall be made within reasonable time—usually within a week. The Forest Commissioner is required to provide and sign an abstract (as herein) of the penalties under said law, and it is made the duty of the County Commissioners of each county to cause said abstract to be published in at least three issues of the official paper in their respective counties each year between the 15th of April and 1st of November, and they are hereby instructed to publish this notice entire. Under said law.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the state prison not over ten years or both:

Any person who maliciously sets or causes to be set on fire any woods, prairie or other combustible material whereby the property of another is destroyed and life is sacrificed.

The following are liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three months.

Any person refusing, without cause, to assist fire wardens in extinguishing forest or prairie fires.

Any fire warden who neglects to perform his duties.

Any person who wilfully, negligently or carelessly sets on fire, or causes to be set on fire, any woods, prairies or other combustible material, thereby causing injury to another.

Any person who shall kindle a fire on or dangerously near to forest or prairie land and leave it unquenched, or who shall be a party thereto.

Any person who shall use other than incombustible fire wads for firearms or carry a naked torch, firebrand or other exposed light in or dangerously near to forest land.

Any person who shall wilfully or heedlessly deface, destroy or remove this or any other warning placard posted under the requirements of the above mentioned Act.

Any railroad company wilfully neglecting to provide efficient spark arresters on its engines; or to keep its right of way to the width of 100 feet cleared of combustible material; or which shall fail to comply with other provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

The following are liable to a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50:

Any railroad employe who wilfully violates the provisions of Section 12 of the above mentioned Act.

Any owner of threshing or other portable steam engine who neglects to have efficient spark arresters, or who shall deposit live coals or hot ashes without extinguishing the same.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given that on the 23rd day of October, 1902 at one o'clock p. m., at the auditor's office in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Rocksbury and Sanders Ditch No. 1. of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, state of Minnesota, by their order bearing date Sept. 12, 1902, viz: In sections of 100 feet each, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified in said engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimated cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond to be approved by the auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Sand Swept Asia.

In the arid lands of central Asia the air is reported as often laden with fine detritus, which drifts like snow around conspicuous objects and tends to bury them in a dust drift. Even when there is no apparent wind the air is described as thick with fine dust, and a yellow sediment covers everything. In Khotan this dust sometimes so obscures the sun that at midday one cannot see to read fine print without a lamp.

A Cheerful Proposal.

A Scottish beadle one day led the manse housemaid to the churchyard and, pointing with his finger, stammered:

"My folk lie there, Jenny. Wud ye like to lie there too?"

It was his way of popping the question.

A Composer.

Hoax—I thought you said that man was a musician?

Joax—Nonsense!

"You certainly told me he wrote melodies."

"I told you he was a composer of airs. He sells soothing syrup."

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given, That, on the 23rd day of October 1902, at two o'clock p. m., at the county auditors office in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn. I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing Rocksbury ditch No. 1, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, State of Minnesota, by their order bearing date May 5th, 1902, viz: In sections of 100 feet each; each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes, as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified in said engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimated cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond, to be approved by the auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated Oct. 7th, 1902.

Mechanical Stoking.

This invention is not in any sense a new one, as is to be learned from the fact that James Watt took out a patent in 1785 for such a device. The mechanical stoker is of English origin, though it has been very thoroughly developed in the United States to suit the local fuel and boiler furnace conditions. It may be defined as a system of grate bars, dumping bars, coal feeders, and automatic devices to feed fuel and control its combustion. As fuel for the human furnace, golden grain belt beer is excellent. It contains the strength of bread and meat in a liquid form, easily digested. Order of the nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

P. O. HAGGLUND

Peoples Party Candidate for County Surveyor.

THE ABOVE is a good picture of P. O. Hagglund, the present county surveyor, who is a candidate on the peoples party ticket for re-election.

Mr. Hagglund's candidacy is backed up by a record of faithful and efficient service as surveyor ever since the organization of Red Lake county. He is practically the originator of the drainage movement in this county and to his efforts is due to a great extent the improvements now going on in the way of ditches.

There is no question but that Mr Hagglund is in every way thoroughly qualified to perform the duties of his office and if the voters are attentive to their own best interests they will see to it that he is re-elected on Nov. 4th.

ONE STRIKE ENDS

STREET CAR MEN AT NEW ORLEANS WILL RETURN TO WORK.

ACCEPT GOVERNOR'S ULTIMATUM

NO DISCRIMINATION TO BE MADE AGAINST MEN UNDER CHARGES.

MUCH REJOICING IN THE CITY

HAS LASTED TWO WEEKS — NOT A PASSENGER CARRIED IN THAT TIME.

New Orleans, Oct. 13.—The strike of the street railway company's employes which has effectually blocked traffic of all the city lines for two weeks, was settled last night by the men almost unanimously accepting the governor's ultimatum on a special ballot. Negotiations which begun Saturday night continued all yesterday morning, when the executive board finally decided to submit the matter to a general meeting of the union in the afternoon. The basis of settlement is that the men will go back to work to-day at 20 cents and ten hours, with a minimum of seven and one-half hours a day, nor is any discrimination to be made against any of the men under charges, and as many to be taken back as are needed for the operation of the company's lines. The hitch yesterday morning was on the taking back of the men under charges, but the company finally conceded this, consenting to allow the courts to decide this. A company of cavalry came down from Mansfield and was mustered into the state service yesterday afternoon soon after its arrival. There is much rejoicing in the city over the settlement of the strike. It began two weeks ago. Not a single passenger has been carried on the cars since it began and no passenger cars had moved more than five blocks from barns. Yesterday morning the people woke to find in different parts of the city stuffed figures hanging to telegraph poles with all sorts of inscriptions attached to them. Some represented the governor, some the mayor and many represented officials of the street railway company.

CRAZY WITH DRINK.

Man Kills an Aged Negress and Cuts Throat of Aged Colored Man.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 13. — Lloyd Nelson Young, a white planter, became crazed with drink near Pembroke Saturday night after being put off the train that he had flagged. He secured an axe and brained Rebecca Moeet, an aged negress whom he met in the road. Leaving the axe with the body he sprang on Joseph Landy, colored, aged seventy, and cut his throat, fatally wounding him. After terrorizing the citizens for two hours he was overpowered by a posse and brought to jail here to escape a mob of several hundred negroes who had formed to lynch him.

OVERPOWER THE GUARD.

Three Men, One Held for Murder, Escape From County Jail.

Carbondale, Ill., Oct. 13. — Three persons, one of whom was held for murder, escaped from the Jackson county jail Saturday night. There were ten persons in the jail and when Deputy Sheriff Wright ordered them to their cells three entered one cell unnoticed by the officer. When he went into the corridor with their meals the men rushed to the door and overpowered the guard and hastily left the building. After a lively chase two of them were recaptured. The third is still at large.

SWEPT BY TORNADO.

Much Property at Quincy and Vicinity Destroyed.

Quincy, Ill., Oct. 13. — A tornado struck this city early last evening, sweeping in a northeasterly direction and destroying much property in the city and in the country. A large number of houses and barns were destroyed and great damage was done to orchards and standing corn. Wires are down and communication is shut off. It is impossible to get exact information of the extent of the damage at this time. One man was killed and another was fatally injured.

BRAINS SHOT OUT.

Texan and Wife Are Found Dead at Their Home.

Nacogdoches, Tex., Oct. 13.—A telephone message to the sheriff from Aloyaca, a village eighteen miles east, stated that Duncan Hicks, a prosperous farmer, and his wife, were both found dead at their home, two miles east of that place, with their brains shot out. The only solution of the murder was robbery. A negro suspected of having committed the crime is under arrest.

Two Men Crushed to Death.

Bingham, Utah, Oct. 13. — John Hundquist and Mike West, miners, were crushed to death and Erick Nyquist was painfully injured yesterday in a cave-in of the Highland Boy mine near this city.

Engineer and Brakeman Killed.

Altoona, Pa., Oct. 13. — An express train ran into a wrecked freight train near Barre, three miles west of Petersburg. The passenger engineer and a freight brakeman were killed and the passenger fireman fatally injured.

Hall Storm Does Damage.

St. Louis, Oct. 13.—About 10 o'clock last night a hail storm lasting five minutes caused $5,000 damage in the city. Hail stones measuring two inches in diameter fell and the streets resembled a fall of snow.

INSTEAD OF COAL.

Cocoanut Shells Are Now Being Utilized as Fuel.

New York, Oct. 11.—East side confectionery manufacturers are supplying cocoanut shells to tenement dwellers for fuel. The shells are sold in bags of from fifty to sixty pounds for 10 or 15 cents a bag. The material furnishes more heat than coal, and while it does not burn as long as coal, its lasting qualities are much better than wood.

She Was Persuaded to Try St. Jacobs Oil, and All Pain Disappeared Immediately.

It is undoubtedly a fact beyond dispute that the strongest advertising medium the proprietors have is that of people who recommend others to use St. Jacobs Oil. People who have themselves experienced a happy result, which invariably follows the use of this great remedy, show their gratitude by recommending it to those whom they know are similarly affected. This is the case of Margaret Lee, of 71 Brightfield road, Lee Green, Wis. "Having suffered from muscular rheumatism for years, and not receiving any benefit from various remedies, I used St. Jacobs Oil; pain and soreness removed at once; no return of rheumatism." St. Jacobs Oil is sold in 25-cent and 50-cent sizes by all druggists.

MARRIAGE LOTTERY IN RUSSIA.

There Are Tickets Costing Two Shillings Which Are Sold to Men.

In the Russian province of Smolensk there is a most extraordinary lottery every three months.

The tickets cost about two shillings, and there is only one prize. This consists of the entire sum made by the sale, amounting to about $2,500, together with a lady described as of noble birth.

The tickets are only sold to men, and the winner of the prize has to take the lady or forego the money. If married already, he may, however, put any friend to whom he wishes to do a good turn, in the position of prize-winner.

It is not difficult to imagine that even in Russia, where old maids are generally looked down upon, the chosen bride may often decide that the sum of $1,125 is a more desirable possession than a lord and master of whom she knows nothing.—New York Mail and Express.

As He Found It.

Church—Did you ever know a foreigner to come over here and take this country as he found it?

Cotham—Certainly I have—Columbus.—Yonkers Statesman.

Helen Moon's Case.

New Providence, Ia., Oct. 13th—The wonderful case of little three-year-old Helen Moon continues to be the talk of the neighborhood and everyone is rejoicing with Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Moon, the happy father and mother.

It will be remembered that this sweet little girl was given up by the doctors with Dropsy. She was so far gone that her eyes were closed up and her body bloated till it was purple.

After everything else had failed Dodd's Kidney Pills were used and to the joy and surprise of everyone she commenced to improve.

This improvement resulted in complete good health and she continues to keep strong and well and without the slightest symptom of the Dropsy left.

The doctors are as much bewildered as anyone at the wonderful cure of this desperate case.

Duck Raising.

Ducks possess many advantages over other domestic fowl. They are very hardy, entirely free from vermin and liable to few diseases. They take to confinement much better than do chickens, and any cheap, low fence is sufficient to keep them in any desired place. They are great egg-producers, and their feathers are of considerable value. They grow more rapidly than chickens, and weigh more on reaching maturity, and, public opinion to the contrary notwithstanding, they do not require more food. The old saying that a duck will "eat his head off" is a myth.—Country Life in America.

"So!" hoarsely muttered the villain.

With the air of a queen, the heroine turned upon him.

"Why do you say 'so' so often?" she asked. "Do you think you can cow me?"

They then compared notes, and, finding that the same theatrical manager had engaged each of them, they called on him and asked for an explanation.

"I don't see why any of you should be dissatisfied," he replied. "I've engaged each of you because I don't want to be without a tenor in Rio Janeiro. It is very probable that before you are acclimated there yellow fever will carry off two of you, and wouldn't I be in a nice fix if I hadn't a third tenor on hand?"—New York Times.

Hundreds of Dollars Spent in Vain---Peruna Cured.

Miss Kate Brown.

Miss Kate Brown, Recording Secretary of the L. C. B. Association of Kansas, in a letter from 605 N. Seventh st., Kansas City, Kansas, says:
"For seven years I have not known what it was to spend a well day. I caught a severe cold which I neglected. It was at the time of menstruation and inflammation set in and prostrated me. Catarrh of the kidneys and bladder followed, my digestive organs gave way, in fact the cold disarranged my whole system.
"I spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicine, but derived but little benefit until I began treatment with Peruna. I kept taking it for nearly nine months before I was completely cured, but I kept growing better gradually so that I felt encouraged to continue taking Peruna until my health was restored. I send my thanks and blessings to you for Peruna."—Miss Kate Brown.
A neglected cold is frequently the cause of death.
It is more often, however, the cause of some chronic disease.
There is not an organ in the body but what is liable to become seriously deranged by a neglected cold. Diseases of the kidneys, bladder and digestive organs are all frequently the result of a neglected cold.
Hundreds of dollars are spent on doctors and medicines trying to cure these diseases, but until the true cause of them is discovered, there will be no use in using medicine.
Dyspepsia medicine, diarrhœa medicine and constipation medicine is of no good whatever when catarrh is the cause. The catarrh must be treated. The cause being removed, the derangements will disappear.
Peruna cures catarrh of the digestive organs, the urinary organs or any of the internal organs.
If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

COAL STRIKE AT LAST ENDED

COMMON GROUND OF AGREEMENT REACHED BY PRESIDENT'S EFFORTS.

ARBITRATION BOARD IS NAMED

WILL CONSIDER AND PASS UPON ALL QUESTIONS AT ISSUE.

MINING TO BEGIN NEXT WEEK

MITCHELL WILL TAKE IMMEDIATE MEASURES TO CALL THE STRIKE OFF.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The great anthracite coal strike is settled at last. A commission of six persons, with a seventh, Mr. Carroll D. Wright as recorder, will adjust differences between the operators and miners. President Mitchell of the miners' union will take the necessary measures to call the strike off. The president will urge immediate resumption of mining and operators are expected to begin next next week.

Announcement that the great strike was off was made by Secretary Root with exuberant good humor at the White House shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. Organized labor has a representative on the commission in the person of E. E. Clark, grand chief of the Order of Railway conductors, named as a sociologist. The president added Bishop Spalding of Illinois to the list of the commission. He is perfectly satisfactory to both miners and operators.

Assent of the Miners was given through President Mitchell and Sargent, commissioner of immigration, and of the operators through Messrs Robert Bacon and George W. Perkins of the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. The final outcome followed a series of conferences, beginning with two during the day with Mr. Mitchell and two during the night with Messrs Bacon and Perkins. Events moved quickly at the last, the president being determined on a speedy settlement. The commission will assemble in a few days and choose a chairman, probably Gen. Wilson. It then will arrange for sessions and testimony.

The following official statement announcing the close of the strike was issued at the White House at 2:20 a. m.:

After a conference with Mr. Mitchell and some further conference with representatives of the coal operators, the president has appointed the members of the commission to inquire into, consider, and at issue between the operators and miners in the anthracite coal fields:

Pass Upon All Questions

Brig. Gen. John M. Wilson, United States army, retired, late chief of engineers, U. S. A.; Mr. E. W. Parker, Washington, D. C., as an expert mining engineer; Hon. George Gray, Wilmington, Del., as a judge of the United States court; Mr. E. E. Clark, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, grand chief of the Order of Railway conductors, as a sociologist; Mr. Thomas H. Watkins, Scranton, Pa., as a man practically acquainted with the mining and selling of coal; Bishop John L. Spalding of Peoria, Ill. The president has added Bishop Spalding's name to the commission.

Hon. Carroll D. Wright has been appointed as recorder of the commission.

Convention Must Be Called.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 17.—President Mitchell was informed of the news from Washington, and when asked for a statement made the positive statement that a delegate convention must first pass upon the question of calling off the strike. From the calling of the convention to its adjournment is only a matter of three or four days. There is hardly any doubt that a convention will stand by any agreement he has made with President Roosevelt.

Later—When Mr. Mitchell learned the personnel of the commission and was asked for a further statement he replied that he would have nothing further to say until morning.

President Dines Out.

Washington, Oct. 17. — President Roosevelt went out socially last night, for the first time since the operation was performed on his leg at Indianapolis. It also was the first time he had walked in public. His leg apparently has recovered a large measure of its strength and he no longer has to use a crutch. No limp is observable. The president, after his conference with President Mitchell, went out for a drive through the suburbs. It lasted about two hours. On his return he donned his dress suit and about 8 o'clock walked over to Secretary Hay's, where he had accepted an invitation to dine informally with a few friends. The two houses are about a block and a half apart. The president remained at the secretary's until nearly 10 o'clock, returning afoot. Apparently there was no difficulty in his movements, though his pace was not rapid as is customary with him. On reaching his temporary home he went upstairs and at once plunged into the strike problem that at present is absorbing almost all his time and energy.

PROBABLY PERISHED.

No Tidings of the Ten Shipwrecked Sailors.

Ashtabula, Ohio, Oct. 17.—Nothing has yet been heard of the lifeboat with ten men that put off from the steamer C. B. Lockwood Monday evening just before the latter foundered fifteen miles off this port. It was hoped that the shipwrecked men had been picked up by some vessel, but as no tidings have been received it is feared that they have been lost.

SUITS THE MINERS

CONVENTION SURE TO ACCEPT THE ARBITRATION PROPOSITION.

WILL MEET MONDAY MORNING

EXECUTIVE BOARDS UNANIMOUSLY FAVOR ITS ACCEPTANCE.

WILL BE AT WORK THURSDAY

COAL COMPANIES PREPARING FOR EXTRA EFFORTS TO MOVE COAL.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 18.—The executive boards of the three anthracite districts of the United Mineworkers of America, in joint session yesterday, unanimously decided to recommend to a delegate convention of striking miners the acceptance of the arbitration proposition submitted by the president of the United States, and it is reasonably certain that the advice will be followed and the great struggle brought to a close. The convention will be convened in this city Monday morning, and it is the hope and belief of the officers of the union that the mining of coal will be resumed before the close of next week after a suspension of more than five months. The citizens of the entire region are much elated that the strife is almost over, because business in the coal fields has been practically paralyzed since the strike began.

From the time the news was received late Wednesday night until about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, there was some doubt as to how the miners would receive the modified plan. President Mitchell cleared up the situation by issuing the following bulletin:

Accepted by Mitchell.

"Appreciating the anxiety and impatience of the public and the mineworkers for some authoritative statement from this office, I issue this bulletin to say that I was unalterably opposed to the acceptance of or acquiescence in the form of settlement proposed by the coal operators, because it restricted the president of the United ~~States in making~~ selection of the men who were to determine the questions involved in the coal strike.

"These restrictions having been removed and representation given to organized labor as well as to organized capital, I am now prepared to give my personal approval to a settlement of the issues involved in this strike by the commission selected by the president, and shall recommend to the executive officers of Districts 1, 7 and 9, in their meeting to-day, that an immediate call be issued for a convention, whose authorization is necessary to declare the strike at an end.

"In the meantime, I trust that the people of our country will be as patient as possible, as we are moving rapidly in the interests of our people will permit."

Will Be at Work Next Week.

When this was read to the arriving district leaders and groups of miners who came to headquarters to learn the news, general satisfaction was expressed that Mr. Mitchell was willing to accept the modified plan, and from that time on there was no doubt that the strike would be brought to a speedy close.

If the plans of the strike leaders are not disarranged a general resumption of mining will take place about next Thursday. There will not be enough work at first for all the strikers, as it is the intention of the companies not to dismiss non-union men who have stood by them during the strife. The organization will take care of such other men as are unable to find work. It is estimated that all will not find work until two or three months have elapsed. This is due to the conditions of the mines. Some of them are wholly or partially flooded and others need repairing.

Coal companies, anticipating the ending of the strike next week, are busily engaged in preparing for resumption. Tens of thousands of coal cars are in the region ready for loading, and extra efforts will be made in moving them to the large distributing centers once mining is resumed. It is estimated that more than 200 of the 350 collieries will be in operation by the end of next week, and will produce enough coal to relieve the situation.

An authority in coal mining said yesterday that the coal companies, as a result of the strike, are 30,000,000 tons behind.

President is Pleased.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Notwithstanding the severe strain incident to the mental and physical labors of Wednesday, President Roosevelt was at his desk early yesterday. Surgeon General O'Reilly and Dr. Lung, who called at the temporary White House shortly after 9 o'clock, announced on leaving, that the president was progressing finely and was in excellent spirits. Already the president is in receipt of scores of telegrams of congratulation upon his efforts to effect a settlement of the anthracite coal strike. The greatest satisfaction is expressed here in official circles over the success of the negotiations for the settlement of the coal strike. The president himself feels deeply grateful for the outcome. He regards it as honorable to both sides, as securing justice to both sides and, above all, as averting a terrible calamity to the people.

Hewitt—It's sad about Gruet losing his legs in that railroad accident.

BY BIG MAJORITY

MINERS ARE CERTAIN TO APPROVE OF THE ARBITRATION SCHEME.

SOME OPPOSITION DEVELOPS

BUT ELECTION OF DELEGATES INDICATES THAT MAJORITY FAVOR IT.

MITCHELL SCORES OPERATORS

IN HIS LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT HE TAKES A SLAP AT THEM.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 18. — A majority of the local miners' unions yesterday elected delegates to the convention which will be held here next Monday to consider the arbitration plan submitted by President Roosevelt. Results show that the plan will be approved by a large majority.

There is some opposition to acceptance, but it is certain that a majority of the delegates will come to the convention instructed to vote in favor of accepting the arbitration scheme. The prominent officials of the union say there is no fear that the opposition will be strong enough to defeat the efforts of those who favor ending the strike by arbitrating their differences with the operators.

President Mitchell does not care to anticipate the action of the convention, but from his manner it is taken that he has not the slightest doubt as to the result. He will go into the convention and make a strong speech for the acceptance of the arbitration scheme. The indications are the convention will last two days and that there will be much of the arbitration plan. The conditions at some collieries are different from those existing at other places. The principal question to be discussed before the plan is accepted by the miners will be that of taking care of all the men. The conditions of the mines are such that all workmen cannot be given work immediately, and some will have to wait for three weeks before the companies can take care of them. The operators will not dismiss the non-union men in order to give employment to a returning striker. It is understood that the union will take ~~care of all such men who fail to find~~ immediate employment. This will be done by drawing funds from the relief fund, which is said to be still growing.

It is estimated that 25 per cent of the collieries will be in operation on the first day after the suspension is over. The railroads are making every effort to have enough cars on hand to carry the freshly mined coal to market and are sending thousands of cars into the regions and placing them on sidings at the collieries.

MITCHELL'S LETTER.

He Scores Operators and Praises Selection of Commission.

Washington, Oct. 18. — President Mitchell's letter accepting President Roosevelt's appointment of arbitrators for a settlement of the coal strike was made public at the White House yesterday morning.

It is an exhaustive review of the situation from the miners' standpoint. He states that he was opposed to the operators' position because of the restrictions placed upon the president, but now that the restrictions had been removed he was willing to accept the arbitrament of the commission.

Mr. Mitchell comments bitterly on the conduct of the operators at the first conference at the White House, characterizing their attitude as insulting and unmanly. In closing, he says:

"By the eminent tribunal which you have named we have confidence that justice will be done our people. We are glad to have a chance to appear before such a court empowered to consider and dispose of all questions at issue. First among those is the demand of the mineworkers for increased wages and a reduction in the hours of labor; second, is the relations which ought to exist between the employers and an organization which the men have formed and which they authorize to speak for them. From this arbitration we hope and believe will come a complete, satisfactory and permanent solution of the troubles which have vexed the anthracite field from time immemorial."

INSURRECTION SPREADING.

Turkish Families Massacred and Reserves Are Called Out.

London, Oct. 18.—Advices received here from Salonica, European Turkey, dated Monday, Oct. 13, report the insurrection in Northern Macedonia to be spreading. The telegraph wires have been cut in several places between Metoig and Djumahala. Many Turkish families are reported to have been massacred. All the Turkish second reserves at Salonika have already been sent into the interior, and large numbers of reinforcements have been ordered from Constantinople to Salonica. A telegram from Volo, Greece, dated Oct. 17, announces that the last class of the Salonica reserves has been called out.

JIM, ONE OF THE FAMOUS BANDIT BROTHERS, TAKES HIS OWN LIFE.

FREEDOM BRINGS NEW TROUBLES

INFATUATION FOR A YOUNG WOMAN AND QUARREL WITH HIS BROTHER.

IS FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED

QUARRELED WITH FRIENDS WHO HELPED HIM TO GAIN HIS LIBERTY.

St. Paul, Oct. 20.—James Younger, the paroled prisoner, was found dead in his room in the Reardon block, Seventh and Minnesota streets, at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The body was dressed in a suit of underwear. A 38-caliber revolver was clutched in the right hand and the left hand was covered with coagulated blood. He had evidently been dead several hours.

Jim Younger had been patient and docile in the state penitentiary for twenty-five years, living in the hope of future happiness outside the prison walls. This was granted to him and his brother Cole Younger in July, 1901. Jim's freedom seems to have brought new troubles to him. A quarrel with his brother Cole, an infatuation for a young woman beyond his station, which resulted in a conflict between him and the friends that had been most instrumental from the penitentiary, are assigned as the motives which prompted him to end his life. Besides this it is said that he disliked the notoriety that attached to him. He felt that he was shunned and the object of observation everywhere. He became morose and often said that he had "no friends." He suffered constantly from a bullet wound in his face and had frequently consulted physicians concerning it since his parole.

The primary cause of the death of James Younger is thought to have been his infatuation for a young girl who is now in Boise, Idaho. She became interested in his case and worked to secure his pardon. When Jim Younger was released he was admitted to her home. He fell in love with her and a quarrel with her relatives followed and he was told to find a home elsewhere.

Wrote a Book.

He and She, it is said, wrote a book concerning the state penitentiary. It is asserted that he hoped to get married as soon as a full pardon was granted to him, and intended then to publish the book covering the history of the penitentiary during the quarter century. The pardon was hoped for at the last meeting of the state board, but the subject was not taken up by that body.

The cause of the trouble between Jim and Cole Younger was money. Cole being the older of the brothers, has been the recipient of all money sent from friends in the South and elsewhere. Cole, it is said, had been very generous to his brother, although the latter had always had a position and was able to support himself. Jim conceived the idea six months ago that his brother was not as liberal as he might be. They quarreled and had not spoken since. Another theory advanced is that James Younger had been from a bullet wound in the right side of his head. It is said that he often became melancholy on account of the persistent pain, and many of his acquaintances take the charitable view that he shot himself to end the pain.

On a large Manila envelope, which contained a number of letters, was written in James Younger's own large, legible handwriting the following note:

"To all that is good and true I love and bid farewell. —Jim Younger. (Over.) 'Oh! Lassie! Good Bye. All relatives just stay away from me. No crocodile tears wanted. Reporters, be my friends. Burn me up."

The envelope contained the following letter:

"Oct. 18.

"A. U. G.

"Last night on earth.

"So good-by, Lassie, for I still think of the A. U. G.' Forgive me, for this is my only chance. I have done nothing wrong.

"But politics is all that 'Vansant, Wolfer' and others of their 'stripe' care for.

Let the People Judge.

'Treat me right and fair, reporters,' for I am a square man. A socialist and decidedly in favor of woman's rights.

'Bryan is the brightest man these United States has ever produced.

"His one mistake is in not coming out for all the people and absolute socialism. 'Come out, Bryan. There is no such thing as a personal God. God is universal, and I know him well and am not afraid.

"I have pity for the pardoning board. They do not stop to consider their wives, or to think of the man that knows how to love, and appreciate a friend in truth. Good bye, sweet lassie. —Jim Younger."

Cole Younger, the brother of the deceased, is sick in bed at 136 West Fourth street. He was very much affected by the news of his brother's death. He said he had nothing to say and that he could not account for his brother's act.

Warden is Surprised.

Stillwater, Oct. 20.—Warden Wolfer of the state prison could hardly realize the truth of the statement that Jim Younger had committed suicide. Mr. Wolfer said that he knew Jim was despondent because of inability to hold positions owing to poor health, but he never mistrusted that he contemplated killing himself.

BRITISH LOSE HEAVILY.

Disastrous Campaign Against the Mad Mullah.

London, Oct. 20.—The foreign office has issued an undated dispatch from Col. Cobbe, commanding one of the columns of British forces operating against the Mad Mullah in Somaliland. The dispatch was forwarded through the British vice consul at Berbera, Somaliland. The British forces engaged were composed entirely of native troops and levies. Col. Cobbe says:

"My force reached Erego this morning. When about one day's march north of Mudug it was attacked in the thick bush. Two advances were made and the enemy was beaten back in the morning. Their losses were heavy and we captured one hundred rifles. Our force then proceeded to collect animals for transportation purposes and to join the detachment at the stockade camp. In the afternoon a reconnoissance was made and, after sharp fighting, the enemy were again driven off.

"I deeply regret the following casualties: Col. Phillips and Capt. Angus and fifty men killed and about one hundred men wounded. The latter include Capt. Howard and Lieut. Everett, but both are doing well. There were severe losses among the transport and riding camels. The force will reach the stockade camp tomorrow and will advance to attack the enemy."

The vice consul also telegraphs the substance of a later dispatch from Col. Swayne, who says that as a result of the fighting at Erego Oct. 6, which was very severe, the Somali levies were considerably shaken. The mullah, who is said to be in communication with Kail and Iagor, in the direction of the Webbe river, is bringing up reinforcements from all sides.

Col. Swayne is much hampered owing to the necessity of transporting the wounded and water. He is retiring on Bohotle. He asks that 600 further reliable troops be dispatched from Berbera forthwith.

CAPTURED BY A POSSE.

Men Who Wounded a Sheriff and Three of His Men.

Vicksburg, Miss., Oct. 20.—A sheriff's posse, reinforced by a Gatling gun squad, late yesterday afternoon effected the capture of W. G. Hull, his son, R. G. Hull, and his daughter, Mrs. Vaughan, of Arkansas. They were aboard the shanty boat Hazel, also said to be a whisky boat, from which shots were fired on Sheriff Frank Strong and his posse of Chicot county, Ark., Saturday, resulting in the wounding of the sheriff and three of his men. The elder Hull made a statement that he had no idea that he was firing on officers of the law Saturday. He says a squad of men, both ~~white and black,~~ appeared on shore and opened a fusilade without warning. His son was wounded in the arm, and believing his family to be in jeopardy he secured his rifle and returned the fire. The men were brought to Vicksburg and immediately sent to Jackson for safety. Reports assert that a mob is on the way from Arkansas to lynch them.

MAY GRACE SIAMESE THRONE.

Rumors About Gen. Wilson's Daughter and Crown Prince.

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—Is the crown prince of Siam in love with Miss Eleanor Wilson, the daughter of Gen. James L. Wilson, with whom the prince and his brother, Prince Charkarhoagse, stopped while in Washington? Many residents of Wilmington say he is. According to rumor Miss Wilson met the prince at the coronation of King Edward, and it is said it was a case of love at first sight. They were much together, and those who were asked to dinners given in honor of the crown prince by her father say he paid marked attention to the charming daughter of his host. Miss Wilson is a pretty blonde, about twenty years old. It is known that she likes the crown prince. In her autograph album Miss Wilson has a poem written by his royal highness and dedicated to herself.

COTTON GOES UP IN FLAMES.

Fire in a Compress Causes a Loss of $225,000.

Hamlet, N. C., Oct. 20.—Fire, which broke out at the cotton compress here destroyed property valued at $225,000 and caused the death of J. M. Wilson of Clarksville, Ga., bookkeeper for the compress company. The compress was owned by the Seaboard Air Line company and was leased by E. E. Johnson of Raleigh. The Pee Dee ice plant, one of the largest in the state, 2,400 bales of cotton and a quantity of burlaps and bagging also were burned. Bookkeeper Wilson was playing a stream of water on the fire and did not notice that he was being surrounded by the rapidly spreading flames until too late. When he attempted to escape he found all the avenues cut off.

Kite Brigade for Navy.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 20.—Russia's Black sea fleet is now equipped with a large number of aerial boats, or "flying dragons," as the Russian soldiers call them. They are powerful box kites, five being enough to raise a man so that he can inspect a wide expanse of water to reconnoiter hostile craft. When there is no wind the speed of the ship raises them to a great height.

Europeans Expelled.

Madrid, Oct. 20.—A dispatch to El Liberal from Tangier, Morocco, declares that all Europeans have been expelled from Fez.

Hard Times in Prospect.

London, Oct. 20.—Hard times for the immediate future are foreshadowed by the board of trade official statistics, which show a steady decline in employment and a great increase in the number of unemployed.

Collapse of a Bridge.

Constantinople, Oct. 20.—Fifteen persons were immersed and five of them drowned as a result of the collapse of the bridge over the Golden Horn, connecting Constantinople with the suburb of Galata.

READY FOR WORK

MINERS GLAD TO GET TOGETHER AND END MONTHS OF IDLENESS.

WILL BE IN MINES THIS WEEK

NOTHING TO INDICATE THAT CONVENTION WILL NOT ACT FAVORABLY.

ONE THING THAT TROUBLES

LARGE NUMBER OF MEN FEAR THEY WILL NOT GET PLACES BACK.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 20. — Delegates to the anthracite mineworkers' convention, which will meet in the Nesbitt theater, this city, to-day, for the purpose of accepting or rejecting the proposition of the president of the United States to end the strike and submit all grievances to the arbitration commission appointed by him, began arriving here yesterday and about one-quarter of the 700 or 800 delegates to the convention had arrived last night. Strike headquarters, which had been extremely quiet since the excitement of last week, began to be lively before noon yesterday. Many of the delegates are interested in various features of the settlement, but a majority of them will follow the advice and judgment of President Mitchell. There is now that gives the slightest indication that the convention will not vote to send the men to work this week, with the probabilities still in favor of Thursday as the day of resumption. A noticeable thing among the delegates was their cheerfulness. It was quite evident to observers that they would be glad to get together and decide to return to work after the weary idleness of more than five months.

Nothing on the Surface

All of the delegates who were spoken to regarding the action of today's convention appeared to have no fear that a hitch might occur which would disarrange the present peaceful trend of affairs. A good many of the delegates say they have instructions on certain matters, which they will place before the delegates. As already stated in these dispatches the outside of the great question of accepting or rejecting President Roosevelt's proposition will be that of strikers getting their old places. A large number of the men fear that in the general rush to return to the mines some of them may fail to get work. They want some assurance from the convention that they will be able to get the positions they occupied before the suspension was ordered. It is likely this element from the three districts will join forces and make a concerted fight on the floor of the convention for some specific action. In the face of the fact that the operators are on record that they will not dismiss one man who stood by them during the struggle, it is going to be a serious problem to solve. The debate, it is believed, will take up a great deal of the time of the convention which is expected to last not more than two days.

TROLLEY SLEEPING CARS.

New Departure in Electric Railroad Operation.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 20.—An order for five sleeping cars has been placed with the Kuhlman Car company of this city. The cars will be used on the interurban electric lines between this city and Detroit, and mark a new departure in electric railroad operation. The sleepers will resemble the Pullman sleeper in general plan, but will not be built as heavy and are destined to accommodate fifteen persons. The berths will be arranged in tiers, there being two in each tier. Much attention will be paid to beauty and complete appointment. The cars will run regularly between this city and Detroit, a distance of 173 miles. The time will be about ten hours, as the proposed schedule provides for the sleeper to leave Detroit at 9 p. m. and arrive here at 7 a. m. The average speed will be about 20 to 25 miles an hour. The usual stops will be made along the line.

EIGHT MEN SCALDED.

Four Will Die as Result of Bursting Steam Pipe.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 20.—By the parting of a steam pipe at the Riverside plant of the National Tube Works in Benwood yesterday afternoon eight men were scalded and three or four of them will die. Four of the men were carpenters and four laborers. They were placing a partition to the boiler room of the new blast furnace and were working on a scaffold. A twelve-inch copper pipe supplying the blast engines with steam from the boilers broke without warning, and the escaping steam filled the room. A valve was blown through two board partitions. When the steam was shut off, the groaning men were carried out and taken to hospitals in this city. All of them were horribly burned about the face and will carry the marks of their injuries to the grave.

Yellow Fever and Smallpox.

Kingston, Jam., Oct. 20. — The steamer Orinoco, from Colon, which reached here yesterday, brings a report that yellow fever and smallpox have broken out among the forces of the Colombian goverment at Colon.

Grant Ordered to Washington.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Brig. Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, U. S. A., who has been visiting relatives in this city since last Friday, left for Washington yesterday under telegraphic orders from the war department.

ESCAPE CATASTROPHE.

Audience in a Church Barely Escaps Being Thrown Into Basement.

Omaha, Oct. 20.—A serious catastrophe was narrowly averted at the First Christian church yesterday when the 500 people who gathered to hear Rev. Allan Wilson of Covington, Ind., barely escaped being thrown into the basement, twenty-five feet below, by the giving way of timbers in the floor. The audience passed out quietly, however, upon being notified of their peril, and all escaped unhurt. Those in the audience did not know of their great peril until they were all out of the building. Then it was learned that the floor had settled five inches and that the gallery was in a tottering condition. The church, which was an old building, was rendered useless and probably will never be rebuilt.

NO DECISIVE RESULT.

Revolutionists Withdraw From Near Victoria.

Washington, Oct. 20.—In a telegram to the state department, dated Caracas, Oct. 18, Minister Bowen stated that the revolutionary army had withdrawn from near Victoria and that it was believed the battle was not ended. He also stated that the government troops still held Valencia. A later dispatch, dated 10:45 Sunday morning, from the same source, says that the battle has ended with no decisive result.

HEAD-END COLLISION.

Northern Pacific Passenger Runs Into a Locomotive.

Duluth, Oct. 20. — The eastbound passenger train on the Northern Pacific due in Duluth at 4:55 p. m. yesterday was in a head-end collision shortly after noon with a locomotive running light. The accident happened on a curve near Baxter, between Brainerd and Staples, and the passenger was running thirty-five miles an hour. Both engine crews saved themselves by jumping. Among the injured were W. C. Jones, the National express messenger, and a sixteen-year-old girl named Freda Decker of Tacoma, who was coming to Duluth. Jones' injuries are not known, but he was taken to the hospital at Brainerd. The girl's collarbone was broken. She was hurled half the length of the car. It is said that Engineer Carlson, in charge of the light locomotive, had been ordered to take the siding, but failed to do so through some misunderstanding. One day coach and the baggage car were ditched and the engines badly damaged.

QUARREL HAS FATAL END.

Iowa Farmer Fires Four Shots at Fleeing Wife.

Muscatine, Iowa, Oct. 20. — While driving through a crowded street Saturday Otto Neimeyer, a farmer aged thirty, quarreled with his wife. The woman became frightened and jumped from the buggy. Her husband fired four shots but missed her. The police gave chase and Neimeyer drove six blocks, his pursuers gaining on him. He then jumped from the buggy and tried to escape through an alley. When he saw escape was impossible he placed a revolver at his head and blew out his brains. He died before his pursuers reached him. No cause for the act is known.

SUICIDE LEADS TO ARREST.

An Assyrian in Iowa Accused of Violation of Federal Law.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Oct. 20. — Joseph Abodeely, an Assyrian, has been arrested for violation of the immigration laws. He is charged with attempting to smuggle into America an Assyrian woman, Alexandra Joseph, at Detroit recently. The alleged attempt was frustrated and Miss Joseph committed suicide by jumping from the train near Detroit. Abodeely claimed that Miss Joseph was his fiancee, but developments show that Abodeely was married to another woman at Dubuque six days before.

SCALPED WITH A HOE.

Wisconsin Farmers Fight for Possession of Wood Pile.

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 20. — Oscar Straight and Anton Thorpe, farmers, fought on a farm north of the city over the possession of some wood. Straight was nearly scalped by a blow on the head inflicted with a hoe. One of the men had a revolver and fired three shots, none of which took effect. Straight applied here for a warrant, but the trouble appears to have occurred in Chippewa county, and he was referred to the Chippewa county authorities.

WOMEN ELIGIBLE.

They May Vote on a Wisconsin Constitutional Amendment.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 20. — Attorney General E. R. Hicks has rendered an opinion that women are eligible to vote on the constitutional amendment relating to the extension of the term of the state superintendent of schools. It is proposed to make the term of the state superintendent four years instead of two and to raise his salary, also to hold the election in the spring at the time of the judicial election, instead of in the fall.

HIS HEAD IS SMASHED.

Farmer Fatally Injured by Threshing Machine Belt.

Cokato, Minn., Oct. 20.—While removing a belt on his threshing separator about fifteen miles north of this place Albert Bjorklund was fatally injured. His head was caught between the belt and pulley and the skull was fractured.

Wolves Troublesome.

Sturgis, S. D., Oct. 20. — Reports from the ranges are to the effect that wolves are again getting very troublesome. In the Cedar canyon country hundreds of dollars worth of stock has already been destroyed.

New Trial for Tanke.

Henderson, Minn., Oct. 20.—Frank Tanke, convicted of the murder of John Wellner, was granted a new trial by Judge Cadwell. The case will be heard at the general term in December.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 22, 1902.

Halvor Steenerson, who has become the nominee of the republican party by the voice of its members, is an able man and will make his mark in congress. He goes there ambitious to make a record, and as he is a tireless worker we shall be disappointed if he does not succeed. We are confident of his election in November. While the district is perhaps still close, nothing but mismanagement can prevent the Ninth starting out with a republican representative in congress.—Fergus Falls Journal.

Halvor Steenerson is a sure winner, according to the St. Paul Dispatch:

Halvor Steenerson is more then busy. He is averaging two speeches every day, as he has immense territory to cover. He will cover every county in his district. His speeches are attracting wide attention because of the fearless way in which he is taking up every question of public interest and discussing it freely, as he sees it. In no district of the state is the result more absolutely assured then in the Ninth.

At the coming general election on Nov. 4th there will be submitted to the voters of Red Lake county a proposition as to whether or not the township system of caring for the poor shall be adopted.

Under present conditions the care of the poor is made a charge on the entire county; which it is easy to see is unjust to many of the townships within the county limits.

Throughout the rural districts paupers are practically unknown, but the cities and villages furnish them in large quantities. Under the township system as proposed each township, village or city shall bear the burden of the care of their own poor instead of the county doing so.

It will pay the average voter to cast a ballot in favor of this proposition and without doubt it will be carried by a large majority.

HAMM'S BEER

THEO. HAMM BREWING CO.
St. Paul, Minn.

THOMAS GERMO, practicing attorney of Red Lake Falls who is making such a vigorous campaign for the office of County Attorney, was born of Norwegian parents on a farm, in Medo, Blue Earth county, Minnesota, in 1870. His boyhood days were spent on the farm, until 16 years of age, when he sat out for himself. He was educated in the country schools, Rochester Business College, State Normal School at Mankato, and at the University of Minnesota, graduating from the law department of the latter institution.

Indomitable pluck and tenacity of purpose have marked every step of his career. School vacations were no times of rest or idleness for him. During these periods he employed himself with the task of earning and saving money in order to further prosecute his studies. Like so many young men who set out to make their own way through school, he took up such occupations as canvassing for books, working in the harvest fields in summer and teaching school. He was employed for a time as stenographer and book-keeper in the Janesville bank, as court reporter of the Third Judicial district and at different times as reporter on newspapers. While at the University law school he took night lectures and during the day was employed about the city in different capacities, earning money to carry him through.

Before entering the University he gained valuable practical experience by serving one year's apprenticeship in the law office of W. Logan Brackenridge of Rochester. He is a speaker of recognized force and ability, and is in great demand in political campaigns.

Mr. Germo's life has been as an open book, with the pages well ear-marked by successful struggles against difficulties that would have deterred many a less plucky young man. His career in Red Lake county has been marked with that success, earnestness of purpose and unimpeachable integrity, which have won for him the esteem of our citizens and a constantly growing practice. Loyal to friends, a congenial companion, no man stands higher in the estimation of our citizens: a man who may be trusted, an able attorney, he comes well equipped in every way to discharge the duties of the office to which he aspires, that of County Attorney, to the satisfaction of all the citizens therein, and with credit to himself.

Here is a letter from Congressman J. T. McCleary, of the Second Minnesota district, written over two years ago, which speaks for itself, and the only excuse for inserting it here is that it voices the sentiment of a man of high attainments, who has known Mr. Germo and the Germo family for over twenty years:

"HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D. C.,
Sept. 24, 1900.

To Whom it may Concern:—

When I was a member of the faculty of the State Normal School at Mankato, Minnesota, Mr. Thomas Germo, now of Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, was a student in the institution. As he was a member of some of some of my classes, I came to know him very well. Since Mr. Germo concluded his course at the Normal school he has studied law and been admitted to the bar. As best I could I have kept track of Mr. Germo and have been gratified to note that he has continued to justify the good opinion of him which I formed when he was one of my pupils. Knowing Mr. Germo as I do, I take genuine pleasure in recommending him as a young man of high character, excellent habits and good ability. He belongs to one of the best and most respected families of this county and is worthy of all confidence.

Respectfully,
(Signed) J. T. McCLEARY."

JAMES WILSON, Superintendent of Schools at Thief River Falls, was born at Lake City, Minn., in 1872. His boyhood days were spent on his father's farm, and at an early age his first desires for work in his chosen profession of teaching were satisfied by tutoring classes in the largest school in the county, as an assistant.

Being the oldest child he was obliged to remain at home until circumstances permitted him, by exercising strict economy and hard labor to put himself through three years of high school work, after which he taught for two years, the second year as principal of the graded schools at Cottonwood, Minn. Feeling the need of a more liberal education, he declined a second offer of this promising position and entered the University of Minnesota in September, 1896, heavily conditioned. During his first year young Wilson not only worked off all of his conditions but taught as a special instructor in the schools of St. Paul during the afternoons of each day. During the summer months of his university course he attended various teachers' training schools, the better to prepare himself for his future work. While at the university, Mr. Wilson took an active and prominent part in all social, literary and athletic life, holding various offices of trust in the student body. Besides making his own way and helping a younger brother, who was physically disabled, he accumulated enough money to enable him to spend a time between his junior and senior years on special work at Chicago university. He graduated with honor with the class of 1900 and shortly afterward accepted the principalship of the schools at Thief River Falls, which position he still retains.

During the past summer Mr. Wilson was selected as one of the instructors in the teachers' training schools, in which capacity he served with the marked success which has always attended his efforts along educational lines.

Mr. Wilson's career in Red Lake county has been marked with that success, earnestness of purpose and unimpeachable integrity which have won for him the esteem and honor of our citizens. Of recognized ability and untarnished reputation he is the ideal man to come in contact with the youth of the county, and we feel ourselves safe in predicting for him a handsome majority when the votes for superintendent of schools of Red Lake county are enumerated.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given that on the 23rd day of October, 1902 at one o'clock p. m., at the auditor's office in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Bocksbury and Sanders Ditch No. 1. of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, state of Minnesota, by their order bearing date Sept. 12, 1902, viz: In sections of 100 feet each, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified in said engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimated cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond to be approved by the auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated Oct. 7th, 1902.

What Worried Her.

Mrs. Meek—Of course I am worried. As a dutiful wife I can't help feeling so, for I am sure my husband is keeping something from me, and I shan't be content until I know what it is.

Mrs. Freak—My husband is keeping something from me, and I am worried because I know what it is.

Mrs. Meek—Indeed! What is it?

Mrs. Freak—It is money.—Washington Times.

Affectionate Interest.

"Dat's an old, no 'count dog," said Mr. Erastus Pinkley, "but I had a chance to trade him off las' week."

"Why didn't you seize the opportunity?"

"Well, I thinks a heap of dat dog, an' I made up my mind dat a man dat didn't hab no better sense dan to make such a trade wah gwine to be too pore to feed him."—Washington Star.

As the Man Sees It.

Miss Justout—Wherein, Mr. Wiseman, lies the secret art of conversation?

Wiseman—Young lady, listen!

Miss Justout—But I am listening!

Wiseman—Well, that is all there is of the art of conversing agreeably.—New York Times.

Impertinence.

"When I go to weddings," she said, "I always feel like getting married again myself."

"Let's see," he answered, making a hasty count of her divorces; "you must have attended a lot of them in your time, haven't you?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

An Exception.

Politician—I'll tell you what, Pat. It's got so nowadays that there's no situation in life where a man can get along without a pull.

Pat—Did ye iver troy troondlin' a whalebarrer, boss?—Boston Courier.

Their Polite Restraint.

Gussie (gleefully)—Bah Jove, all the girls around here smile at me!

Tom—Well, that shows they have some manners. Anywhere else they would laugh outright.—Chicago News.

In Ancient Babylon.

"Husband, husband, what do you mean? You've hit mamma with the morning paper!"

"It's all right, dear. I'm merely breaking the news to mother."—Life.

Summer Angling.

He—Indeed, there's jolly good fishing about here. Miss Swift made a great catch when she was here last summer.

She—Yes, that old man was worth at least a million.—Pittsburg Press.

Worse.

Scolding Wife—You wish I were at the antipodes, don't you?

Patient Husband—No, my dear. I think your proper place would be the Xantippedes.—Chicago Tribune.

THE ICEMAN.

He Is Given an Unexpected Surprise by One of His Customers.

"It's seldom that I get a surprise," said the iceman, "but a little matter occurred the other morning to give me a regular chill. I had driven up to serve a customer when I found a baldheaded, beetle browed man waiting for me. I knew that he was going to kick, and I held my breath. The kick came. Said he:

"'Look here, now, didn't you agree to give me twenty-five pounds of ice daily?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'And why haven't you made it twenty-five?'

"'I thought I had.'

"'I don't care what you thought. I want a man to stick to his word. I have been weighing your ice right along without saying anything, and during the last three months I find'—

"'I'll make it up to you,' I said.

"'During the last ninety days,' he went on, 'I find that you have delivered a hundred pounds extra. Here's 50 cents for the overplus, and if you come any such trick on me in future I'll change to some man who'll stick to his agreement.'"—Brooklyn Citizen.

Had Him There.

Pa—Excuse me for saying it, my child, but I question the pretensions of this foreigner who is seeking your hand in marriage. I believe he is a false count.

Daughter—I don't see, pa, why you should object to him on that account. In the attainment of your political aspirations you have always been particularly partial to that sort of thing.—Richmond Dispatch.

Always Together.

"Beg pardon," said the man who had been writing in the hotel reading room, "but how do you spell innocuous?"

His neighbor gave the desired information.

"Thanks," said the writer, "and—er—er—by the way"—

"The other word," interrupted the bright informant, "is 'd-e-s-u-e-t-u-d-e.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Couldn't Help It.

"Did you ever take an oath?" asked the judge.

"Wance only, y'ur honor," replied the witness. "Big Molke shwore at me from the top av a sivin story buildin', an' I couldn't l'ave me team to git at him, so I had to take it."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Monopoly of Ideas.

"I wonder if she regrets her marriage?"

"Why should she?"

"Well, you know they're both literary, and now her husband thinks himself entitled to every bright idea she has."—Detroit Free Press.

In Self Defense.

"Jerry," said Flaherty, "why is it ye're gittin' so proud since ye're gittin' a bit of money ahead?"

"Me b'y, 'tis loike that wid all the rich," said Jerry. "'Tis a measure of protection ag'in me poor relations."—Indianapolis News.

Natural Question.

He—Yes, he was a great aeronaut. They say he made nearly a hundred ascensions, and the only accident he ever had was the one that proved fatal.

She—Really? And on which of the ascensions did that occur?—Philadelphia Record.

The Reason of It.

Slopay—The idea! I promised to pay that tailor on the 15th of this month. Here he's sent me a bill, and it's only the 1st.

Newitt—Probably he wants to get in early to avoid the rush.—Philadelphia Press.

Fontaine & Anglim.

—"Bridget, did you call the boys?" "Indade an' Oi called thim everything Oi cud think of but they won't wake up." There's such a thing as calling too much some times, but when it comes to Tschida's Leader 5-cent cigar it seems as though the people never would get tired of smoking them. They say they are the best that ever happened for the price. Try them.

The saw mill closed for the season on Sunday morning owing to a scarcity of logs. This mill has never been shut down so early before and would have run for another couple of weeks if the logs up stream could be floated in. Owing to the fact that the dam at Thief River Falls is being repaired it was impossible to get a sufficient flood of water. The total cut of lumber this season amounted to something over forty million feet.

Albert G. Leick, of Owatonna, democratic nominee for state auditor, was here Saturday talking over campaign matters with local democrats and meeting the voters. He was accompanied by Dr. G. Demars, of Hallock, and together they went to Red Lake Falls to conduct a political meeting there. Dr. DeMars is a fluent and able speaker in the French language and is holding a series of meetings among the French voters in this county.

Henry Peterson returned today from New London, Minn., accompanied by his bride who was formerly Miss Emma Lundberg. Mr. Peterson left here a week ago, ostensibly for a friendly visit with old friends in Kandiyohi county. Some of those best acquainted said he would return double but it was not generally known to be a fact. However, he got married on the 18th inst. and the people of St. Hilaire extend a most cordial welcome to the happy couple.

The Highest Yet Recorded.

Two German balloonists ascended from Berlin to a height of 33,000 feet without losing consciousness. A great height was reached by two other balloonists but they lost consciousness and no actual record after passing that altitude was kept. The strain under which the scientists are working at such an altitude is enormous and they used golden grain belt beer to relieve it. Pure, refreshing and invigorating, this beer rests and quiets the nerves, inducing a peaceful sleep. Order of the nearest dealer, or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that in accordance with the ordinance of the village of St. Hilaire forbidding and prohibiting the discharging of fire arms within the incorporated limits of said village, the village marshal has been instructed to immediately arrest any person or persons found violating said ordinance by discharging firearms within the limits prescribed.

Dated Oct. 18, 1902.

Adams-Zaiser Wedding.

Yesterday at Red Lake Falls occurred the wedding of Lewis Adams, of St. Hilaire, and Miss Bertha Zaiser. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Ansgar in the presence of the relatives of the contracting parties and a large number of invited guests. After the wedding a sumptuous wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents. The happy couple with their friends came to St. Hilaire on the afternoon train and will start housekeeping at once.

In the evening a grand ball was generously given by the bridegroom at the Hotel St. Hilaire, free for all the residents of the town who wished to attend. The music was furnished by the Red Lake Falls band and a large crowd enjoyed the pleasures of the dance, which continued until early morning hours.

A genuine surprise was perpetrated on Mr. Adams and his bride by Mr. Adams' local friends, who, as a token of their esteem, presented them with a handsome rocking chair, and a combination writing desk and book-case.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams start their married life with the best wishes of a host of friends in which the Spectator heartily joins.

A Farmers' Convention.

Special rates, and a special train, will be given from St. Hilaire to Crookston on Monday, Oct. 27th, when a Farmers' Convention will be held in that city. Several noted speakers will be present, but the chief attraction will be an address by James J. Hill upon "The Development of the Farming Interests of the Red River Valley and the Transportation Question as Applied to Foreign Wheat Markets." Crookston has prepared to entertain all visitors in royal style, and the opportunity to hear Mr. Hill speak will be taken advantage of by a large number from this place and from the surrounding country.

The Great Northern Railway will make a rate of 50 cents for the round trip from all points on this line, and a special train will be run, on the following schedule:

Entertaining Fiction.

One advantage of reading a serial story in a daily newspaper is that an installment of convenient length is received every day that does not consume an undue amount of the reader's time. An installment of a high-grade serial story appears in every issue of The Chicago Record-Herald, a popular feature of that enterprising Chicago daily. Among the successful stories which have recently been enjoyed by Record-Herald readers are "Graustark" by George B. McCutcheon; "When Knighthood was in Flower," by Charles Major, "Alice of Old Vincennes," by Maurice Thompson. Every issue contains also a short illustrated "human interest" story on the editorial page. Readers of the Chicago Record-Herald can depend upon a never-failing source of pleasant entertainment in the noteworthy fiction that is always to be found in its columns.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 16, 1902.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Clerk of District Court for Red Lake county, Minnesota at Red Lake Falls, Minn., on October 28th, 1902, viz:

JOHAN WEDUL,

H. E. 17,245, for the lot 5, sec 19, and lots 5, 8 and 9, sec 20-153-41.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:—Andrew Bodin, John P. Lindberg, Ole Hegg, Theodore Halvorson all of Wyandotte, Minn.

A. F. Groess, Receiver.

Steenerson is Coming.

Hon. Halvor Steenerson, candidate for congress, will speak in St. Hilaire on Saturday, Nov. 1st, at 2 p. m., on the political issues of the day. He will be accompanied by other speakers, also the candidates for county offices on the republican ticket.

There is no more able and fearless exponent of the people's rights than Mr. Steenerson and he will doubtless be heard here by one of the largest audiences ever seen in St. Hilaire. His address will be of particular interest to farmers and all should attend who can possibly do so.

Remember the date, Saturday, Nov. 1st, and the speaker, Hon. Halvor Steenerson, our next congressman.

Made Good His Escape.

Some time ago Murray was bound over to the district court on a charge of having committed adultery with one Mrs. Erickson, a female who has enjoyed a shady reputation in town for a long time. Bonds were given and Murray continued to enjoy his liberty and work in the saw mill until yesterday morning when his bondsmen became alarmed and withdrew from the bond. Murray was turned over to Deputy Sheriff Fred Cyr, who came up from Red Lake Falls for that purpose. The officer was very careless with his prisoner and failed to take precaution for his safe keeping. At about 2 p. m. while they with several other persons were in the Paradis saloon, Murray dropped on all fours and crept to the front door and made a bold and successful dash for liberty. When last seen he was headed northward on the railroad track and making faster time than was ever known on this branch of the Great Northern. Some one called the deputy sheriff back to have another drink and the afternoon was spent by the crowd in a most enjoyable manner, the officer making no attempt to follow up the escaped prisoner.

Murray is gone and the county is saved the expense of a disgusting and expensive criminal prosecution. Now if the indignant public would insist that the woman in the case move out of town as fast as her paramour it would be to the lasting good grace of the village of St. Hilaire.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following sales of real estate are reported by Julius Pleth for the past week:

Southeast quarter section 8, Polk Centre, to F. Thompson, Bancroft, Ia. Consideration $7.50 per acre.

160 acres in section 2, Bray township, to Jas. Nelson, Cedar Falls, Ia. $6.50 per acre.

NW¼ sec. 27, Wyandotte, to John C. Males, Fergus Falls. $7.00 per acre.

180 acres of the Cliffgard farm and 80 acres of the Lunde farm, both in River Falls, to W. L. Joslyn, Algona, Ia. $18.25 per acre.

County Surveyor P. O. Hagglund came down from St. Hilaire yesterday to run a line for Alfred Bisson, of Gervais township. Mr. Hagglund is giving such good satisfaction and is kept so busy that he has no time to campaign for re-election, but expects to get there just the same.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

It is indeed true that Mr. Hagglund's business engagements are too many and too urgent to allow of his making a vigorous personal canvass and explain the situation to the voters of Red Lake county. Still there are many things to be explained, which, if understood, would without doubt be greatly in Mr. Hagglund's favor.

For instance, the opposition candidate is credited with the statement that he has a proposition whereby he can make considerable money placing "monuments" at every township corner telling the numbers and names of the various townships meeting at that certain point. As a matter of fact there are iron posts now standing at most township corners in this county, giving the necessary information. These are sufficient and any further expense on the county in that line is unnecessary.

As a common sense idea, would it not be much better to use the same amount of money to further the ideas advanced by Mr. Hagglund, viz: the establishing of better roads and better drainage, which create a real and permanent benefit, instead of spending it for unnecessary expenses which only increase the income of the county surveyor.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given that on the 23rd day of October, 1902 at one o'clock p. m., at the auditor's office in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minn., I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Rocksbury and North Ditch No. 1 of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, state of Minnesota, by their order bearing date Sept. 11th, 1902, viz: In sections of 100 feet each, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes, as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively up stream to the one including the source to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders and that bids are invited for said work; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified in said engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimated cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond to be approved by the auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file and and may be seen at my office.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated Oct. 7th, 1902.

TROUBLE BEGINS.

Trouble begins with the first backache.

Backache comes in many forms—sudden twinges of pain, sharp stitches, slow, exhaustive aches.

Most backache pains are kidney pains.

The kidneys fail to perform the duties nature intends them to do and the warning of trouble comes through the back.

Neglect the kidney warning, grave complications will surely follow.

Urinary disorders, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, are the downward steps of neglected kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure every kidney and bladder sickness and the cure lasts. Read this proof of it:

Mrs. Adam Guntle, residing at 701 South Plum St., Crawfordsville, Ind., says: "I made a public statement in 1897, saying that Doan's Kidney Pills had cured a member of our family after he had suffered for years with a weak back and kidney troubles. He took three boxes of this remedy and was completely cured. Now three years have elapsed since I made this statement and I am only too pleased to reindorse it. I have also used Doan's Kidney Pills myself, obtaining the best results. I have recommended this remedy to my friends and neighbors as one which can always be depended upon."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Guntle will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

The Ass Was Outside.

A good story is told of the quick-witted Irish lawyer, Baron O'Grady. It is told of others, but the sequel to it is, I think, the property of O'Grady.

He was on one occasion trying a case in a country court, outside the walls of which a fair was in progress. Amid the miscellaneous herds of animals were a considerable number of asses, and one of them commenced to bray loudly. At once the chief baron stopped the advocate, who, at that moment happened to be pleading: "Wait a moment, Mr. Bushe, I cannot hear two at once." The court roared and the advocate flushed. Presently, when the court came to sum up, another ass struck in, and the bray sounded through the court. Up jumped Mr Busche at once, with his hand to his ear. "Would your lordship speak a little more loudly? There is such an echo in the court that I cannot hear distinctly."—New York Sun.

The Last of the Flowers.

In the early part of October the beautiful fringed gentian may still be found, while the witch hazel glorifies the thickets of its abode, and, with the seeds of its last year's flowers, bombards the intruder. Late asters and fleabanes also linger, and now and then one of the children of the spring—a violet or dandelion—shyly begs notice and a tender caress as a little stranger in an inhospitable world. But for the most part the flowers have departed, leaving in quaint and wondrous seed-pods their pledges of sure return when spring bids them awake.—Country Life in America.

Instant Relief From Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

Here is a case: Mr. T. Shepherd of Whitburn, Sunderland, Ohio, says: "My wife suffered severely from rheumatism and neuralgia. She could not get one moment's rest and was nearly crazed with pain. Obtained instant relief and a permanent cure by using the contents of one bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. There is no other remedy in the world that will do this. The instantaneous effect which St. Jacobs Oil produces is a part of its half a century record." St. Jacobs Oil is sold in 25 cts. and 50 cts. sizes by all druggists. The words "Acts like Magic," "Conquers Pain," which have been used in connection with St. Jacobs Oil for more than 50 years are wonderfully and truly descriptive.

GOD'S APPOINTMENTS.

"This thing on which thy heart was set,
This thing that cannot be,
This weary, disappointing day, that dawns,
My friend, for thee:
Be comforted, God knoweth best, the God whose name
Is love,
Whose tender care is evermore our passing
Lives above;
He sends thee disappointment! Well, then,
Take it from his hand.
Shall God's disappointment seem less good than
What thyself had planned?

God bids thee tarry now and then, forbear
The weak complaint;
God's leisure brings the weary rest, and cordial gives
The faint;
God bids thee labor, and the place is thick with Thorn and brier;
But he will share the hardest task, until he calls
Thee higher.
So take each disappointment, friend; 'tis at thy Lord's command!
Shall God's appointment seem less good than
What thyself had planned?

The Living Dead.

BY GIDEON HICKS.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

George Bartman was traveling west for the rest and recreation he needed after some years of absorption in a successful business in an eastern city.

He had stopped over for a few days in a Colorado town and was standing on the platform of the railway station awaiting the arrival of the train which was to carry him on his journey farther west. The train was twenty minutes late, and he was whiling away the time watching the scenes about him.

There was some commotion in front of a saloon near the station. A man and a woman seemed to be struggling, while an interested crowd of loungers laughed and jeered.

Moved by curiosity the traveler walked towards the saloon, and as he drew near he heard the woman pleading:

"You've drunk enough, Jim. Please come home."

At the sound of her voice Bartman stopped suddenly, and then on impulse hurried forward. Making his way through the crowd he saw a brutish-looking man—red-eyed and bloated—and a slatternly woman holding to his arm and trying to draw him away from the saloon. The woman, it could be seen, had once been beautiful, but she was now a pitiful wreck.

"Is she his wife?" asked a bystander.

"I s'pose so," answered another. "She come here with Jim Shofter 'bout five years ago. He 'peared to have lots o' money, and they lived a high-flyin' life. Jim got to gamblin' and drinkin' and goin' all the gaits at a hell-roarin' rate 'til he went down into the gutter and she went with him. I s'pose she's one o' them fool women that'll stick to a man and go to the devil with him, no matter how much he abuses her."

"Does he beat her?"

"Treats her like a dog, and she hangs to him like a dog in spite of his cussedness, as if her salvation depended on him."

Shofter shook himself free from the woman and made his way unsteadily into the saloon. The woman followed him and others of the crowd went in.

Bartman also entered the saloon.

Shofter was standing at the counter as the bartender prepared to serve him a drink of some vile, cheap stuff for the nickel he had placed on the bar. The woman took hold of him again and said,

"Jim, you shan't drink any more. Come away."

Shofter turned fiercely and muttering an oath, struck her in the face.

To the astonishment of all Bartman stepped quickly forward and with a well-directed blow felled the drunkard to the floor. Then with his hand at his hip, facing the people who had crowded into the saloon, he showed himself ready to meet any attack that might be made to resent his action.

The fallen man rose with difficulty to his feet and slunk away into a corner of the room.

No one else moved except the woman, who rushed up to Bartman, gazed a moment intently in his face, and then, covering her own face with her hands, cowered down by the counter.

Seeing that no interference was attempted or contemplated, Bartman went to the woman and, taking her by the arm, raised her up and led her out of the house. As the loungers began to follow he checked them with an imperious wave of the hand.

The woman, with head bent down, walked beside Bartman until they came close to the station, where she sank down upon a curbstone.

"You can never forgive me," she sobbed, not raising her head.

"I can say this much," said Bartman, "which may give you some satisfaction, if you have any good remaining in you: Your children and mine do not know of your conduct and of your fate. They believe their mother is dead, and that she died a true mother and an honorable woman. And you are dead to me and to them."

Shofter turned fiercely and struck her in the face.

Without further word he slipped a bank note in the hand of the weeping woman and hurried into the station, where he boarded the train which had just rolled in.

Five minutes later as the train slowly moved out of the station Bartman looked out of the car window and saw the woman still sitting and weeping where he had left her. He also saw the man whom he had knocked down in the saloon approach the woman, take the bank note from her unresisting hand, and stagger back towards the saloon.

Gazed a moment intently into his face.

OLD CASTLE GARDEN DOORS.

As Relics They Would Now Be Worth Their Weight in Gold.

"I made the mistake of my life when old Castle Garden was abandoned, that I didn't corral the old oaken doors leading into the rotunda," said Bernard Biglin as he paced along the Battery sea wall past the Aquarium.

"I know one man who'd give their weight in gold for them just as an heirloom to hand down to his grandchildren and their successors. His name? I don't think I'll tell you that, but he is, to-day, a man high up in public life and one of the financial powers of the country.

"In his youth he came to this country and entered through the old oak doors of Castle Garden. Hundreds of those who passed through those doors to the land of their adoption, where they have since found prosperity and happiness, would give much to possess them as mementos. I could name hundreds who have attained high positions in public life who first stepped foot on American soil through this portal. One man whom I saw land, and whose baggage I hauled, afterward served in the state legislature with me.

"Merely as an exhibit the old doors would be a money winner. Thousands of people would bring their children and grandchildren to see the old doors. And yet these historic relics were consigned to the rubbish heap when the old Garden was abandoned."—New York Times.

HUSBAND IN NAME ONLY.

Curious Contract Between Couple Recently Made in Berlin.

Here is a curious advertisement which recently appeared in a Berlin paper: "A distinguished lady desires to marry a genuine count; will pay well for the title."

A few days after it appeared a genuine count called on the "distinguished lady," who was a divorced actress, and told her that, if they could agree as to terms, he would be most happy to marry her. He admitted that his income was only $200 a year, and that, therefore, he was constantly in need of money.

In a few minutes the two came to an agreement, and a contract was signed. The count will receive $500 on the day of the wedding, and as soon as he receives it he will leave his wife and never again approach her. Moreover, he pledges himself to give his wife, within two months after their marriage ample cause for procuring a divorce from him, and she in turn promises to pay him $5,000 on the day when the divorce is granted.

This singular contract was drawn by a lawyer, whose office is in the Friedrichstrasse, and is said to be perfectly valid.

A Retributive Sting.

A man who was engaged in writing anecdotes and such things for publication read his latest effort to his wife.

"Don't you think that's pretty good?" he asked.

"It is good, but it's not new. I have heard it before," she answered.

"Yes, I know you have; but you heard it from me. It has never been in print."

"I have heard it more than once, and have told it several times myself," she insisted.

"Oh, well, I am going to send it along," he snarled. "I don't care if you have told it. That doesn't of absolute necessity spoil it, although it does, I must confess, militate against it a good deal."

And that was the reason why he had to subsist on cold victuals for a week thereafter.

The Value of a Struggle.

It is a curious fact in the history of nations that only those which have had to struggle the hardest for an existence have been highly successful. As a rule the same thing is true of men. One would think that it would be a great relief to have the bread-and-butter problem solved by one's ancestors so that he might devote all of his energies and time to the development of the mental and spiritual faculties. But this is contrary to the verdict of history and the daily experience of the world. The strugglers, those born to a heritage of poverty and toil, and not those reared in the lap of fortune, have, with a few exceptions, been the leaders of civilization, the giants of the race.—Success.

PRECEDENT SET BY AMERICAN.

Mrs. Samuel Chauncey of New York Astonishes Britishers.

It took a pretty American woman to tell the British railway servants, who are notoriously stupid, that it was their business to direct passengers to the right trains when asked, and the course she took to teach the lesson has made railway officials open their eyes.

Mrs. Samuel Chauncey of New York has lately been at Berwick-on-Tweed. On her way there she had to change at York. She lost her maid and governess altogether, while her mother, Mrs. Carr, and her little daughter also disappeared and did not turn up until the next day.

Mrs. Chauncey found herself put into the wrong train by a guard, so, without any hesitation, she rang the alarm bell and had the train stopped, much to the amazement of the trainmen, whom she blamed for allowing her to travel by the wrong train.

She then alighted calmly, and walked back half a mile or so to the next station, where she caught another train.

Society is convulsed with merriment whenever Mrs. Chauncey's story is told. Some people look at her with awe, for it is a British tradition that only cases of life or death can properly excuse pulling the alarm bell.—New York Herald.

TWO KINDS OF QUOTATION.

One Inappropriate, the Other Made Apposite by Death.

The memory of Dr. Sheridan, who died on the 10th of September, 1738, links together two forms of anecdote that have a fascination for most people. One is that of the inappropriate quotation; the other turns on the appositeness with which death sometimes caps a remark. It is said that Dr. Sheridan lost all chance of the promotion his abilities deserved by quite inadvertently preaching on George I's birthday from the text: "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." He survived to enjoy the friendship of Jonathan Swift and to write his prose translation of Persius, and then contributed an anecdote of the second kind to the store of posterity. One day after dinner the conversation turned on the force and the direction of the wind. Sheridan said, "Let the wind blow east, west, north or south, the immortal soul will take its flight to the destined point." Then, leaning back in his chair, he instantly expired.—London News.

On the Range.

Far down the reaches of the broad Southwest,
Where prairie grasses yield perennial store,
Cool night winds lull the ranger to his rest
When summer days are o'er.

Beside the tethered horse, near to the herd
That now reclines in heaped, ungainly ease,
He spreads his blanket; nor forgets a word
His faithful friend will please.

Here, from the open, looking through the dark,
At the low-spreading vast star-pointed dome,
The lights seem closer as he learns to mark
The way that leads him home.

And then he, trusting, sleeps, and earth and sky
Hold man and beast in strengthening embrace,
While all the holy promises on high
Flame softly on his face.

Thus, as he feels recurring nights descend,
The herder comes to live in lone content,
Conscious that thoughts which guide him to the end
Are stars from heaven sent.

—Charles W. Stevenson.

Neatly Trapped.

A parent had a son who took pianoforte lessons and was supposed to do his practicing on the piano at home. He had a suspicion, however, that his son did not practice much. One day he said:

"Tom, do you practice regularly on the piano when I am at business?"

"Yes, father."

"Every day?"

"Yes, father."

"How long did you practice yesterday?"

"Two hours."

"And to-day?"

"One hour."

"I am glad to hear that you practice so regularly."

"Yes, father."

"And the next time you practice be sure you unlock the piano. Here is the key. I locked the instrument and put the key in my pocket a week ago."

Gave Good Advice.

During a sitting of the legislature in the province of New Brunswick, Canada, a few days ago, the then leader of the opposition party, D. L. Harrington, (now a judge of the supreme court), was arraigning the government for some of its alleged misdeeds. Mr. Harrington is a man of large stature, with lungs to correspond, and always speaks in a loud voice, particularly when in a warm debate. On this occasion, when making his charges, his voice was like the roar of a lion, and he exclaimed: "I wish that my constituents could hear me," (some 100 miles away).

A supporter of the government party, William Wilson, now a judge also, called out immediately:

"Open the windows, Mr. Harrington, and they certainly will."

Enterprising Herrings.

Very singular, and apparently very capricious and motiveless, are the year when most things are eaten, yet the fishermen on the Suffolk coast, near the Essex border, say that they never have known the codlings in so early. Another curious fact is that the herrings have appeared further north along the Essex coast than they have been seen before. Of course, the shoals are in abundance at their season further north again, but generally there is a gap in which they do not appear. This year the gap has been in some degree filled by an enterprising shoal, working round the southeastern corner of our islands, and further northward than the southern shoals usually come. Such, at least, would seem to be their itinerary.—Country Life.

The Wealth of the Bonanza Kings.

Generally speaking, the wealth of "The Four Bonanza Kings" has been much exaggerated. Basing their belief on such movements in the stock market as that of 1874, and the $10 dividends they once received monthly, men have asserted that one or the other of the four was worth $160,000,000. But unless Mackay accumulated great wealth after he left the Comstock mine and the San Francisco stock market, and after his disastrous deal in wheat, not one of them was ever in possession of $25,000,000. But they came up to some such figure as that from nothing, and kept to the end a large part of what they made.

"And with it all, neither California nor Nevada can point to one great institution of art or education or charity and say: 'That is an enduring monument to the Big Four.'"—E. H. Hamilton, in the Era.

Transformed.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt on one occasion took dinner on a British man-of-war, and, a storm coming up, was persuaded by the captain, a very small man, to occupy the latter's stateroom for the night. It had been the captain's custom, each morning, to take a cup of coffee at 6 o'clock, as an eye-opener. The steward was not notified of the arrangement made for Sir William's comfort, and, as usual, knocked at the captain's door at 6 in the morning. Receiving no reply, he pushed open the door, as had been his custom when the captain did not readily respond, and, as he entered, heard Sir William snore and turn over heavily in the berth. He dropped cup and saucer with a smash, and went tearing to the surgeon, to whom he exclaimed: "For heaven's sake, sir, come to the captain's room! He's speechless, and is swollen to ten times his natural size!"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Cape and Tunic Effects Modish.

Little cape effects are the novel features of the latest walking suits. A mixed blue and black cloth has a gored skirt hung from a small yoke, and the seams trimmed with black and white braid. The jacket covers the hips, is half-fitted in the back and straight in front, where it is closed with passementerie ornaments. About the shoulders is a flat cape trimmed with braid and passementerie ornaments. The sleeves are slashed on the outside of the arm, to show a ruff of blue silk gathered into a narrow cuff of white linen embroidered in black cotton, and the turnover collar worn over a soft scarf of blue silk is to match.

In shape the tunic is probably the most novel feature of street costumes. It is used over skirts that troll a trifle and fits closely over them, fastening invisible on one side, sometimes under a cluster of up and down pleats or lace of trimming. But the tunic, in most cases, is attached to the blouse under an inconspicuous belt, and the whole forms a coat worn over a silk or lace underblouse.—New York Tribune.

A Cure for Rheumatism.

Bridgeport, Wash., Oct. 20th.—Rheumatism and kidney trouble seem to be the prevailing ailments in this territory and particularly in Douglas county.

A remarkable and plainly sure cure has, however, recently been introduced.

It is called Dodd's Kidney Pills and although but a short time on the market, it has already worked many wonderful cures.

One of the most striking of these is that of Mr. John Higgins, who for a long time suffered with rheumatism and kidney trouble. The pains of these diseases had combined to make his life very miserable indeed, and he could get nothing to do him any good till he heard of this new remedy. He tells his experience with it in these words:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have done more for my rheumatism and kidney trouble than anything else I have ever used. There is more virtue in them than in any other medicine, and I will always recommend them to all of my friends highly."

THE MERGER TRIAL

President Hill on the Witness Stand Tells of the Organization of the Great Northern and Its Agency in the Development of the Northwest—Reasons for the Purchase of the Burlington.

The suit brought by the United States government under the Sherman law to prevent the consolidation or so-called merger of the Great Northern with the Northern Pacific and Burlington systems has lead to the taking of a large amount of testimony. The taking of testimony began in New York some little time ago, and was continued in St. Paul this week before Frederick Ingersoll, the special examiner. J. J. Hill was the chief witness in St. Paul, and his testimony tells the whole story of the so-called merger in a more connected way than has heretofore been given to the public. As it required two days to complete it, it was very voluminous. We append a sufficient portion of the evidence to give a connected story of the transaction and the reason for making it.

Mr. Hill told in a general way of the building of a great railway system, of the development of the trade in the Orient, and of the coal situation of the country. Mr. Hill largely told his story in his own way, none of the learned counsel having disposition to throw out a hint that Mr. Hill might better tell it some other way.

He began by relating briefly the organization of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba road, and later its reorganization into the Great Northern road, and admitted without very much pressing that he had very largely determined the policy of the roads, especially the policy of extending the lines. This was, however, he explained, largely due to the fact that many of the other directors had been non-residents.

Built for Keeps.

Explaining how the Great Northern had been pushed through to the coast in 1893, Mr. Hill said that $800,000 had been expended for surveying alone, as he desired to be certain that he was building his road on the best possible locations. He dropped in a little side remark at this point by saying that while riding along the Pennsylvania system once he observed a portion of that system being built on the fourth right of way, and, he said, "I wanted to avoid all that sort of thing."

The traffic of the Western country consisted mostly of lumber, and it was essential for the Great Northern to handle this lumber if it was to do business at all. The rate at that time was 90 cents a hundred pounds which was prohibitive.

"I conferred with lumber manufacturers and they thought that if they had a rate of 40 cents they could send lumber East. I knew they couldn't do it with a rate higher than 50 cents, so we made it 40 cents, and the lumber trade began to develop rapidly.

"In order to make a low rate on Eastern lumber shipments it was essential to first have a Western movement of cars to prevent the necessity of bringing empty cars West to ship the lumber in. Within four years we had so developed this trade and trade with Alaska and the Eastern islands that we were enabled to secure Eastern goods for the markets of the Orient, and thus to keep a movement of cars which meant a shipment of lumber East again at a rate making the shipment possible and profitable.

"What steps did you take to secure transportation across the Pacific, and what relation did that have to your purchase of the Burlington road stock," asked Mr. Young.

"We found that the lumber supply of the United States east of the Rockies and north of the Ohio river was more and more dependent upon the Washington and Oregon forests, and that the time was rapidly approaching when the states which were furnishing lumber to the East would not have enough lumber for their own needs (Michigan, for instance, now consumes more than she can manufacture). I was especially interested in the lumber traffic, because if there was no lumber for us to carry from the West there was nothing at all for us to carry on our road. I saw that it was only a question of time when Washington and Oregon would supply all the lumber of the country. It is soon to be so. In order to have a low rate we must have a large tonnage, and have markets to which we could send anything made in the East, and thus have a continual Eastern traffic westward. I influenced the Japanese to purchase a trial lot of American rails instead of the Belgian and English rails, and later I induced them to buy American cotton, on a guarantee that if it was not satisfactory I would pay for it.

"The cotton trade has been growing very rapidly ever since. We chartered ships to take this cotton and these rails to Japan. We can make a rate to Hongkong which will enable the Minneapolis millers to ship their flour to China if they can get the Chinese trade."

Coal Supply.

Q. What advantage if any, did you expect to derive and have you derived from the Burlington purchase in regard to the supply of coal for the country traversed by your line?

Replying to the above question Mr. Hill thought that on the west end they had a local supply of coal and on the east end coal in the past has come from Pennsylvania and West Virginia and some from Ohio, but now it was apparent that they could no longer rely on the previous resources in the east, and it is consequently of vital interest to use the supply they can obtain not only for themselves but for the public as well from the Illinois coal fields. The grades of the Burlington road enabled them to carry an enormous tonnage and the public would soon be compelled to rely upon the bituminous coal supply instead of on the anthracite from the east. This coal is a necessity to the people of the northwest, which would have to abandon the country for five months in the year if they could not get coal at reasonable prices, and they cannot get it from the east at a reasonable price. He did not claim that this was due to the strike and the local situation this year, but this was the permanent situation the northwest had got to face, and in the future they could not bring coal from the western end of their line because the haul was too far to furnish it at moderate prices.

Ore Trade With St. Louis.

Within the last week we had advices of 75,000 or 100,000 tons of iron ore to go through the winter from the iron mines of Northern Minnesota to St. Louis to load the coal cars back. The fact that the coal has to come north or that there is coal to come north makes it possible to make a lower rate on the iron ore, and together the iron ore rates and the coal rate are both affected and are both reduced to the extent that we can load the cars both ways. This is a matter we have under consideration; this iron matter we have had under consideration maybe for a couple of months, but it has culminated within the last week. We hope that it will reach 300,000 tons before spring.

Q. In reference to shipments of cotton especially, and other articles, what disadvantage was there in its being carried over separate lines under a joint tariff which you did not have, where it is carried where both roads are under the same control, for instance, in the matter of breaking bulk or anything of that kind, shifting from cars?

A. Well, it is almost a necessity, if business is to be at all permanent, to be able to control a rate. The rates on the high seas vary according to the supply and demand for ships, and we, in order to take this business west must be in a position to compete to take the traffic, one day with another. It may be that another road—it may be the line between here and St. Louis, if the Burlington was not in a position to work with us and to continue to work with us, they might find some other connection that would give them a larger division than we could of the rate; they might find or feel that it was their interest to work with somebody else. Maybe they would give them some other business in lieu of this, and we would have to hire some other road to haul that business from St. Louis here, at the best rate we could get. We could not control it except through the option of some other road. Might at any time withdraw the rate; might at any time refuse to make a joint rate with us, except on terms that would be prohibitory. And in that way we could not go very far. We would not be in a position to compete for that business. We must either take that business to the coast—we must take all the westbound business we can get to the coast, or else we must advance the rate on the lumber. Now, outside of cotton, take nails, wire, articles of that kind, that business has grown to very large dimensions, but our rate is a very low one from Lake Erie to Hongkong; it is 45 cents a hundred, $9 a ton, on those commodities. A line reaching St. Louis and all the trunk lines of the East between St. Louis and Chicago puts us in a vastly different position; and that is the reason why it was of such importance for us to control the situation. We could not control it unless we could give a market for the production of the line—products raised along our road—whether it was out of the mine or from the farm or out of the forest. If the man who produced it could not sell it, he would stop producing. And that was the problem we had to meet, and with the Burlington we find ourselves able to meet it.

Oriental Trade.

Q. Mr. Hill, are you able to state the comparative growth of that Oriental traffic since its inception up to this time?

A. The growth has been very rapid. In some commodities more rapid than in others. Last year the increase was very large in cotton goods, both raw and manufactured, and in machinery and in some other commodities it fell off. The oil, I think, was considerably reduced. The Batoum oil, by some arrangement, has that market largely and we do not carry the oil we did.

Q. Taking the aggregate of the traffic, the total amount of it.

A. Well, I should say that in 1902—the year ending June 30, 1902—the business was more than twice as great as it was the previous year ending June, 1901. We were in better position to do the business.

Q. Can you give us the quantity of cotton, raw cotton or piece goods, that was carried in 1901 and 1902?

A. I can give it to you exactly by the Great Northern.

Q. Yes, by the Great Northern we are speaking of.

A. In 1901 the amount of cotton piece goods was 13,070 bales; 1902, 64,542 bales. Raw cotton in 1901 was 13,230,000 pounds, against 41,243,000 pounds the next year.

Continuing his testimony, Mr. Hill explained that they made their ships large for the purpose of reducing rates. They could carry a cargo equal to what five ordinary freight steamers could carry with only one crew instead of five crews. In all their movements there was no intention to hinder commerce, but to promote it, and it has greatly increased commerce between the United States and foreign nations. These arrangements have only been perfected about a year and the business has more than doubled on the Great Northern road. He said he thought the total of tonnage of the Great Northern road will show the increase to be about 33 per cent, and the foreign business is increased over 100 per cent. "We have been able to reduce rates from 10 to 15 per cent in a year on the local business between the Pacific coast and the Twin Cities and Lake Superior," was his answer to the question as to what effect the increase of business had had in the reduction of rates.

Q. At the time of the purchase of the Burlington shares, was there any purpose or intention to restrain or hinder the traffic of the Burlington road itself, interstate traffic?

A. No, sir, none whatever.

Q. What has been the effect of that purchase upon the traffic of the Burlington road? Has it hindered it, restrained it, or has it increased it?

A. I think that the traffic of the Burlington road from Billings to the southwest has been very largely increased, and from here to the south the increase has been considerable.

Q. What is likely to be the future effect? Will it be to restrain or to enlarge the commerce of the road?

A. If the plan as contemplated is carried out, it should make a very large increase in the traffic. For instance, if the iron ore from Minnesota can find the furnaces in Missouri or Southern Illinois or down in that country where they get cheap coal, and bring back coal in the same cars, cars adapted for moving one moving both, that business alone should run very soon into millions of tons. That is one. I know of no place where the business would not be increased; I know of no place where it would not be increased and benefited. I can imagine none.

He further explained that the reason why they had not begun this earlier was because it was a very large undertaking for the Great Northern road alone, and that the Northern Pacific was just emerging from an embarrassment which made it inexpedient for it to join.

The question of a holding company was not part of the Burlington transaction. It was not discussed or thought of; neither was there any purpose at that time to secure control of the Northern Pacific stock.

He said one of the Great Northern directors raised the question that inasmuch as the purpose of the Burlington stock and the creation of a bond to pay for it, involved the joint and several liability of the entire amount of the purchase, it was a matter of consequence to the Great Northern to know that the Northern Pacific would not pass into the hands of people who might be interested in other directions.

He did not think that any of the officers of the Northern Pacific company had anything to do with the organization of the Northern Securities company. The Northern Securities company simply bought the stock of the Northern Pacific from the people who owned it. The corporation did not own any stock that he was aware of and at any rate, it did not sell any stock to the Northern Securities company. His own sales and those of his immediate friends, the eleven parties he had named, were absolute without any condition or trust or implied agreement or anything else. There was no understanding as to how the Northern Securities company should vote the stock—no condition of any kind attached to the sale. The sale was not the result of any agreement with each other.

Replying to questions as to whether he, Hill, solicited parties to buy the stock of the Northern Securities company, Mr. Hill stated that replying to inquiries, he told them that it was a matter they must determine for themselves—and he had so many inquiries that finally he prepared a circular letter as an answer, in which he explained that the Northern Securities company did not operate and could not operate a railroad, but could only buy and sell shares of railroads, and the value of its stock depended upon the profit made by the railroads the stock of which the Northern Securities company might acquire.

He left each inquirer to act his own pleasure without giving advice.

The Second Day.

On the second day of Mr. Hill's testimony he was cross-examined by the attorneys for the government. It was developed by his testimony that Harriman, who represents the Union Pacific's interests, is the largest individual stockholder in the Northern Securities company. This came about by the large purchase of Northern Pacific stock by the Union Pacific made during the raid in May, 1901. In response to questions, Mr. Hill said there was nothing to prevent Mr. Harriman from buying more stock of the Northern Securities company, if he was willing to pay the price asked for it by the owners. He might even buy enough to have control, but he, Hill, did not think the owners would be likely to sell it, and so that though he now has some eighty or ninety millions of the four hundred millions of stock, he did not consider it likely he would ever have control.

He explained that the organization of the Northern Securities company was to prevent any such raids as were made in 1901 and would make it very difficult even if not substantially impossible for any one person or syndicate to get control of the stock of the roads in the hands of the holding company. By having the ownership of the roads stable and not likely to be frequently changed, rates could be reduced. He thought that no more than 16 per cent of the business was competitive between the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern roads; that is, interstate business.

Mr. Hill was examined at length regarding the Great Northern mileage. He explained that the Great Northern scarcely, absolutely owned any railroad mileage, but that it operated somewhere from five to six thousand miles of road under leases and that it also owned the large portion of the stock of the old Manitoba road and some other corporations.

He also testified relative to the reduction of rates made on the Great Northern since the purchase of the Burlington system. In response to the question who directed the reduction on the Great Northern, he said it was a matter of conference between the officers and himself. He said the reduction of rates on the Great Northern was not a new thing, but was quite frequent and had been for a number of years. He said the reduction amounted to 10 or 15 per cent. On grain it was 10 per cent. It was nearly that from all places on the Great Northern which were grain shipping points and some places more. He thought the reduction was substantially the same on the Northern Pacific, but was not absolutely informed on that point. He disclaimed having personally made the changes in the traffic rates of freight, but when they were a matter of great moment he had been consulted and advised in the matter. He did not think that the rates had been reduced on lumber, pig iron or coal since the purchase of the Burlington, because those rates were abnormally lower before and much lower than were charged by the Eastern roads.

The gross earnings of the Great Northern per ton per mile were stated to be .850 and the average of the railroads of the United States was .729. He thought that the Northern Pacific was higher, probably in the neighborhood of .900. On the Atchison it was .988. Mr. Hill said that the rates on the Atchison were higher than on the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, and thought that if they charged the average rate of the Atchison it would increase their earnings $5,000,000.

Referring to the purchase of a large amount of coal land in Illinois, Mr. Hill said the Northern Securities company did not own this land at the time the present suit was begun. He made this explanation on the coal question:

Coal Supply.

Witness: I do not want to be misunderstood, and from the questions I think I have been. The Great Northern Railway company and the Northern Pacific Railway company have an interest in this country and the people living here, and, inasmuch as our winters are cold, it would be difficult for them to live here without fuel, and it is a very serious matter—it is a very serious matter for the railways. We don't know now that we would be able to run our trains to the first day of February, with the lack of supply of coal, without bringing coal from Illinois, and we don't know but we would have to give up a portion of our supply of steam coal to keep people from freezing before spring—and it is not due by any means to the anthracite strike, and I tried to make it plain yesterday that it was not; but it is due to the inability of the railroads between Lake Erie and the mines in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio to move the coal. They are unable to move the coal up to Lake Erie ports, and we are unable to get a supply. At this time we have not been able to get one-half of our purchase for the year, and navigation will close some time next month. That is the importance of the control for us of access to the coal mines of Illinois, which are the nearest coal mines to this country, and the importance of that will be apparent more and more as time goes on.

Mr. Hill further testified that when the Union Pacific desired to get control of the Burlington road Mr. Harriman came to him while they were negotiating and wanted to take a half interest, but the proposition was declined. The purchase of the Northern Pacific by the Union Pacific, he said would have left the Great Northern in a helpless condition because the Great Northern was jointly and severally responsible for two hundred millions, that being the purchase price of the Burlington stock, and if the Northern Pacific owned a joint interest in the deal, they would be responsible for one-half of that amount, but if the Northern Pacific was in the hands of a rival transcontinental line with its interest in San Francisco and from Omaha through the Platte Valley to San Francisco they could influence the Burlington to help their Southern interests and would be in a position to prevent the building up or aiding the development of the Northwest that the Great Northern had worked so long and hard to establish.

The gist of Mr. Hill's testimony during the two days he was on the stand was that the organization of the Northern Securities company was in no sense a restriction to trade. That the Great Northern and Northern Pacific and Burlington were operated separately and independently. That there was no actual merger, but that their working together was of vital interest to the Northwest. That rates had been reduced as the result of this co-operation, and could and would be still further reduced as traffic increases. That the whole proposition was within the law in every respect. That the purchase of the stock of the Northern Securities company was open to any one who had the money to pay for it and could agree with the owners as to the price. That there was no combination or agreement expressed or implied, but that the corporation was simply a holding company, really for the purpose of making the property it holds have greater stability and not likely to be purchased by parties to use to destroy other property; in fact, that the whole movement would prove most advantageous to the Northwest. Cost of the railroad and equipment having been incurred, the great increase of tonnage and business growing out of the Burlington purchase and protecting it against adverse interests would increase earnings, make lower rates possible and thus induce settlement of the country, and the building up of commercial manufacturing and agricultural interests.

Newspaper Men in Business.

The old idea that the newspaper man is unfitted for business is not confirmed by the facts. There are a large number of former newspaper men now holding high positions in Wall street. Among them is Joseph C. Hendrix, president of the Bank of Commerce, who was formerly a reporter on the Sun. James B. Dill, the corporation lawyer, who holds the record for the organization of new companies, was once a reporter on the Tribune. Daniel S. Lamont, vice president of the Northern Pacific railroad, was in the newspaper business before he become Grover Cleveland's secretary. Vice President Vanderlip of the National City was a few years ago financial editor of the Chicago Tribune. C. A. Conant, treasurer of the Morton Trust company, was a year ago Washington correspondent of the Journal of Commerce. C. S. Gleed, one of the directors of the Atchison system, had newspaper training. Col. George Harvey, formerly managing editor of the World, and now head of Harper's, has been closely identified with a number of Mr. Whitney's business enterprises. W. R. Corwine, formerly of the World, is trust officer of the Eastern Trust company. Mr. Steiner, one of the largest custom house brokers, was once connected with the Herald. Numerous other instances might be given of newspaper men who have made a success in business. The late Henry Villard was early in his career a Washington correspondent.—New York Letter to the Philadelphia Ledger.

Bending Bottles.

A glass that will not break, that can be molded into any desired form, that can be hammered without catastrophe—in short, a glass that will be as malleable as lead or any other metal is the extraordinary claim that Louis Kauffeld, glassworker, makes for a new kind of glass he has just discovered.

With an ordinary goblet made of the new material he can hammer a nail into a tough board. He can bore a hole into a glass pane, and then patch it with another piece of the same kind of glass. Coffee pots and teakettles can be made of the new substance, and will no more crack under the most intense heat than would steel.

While Kauffeld's process is unknown to anybody except himself, he recently volunteered the information that the lime and lead that are used in the manufacture of ordinary glass do not enter into the composition of this.

There are many legends concerning malleable glass. There is a story that a glassworker in ancient Venice centuries ago discovered the secret. He made glass bottles and jars that he could hammer into flattened strips without breaking them, and rolled the glass into balls, which he could throw against the walls of the town without injuring them.—Answers.

LEADER OF WOMEN

MRS. ELIZABETH CADY STANTON DIES AT HER HOME IN NEW YORK.

OLD AGE THE CAUSE OF DEATH

WELL KNOWN SUFFRAGIST WHO DEVOTED YEARS TO THE CAUSE.

SUCCUMBS TO A BRIEF ILLNESS

SHE CALLED FIRST WOMAN'S RIGHTS CONVENTION IN THIS COUNTRY.

New York, Oct. 27.—Elizabeth Cady Stanton, the well known woman suffragist, died yesterday at her home in West Ninety-fourth street, this city. Old age was given as the cause of death. She was conscious almost to the last. About a week ago Mrs. Stanton began to fail rapidly. This became more noticeable later in the week and then it was known to the family that her death was only a question of days or hours. The children with Mrs. Stanton when she died were Mrs. M. F. Lawrence and Mrs. Stanton Blatch of New York, Henry and Robert L. of New York, lawyers; Theodore, of Paris, and G. Smith, a real estate broker at Wardencliffe, Long Island. The funeral will be held on Wednesday, but the hour has not been set. The interment will be at Woodlawn cemetery.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

—o—

Mrs. Stanton was born at Johnstown, N. Y., Nov. 12, 1815. Her father was Justice Daniel Cady of the New York supreme court, and her mother was Margaret Livingston, a daughter of Col. James Livingston of Washington's staff. She was educated at Johnstown academy and at Miss Emma Willard's school in Troy, where she was graduated in 1832.

For half a century Mrs. Stanton has labored unceasingly for women's suffrage and equal rights. To her belongs the honor of having called the first woman's rights convention in the United States, and the still greater honor of having formulated the principles which for nearly fifty years have guided this great movement for the advancement of women. Mrs. Stanton was self-reliant as a child and received an excellent education. She was married in 1840, and though she has led a rather public life, has always been a true home-loving woman. At one time Mrs. Stanton spoke two hours before the legislature of New York on the married woman's property bill, which afterward became a law. She has never relaxed her zeal in the cause to which she was devoted.

WOMAN CAPTURES A THIEF.

Mrs. Timothy L. Woodruff Saves Parcel of Jewelry.

New York, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Timothy L. Woodruff, wife of the lieutenant governor of New York, was robbed of $330 worth of jewelry while out shopping recently and recovered the package, which she had just purchased, after an exciting chase in the shopping district. Mrs. Woodruff drove in her Victoria to a Broadway jeweler's and purchased a gold bracelet in which a watch was set and a diamond pendant, and then drove to a department store, where she alighted to do some shopping, leaving the box containing the jewelry on the seat of the open carriage. The package was immediately snatched by a thief who was loafing on the sidewalk. He fled, but was pursued by Mrs. Woodruff and her coachman. He was caught and forced to return the jewelry, after which Mrs. Woodruff preferred charges against him at the police station.

THIEVES GET DIAMONDS.

$8,000 Worth Taken From Vaults of a Jewelry Firm.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Diamonds valued at $8,000 were stolen from the vaults of the jewelry firm of Wecher & Weineman some time during Saturday night or early yesterday. There is no clue to the robbers. The store is located in the Masonic Temple, where a watchman is on duty all night, but he claims to have seen no trace of the robbers. The robbery was discovered late last night by a member of the firm who visited the store by chance.

BY SPLENDID BRAVERY

White Officers Save Troops From Terrible Disaster.

Aden, Arabia, Oct. 27.—Details of the fighting in Somaliland Oct. 6 between the British expeditionary force and the followers of the Mad Mullah show that a more serious disaster was only averted by the splendid example of the few white officers. As it was the British force lost a Maxim gun and 70 men killed, while 63 of their enemies (dead) were counted close to the firing line.

HOLD-UP MAN IS CAUGHT.

Deputy Gets the Drop on the Lone Bandit.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 27. — The man who held up the North Coast limited near Bearmouth and killed Engineer O'Neil Friday has been captured. Positive proof has not yet been produced against the suspect, but Sheriff Prescott of Missoula is positive he has the right man. Deputy Sheriff Mitchell was guarding a pass near Gold Creek, twenty miles from the scene of the hold-up, when he saw a man approaching. The officer concealed himself, and as the man neared him he ordered him to hold up his hands, which he did. Before the officer explained to him the cause of his arrest the man exclaimed:

"Why, I was in Drummond when the robbery was committed."

On the man, who answers the description of the robber, were two 45-caliber Colts revolvers of the pattern exhibited by the murderer. The suspect has been taken to Missoula.

TITLE IS CLEAR, SAYS MR. KNOX.

New Panama Company Can Give Unincumbered Deed to Canal Property.

Washington, Oct. 27. — Attorney General Knox has decided that if the United States should accept the offer of the new Panama Canal company submitted last spring for the sale of the canal for $40,000,000, it would receive through the parties in interest a valid and unincumbered title to the property. This decision was arrived at after a thorough and exhaustive investigation of the situation in Paris, first by special attorney, Charles W. Russell, and later by the attorney general himself. The attorney general formally submitted the opinion to President Roosevelt Saturday. It makes about 300 pages.

COLLAPSE OF A SCAFFOLD

Kills Two Men Outright and Fatally Injures Another.

New York, Oct. 27.—Two men were killed and another fatally injured by the collapse of a swinging scaffold on the tall chimney of the American Sugar Refining company in Williamsburg. The dead are John Mulroy and John Williams of Newark, N. J., and the injured Henry Cooper of Newark. The chimney on which the scaffold was hanging is 275 feet high. The men were replacing bricks. They had fastened the scaffold insecurely and it slipped, throwing Mulroy and Williams to the ground and killing them. Cooper was hurled seventy feet to the roof and fatally hurt.

WON'T NEED NEW TRIAL NOW.

Man Who Secured New Trial on a Charge of Murder, Is Murdered.

Pineville, Ky., Oct. 27. — Jesse Broughton, who was recently convicted on the charge of murdering Charles McIntyre, but who secured a new trial, was shot and killed at West Pineville late last night. Britt Harlan was badly wounded at the same time. Harlan says he, with Broughton and Joe Sparks, was sitting on the railroad talking when Will and Hoyes Peace came up and fired. Broughton is a mine boss and it is said he reprimanded the Peace boys the day before.

MURDER AT A DANCE.

Man Kicked in the Stomach and Instantly Killed.

Sharpsburg, Pa., Oct. 27. — As the result of a row at a dance held at the house of M. Sando, an Italian, Antonio Stein, lies dead at the Pittsburg morgue, and the police are searching for Antonio Rich, an Italian from Pittsburg, who is said to have committed the murder. Stein was killed almost instantly by a number of kicks in the stomach, and it is said by those present at the row that Rich was his assailant. At a late hour Rich had not been captured.

TURKS DEFEAT THE BULGARIANS.

Sanguinary Encounter Between Opposing Forces on the Frontier.

Belgrade, Servia, Oct. 27.—A daily paper here reports that severe fighting has taken place between Turks and Bulgarians, chiefly on the Uskab frontier. The most serious encounter occurred Oct. 18, when a Turkish battalion from Salonica and the strongest Bulgarian force in the country were engaged with the result that sixty Bulgarians were killed and thirty were captured. The chief of the Bulgarian band, Danow, was severely wounded.

Edward Gives Thanks.

London, Oct. 27. — The last ceremonies connected with the inauguration of the reign of King Edward VII. occurred yesterday when the king, accompanied by Queen Alexandra, the prince of Wales and almost all the members of the royal family, drove to the St. Paul's cathedral and offered up thanks for the recovery of his health, which had enabled him to be crowned.

Killed in a Football Game.

Staunton, Ill., Oct. 27. — Edward Schmidt, a member of the local football team, was injured in a game yesterday with a St. Louis team and died within ten minutes. The first half was almost completed when Schmidt, after a tackle, complained of a pain in his head. A physician was summoned hurriedly, but Schmidt died just as he arrived. The coroner will hold an inquest.

Paget Receives Sad Wound.

London, Oct. 27.—Almeric Hugh Paget, who married Miss Pauline Whitney of New York, has been accidentally shot by a friend while shooting in the country. After the shooting Mr. Paget was hurriedly sent to London, where it was found necessary to take out one of his eyes. It is believed that the sight of the other eye will not be affected.

Furious Storm at Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 27—A furious thunderstorm occurred here last night, the rainfall being 1.53 inches. Lightning struck the Grace M. E. church, doing slight damage. Wolcott's residence was also struck.

Accept Carnegie's Offer.

Yankton, S. D., Oct. 27. — Andrew Carnegie's offer of $12,000 for a free public library has been accepted. The city pledges itself to provide a suitable site for it and 10 per cent per annum for its maintenance.

WHIP THE MOROS

GEN. SUMNER IS PREPARING HIS PLANS FOR AN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN.

EXPECTS SOME LIVELY OPPOSITION

REBELLIOUS SULTAN OF BACOLOD WILL FIRST RECEIVE ATTENTION.

TRADE PROSPECTS ARE GLOOMY

WRETCHED AGRICULTURAL CONDITIONS CAUSE SOME WORRY.

Manila, Oct. 27.—Gen. Sumner has returned to Camp Vicars, island of Mindanao, where he is preparing for the campaign against the rebellious sultan of Bacolod. He anticipates a lively opposition. He will carry on the campaign on lines similar to those of the operations against the Maciu Moros, using his artillery whenever possible and saving his infantry. The Moros in the vicinity of Lake Lanao now express friendship for the Americans, and are offering to work on the military roads that Gen. Sumner is constructing. The constabulary, under the leadership of an army signal man, during the absence of the inspector, discovered a plot and raided the headquarters of the Katipunan, killing the so-called general and colonel and capturing a captain. All the records of the society and lists of the members in the province of Pampanga, Bataan and Bulacan were seized.

Cholera Gains Strong Foothold.

The cholera is gaining a strong foothold on the island of Mindanao. It is expected to spread there, as it has elsewhere in the islands. The disease continues to be bad to the province of Iloilo, island of Panay, but it is light elsewhere. It has disappeared from Manila. The cases reported up to date exceed 100,000.

Agriculture in the islands, already impaired on account of the war, rinderpest and the cholera, has been further injured by locusts. These insects have appeared in many places and are working serious injury to the crops. The advent of locusts, together with the fall in the price of silver, renders the business and industrial prospect in the Philippines gloomy.

The Chinese now control the rice situation and are smashing the English and Spanish pool with the aid of China guilds. The wretched agricultural conditions are causing for next year. The Philippine commission has decided to devote the sum of $66,000, the profit of the government sales of rice under Gen. Bell's administration, including the profits derived from the concentration villages in Batangas, La Guna and Mindoro, to the purchase of food to be distributed to the poor through the agency of the civil officials in the provinces mentioned. The general suffering among the natives is the natural result of the war and pestilence. Permanent relief cannot be expected until 1904, when it is thought agriculture will revive. Gen. Bell, with the aid of the chief of the agricultural bureau, has secured an appropriation for the purchase of seeds and machinery, and is taking great pains to instruct the natives in American methods of farming. His soldiers have discarded their guns for plows.

Poor Trade Prospects

WHAT A CHILD IS WORTH.

Iowa Court Says Three Thousand Dollars Is the Limit.

Des Moines, Oct. 27.—In a case from Webster county the supreme court decided that in this state the recovery of damages for the loss of life of a child under five years of age cannot exceed $3,000. In the original trial of the case before Judge S. M. Weaver, who is now a member of the supreme bench, the jury returned a verdict of $8,000. This, Judge Weaver cut to $6,000. The supreme court reversed the judgment, stating that the damages to the parents from the loss of the child could not exceed $3,000. Mrs. A. W. Hively of Webster county is the loser. The suit was against the county.

SAD FOR COLFAX.

Mill Containing Electric Light Plant Is Destroyed.

Menomonie, Wis., Oct. 27.—The flour and feed mill at Colfax, this county, owned by James Anderson, was burned Saturday night, also the office and warehouse. The mill was a large structure recently built and the electric light plant of the village was installed in it. The long distance telephone was also in the office and the warehouse contained much stock. The loss is about $25,000; partly insured.

WRECK ON NORTHERN PACIFIC.

Light Engine Collides With Double-Headed Freight Train.

Missoula, Mont., Oct. 27.—As a result of a collision on the Northern Pacific between a light engine eastbound, crashing into a double-headed freight train a few miles west of Hope, Idaho, P. Sayers of this city and Engineer A. L. Bussey of this city were severely injured and the three engines badly wrecked.

TRAINMEN CENSURED.

Cause of Recent Fatal Wreck in Montana.

Billings, Mont., Oct. 27.—The coroner's jury that investigated the recent wreck at Rapids, Mont., in which two persons were killed and a number were injured, have found that the crew of the east-bound Northern Pacific train were running on the time of the Burlington train. The Northern Pacific dispatcher also was censured for orders he had given the trains as to their passing place.

CASE NO. 30,611.

C. E. Boles, Dealer in Grain and Feed; Address, 505 South Water Street, Akron, Ohio—Cured in 1898.

Mr. Boles says: "Ever since the Civil War I have had attacks of kidney and bladder trouble, decidedly worse during the last two or three years. Although I consulted physicians, some of whom told me I was verging on Bright's disease, and I was continually using standard remedies, the excruciating aching just across the kidneys, which radiated to the shoulder blades still existed. As might be expected, when my kidneys were in a disturbed condition there was a distressing and inconvenient difficulty with the action of the kidney secretions. A box of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Lamparter & Co.'s drug store, brought such a decided change within a week that I continued the treatment. The last attack, and it was particularly aggravated, disappeared."

Cure Confirmed Four Years After.

Four years later Mr. Boles says: In the spring of 1898 I made a public statement of my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy cured me of terrible aching in the kidneys, in the small of my back, in the muscles of the shoulder blades, and in the limbs. During the years that have gone by I can conscientiously say there have been no recurrences of my old trouble. My confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills is stronger than ever, not only from my personal experience, but from the experience of many others in Akron, which have come to my notice."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine which cured Mr. Boles, will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

A Philosophical Maiden.

Philosophy may not be a feminine gift, but there is one tiny maiden who is never content unless she knows the "cause why" of things. She endeavors, as a rule, to solve the small problems which come within her range of vision herself, and does not ask until she has given up all hope of answering the question herself. Great-uncle Robert, who was at the small maiden's house the other day, is a great favorite, with a shining bald head, a long beard and a pleasant smile. He had been lying on the couch for some time, and the little girl had been sitting near him in deep meditation. Finally, she drew a deep sigh, as of great disappointment, and drew near the couch, evidently preparing to ask a question.

"Well, what is it, little one?" asked Uncle Robert.

Red Snow.

In the arctic regions early explorers were astonished to find large quantities of red snow; but the phenomenon is now familiar to men of science, who know that red snow, like a green garden fence, is due to the presence of unicellular algae, the only difference being in the coloring matter of the protoplasm. It is said that acres of snow are frequently covered in a single night by these tiny plants.—Good Words.

ST. JACOB'S OIL.

In cases where bronchitis has become chronic from want of proper treatment in the earlier stages, there is nothing so good as Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, in conjunction with which is strongly advised the use of St. Jacobs Oil as an outward application along the front of the throat, from close up under the chin to well down to the top of the chest; the one remedy assists the other and as intended, they work in complete unison. The wonderful penetrating power of St. Jacobs Oil enables it to reach the adhesion of foreign matter, which lines the bronchial tubes and which makes breathing more and more difficult. As these adhesions become inflamed and enlarged St. Jacobs Oil causes such adhesions to break away, making expectoration easier and more free. Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, drank slowly and very hot, soothes and heals the parts, is comforting and quieting, stops the cough and relieves the breathing. This manner of treatment (and there is no other two remedies that will work together so successfully) reaches the difficulty from the outside and the inside at the same time. St. Jacobs Oil reaches the roots of the adhesion and assists Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea to clearing them; then both remedies act to unison in healing and curing. The above remarks apply with equal force in cases of asthma, croup, whooping cough, enlarged tonsils and all bronchial affections. Every family should have St. Jacob's Oil and Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea always in the house in order that they may be promptly used in the first stages. Often the maladies develop with wonderful rapidity and complications take place with equal suddenness.

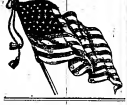
WEDNESDAY, OCT. 29, 1902.



By the way, when you go to vote on Tuesday next don't forget to cast a ballot in favor of the township system of caring for the poor. You will never regret it.

Halvor Steenerson, our next congressman, will be here Saturday. He is the ablest man that has ever sought election to congress from this district and everybody should turn out to see him and give him a rousing reception.

If the railroad interests succeed in defeating Gov. VanSant on next Tuesday, will the state ever produce another public official who will dare to oppose corporate interests? This is a question for every voter to consider before he casts his vote.

If the people fail to show their appreciation of Gov. Van Sant's anti-corporation fight no other candidate for office will have any incentive to oppose corporate greed for the public good.

O. H. Peters, republican candidate for county auditor, is one of St. Hilaire's old time residents, having resided here since 1884. During all these years Mr. Peters has been making friends for himself and as a public official for several years he has proved himself in every way worthy of the public trust. He is thoroughly competent to fill the office which he seeks and will without doubt receive a handsome vote from his friends.

For the first time in the history of Minnesota politics a railroad president has taken the stump for a political party. Mr. Hill recently spoke to Grant county farmers, and the democratic committee is sending out his speech all over the state. Last week he spoke at Crookston, and again the democrats circulate his speech freely. It certainly looks as if the democrats are trying hard to earn the contributions from the Northern Securities company, of New Jersey.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Truly the railroad magnate seems to be deeply interested in defeating Gov. Van Sant, and evidently is furnishing some of the price for running the democratic machine. The democrats are making strenuous efforts to induce the populists to forsake their own nominee and vote for Rosing, but it will take more than railroad money and merger influence to carry that scheme through if the populists are of the same kind they were a few years ago.

"CORNER SALOON" South of the Bank.

J. WEEKS, REPUBLICAN candidate for clerk of court, was born Sept. 15, 1862, on a farm in Racine township, Mower county, Minn., and at the age of 19 he graduated from school with high honors and commenced his struggle in life by teaching in the winter and working on the farm in the summer. This he continued for five years and by being careful and making everything count he saved up enough to make him feel independent, and in the fall of 1885 he ventured in matrimony, and took for his life partner the daughter of his neighbor, Rose O. Dalan, and this union has been blessed by six children—three boys and three girls. The following spring Mr. Weeks engaged in the mercantile business, which he followed for twelve years with good success until the panic of 1893, when he lost heavily. This, however, did not discourage him and in the spring of 1898 he came to the northwest, and by careful management and his business experience he succeeded in retrieving a portion of his lost fortune, and is at present one of the most enterprising men of Thief River Falls.

Mr. Weeks has always been connected with public enterprises and business and has filled various town, village, school and society offices with honor, holding four of them at one time for seven years. When first elected to the council of Grand Meadow he found that village in debt $1,800, and upon his retirement eight years later it had many new improvements besides $1,200 in its treasury.

Mr. Weeks is an active church and Sunday school worker; is well liked by all who know him; is a thorough business man, and has all the qualifications for a good official. A vote for Mr. Weeks on November 4th is a vote for the right man.

Voters of Red Lake County :::: ::::

READ! THEN CHOOSE!

ON NOVEMBER FOURTH, next, the voters of Red Lake county are required to make a choice and vote for the election of a man to guide and care for the titles of their lands and to fulfill the duties of register of deeds of Red Lake county. The importance and necessity of a wise choice in an office of such far-reaching possibilities is felt by all intelligent voters, knowing as they do, that their landed interests and the titles to their homes will rest in the hands of the man whom, on November fourth next, the voters of Red Lake county will elect to the office of register of deeds.

In this campaign, two candidates seek preferment at the polls; Thomas A. Crampe, of Red Lake Falls, republican nominee, and Samuel Gibeau, the present incumbent of the office, peoples party nominee.

Mr. Crampe, for the past ten years has been grain buyer for the Johnson & Marshall elevator at Red Lake Falls, Minn. Samuel Gibeau, the present efficient and courteous incumbent of the office, was born near Chicago, Illinois, on April 3, 1868. He received a thorough education in both French and English at St. Boniface college in Manitoba. He was one of the first settlers in what is now Red Lake county, coming here in 1882. In 1890 he established a mercantile business in the village of Lambert, this county, which he successfully conducted until 1899 when he sold his interests to Mr. Louis Doucet.

As a man of public trust Mr. Gibeau is well and favorably known. He has been identified with the Alliance and later with the peoples party since he attained his majority and served as secretary of the county central committee for several years, and was always the chosen delegate of his township to the peoples party conventions during his residence in Lambert. He served as town clerk of Lambert from 1888 to 1898 and as postmaster of Lambert from 1890 to 1898. At the organization of Red Lake county in 1896 he was selected chairman of its first board of county commissioners and it is due to his executive and business abilities in co-operation with his fellow commissioners that the intricacies of organization were successfully and economically mastered. Of the ten officials appointed by the board at the organization, five have been twice elected to the same offices, thus conclusively endorsing the sound judgment of Mr. Gibeau and his fellow commissioners.

In 1899 Mr. Gibeau was elected register of deeds, and his energetic and capable management of the office gave such universal satisfaction that he was re-elected in 1900, by an increased majority over three other candidates.

In assuming the office of register of deeds Mr. Gibeau found that the records of Red Lake county were copied into a system of books entirely inadequate to the demands of modern efficiency and he set to work devising a system and form of record which would facilitate the reference and tracing of titles. Not finding just what was wanted in the market, he drafted a form and had a set of tract indexes ruled and printed, which met the requirements of tracing the government lots and minor sub-divisions of the meanderings along the Red Lake river, which the old form failed to do.

Other changes in the alphabetical indexes and in the reception record tending to facilitate and expedite record searches are contemplated and it is safe to say that no register of deeds in the state has more at heart the convenience and faithful service of the patrons of his office than has Mr. Gibeau. He has proven himself to be a trustworthy, competent and obliging official; thoroughly conversant with the law governing the duties of his office and especially careful in allowing no defectively drawn instrument to go upon record, thereby caring for the titles of the homes of the people and saving possible expensive litigation.

Part of the duties of the register of deeds is that of the compilation of abstracts of titles, which requires certain legal attainments and a careful and competent man. In this particular branch of his duties Mr. Gibeau has been unusually successful. His knowledge of the laws of conveyance and probate proceedings and his reliability and experience as an abstractor enables him to place this branch of his duties on a high plane of excellence.

Mr. Gibeau is now before the voters of Red Lake county as a candidate for re-election. His record is one that any man can well be proud of. His unquestioned ability, his faithful, hard-working disposition, his obliging and courteous service as an official are all qualities which stand unquestioned. The many who have been doing business at his office are all hearty in their praise of his efficient service and stand ready to acknowledge and endorse his administration of the office.

The voters of Red Lake county, regardless of partisanship, know that Mr. Gibeau has made a faithful and competent official, and know that a change at this time is not conducive to the betterment of the records.

Knowing these facts and having in mind the improvement of the records we ask you in all fairness to endorse Mr. Gibeau and to cast your vote for acknowledged and unquestioned ability and courteous service; resting assured that if you re-elect Samuel Gibeau, his past record and service is your best guarantee of a wise choice in the office of register of deeds.

ADAM ZEH.

From Red Lake Falls Gazette:—

The Gazette takes pleasure in presenting this week the cut of Adam Zeh, county auditor, and candidate for re-election. Mr. Zeh was well known to the people of Red Lake county before his election as auditor, and is one of the most popular men in the county today. Four years ago he was elected to the important position he now holds, and so well did he discharge the duties of the office that he was re-elected two years ago by the largest majority ever recorded for a county candidate in Red Lake county, his total vote being 1465 to 687 for his competitor. Thus Adam Zeh ran far ahead of Bryan, who received 1092 votes and but 70 votes behind Lind, who received 1535. This, after he had been tried in office for two years, was an unmistakable indorsement by the people. And why should they not endorse Adam Zeh? He is one of the very best officers who ever served the people in any capacity. He has friends who will fight for him to the last ditch.

Coming to Red Lake county in the early days, nearly a quarter of a century ago, the eldest son of a widowed mother, the family experienced those hardships which are so often the lot of the pioneers. As one writer says, how much do we not owe to the pioneers, whose sacrifices on the frontier, never adequately portrayed, paved the way for the advancement, prosperity and comforts we are now enjoying. Only those who leave the centres of civilization, where advantages for culture and education abound, to take up the strenuous and often thankless life of a frontiersman, know what the sacrifice means. The educational advantages here in those early days were few, but Adam Zeh is a genius in his way, and secured such a practical education by home study, that he could from the first handle the complicated affairs of the office without the slightest difficulty. In fact he has constantly improved the system and the service. The writer never knew a clearer-headed man. His exceptional natural brightness, combined with his practical experience, make him peculiarly fitted for the duties of the office, and he has made one of the best county auditors in the state. When candidate for state senator, Sam Iverson, was here a couple of weeks ago, he authorized the statement that Mr. Zeh was recognized by the state auditor's office as a strong officer, that he stood high in the estimation of the state auditor, and in his opinion ought to be elected, regardless of politics. Mr. Iverson has been State Auditor Bob Dunn's deputy for years, and knows whereof he speaks.

Perhaps the most important work that has been handled for the taxpayers by Auditor Zeh, is the ditch matter. To have practically the handling of $100,000 of ditching contracts, is a responsibility of colossal proportions. And to Mr. Zeh's credit be it said, he not only proved equal to the task, but made the best record of any auditor in the Red River Valley in economy in ditch matters.

The following statement gives an idea of the amount in dollars and cents saved to the taxpayers of Red Lake county by the able management of the county officers in charge of the work:

Ditch No. 1, Marshall county, length of ditch, 21 miles, average viewing and engineering expense per mile, $73.

Wyandotte-River Falls Ditch No. 2, Red Lake county, average viewing and engineering expense per mile, $29. Here is a difference in favor of Red Lake county of $44 a mile, on the items of viewing and engineering alone, this average for the 100 miles of Red Lake county ditches, would mean a saving of $4400 to the taxpayers on this item alone. Nor is this the main saving. In every instance, the ditch work in Red Lake county has been let at lower prices than was paid elsewhere, the price per cubic yard in Red Lake county ranging from 7 8-10 cents to 11c, with the exception of the Wyandotte ditch. The average saving as compared with other counties is over 15 per cent, or about $15,000.

This is what good business methods mean, and this is only one example of the way affairs have been administered in the auditor's office by Auditor Zeh.

Mr. Zeh has lived in Red Lake county for so many years, and stands so high in the estimation of the people, that it would be useless to recur to his personality. The people of Red Lake county, many of whom have known him for a quarter of a century, are his friends, and the ballots on Nov. 4th will again demonstrate this as they have demonstrated it in the past.

VAN SANT WINS WORLD-WIDE FAME

Valiant Fight for the Rights of the People Makes His Name a Household Word Throughout the Whole Nation.

Fearlessly Braves Bitter Opposition of Great Railroad Combine That Is Now Doing All Money Can Do to Defeat Him.

Will Be Re-elected by an Overwhelming Majority as an Indorsement of His Action and a Rebuke to Monopoly.

Few men are as well known today in the United States as is Samuel R. Van Sant, governor of Minnesota. There are not many people in this great land who cannot give the name of the governor of this state; and yet there are but few other governors of all the states in the union whose names even the best informed citizens know. To be one of the distinguished men of a nation of 80,000,000 of people is an honor not to be lightly treated; it is a matter of great pride to every loyal Minnesotan that our governor is known and honored throughout our country. No citizen can but feel a thrill of satisfaction to have those of distant states speak in high words of praise of the official head of our state.

Gov. Van Sant deserves this honor and this distinction, for he has won it by being true to the people. That he is a man of courage every incident in his life shows. Never has he winced in the face of danger, never has he turned his back on a public or private duty. He is every inch a man and a fighter. Yet full of fighting blood as he is, he never seeks for trouble, and there is not in his nature one trace of the vindictive or of the spirit of revenge. He is as gentle as he is brave, and as kindly as he is courageous. Indeed, it has often been said of him that if he has a fault it is his too big-heartedness. He will often do himself injury or injustice in an endeavor to help others, or to avoid doing others a possible hurt. He is eminently a man of the people, and like that other great champion of popular rights, President Roosevelt, he never hesitates in the face of an emergency, no matter what the personal result may be to himself.

> The Democratic campaign is not a campaign for Rosing, but is against Van Sant. No reasons are being given why Mr. Rosing should be elected; he outlines no policy, and has no record. But every effort is made to discredit Gov. Van Sant and personal abuse is the chief weapon used.

When the question of the merging of the three great railroad systems, the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington, came to his official notice he did not shirk or temporize. He grappled at once the situation and the danger to our state. He saw that two-thirds of Minnesota, the territory now most rapidly developing, was completely in the grasp of two of these roads; that in all that vast portion of our state there are no other means of railway transportation. He saw that the combination of these two roads meant a shutting out of all other roads and an absolute monopoly of the transportation business of two-thirds of the state. He saw that it was the death of railroad competition. He knew, too, the power of such a combination to wreck the political future of any citizen, but he never faltered or wavered. As on the field of battle he saw before him only his country's flag and the state's welfare. He was elected to stand between the people and just such a danger, and he instantly decided upon action. The letter of the law of the state was plain. There could be no question as to its intent, and the legislature had passed it to meet just such an emergency. The only question was the ability of the state to break down the barriers of technical law points raised by keen corporation lawyers, and so force the matter to the plain issue. The machinery of the state's law department was at once set at work on behalf of the people. The governor grappled the problem, and not discouraged by temporary failure, nor deterred by threats, he pushed the suits until he has now the satisfaction of knowing that there are three well under way against the merger company, the Northern Securities Company of New Jersey. That these suits will be fought to a finish is a certainty if Gov. Van Sant is re-elected. He has braved the bitter opposition of the railroad combination, and it is doing all money can do to defeat him; but he has not, and he never will, hesitate to do his duty and enforce the law. The people know this. They know that if he is re-elected the state's suit, the one most feared by the railroads, will not be dropped. And they are going to elect him by an overwhelming majority as an indorsement of his action in their behalf, and a rebuke to monopoly that seeks to control not alone the transportation of the state, but its politics.

Mr. Rosing says that the railroad merger question is no longer a political issue, that it is in the courts and the courts may be trusted to take care of it. Through his committee, however, he says that there is not a case now pending in courts on the merger question. How easy it would be for Mr. Rosing, if elected governor, through the support of these same merger railroads, to repay them by having the suit brought by the state, which is the suit most feared by the roads, dropped. The people will take no chances on that.

LOOK OUT FOR THE ROORBACKS

Democrats Resort to Despicable Tactics Early in the Campaign—More False and Startling Tales May Be Expected.

This next week will doubtless be full of Democratic roorbacks. They have been using this sort of argument freely even early in the campaign, and will probably fill the last week with them. A roorback is simply a falsehood used for two purposes: First, to keep the other side denying, and, second, with the hope that some people will believe it. It is safe to take it for granted that any startling tales, sprung late in the campaign, are absolutely false, or they would have been used earlier.

As samples of a Democratic roorback up to this time is the interview used by the Globe, in which Gov. Van Sant was represented as being opposed to the striking coal miners. The Globe did not stop to ask if this interview was true or false, though Gov. Van Sant's well known friendly feeling toward labor and his many public and private acts in behalf of labor, marked it as false to all who knew him. The Globe published the fake interview, and sent out a large extra edition. It was compelled to retract the next day, and to apologize editorially; but was careful that no extra edition of the retraction was sent out.

> There are two men in the United States who stand out conspicuously in public life for the protection of popular rights; those two men are Theodore Roosevelt and Samuel R. Van Sant.—Oscar Hallam, St. Paul.

Next was the assertion that the anti-merger suits were all "bluster," and that not a suit was pending in the courts against this railroad combination. At this same time everyone knew that there were three suits pending, and are well advanced to the course of trial in the courts.

Next was the tale that Gov. Van Sant and the Republican leaders had taken an "oath" not to give office to any Swedes. This was put in a Swedish paper, and 100,000 circulars containing it have been sent out. Yet Peter E. Hanson, secretary of state, was Swedish-born, and is on the ticket with Gov. Van Sant. Gov. Van Sant gave E. A. Nelson the office of state librarian, and made Mr. Schulz assistant superintendent of public instruction, and a dozen other offices in the capitol building are held by Swedish-Americans, while a hundred or more are employed in the grain inspection and weighing departments, with Mr. Quist as chief weighmaster, and every institution in the state employs many more. Mr. Fullerton, state game warden, alone, has had as many as seventeen Swedish-Americans under his employ at one time this season at the state fish hatchery.

Again, the Democratic railroad organ springs the startling statement that the proposed gross earnings amendment will lessen, and not increase the tax on railroads. The impotence of this statement and its truth is sufficiently shown by the ownership of the paper which makes it, the St. Paul Globe.

Such are some of the Democratic roorbacks thus far in the campaign. Look out for more of them, even more absurd and ridiculous than these.

SENATOR NELSON'S TRIBUTE.

Van Sant Among Best Governors the State Has Had.

Samuel R. Van Sant is among the best governors this state has had. At a great and momentous juncture he stood guard, like the true soldier he is, for the interests of the people of this state. When an attempt was made to consolidate two great transcontinental railroads, he raised his voice to this menace to the welfare of the state. He did not remain an idle spectator to this attempt. At first he was the object of ridicule by some; but when our great President Roosevelt took up the battle against the trusts and applied the Sherman anti-trust law, the people began to appreciate the manly stand and the fearless policy of our own great Van Sant. If we lay down our arms now, it will give these great corporate interests a taste of blood, and they will feel strengthened to make an onslaught on our young and vigorous president.—Senator Knute Nelson.

FARMERS SOLID FOR VAN SANT

Even more than on account of his merger stand, the farmers of the state indorse Gov. Van Sant because of the record of his administration in regard to the prison binding twine and the state grain inspection. These two issues are sweeping the rural vote into the Republican column. It is almost the irony of fate. It was upon these identical issues that the Democrats won their single victory in Minnesota. Under the Lind administration, the grain inspection department lost over $3,000. Under the first year of Gov. Van Sant's administration, the department showed a profit of $9,493.82. Under the second Van Sant year the profit was $25,458.67. No other argument is needed.

The prison twine plant, since 1894, has made a net profit each year ranging from $20,000 to $70,000, with the single exception of the year 1900, under the Lind administration, when the plant made less than $16,000, after forcing the farmers to pay 2 cents per pound higher than trust figures, where in all other years it has ranged from 2 to 4 cents lower than the trust price.

These two facts alone defeat every claim that the Democrats might put forward in behalf of their candidates.—St. Paul Dispatch.

GOV. S. R. VAN SANT.

FRIENDLY TO LABOR

VAN SANT'S ATTITUDE ON STRIKE

Governor's Sympathy Was With the Miners—Refutes Bogus Globe Interview.

For the first time in the history of our country organized labor has received national recognition. President Roosevelt distinctly stated that he took part in the settlement of the coal miners' strike merely as a private citizen, but the fact remains that he accomplished his purpose by virtue of his high office as president. The presidents of the coal-carrying roads refused to meet or treat with Mr. Mitchell, the representative of the miners' union, but the president of the United States did not hesitate to consult with him, and they held many private conferences. Organized labor, therefore, can well feel that it has had a higher recognition than that from mere railroad presidents, and that a Republican president of their country has reached out the hand of sympathy and fellowship to them.

> President Roosevelt and Gov. Van Sant stand for the same political principle—that the rights of the people must come first.

The settlement of this great strike, which threatened positive disaster to the people, shutting off from them one of the necessities of life, has been a distinct triumph for Republican government. It marks an era in our labor history, and goes far toward settling what is to be the great problem of this century—the harmonizing of the relations of capital and labor, under the tremendous development of our industrial and commercial interests. The rights of the employer, the rights of the employed, and outside of and even above these, the rights of the people at large, are all to be considered. In this strike the sympathy of the great mass of the people was with the miners. This feeling was tersely stated by Gov. Van Sant in his interview refuting the bogus interview published in the St. Paul Globe. The governor says:

> Gov. Van Sant stands as the champion of the people against railroad monopoly.

"The refusal of the operators and the willingness of the miners to arbitrate, when in conference with President Roosevelt, has justly enlisted public sympathy on their side, and I share it to the fullest extent.

"A great public calamity threatens the nation, and I believe that the president would be justified to using heroic measures to open the mines, and I trust that he will find some method to do so."

NEW ERA IN TAXATION

PLACE MINNESOTA IN VANGUARD

Constitutional Amendment on Taxation a Long Stride Forward—Van Sant Unjustly Criticised.

One of the grounds on which it is sought to incite opposition to Gov. Van Sant is his agency in procuring the passage of the law creating a tax commission to revise the tax laws, and in calling an extra session of the legislature to pass the code prepared by that commission. Nothing could be more unjust. There has long been an urgent demand for a revision of our tax laws. The governor in recommending and the legislature in taking steps to that end, were in entire accord with public sentiment. The gentlemen he appointed on the commission were well qualified for the task. But when they came to deal with the knotty problem of taxing personal property they ran afoul of the constitutional provisions that made any radical change in the existing system impossible. They recognized this fact in their report, which was a very luminous and intelligent treatise on the whole question of taxation. They framed a law excellent to most of its provisions. The legislature enacted some of the provisions of their bill, which were a great improvement on the old law. After a long discussion, the chapters relating to personal property were defeated; but the discussion resulted in the framing and passage of the constitutional amendment now before the people, which, although far from perfect, embodies the most advanced principles of taxation, and will, if adopted, place Minnesota in the vanguard of the states in the liberal power it confers on the legislature to place our tax laws on a sound and just economical basis. So that the final results of the governor's initiative in this tax reform movement were worth many times the cost of the extra session. The educative value of the discussion in and out of the legislature cannot be overestimated, and one of the men it served to educate was the governor himself, who finally became and is now an ardent champion of the constitutional amendment. That amendment is one of the great achievements of the Republican party, and its adoption will mark a new era in the tax legislation of the country.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

> President Roosevelt and Gov. Van Sant stand for the same political principle—that the rights of the people must come first.

> Be sure to vote for the constitutional amendments; they are in the interests of the people.

BID FOR SUPPORT OF THE RAILROADS

Democratic Party Comes Out Strongly Against an Increase in Gross Earnings Tax on Railroads.

The St. Paul Globe, the Absolute Property of J. J. Hill, Wages Fierce Warfare Against Proposed Amendment.

Utter Fallacy and Inconsistency of the Arguments Put Forth by the Democratic Organ Against the Amendment.

The expected has happened. The Democratic party is opposing the amendment providing for an increase of the railroad gross earnings tax, and this is a part of the bargain of its leaders, to gain railroad support and railroad money. The campaign against this amendment was naturally started in the Democratic railroad organ, the St. Paul Globe. The Globe is owned absolutely by James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railroad company.

Knowing the source of this attack on the gross earnings amendment, there is little more that need be said to the people as to the merits of this opposition. The Globe argues that if this amendment is adopted, the tax paid to the state of the railroads will be decreased, rather than increased. If this were true, would the official organ of the Great Northern, a newspaper owned and wholly controlled by the president of that company, oppose its adoption by the people? Do the railroads in general oppose a measure that will decrease their taxes? Would Mr. Hill's paper oppose a law that would decrease the tax of his merger railroads? Yet this is just what the opposition to this amendment asserts, in Mr. Hill's own paper.

Moreover, for the past ten years this same issue has been before the people. Every attempt to have this law for an increase of the gross earnings tax on railroads adopted by the legislature and submitted to the people, has been fought by the railroads. Paid attorneys of the roads have appeared before committees to argue against it; paid lobbyists of the roads have used their peculiar system of argument against it, and money has been lavishly used to defeat it. If it was to reduce the tax of the railroads, why have they fought it so bitterly for the past ten years, and spent thousands of dollars to defeat it? Why have they used every argument and every means to keep the people from getting a chance to vote on it? Why, then, does the only newspaper in Minnesota owned wholly by a railroad president, take the lead against it, and tell the people they should not vote for it? One thing is absolutely certain, it is not because it will reduce the tax of Mr. Hill's railroad.

What, in brief, is the history of this proposed law, making the increase in the gross earnings tax? It was drawn shortly after Gov. Van Sant came into office, at the request of Attorney General Douglas, by ex-Attorney General Childs. The first draft of the bill was then thoroughly reviewed by Mr. Douglas, in consultation with Mr. Childs. Both these gentlemen spent a great deal of time and much labor in investigating the law bearing upon the subject; and after the bill was drafted, Mr. Douglas requested ex-Gov. John Lind, who had then gone out of office, to give his opinion upon the law as drawn. Mr. Lind spent an entire day in the state library looking over the cases suggested by Mr. Douglas, and made several minor changes in the bill as submitted to him; but the language of the bill, covering interstate commerce was not changed, and was fully agreed upon by these three gentlemen. Mr. Douglas has in his possession not only the bill drawn by Mr. Childs, but the bill as changed by himself, and as separately drafted by Mr. Lind; and as to this clause covering interstate commerce, the three absolutely agree.

PRAISED BY ALL ALIKE.

Labor Bureau Under Republican Management Accomplishes Great Work.

There is one department of Gov. Van Sant's administration which has been praised alike by Democrats and Republicans and which will add great strength to the Republican ticket in certain circles. That is the labor bureau. John O'Donnell, himself a laboring man, took hold of the office that, since its inception had been run in a routine manner, and in one year made it the most-talked-of labor department in the United States. Such men as Carroll D. Wright have manifested great interest in the new lines of work undertaken by Mr. O'Donnell, and labor commissioners of other states have been wondering how Minnesota's bureau accomplished so much. It is not too much to say that, for the first time in the state's history, Minnesota really has a labor bureau that is worthy the name. Gov. Van Sant was interested in labor, and placed a practical, earnest man at the head of the department, and labor will not forget the benefits derived from the efficient operation of its own bureau under the past administration.—St. Paul Dispatch.

> Single-handed and alone S. R. Van Sant is making a fight against all the enormous wealth of that great railroad monopoly, the Northern Securities company, which is being poured out to the Democrats. He is the champion of the people, and the people will stand by him.

KIND OF "BLUSTER" THE PEOPLE WANT

Democrats Brazenly Declare That Van Sant's Anti-Merger Action Has Been All "Bluster"—Clever Scheme That Will Not Work.

The Democrats, by their speeches and in circulars, have openly declared that the anti-merger action of Gov. Van Sant has been all "bluster." They have had the effrontery to say:

"What have we to show for all the bluster about the merger? After all the talk and the lapse of a year, there is not a case even pending against the merger in the courts. There have been difficulties, we are told. All the parties have not been summoned and the cases fall flat. If the law had been violated any lawyer with sufficient knowledge to secure a certificate entitling him to practice knows that all the parties to the suit must be brought into court. Anything short of this is subterfuge.

While this is what the Democrats say, what are the facts, and then what do the people think of a party and its candidates that will make such statements? Not many people in this state can fail to know that suits are pending in the courts against the Northern Securities company. The daily papers this last week were full of the testimony of President Hill and others, taken before Examiner Mr. Fred G. Ingersoll, at St. Paul, in the suit ordered by President Roosevelt, under the Sherman anti-trust law. This was the continuation of the testimony taken in New York the first of this month. Solicitor General Richards of the United States; Assistant United States Attorney Beck and Associate Counsel Judge Day were to St. Paul in charge of the case in behalf of the United States. Mr. Grover, general counsel of the Great Northern; Mr. Bunn, general counsel of the Northern Pacific; ex-United States Attorney General Griggs, special counsel for the Northern Securities company, and Judge Young, the personal counsel of President Hill, appeared for the defense, making the most notable array of lawyers that ever were in court in any case in this state. If this case was not in court, and if it was not considered a very serious case and a menace to the securities company, what were all these lawyers doing in our state?

Mr. Ingersoll has also been appointed examiner to the case brought by the State of Minnesota against the merger company, and the testimony will soon be heard by him in it. As a matter of fact, this is the suit of which the Northern Securities company is most afraid, and undoubtedly the purpose of the Democrats in endeavoring to make it appear that no merger suits are pending in the courts is a part of their bargain with the Northern Securities company. How easy it would be if the people could be made to believe this, and Mr. Rosing should accidentally be elected governor by the liberal use of railroad money, for him to quietly drop the state's suit against these roads. It is a very clever scheme on their part, but it will not work. The people know what Gov. Van Sant will do, and they know that as long as he is governor this suit will not be dropped, but will be pushed vigorously. Moreover, a third suit is pending against the merger, brought by the State of Washington, through the influence of Gov. Van Sant, and it has been held good by the supreme court of the United States.

With these three cases, not only pending, but so far advanced in the courts, what do the people think of this bold and false statement of the Democrats, scattered broadcast over the state, and what other purpose can it have than to make it possible for the state's suit to be dropped if the railroad candidate could be elected?

> Last winter at Washington the great trust magnates declared openly that there were two men in public office who would never be re-elected; these two men were President Roosevelt and Gov. Van Sant.

"We feel grateful to you, Mr. President, for the patriotic efforts which you have made to bring about an honorable settlement of the strike; efforts which you continued despite the remarkable spirit and conduct which you at first found in the company's managers."—John Mitchell, President of the Coal Miners' Union, to Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States.

THE PEOPLE VERSUS THE RAILROADS

Real Contest in the Present Campaign Is Between the People and the Great Northern Securities Company.

It is time the people of Minnesota knew who the real contestants are in this state campaign. On the ballots they will find the names of "S. R. Van Sant, Republican," and "L. A. Rosing, Democrat," as candidates for governor. But they are not the actual contestants, and it is time this fact was brought right home to the citizens of this great state. The real contest to be settled November 4th is not between Mr. Van Sant and Mr. Rosing, it is not even between the Republican party and the Democratic party, it is between the people of Minnesota and the Northern Securities Company of New Jersey. The issue to be settled is whether the people of this state are to run their own affairs or whether they are to be managed by this New Jersey corporation; whether the people of this state shall say who shall be their governor or whether the Northern Securities Company shall name him. This is said not haphazard nor for political effect, but advisedly and the facts show the truth of the statement.

Mr. Rosing, in his opening address, said of the anti-merger suits brought at the request of Gov. Van Sant, that while the governor had done what was right, that this merger question was now in the courts and was not a political issue; that the court would take care of it and that further agitation of the matter would waste time. At that time it looked as though Mr. Rosing might be in a sense right, but it is now a most important political question, and has been made so, not by Gov. Van Sant, but by the Northern Securities Company itself, which has made Mr. Rosing its candidate, and by every means in its power has been attempting to defeat Gov. Van Sant, until today the question for the voter to decide is not if he will vote for Mr. Van Sant or Mr. Rosing, but if he will vote that the people of Minnesota continue to be their own masters, or for turning the state over to a foreign railroad corporation.

Soon after the Democratic headquarters were opened evidences were shown of a generous campaign fund. The committee did not take headquarters at the Merchants' Hotel, they could not get rooms enough, they said. They evidently needed much more room for the work to be done, and they engaged most of the upper floor of a business block. At once machinery was set to work that meant a most expensive campaign, and ever since then money has been used by the Democrats with a liberality never before known in Minnesota politics. Newspapers have been subsidized, Republican newspapers have been paid for publishing the Democratic bulletins and Democratic speeches as advertising. Two Republican dailies were each offered $750 to publish Mr. Rosing's speech, and $500 to publish his biography, and it was refused. A Swedish Republican newspaper was offered $1,500 simply not to support Mr. Van Sant, and refused it. Paid articles have been published in Chicago and Milwaukee newspapers, and these papers sent out by the tens of thousands to the voters of the state. Circulars and pamphlets have been sent out by the one hundred thousands. A force of from fifteen to twenty stenographers and typewriters have been kept busy for weeks. Expensive lithographs have plastered the state, and hired workers have everywhere been sent out in the guise of peddlers, spectacle venders, book canvassers, and even tramps. These things are but a few of the evidences of a lavish use of money. Where did this money come from? The Democrats do not now have the grain inspection department to assess monthly, as two years ago, and they have no state officials to voluntarily contribute to the campaign. Where, then, do they get their money?

Again, every source from which the Republicans might get active support in the campaign has been cut off wherever these railroad interests have had the necessary influence. Every Republican speaker, every Republican committeeman and worker traveling on these merged railroads has paid his fare. Gov. Van Sant himself pays for every mile he rides on their trains. Yet the Great Northern "Flyer," which is supposed to stop for no one, is stopped to accommodate Democratic speakers.

The St. Paul Globe has for weeks been filled with personal abuse of Gov. Van Sant and other Republican candidates. The governor has been cartooned in the most insulting manner by that paper. He has been accused of paying no tax on his steamboats in Minnesota, when it is well known that he personally does not own a single boat. The boats that he is interested in belong to a company organized in Iowa, a great many years ago by Gov. Van Sant's father, who lived in that since and died there but a few months ago, and being an Iowa company of course it pays its taxes there. But Gov. Van Sant's own personal tax is very large, larger than some men who are supposed to be millionaires. The Globe has also attacked Mr. Ray Jones, candidate for lieutenant governor, and Mr. Jacobson, who for years has fought the battles of the people in the legislature, because he is supporting Mr. Van Sant. It has ridiculed the proposed tax code, aimed at concealed wealth, and has in one day had as many as four leading editorials abusive of Republicans. No other newspaper in the state on either side has shown one-tenth of the activity in this campaign that the Globe has. Who owns the St. Paul Globe? Mr. James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railway Company and of the Northern Securities Company.

The Globe, moreover, has openly opposed the constitutional amendment for the increase of the railway gross earnings tax, and it is significant that the Democrats receiving financial support for their campaign wholly from the railroads has made no effort to bring this amendment favorably to the attention of the people. Is not this part of the bargain, a payment by the Democrats for the railroad money to run their campaign? The Globe claims that this amendment will reduce, not increase, the tax on railroads. If this is true why did the railroads move heaven and earth and pour out their money to defeat the passage of this amendment in the legislature and so keep the people from a chance to vote upon it?

The leading Democratic speaker in the state, in an address at St. Paul, has sought to belittle the anti-merger suits, calling them bluster and asserting that there was not then a single case pending in the court on this subject. Yet at that time three cases were actually pending and being pushed against this merger company, and testimony in one of them was being taken in New York city. Which side, let us ask, is shown to be interested in pushing and which in killing these merger suits? If the people could be convinced that not a suit was really pending, how easy it would be if Mr. Rosing were accidentally elected governor for him to quietly drop the Minnesota case, the one most feared by the merged railroads.

Is, then, the merger out of politics? Which candidate is the merger supporting? Which candidate is it opposing?

It is time, we say, that the people knew that the merger railroads are supporting Mr. Rosing by every means in their power and opposing Gov. Van Sant. It is time that it was known that the contest is between the people and the merged roads, and that a vote against Gov. Van Sant is not so much a vote for Mr. Rosing as for the Northern Securities Company, of New Jersey.

DANGER LIES IN OVER-CONFIDENCE

Only One Thing Gov. Van Sant Has to Fear in Coming Election Is That Too Many Friendly Voters May Stay at Home.

This Is the People's Fight and Every Man Must Do His Share to Ensure a Sweeping Victory for the Anti-trust Forces.

Gov. Van Sant has but one thing to fear in the coming election. That one thing is that two many voters who wish to see him re-elected will not go to the polls next Tuesday and vote. There is no question but that his acts as governor are approved by the people. They want him re-elected, but such has been the confidence that he would have an overwhelming majority, that there is a feeling that he does not need votes.

There is always a light vote in the years when there is not a presidential election, in the "off years" as they are called. This is an "off year" and there is danger that the voters, although friendly to Gov. Van Sant, will not take the trouble to go to the polls. This supplement is published to show to you plainly the issues that have come up in this campaign. It is to show you the tremendous power of combined wealth that Gov. Van Sant is facing. The power of money in any cause, however unjust, is well known. As we have said, there is no question as to where the sympathies of the people are, they are with Gov. Van Sant, and he needs the vote of every friend he has in Minnesota. He needs it not only that he may be elected, but that he may have such a majority that the great railroad interests and trusts will not again try to dominate the politics of Minnesota and dictate to its people who they shall elect as governor. This is your fight, and you should see to it that you are at the polls next Tuesday and cast your ballots.

Gov. Van Sant is one of the largest personal property taxpayers in Winona county. The boat company of which he is president, however, was organized by his father under the laws of Iowa, that being his father's home until his death a few months ago, and naturally it pays its taxes there.

There are 2,724 voting precincts in Minnesota. If but ten voters in each precinct stay away from the polls, that will mean 27,240 votes less for Gov. Van Sant, for you may be sure that every opposition vote will be cast, as they have the money to take the voters to the polls. Every stay-at-home vote will be a Van Sant vote. He cannot afford to lose them and you cannot afford to have him lose them.

The following table of the Republican vote in 1898 an "off year" and 1900 a presidential year shows a loss of twenty votes to the precinct or over 41,000. Can you afford to have Gov. Van Sant lose that this year? Let us urge you not only to go to the polls yourself, but to take your neighbors and to make this indeed a glorious victory.

WHO HAS FILLED THE DEMOCRATIC "BARREL?"

The campaign for L. A. Rosing, Democratic candidate for governor, is the most lavish Minnesota has seen in recent history. Democratic managers are spending dollars where they used to spend dimes. Speeches and circular letters are sent out in lots of a hundred thousand. Workers have been hired by the dozen and special speakers to reach every nationality.

There has been a general suspicion that the bulk of the Democratic fund is furnished by the same interest that gives all these speakers and workers free transportation. No such fund could have been raised by individual subscriptions. No such fund has been available in recent years.

Information now at hand confirms the general suspicion. It seems that the financial center of the nation is taking an interest in Minnesota politics this year. Promoters of the Northern Securities merger have persistently declared that public sentiment in the Northwest supported Mr. Hill, and that Gov. Van Sant's position was not popular. There is nothing that dealers in railroad stocks fear so much as hostile legislation, and the Wall street brokers are anxious to see whether Minnesota is going to permit the merger to go on unmolested. Gov. Van Sant's defeat would prove to them that Mr. Hill's influence was paramount in Minnesota, and able to unmake a governor who opposed him. Gov. Van Sant's election would mean a drop in Northern Securities.

So Wall street is watching the Minnesota campaign, and the "tip" down there is that Rosing will be elected, and elected by the influence of the merger railroads. This is stated with positive faith that the railroad influence is paramount in this state.

The Democratic campaign is centered on Rosing. The other candidates on the state ticket are working for him. All the literature is booming him, and the workers mention no other name. In half the counties there is no local Democratic ticket, and all the work is being done for Rosing.

The fact is, and all Minnesotans know it, that popular opinion is strongly behind Gov. Van Sant. Railroad influence is not paramount, unless it is exerted secretly. The danger is that the mass of voters will not realize until too late the nature of the fight being waged.

The sole purpose of the Democratic campaign is to get the scalp of Gov. Van Sant. Anything else they get will be a gift, as they are working only to beat Van Sant. If he cannot be defeated, the interests opposed to him want to cut down his lead to a ridiculously small figure.

Republicans seem to be waking up, and Gov. Van Sant's success is as sure as anything ever is in politics. This strenuous effort of the Democrats, however, may make his margin much closer than it should be. A "bar'l" is powerful in politics, especially if it is deep enough. It takes a good deal of enthusiasm on the other side to counteract the effect of a "liberal campaign."

THE TWO CHAMPIONS

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND GOV. VAN SANT.

These Two Men Stand for the Same Principles—The People Before the Trusts.

Every voter who admires President Roosevelt should vote for Gov. Van Sant. These two men stand for the same principles in public life, and this fight in Minnesota now being waged by the trusts against Gov. Van Sant is but the forerunner of the fight to be made against President Roosevelt. When the governor began the now-famous merger suits, he aroused the bitter opposition of that great combination of wealth, and when President Roosevelt, at the request of the governor, had the suit brought under the Sherman act, that hatred and opposition descended to him. Balked in its gigantic scheme of stock-jobbing, Wall street vowed vengeance on both of them. Railroad presidents and Wall street magnates freely made the threat in Washington that they would defeat both President Roosevelt and Gov. Van Sant for re-election. They will doubtless now be joined in the effort by the coal barons. It is well known that the merger railroads made every effort to prevent Gov. Van Sant's renomination. Utterly failing of even getting a candidate against him in the Republican party, they determined to beat him at the polls, if money could do it. The money has been forthcoming and is being freely spent; but if money can beat Gov. Van Sant, money without limit will be used to corrupt and debauch the voters of this entire country to defeat President Roosevelt.

Voters of Minnesota, there is more in this campaign than the mere re-election of Gov. Van Sant. Here is an opportunity to rebuke the arrogance of wealth, and to teach it that Minnesota stands with President Roosevelt and S. R. Van Sant and against combined wealth.

FALSE STATEMENTS.

JAMES J. HILL'S ORGAN AGAIN GRINDING.

Desperate Campaign Against the Railroad Gross Earnings Tax Being Waged.

The St. Paul Globe, owned by James J. Hill and operated in the interests of the Democratic state ticket, has opened a desperate campaign for the defeat of the railroad gross earnings bill.

The bill was passed by the legislature of 1901, in spite of a powerful railroad lobby, and is submitted to the people at the coming election. It increases the gross earnings tax on railroads from 3 to 4 per cent.

Now the organ of the Great Northern, which made such strenuous efforts to defeat the bill, says the amendment, if adopted, will save the Great Northern money.

The situation would be farcical were it not evident that the Globe is making a desperate effort to beat the bill by misleading the voters.

The opening article is a tissue of mis-statements from start to finish, most of them apparent on their face.

The Great Northern has shrewd attorneys and good bookkeepers, and when the bill was introduced it was carefully analyzed. The Great Northern knew what was in the bill then as well as it does now. Yet its lobby fought the bill before the legislature, and its newspaper now opposes it before the people.

The Democratic campaign in the state is inevitably connected with the campaign against the gross earnings bill. The Globe has turned over both its editorial and its news columns to the Democratic state committee, who is using them for all it is worth. The Globe's attack on the bill is evidently made with the knowledge of the Democratic committee, and "tips it off" to the public that the Great Northern influence is behind the campaign against Gov. Van Sant.—Minneapolis Journal.

VAN SANT AND UNION LABOR

In His First Message to the Legislature He Recommended That the Laborer Should Be Protected by Legislation.

Union Labor Was Recognized When He Appointed a Member of the Union to the Head of the Bureau of Labor.

Gov. Van Sant is recognized by labor as one of the strongest most sincere and earnest friends it has ever had in this state. He never has missed an opportunity in his public or private life to do everything in his power to help the laborer, and organized labor has always had recognition at his hands.

Almost his first act as governor was to include in his first message to the legislature the following recommendation:

"Of all the triumphs of our American civilization, there are none to compare with the advanced position of the laboring classes and no one thing has so much contributed to our wonderful progress as the condition of our working people. Where labor is well paid and enjoys equal rights there will you find not only a wealthy and prosperous state, but also an intelligent and progressive people.

"Minnesota takes a front rank among states in labor legislation. To our bureau of labor are we indebted for many wise laws. Upon our statute books you will find enactments guaranteeing to wage earners the right to organize and protecting them against blacklisting; laws for the regulation of child labor; those requiring healthful sanitary conditions and protecting them against accidents in their places of employment. These and other laws have rightly placed Minnesota in a high rank. I would suggest one more law and urge its passage—a law making eight hours a legal day's work on all public works authorized by the state.

"We must take no backward steps but must continue the legislation necessary to open to labor new safeguards of protection and other fields of employment."

This was followed by such effective efforts on his part that the eight-hour law was passed at that session of the legislature.

Moreover, he appointed to the head of the labor bureau a thoroughly qualified member of union labor; a man who was a wage earner, a man of recognized ability and information of this department without fear or favor to any person or class and without regard to politics. This has made Minnesota's bureau of labor so practical and so progressive along new lines of investigation that it has won a national reputation. Moreover every assistant employed in the department is a practical workman in some branch of labor and is in touch with the needs and rights of his fellow wage-earners. For the first time therefore, the bureau of labor is fully in sympathy with working men and is operating conservatively but efficiently along those practical lines which will be of the greatest help to the working man and most fully protect the rights of labor.

The new gross earnings tax law is fair, it is constitutional, it is simple. It lets the state keep close watch that it gets what is its due, it stops all leaks and will very largely increase the tax on railroads. That is why the railroads oppose it.

RAILROADS BACK OF IT.

Origin of Attack on Gross Earnings Amendment.

The Dispatch can only regard with suspicion the origin of the attack upon the amendment to increase the tax upon the gross earnings of the railroads. It so plainly comes from railway sources, whence came the opposition in the legislature, that the hypocrisy of the warning that the effect of the law will be a great decrease in revenue from that source, as John Randolph once said of some act of Clay, "shines and stinks, and stinks and shines, like a rotten mackerel in the moonlight." There is a Pecksniffian sniffle about such protestations from such a source.

Not a Democratic speaker and not a Democratic paper has had a word of fault to find with the grain inspection department, the state's prison twine, the state labor bureau, the department of public instruction, the food and dairy commission, or any other department under Gov. Van Sant's administration.

The proposed amendment has the further merit of substituting certainty for uncertainty, simplicity for complexity, and removes both temptation and opportunity for suppression of facts and juggling with accounts by which the companies might escape taxes. Any other method demands accounting for earnings made upon each separate article carried over more than the State of Minnesota. One has but to contemplate the immensity of the work of such a method, with the impossibility of detecting suppressions, to make desirable a simpler plan, such as the proposed bill provides.

Even the Democrats admit that the Republicans did well when the extra session of the legislature passed the proposed tax amendment. This amendment prepares the way for a new tax law covering personal property. This is the hardest class of property to reach for taxation, as all know, and under the constitution, as at present, much of it cannot be reached. The provisions of the amendment have been fully explained by the Republican press, and all voters are urged to vote for it. It will permit an income tax, provides for two methods of taxing public franchises, for a registry law on mortgages, for a tax on inheritances, and, indeed, places Minnesota first among all the states in modern methods of taxation.

—"Bridget, did you call the boys?" "Indade an' Oi called thim evarything Oi cud think of but thay won't wake up." There's such a thing as calling too much some times, but when it comes to Tschida's Leader 5-cent cigar it seems as though the people never would get tired of smoking them. They say they are the best that ever happened for the price. Try them.

Self Confidence.

Self confidence is admired by everybody unless it borders too strongly on conceit, and there is a saying "the King is the man who can." There is no doubt that the man who thinks he can do things convinces others that he can and in so doing increases his chances of really succeeding. Self confidence comes with health and strength, thus indirectly from drinking golden grain belt beer. Pure, delicious and nourishing, it should be in every home. Order of the nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

For State Senator.

E. J. Swedback, republican candidate for state senator was a visitor here last week looking after matters political. Mr. Swedback has been making a vigorous campaign and has high hopes of being elected. He certainly has a very strong following in his home county of Beltrami, as is clearly shown by the vote he received at the primary election. In eight voting precincts, including the village of Bemidji where Mr. Swedback is engaged in the lumber business, and the townships surrounding he received 345 votes, while the two other candidates received a total of 210. This would certainly indicate that the people who know him best regard him as a man in whose ability and integrity they have the utmost confidence.

Saves $3,000.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: The Garnes ditching contract was let today by Auditor Zeh. Last month he rejected a bid of 13c because it was too high. Today he accepted a bid at 10½c, a saving to the county on this job of 2½c a yard, or nearly $3,000 on the job. The Rocksbury ditch bids which were rejected last month, being 13c, and considered too high, was today let at 11c.

He is sick in bed, but the bids were all referred to him and he personally directed their disposition. Had he not rejected the high bid last month and advertised over again, the work would cost the tax payers nearly $3,000 more than it now will.

These facts are history. This is what Adam Zeh is doing for the tax payers. What will they do for him? Let them vote for him on Nov. 4.

VOTE FOR YOUR OWN INTERESTS

To the Voters of the 61st Legislative Dist:
Shevlin, Minn., Oct. 8, 1902.

Dear Sirs and Fellow-citizens:

I feel it my duty to give you my reasons for asking your support and votes for the office of representative of this district. They are as follows:

First: Because a great many voters and taxpayers in both Beltrami and Red Lake counties urged me to do so and you gave me the nomination at the primaries in a manner that was certainly flattering to me.

Second: If elected, my aim will be to devote my whole energy and power to having such laws enacted as will give the state the same control over railroads as it now has and exercises over individuals and other corporations; and I also wish for, and will earnestly work to have such a tax code enacted as will compel foreign capital, in whatever form it may be invested within the borders of our state, to pay its just share of taxation.

Third: I believe in liberal state appropriations for drainage and other purposes that will tend to further the development of the district.

As many of you know, I am interested in farming and mercantile business, and as a bread-winner of moderate means, your interests and my own are the same, and if given an opportunity to do so, I think I can faithfully represent our joint interests and work for their advancement in a manner that will prove satisfactory to you, in whatever part of the district you may reside.

These are a few of the reasons that I today stand as a candidate for representative and earnestly solicit your hearty support during the campaign and at the ballot box, and should I be so fortunate as to receive a majority of your votes I will still need and solicit your support, encouragement and assistance, as far as it can be given, to further the legislation above mentioned.

Thanking you in advance, I am,
Yours truly,
Iver A. Krohn.

P. O. HAGGLUND, candidate for re-election as county surveyor, has a great many things in his favor and is certainly entitled to the office.

He has been a resident here for 21 years, and has taken a most active part in the development of the country. He has creditably filled the office of county surveyor ever since the organization of Red Lake county. He has always done his work perfectly and no faults have ever been found by any person for whom he worked. He is fully qualified as a surveyor. No law suits have ever resulted from his work. He has never asked the county to pay exorbitant bills. He is honest, upright and in every way reliable.

George A. Ralph, the well-known surveyor of Crookston, writing of the cost of viewing and surveying ditches, in the Red Lake Falls Gazette says:

"If you exclude from the Red Lake county ditches the ditch surveyed by Mr. Smiley which cost $110.00 per mile, it will bring the average cost per mile of Red Lake county ditches down to $36.60."

Make no mistake, but vote to re-elect P. O. Hagglund, as county surveyor.

EVERY DAY.

Mrs. Tupman, a prominent lady of Richmond, Va., a great sufferer with woman's troubles, tells of her cure by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For some years I suffered with backache, severe bearing-down pains, leucorrhœa, and falling of the womb. I tried many remedies, but nothing gave any positive relief.

"I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in June, 1901. When I had taken the first half bottle, I felt a vast improvement, and have now taken ten bottles with the result that I feel like a new woman. When I commenced taking the Vegetable Compound I felt all worn out and was fast approaching complete nervous collapse. I weighed only 98 pounds. Now I weigh 109½ pounds and am improving every day. I gladly testify to the benefits received."—MRS. R. C. TUPMAN, 423 West 30th St., Richmond, Va.

When a medicine has been successful in more than a million cases, is it justice to yourself to say, without trying it, "I do not believe it would help me"?

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak and sick and discouraged, exhausted with each day's work. You have some derangement of the feminine organism, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as surely as it has others.

Mrs. W. H. Pelham, Jr., 108 E. Baker St., Richmond, Va., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I must say that I do not believe there is any female medicine to compare with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I return to you my heartfelt thanks for what your medicine has done for me. Before taking the Vegetable Compound I was so badly off that I thought I could not live much longer. The little work I had to do was a burden to me. I suffered with irregular menstruation and leucorrhœa, which caused an irritation of the parts. I looked like one who had consumption, but I do not look like that now, and I owe it all to your wonderful medicine.

"I took only six bottles, but it has made me feel like a new person. I thank God that there is such a female helper as you."

Be it, therefore, believed by all women who are ill that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they should take. It has stood the test of time, and it has hundreds of thousands of cures to its credit. Women should consider it unwise to use any other medicine.

Mrs. Pinkham, whose address is Lynn, Mass., will answer cheerfully and without cost all letters addressed to her by sick women. Perhaps she has just the knowledge that will help your case—try her to-day—it costs nothing.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

$1,000,000 Preferred Stock.
$1,000,000 Common Stock.
Shares, $100 each. Sold at Par.
Only Preferred Stock offered for sale.
W. L. Douglas retains all Common Stock.

The Preferred Stock of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Company pays better than Savings Banks or Government Bonds. Every dollar of stock offered the public has behind it more than a dollar's worth of actual assets. W. L. Douglas continues to own one-half of the business, and is to remain the active head of the concern.

This business is not an undeveloped prospect. It is a demonstrated dividend payer. This is the largest business in the world producing Men's Goodyear Welt (Hand Sewed Process) shoes, and has always been immensely profitable. There has not been a year in the past twelve when the business has not earned in actual cash much more than the amount necessary to pay 7 per cent annual dividend on the preferred stock of $1,000,000.

The annual business now is $5,500,000. It is increasing very rapidly, and will equal $7,000,000 for the year 1903. The factory is now turning out 7,000 pairs of shoes per day, and an addition to the plant is being built which will increase the capacity to 10,000 pairs per day.

The reason I am offering the Preferred Stock for sale is to perpetuate the business.

If you wish to invest in the best shoe business in the world, which is permanent, and receive 7 per cent on your money, you can purchase one share or more in this great business. Send money by cashier's check or certified check, made payable to W. L. Douglas. If there is no bank in your town, send money by express or post office money orders.

TALES OF GREAT AMERICANS

"The Father of the American Navy," as Paul Jones has been called, was born a Scotchman. When he was a lad he was called John Paul after his father, but later in life he took the name of Paul Jones. This odd changing of his name came about in the following way:

Little John Paul's father had a distant cousin who had migrated to America and became a Virginia planter. The good man had no family, and he, therefore, adopted as his heirs two children of his relatives, the Pauls, who were back in the western lowlands of Scotland. One of these heirs was little John Paul.

But John Paul, if he accepted the property of his family's cousin, must also accept his cousin's surname. Such is the story of how John Paul became John Paul Jones, or Paul Jones as he is more often called.

But to this story of his boyhood. His father, in his occupation as gardner, lived some twenty-five miles from Whitehaven, then an important seaport. A ship owner and merchant of Whitehaven was in the neighborhood of John Paul's home one day in the summer of 1759, and his errand was to find sailors for one of his ships about to sail for America.

That afternoon a stiff northeast wind began to blow and the weather became squally. Over the Solway, far in the distance, a small yawl was battling with wind and wave, and trying to run to the shelter of the little harbor creek near by the village. People gathered to watch the progress of the boat. Among them was the ship owner from Whitehaven.

As the little yawl sailed nearer the land the onlookers saw that she was steered by a boy, who was also handling the sheets, and commanding; a man aboard merely "trimmed" the boat by sitting on the weather rail.

When John Paul, Sr., who was among the crowd, saw the "crew," he turned to the ship owner and said:

Paul Bailed in the Boat.

"That is my boy handling the yawl. He'll fetch her up. This is a small flurry for him!"

After the boy made the boat fast, his father introduced him to the ship owner, who praised him for his sailor's knowledge and at once asked him to become master's apprentice in one of his fine vessels.

Thus began his career, for not many days after little John Paul sailed from Whitehaven for America.

Kleptomaniac Birds

The magpie has long been notorious for stealing things, but he is a saint compared to some Asiatic birds. The ravens, which abound in Indian cities, steal by wholesale and take anything they can lay their beaks on whether they can make use of it or not. Jerdon, an English writer, says that in some places every house is surrounded by a flock of these winged robbers on the lookout for booty. They fly in at the windows, rummage work-baskets and carry off gloves and handkerchiefs. They even open tied packages and examine their contents. According to an observer, they have been known to extract nails. A pleasure party assembled in a garden were startled by seeing a bloody knife fall in their midst. A raven had stolen it from the kitchen and dropped it among the merrymakers.

The Australian satin birds are more discriminating and take only objects suitable for the embellishment of their nests. The natives are so well acquainted with this habit that when an amulet or a pipe is missed it is sought and generally found in the nest of the satin bird.

Another notable collector is the arbor bird, which inhabits parts of the interior of Australia which the foot of man seldom treads. This bird builds long arbors of twigs thatched with grass and secures them against being blown away by weighting them with stones built in at regular intervals both in the walls and in the roof.

SOME BIRDS THAT DANCE

There are several kinds of birds that go through a regular movement to which the term dancing may properly be applied. Some of them even accompany their movements with notes uttered in a way to make one think they know the connection between dancing and music.

The jacanas, a species of rail bird, feed in flocks, and every now and then they stop and rush to a certain spot, from six to twelve in a cluster, and then all move about with their wings raised. Those who have seen them say that the sight is not only unusual, but strikingly beautiful, as the jacana has greenish-gold feathers under the wings, which flash vividly.

There is a species of lapwing that has a performance of the most remarkable nature. It consists of a regular ceremonial for the reception of a visitor. The birds live in pairs, but one will now and then leave its mate and approach a pair. The pair advance to meet the visitor, and place themselves side by side behind them. Then all three begin to march in that order, the leader uttering loud notes at regular intervals, and the pair keeping up a constant sound, like the roll of a drum.

Suddenly all three stop; the leader raises his wings and stands erect and motionless, still uttering loud notes, while the other two, with puffed-out plumage and standing exactly abreast, stoop forward and downward until the tips of their beaks touch the ground. Sinking their voices to a murmur, they remain for some time in that position.

FLOATING FARMS.

Of all the strange things in China none is more remarkable than the way in which the farmers along the great river Yangtse-Kiang transport their stock and produce to the various ports.

They build immense rafts, some of them two or three acres in area, and construct on them complete farm establishments. There are houses, barns for grain and fodder, stables for horses and cattle, and pig pens. As the journey is long—often from 600 to 900 miles, they take along a great store of osiers and employ the time in plaiting all sorts of useful and ornamental articles.

On arriving at their destination they sell everything. When the animals, grain and other produce and the basketware have been disposed of the buildings are sold and finally the raft itself is broken up and sold for building material or firewood. The proceeds of the expedition must serve for a long time, for such an Argosy is not launched and freighted every year.

Coin and Flame.

In performing this trick you take a piece of money wrapped in a piece of muslin and tied by a piece of thread. Hold the coin wrapped in muslin near a burning candle. But—too bad—you came a little too near. The trick has been successful in one way. The coin is free through the influence of the heat, but the muslin is destroyed. What can you do to repair the damage? Hold the burned part of the muslin once more against the candle, rub it between your hands, pull and smooth it, and—the muslin is whole—the burned place has disappeared. This is done in the following manner: You do not place the muslin in the flame of the candle, but, in its stead, a small piece of white linen. Lay the coin in this and wrap it in it. Hold it in your hand while the piece of muslin, held also in the hand, hangs down. By burning the small piece of linen the coin drops out. To repair the muslin the performer has to rub the piece of cloth and secretly gets rid of the piece of burned linen by smuggling it in the hand. Then he shows the muslin, with no sign of a burned place.

The Land of Make-Believe.

It is well to wander sometimes in the Land of Make-believe,
Through its ever-smiling gardens, where the heart may cease to grieve,
Where the beds are gay with roses and the paths are paved with gold,
And our hopes, like soaring songsters,
their mercurial wings unfold.
Let us all be little children for a while and make our way
Through the sweet and sunny meadow land of Make-believe to-day.

There's a queen within an arbor, where she rules in high renown,
With a lily for a sceptre and a rose wreath for a crown,
And her laws are love and laughter, for they know not sorrow there—
Never hate or pain or money enters in her Kingdom fair.
So we sing the songs the children sing and play the games they play
As we wander in the golden Land of Make-believe to-day.

To Fill Bottles With Smoke.

Rinse out one bottle with hartshorn and another bottle with spirits of salt; next bring the bottles together mouth to mouth; both will at once be pervaded with white vapors. The vapors in question are composed of sal ammonia—a solid body generated by the union of two invisible gases.

The Teacher Was Quick.

Chicago once had as its superintendent of city schools a bachelor named Howland, whose gruffness of manner and love of neatness were proverbial. Going into the room of a young and attractive teacher one day, Mr. Howland took notice of an untidy desk and a carelessly-arranged book shelf, and, pointing his finger at them, queried, brusquely:

"What kind of a housekeeper do you think you would make?"

"Why, Mr. Howland, are you looking for one?" was the humorously-quizzical reply.—New York Times.

No Need for Money.

Standing at the corner of Thirty-sixth street and Broadway one warm evening was a stolid-looking man. He was gazing intently at the windows of the recently-opened branch of the Eastern Trust company. After looking over the large letters, he spoke right up—unconscious of the fact that he had a listener—reading from the lettered windows:

"'Capital, $1,000,000; surplus, $1,000,000; interest allowed on deposits.' Sure, and what do they want deposits for, with all that money?"—New York Times.

Helped Everybody.

Gainesville, Tex., Oct. 27th.—Mrs. L. E. Burton, formerly of Eureka, Kansas, has been at 507 Gladstone street, this city, for some time. While here Mrs. Burton has been the means of doing much good by introducing to her sick friends a remedy which it seems is very popular in Kansas, but which has not been very much heard of in this neighborhood. It is called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and in every case where it has been used it has produced wonderful results.

Mrs. Burton has good reason to speak well of Dodd's Kidney Pills, for they have done much for her and her family. She says: "I must tell everybody what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me and for as many of my friends as have used them.

"I had a very bad case of kidney trouble, for which I had been doctoring for a long time without benefit. I saw Dodd's Kidney Pills recommended. I tried them and was completely cured. My mother and my brother were ill, and they took them and were soon well again.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have done much for us."

The String.

"You know you said before election that you were a friend who would divide his last dollar with me?"

"That's right," said Senator Sorghum; "that's right. But it's going to be a good many years before I get down to my last dollar."—Washington Star.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. GOVERNOR OF OREGON

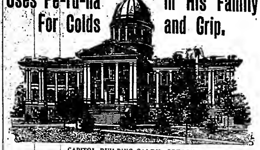
Uses Pe-ru-na For Colds in His Family and Grip.



CAPITOL BUILDING SALEM, OREGON.

A Letter From the Executive Officer of Oregon.

Pe-ru-na is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Letters of congratulation and commendation testifying to the merits of Pe-ru-na as a catarrh remedy are pouring in from every State in the Union. Dr. Hartman is receiving hundreds of such letters daily. All classes write these letters, from the highest to the lowest.

The outdoor laborer, the indoor artisan, the clerk, the editor, the statesman, the preacher—all agree that Pe-ru-na is the catarrh remedy of the age. The stage and rostrum, recognizing catarrh as their greatest enemy, are especially enthusiastic in their praise and testimony.

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Pe-ru-na is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Pe-ru-na not only cures catarrh, but prevents. Every household should be supplied with this great remedy for coughs, colds and so forth.

The Governor of Oregon is an ardent admirer of Pe-ru-na. He keeps it continually in the house. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman he says:

STATE OF OREGON,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
SALEM, May 9, 1898.

The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Dear Sirs—I have had occasion to use your Pe-ru-na medicine in my family for colds, and it proved to be an excellent remedy. I have not had occasion to use it for other ailments.

Yours very truly, W. M. Lord.

It will be noticed that the Governor says he has not had occasion to use Pe-ru-na for other ailments. The reason for this is, most other ailments begin with a cold. Using Pe-ru-na to promptly cure colds, he protects his family against other ailments. This is exactly what every other family in the United States should do. Keep Pe-ru-na in the house. Use it for coughs, colds, la grippe, and other climatic affections of winter, and there will be no other ailments in the house. Such families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book, entitled "Winter Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

BATTLE OF THE BALLOTS

Voters of the Country Hand Down Their Decision in a Closely Contested Political Conflict.

GAINS ARE MADE BY THE DEMOCRATS

Republicans Will Have Reduced Majorities in the Senate and House—Returns by States.

Elections were held yesterday in forty-two states, and the latest returns indicate that the control of the national congress remains with the Republican party. While official figures may make the working majority of the Republican party in the house a close one, there is no doubt that it will be sufficient for all party purposes. From a national standpoint, the control of the lower branch of congress was the real contest. Many of the states elected legislatures, which will choose United States senators, but the results of those elections have in no way imperilled the Republican majority of the upper house. In those states which elected governors there was no state in which the party in power was not continued in that position. In some of the states, however, there was a decided change from the vote cast two years ago.

In the East the main interest centered in the two great states of New York and Pennsylvania.

The latest returns show that the Republicans (including in this description the fusionists elected in the Pittsburg-Allegheny districts in Pennsylvania) will control the next house by a vote of 204 Republicans to 179 Democrats, with one district, the Eighth Tennessee, and two California districts remaining so much in doubt that the official returns will be needed to decide the result. The table by states is as follows:

NEW YORK.

Gov. Odell Carries the State by a Small Majority.

In spite of the phenomenally large vote in New York and Kings county for Bird S. Coler, (Dem.) the returns indicate the re-election of Benjamin B. Odell (Rep.) to the governorship of New York state by from 6,000 to 9,000. Coler's plurality in Greater New York exceeded 115,000, a surplus of 5,000 above the claim made by Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, but even that large vote was not sufficient to overcome the Republican majorities from up the state. Odell's vote in the country districts was lighter than two years ago, but Coler's was also lower than Stanchfield's in the same year. In New York City Coler's plurality was approximately 117,500.

Oyster Bay, where President Roosevelt's country home is situated and where he voted, was carried by Coler, his plurality being 131. Two years ago Odell plurality was 512. Figures from the congressional districts in the state gave the delegation as twenty Republicans to seventeen Democrats. The present state representation is twenty-two Republicans to twelve Democrats. The Democrats made gains in the state legislature, but they were not sufficient to endanger the Republican hold on the seat in the United States senate, now held by Thomas C. Platt.

INDIANA.

Congressional Delegation Remains Same—Nine to Four.

Indiana went Republican by from 25,000 to 40,000. The congressional delegation remained the same with 9 Republicans and 4 Democrats. The legislature will be Republican by about 25 on joint ballot, and Senator Charles W. Fairbanks will be re-elected to the United States senate.

This estimate is based on unofficial returns received at the headquarters of the Democratic and Republican state central committees and from the specials from every county in the state. Throughout the state the Republican legislative ticket led the local candidates. This was, of course, due to the strength of United States Senator Fairbanks, whose re-election depended upon the result.

IOWA.

Birdsall, Speaker Henderson's Successor, Is Elected.

On the basis of the precinct returns received the Republicans have elected their state ticket by about 75,000 plurality. The reports from the congressional districts are meager. Enough has been received from the Third to indicate that Judge Birdsall, nominated by the Republicans to succeed Speaker David B. Henderson, ran substantially with his ticket, and will be elected by 4,000 to 5,000 votes over Former Governor Boies. The returns indicate close contests in both the Sixth and Second districts, but they are not numerous enough to base estimates upon. At Republican headquarters it was stated Republican pluralities in the state as a whole was sufficient to carry all the congressional districts. Chairman Spence of the Republican committee said:

"We have carried the state by at least 65,000. The figures indicate a larger plurality, but we are not claiming more at present. We have elected eleven Republican congressmen."

ILLINOIS.

Republicans Carry State by a Safe Majority.

The Republicans have carried Illinois by a plurality of about 45,000. The Republican leaders claim that they have elected Busse for state treasurer by 47,000 and Mamer for clerk of the supreme court by 45,000. The Republicans will have at least fourteen congressmen, as against eleven in the last congress. The Democrats are sure of nine congressmen and may secure two more. The contest in the Sixth congressional district is exceedingly close and it may require the official count to determine the result. Lorimer has a slight lead, but Durborow is gaining slowly, as the late returns come in and the unofficial vote will be nearly even.

MICHIGAN.

Democrats Make Gains in Legislature but Alger Will Go to the Senate.

The Republicans of Michigan have elected Governor A. T. Bliss and their entire state ticket, eleven of the fourteen congressmen and an overwhelming majority of the members of the legislature. The vote was light throughout the state and the Republican majority is estimated at between 30,000 and 40,000, although Republican State Chairman G. J. Dickman, insists it will be nearer 75,000, basing his statement on advices received from the various county chairmen. As was expected Governor Bliss ran heavily behind his ticket, from 15,000 to 20,000 it is estimated. L. F. Durand, the Democratic candidate for governor, poled a correspondingly heavy vote, especially in Detroit, which he carried from 4,000 to 6,000. While the returns indicate that the Democrats have increased by a few members their representation in the state legislature, the Republicans will have an overwhelming majority in both houses. This assures the election of Gen. R. A. Alger to fill the unexpired term of the late U. S. Senator James H. McMillan.

OHIO

Republicans Carry the State by a Large Plurality.

The Republicans carried Ohio by next to their highest plurality on record. Nothing above 70,000 had been predicted, but partial returns indicate that it will greatly exceed those figures. At the same time the Republicans made no gain in congressmen and are likely to lose one. The present Ohio delegation in congress consists of 17 Republicans and 4 Democrats, and the returns show 16 Republicans and 4 Democrats elected, with the Twelfth district in doubt.

With a single exception the Republican plurality to-day was the highest in the history of Ohio on a total vote of less than 800,000.

RHODE ISLAND.

Democrats Make Substantial Gains and Elect Governor.

Substantial gains for the Democrats are shown by the complete returns for the state ticket. They elected their candidate for governor and lieutenant governor and their congressional candidate in the First district. Besides, they cut down the Republican lead in the lower house of the legislature by securing thirty-six members as against a like number for the Republicans. The senate, however, remains overwhelmingly Republican, with a representation of 37 to 27 members.

DELAWARE.

Complexion of the Next Legislature Is in Doubt.

The complexion of the next general assembly is in doubt. It is now apparent that a deadlock on the two United States senatorial vacancies will be the result, as was the case two years ago. The regular Republican state committee claims that the body will be composed of 19 Union Republicans, 8 Regular Republicans, 22 Democrats and 3 doubtful. Democratic State Chairman Willard Saulsbury claims that 24 Democratic members have been elected. The majority on joint ballot and and the number necessary to elect United States senators is 27.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Over a Million Votes Cast—Republicans Have 175,000 Majority.

For the first time in the history of the state more than one million votes were cast in an election. Samuel W. Pennypacker, (Rep.) was elected governor by an estimated plurality of 175,000 and the Republican ticket was generally successful in the various counties. The Democrats elected two and possibly three of the thirty-two congressmen. The legislature will be more strongly Republican than ever before with the exception of 1897 session and it is certain that Boies Penrose will succeed himself in the United States senate.

MASSACHUSETTS.

The Republican Governor Elected by 37,000 Plurality.

Boston, Nov. 4.—Lieut. Gov. John L. Bates of Boston was elected governor by the Republicans in the state election, defeating William A. Gaston, the Democratic candidate by 37,479 plurality. The Republicans also elected the rest of the state ticket and ten out of fourteen congressmen. The state legislature stands, according to late returns: Senate, Republicans 31, Democrats 9; and the house 155 Republicans, 82 Democrats and 3 Socialists.

CALIFORNIA.

Republican Candidate for Governor Will Have Small Plurality.

Complete returns from San Francisco and partial returns from all over the state indicate that George C. Pardee, the Republican nominee for governor, is elected by a majority of from 2,000 to 3,000. Complete returns from 1,183 precincts out of 1,277 in the state outside of San Francisco give Pardee 69,460; Lane, 60,637. The complete vote in San Francisco stood: Pardee, 24,129; Lane, 33,087. The legislature—which will choose a United States senator—is largely Republican on joint ballot. The Republicans have lost two congressmen. The delegation stands: Republican, 4; Democratic and Union Labor, 2; doubtful, 2.

NEBRASKA.

Republicans Claim the State by a Fair Majority.

Complete and partially complete returns from enough counties to accurately forecast the result shows that Mickey (Rep.) has been elected governor of Nebraska by not less than 3,000. The rest of the Republican state ticket is elected. For congress the Republicans carry three districts, the fusionists one, and two are in doubt. Both districts are undoubtedly close. Republicans will control both branches of the legislature.

IDAHO.

Republicans Carry the State by Large Majority.

The election proves to have been much more of a Republican landslide than early reports indicated. The Republican state ticket has carried the state by a majority close to 6,000. Burton L. French, for congress, will have a little larger majority.

MISSOURI.

Fight Is Close and Result Is in Doubt.

In several districts the fight for congress is very close and definite results will probably not be known for 24 hours. At Republican state headquarters it was claimed there is a slight Republican gain in some counties. At Democratic headquarters it was claimed the Democratic ticket would come to St. Louis with 15,000 to 18,000. Indications point to a sweeping Democratic victory in St. Louis with a plurality of 15,000 and the election of two congressmen out of three.

GEORGIA.

Solid Democratic Delegation Will Go to Washington.

Georgia to-day elected a solid Democratic delegation of eleven congressmen. So little interest was taken in the election that the figures in the eleven districts were not collected last night. Except in the seventh district the Democrats had no opposition and in that district was inconsequential. The vote polled was very light. The elections were for congressmen only.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Indications Point to a Republican Victory.

The indications in New Hampshire are Nahum S. Batchelder, Republican candidate for governor, was elected over Henry F. Hollis, Democrat, by a plurality of at least 10,000. There was a heavy shrinkage from the vote of two years ago. The legislature is Republican in both branches by large majorities, insuring a Republican successor to Senator Gallinger, who will probably succeed himself.

MONTANA.

State Returns Indicate a Republican Victory.

Late returns from the various outlying counties indicate the election of the entire state Republican ticket. Counties heretofore Democratic report Republican landslides, estimates from the Republican headquarters give Dixon for congress 4,000 majority; Holloway, associate justice, 8,000 majority. The legislature of the state will be slightly Republican, as the county tickets are badly split.

COLORADO.

Legislature Will Be Democratic on Joint Ballot.

That the returns from the state indicate that Colorado has elected a full Republican ticket by small majorities. This is conceded by leading Democrats, though not by Chairman Smith. The Democratic congressional candidates are claimed to have run ahead of their ticket and one or more of them may be elected. The legislature will undoubtedly be Democratic on joint ballot.

CONNECTICUT.

Governor and Entire Republican Congressional Ticket Elected.

Connecticut elected the full Republican ticket for state officers and all the five Republican candidates for congress. The plurality for Chamberlain, the Republican candidate for governor, will be at least 13,000, an increase of 1,000 over the plurality of two years ago. The state legislature will be Republican, thus insuring the return of C. H. Platt to the United States senate.

MARYLAND.

The Republicans Elect Four of the Six Congressmen.

The election in Maryland which was only for congressmen, passed off quietly with the exception of a few minor disturbances in the eastern district of this city. Of the six congressmen the Republicans elect four and the Democrats two. The vote in the third district was very close. Wachter having a majority of about 100.

NEW JERSEY.

Democrats Make Gains but Fail to Gain Control of the State.

In New Jersey the Democrats made gains, but failed to gain control of the state. In the congressional contests the Republicans elected seven and the Democrats three.

The Republicans again control the legislature, but also, by a reduced majority. Republicans elect seven congressmen and the Democrats three.

UTAH.

Indications That Republican Associate Justice Is Elected.

Indications are that William M. McCarty (Rep.) is elected associate justice of the supreme court over Richard W. Young (Dem.) by 2,300 plurality, and that the Republicans will have a considerable majority in the legislature, thus ensuring the election of a Republican United States senator to succeed Senator Rawlins.

KANSAS.

Republicans Claim a Victory for Their Ticket.

The Republicans have elected the entire state ticket and all the eight congressmen. Bailey for governor will have a larger majority than did Stanley two years ago. The legislature will be safely Republican, though possibly the majority will be smaller there.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Legislature Overwhelmingly Democratic—63,000 Majority for State Ticket.

The Democratic state majority is apparently about 63,000. North Carolina will have a solid Democratic representation in the house of representatives. The legislature will be overwhelmingly Democratic and a Democrat will succeed Pritchard as United States senator.

VIRGINIA.

Democrats Return a Full Congressional Delegation.

The state certainly will return a full Democratic congressional delegation. The latest returns from the Ninth district, where there was the only serious contest in the state, assure the election of Rheam, Democrat.

ARKANSAS.

Only Congressmen Voted for—All Democrats Elected.

All the Democratic nominees for congress in Arkansas are elected.

LOUISIANA.

Seven Congressmen Voted for and Democrats Make Clean Sweep.

All the Democratic nominees for congress in Louisana are elected.

NEVADA.

Indications Point to a Fusion Victory.

Indications are that Sparks, Democrat, for governor, has carried Washoe county by about 400. Later returns point to a fusion victory in the state. The legislature will probably be fusion.

WASHINGTON.

Republicans Carry the State by Small Majority.

Returns coming in slowly. Indications are that state will go Republican by about 2,000 majority, with the election of three congressmen and the control of the legislature.

WYOMING.

Republicans Claim the State by Small Majority.

Chairman Fass of the Republican state committee, claimed that state by not less than 2,000 majority. The Democrats concede the election of a Republican congressman. The Republicans have a majority in the legislature.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Democrats Scoop Everything in Sight.

The Democrats elect their entire congressional state and county ticket almost without opposition. Georgetown county elects a full Democratic ticket for the first time in thirty-five years.

FLORIDA.

Democratic Ticket Elected Practically Without Opposition.

There was no opposition to the Democratic ticket, state or congressional. Legislature will re-elect U. S. Senator Mallory to succeed himself. Light vote polled.

TENNESSEE.

Entire Democratic State Ticket Elected by 50,000.

The entire Democratic state ticket, headed by James B. Frazier for governor, has been elected by a majority estimated at 50,000. The Democratic congressional ticket is also elected.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Republicans Elect Three Congressmen—Two in Doubt.

Latest returns from the state indicate the election of three Republican congressmen. Two districts are in doubt.

ALABAMA.

Democrats Elect Full State Ticket by Large Majority.

The full Democratic state ticket is elected by a large majority. "Lily White" Republican vote not as large as expected.

TEXAS.

Democrats Sweep Everything Before Them.

The entire Democratic state ticket and all the congressional candidates have been elected by good majorities.

MISSISSIPPI.

Democrats Sweep the State, Electing Entire Ticket.

All of the Democratic nominees for congress in Mississippi are elected.

ODELL'S PLURALITY.

Complete Figures Place the Total at 12,887.

New York, Nov. 7.—Official figures on the vote for governor vary but little from the unofficial reports. According to returns made to the executive at Albany by the several county clerks the plurality for Odell (Rep.) is 12,887.

Returns of the vote for other state officers are so meager that it is impossible to say if the Democrats have been more successful as regards the minor offices than in the case of the governor.

The state legislature is controlled by the Republicans by a reduced majority, but one so large as to admit of no doubt of the return of Mr. Platt to the United States senate.

The New York delegation in the lower house of the Fifty-eighth congress will number 37 instead of 34 as in the present congress. It will contain 20 Republicans and 17 Democrats, whereas the present delegation stood 22 Republicans and 12 Democrats. All of the more noted members of the delegation have been returned, including Sereno E. Payne, chairman of the ways and means committee.

Big Majority in Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 7—Last night Chairman Thompson, of the state Democratic executive committee, gave out out a statement in which he estimates the majority of James B. Frazier, Democratic candidate for governor, at 50,000 votes, with a probability of its reaching 52,000. The congressional race in the Eighth district has been a close one, but returns leave no doubt of the re-election of T. W. Sims (Dem.)

Washington Is Republican.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 7.—The Republicans have carried the state of Washington by a majority that may run as high as 12,000. The Democrats concede the election of the three congressmen by an average majority of 9,000. The Republicans will have a majority of thirty on joint ballot in the legislature.

Democratic Plurality Grows.

St. Louis, Nov. 7. — Later details from the election in Missouri tend to increase the Democratic plurality in the state over the Republican state ticket. Chairman Samuel B. Cook places the plurality at over 50,000. J. B. Seibold, ex-chairman of the state, places it at not less than 30,000.

Republicans Win in Wyoming.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 7. — Late returns only verify early reports that the Republican victory in Wyoming is overwhelming. Mondell, for congress, will have 5,000 majority; and Richards, for governor, 4,000. The Republican majority in the legislature is very large.

Kansas Is Republican.

The Republican victory in Kansas is complete. A good majority of the legislature, all the state officers and a large part of the county officers were taken by the Republicans.

Democrats Gain in Maryland.

Complete returns from city and state show that Maryland's representation in the next house will be four Republicans and two Democrats, a gain of two seats for the Democrats.

SOCIALISTS INCREASE.

Vote in Massachusetts of About Thirty-Four Thousand.

Boston, Nov. 7. — Massachusetts elected a Republican state ticket, a congressional delegation of ten Republicans and four Democrats, a state senate of thirty-one Republicans and nine Democrats, and a house of representatives of 155 Republicans, 2 Democrats and 5 Socialists. The total vote was the largest ever cast for governor, reaching approximately 390,000, against 385,100 for governor two years ago. The socialist vote cannot be overlooked, as John C. Chase, for governor, received about 34,000, a gain of more than 300 per cent. over last year.

VAN SANT IS 50,000 AHEAD

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE RE-ELECTED BY A LARGE MAJORITY.

HE LEADS THE STATE TICKET

EIGHT REPUBLICAN MEMBERS OF CONGRESS ELECTED AND ONE DEMOCRAT.

JOHN LIND COMES OUT AHEAD

DEFEATS FLETCHER IN THE FIFTH DISTRICT BY GOOD MAJORITY.

Gov. Van Sant's plurality will be more than 50,000. Never before in the history of Minnesota has a Republican candidate for governor in an off year received as many votes as did Gov. Van Sant and never before has any candidate's majority over his opponent been so large.

Unofficial reports from eighty of the eighty-two counties of the state give Van Sant a plurality of 48,568 over L. A. Rosing, the Democratic candidate for governor. The returns from many of the counties are incomplete and in some instances are estimated by the county committeemen on the basis of the vote in a majority of the precincts of the county. The estimates are conservative, however, and the official returns may increase Van Sant's plurality. The exact figures will not be known until the returns are canvassed by the state canvassing board.

The reports show that in every county in the state Van Sant gained, as compared with two years ago. Rosing carried only a few of the Democratic strongholds and these by much less than the normal Democratic majorities.

The pluralities given Van Sant and Rosing this year as compared with the pluralities given Van Sant and Lind two years ago are:

CONGRESSIONAL TICKET.

Republican Elect Eight Members and the Democrats One.

First district, James A. Tawney (Rep.) 7,000
Second district, J. T. McCleary (Rep.) 4,500
Third district, C. R. Davis (Rep.) 3,900
Fourth district, F. C. Stevens (Rep.) 5,800
Fifth district, John Lind (Dem.) 1,900
Sixth district, C. B. Buckman (Rep.) 1,800
Seventh district, A. J. Volstad (Rep.) 5,000
Eighth district, J. Adam Bede (Rep.) 6,000
Ninth district, Halvor Steenerson (Rep.) 5,000

Minnesota has elected eight Republican congressmen out of nine. Every district in the state except the Fifth gave the Republican candidate for congress a majority.

In the Fifth district, composed of Hennepin county alone, John Lind, Democrat, is elected over Loren Fletcher, Republican, by a majority estimated at 1,900.

The First district will give Tawney about 7,000 majority over McGovern, his Democratic opponent.

Congressman McCleary's committee reports returns showing a majority of 4,500 for the Second district member. The returns by counties are incomplete.

In the Third district Davis' election is claimed by not less than 3,900, based on incomplete returns from all the counties. Goodhue county alone gave Davis 2,890 over Kolars. His own county of Nicollet reports a majority of 1,357; Carver, 260, and Rice, incomplete, 954. Kolars carried Scott county by 1,287.

Early returns from Chisago and Washington counties added to the 2,604 be received in Ramsey county, give Congressman Stevens 5,504 majority.

In the Sixth district returns are coming in slowly, but the Democrats have ceased to claim the election of Dubois, and the Republicans claim Buckman's majority will not be less than 1,800.

In the Seventh district Volstad has had it practically all his own way. His majority will be in the neighborhood of 5,000.

In the Eighth district the Democrats concede Bede's election by 4,000, and it is probable that he will have not less than 5,000.

Halvor Steenerson, in the Ninth district, will run about 5,000 votes ahead of his opponents. He has polled a big vote in all of the counties. In Polk county, the home of both Steenerson and McKinnon, Moen, the Populist candidate from Norman county, polled 1,000 more votes than McKinnon, and Steenerson received nearly 1,000 more votes than both together. The vote stood: Steenerson, 3,500; McKinnon, 800; Moen, 1,600.

THE NEXT LEGISLATURE.

Republicans Make a Slight Increase in Their Representation.

The Republicans seem to have made slight gains in the legislature in Minnesota. They have, apparently, elected fifty-two senators and 115 representatives. Two years ago the Democrats had fourteen senators and fourteen representatives.

There are also three Demo-Populist senators and two Populist senators, and three Demo-Populist representatives, and six Populist representatives. These usually voted with the Democrats on party measures.

This year there are no Demo-Populists or Populists.

The members of the legislature are as follows:

First District—Senate, O. O. Laugen, Houston, Rep. House, *James E. Bosworth, Money Creek, Rep.

Second District—Senate, *P. Fitzpatrick, Winona, Dem. House, *J. J. Fehler, Winona, Rep. D. Sinclair, Winona, Rep. John Schwager, Jr., Bethany, Rep.

ALMOST A MIRACLE.

Case No. 49,763.—Mrs. M. Isted, of 1207 Strand street, Galveston, Tex., who is proprietor of a boarding house at that address, numbering among her boarders a dozen medical students, says: "I caught cold during the flood of September, 1900, and it settled in my kidneys. Despite the fact that I tried all kinds of medicines and was under the care of physicians, the excruciating twinges and dull aching across the small of my back refused to leave, and trouble with the kidney secretions began to set in. From then, ordinary Anglo-Saxon fails to describe the annoyance and suffering I endured. The fearful pain through my body, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, consequent loss of energy, and, finally, indication of complete dissolution compelled me, from sheer agony and pain, to either lie on the floor and scream, or forced me into spasms. On such occasions my husband called in a physician, whose morphine treatment relieved me temporarily. I grew weaker and thinner, and so run down physically that nothing was left but skin and bone. All my friends, acquaintances and neighbors knew about my critical condition, and on one occasion I was reported dead and they came to see my corpse. At last the doctors attending me held a consultation and agreed that if I did not undergo an operation I could not live. Preparations were made, a room selected at the city hospital, and they even went so far as to have the carriage brought to the door to carry me there. I don't know why, but something told me not to go, and I absolutely refused. Now I want the reader to grasp every word of the following: A friend of ours, a Mr. McGaund, knowing that my kidneys were the real cause of the entire trouble, brought a box of Doan's Kidney Pills to the house, and requested me to give them a trial. I had taken so much medicine that I was more than discouraged, and had little, if any, faith in any preparation. However, I reasoned if they did not do me good they could not possibly make me worse, so I began the treatment. After the third dose, I felt something dart across me like a flash of lightning, and from that moment I began to improve. The pain in my back and kidneys positively disappeared, the kidney secretions became free and natural. At present I rest and sleep well, my appetite is good, my weight has increased from 113 to 155 pounds, and my flesh is firm and solid. My friends actually marvel at the change in my appearance. Words cannot express my own feelings. I am not putting it too strongly when I say I have been raised from the dead. I am satisfied that had it not been for Doan's Kidney Pills, taken when they were, I would have been either lying in the Lake View Cemetery, or an invalid for the balance of my life. I will be only too pleased to give minuter particulars of my case to any one calling on me, not, of course, out of idle curiosity, but if they really have kidney complaint and want to know what course to pursue in get relief."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Isted will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

Every Man a Brick.

An anecdote of ancient history was given a modern twist the other day in the class-room of Professor Ingram of the Yale Latin department.

"Unlike other ancient cities," Professor Ingram related, "Sparta had no city walls, depending on the valor of its soldiers for protection against the enemy. A distinguished visitor who was once being shown about the city turned to the guide in amazement and asked: 'But where are your city walls?' The guide pointed to the Spartan army drawn up for review, and replied proudly: 'There are the walls of Sparta!'"

"And every man a brick!" a student supplemented with slangy enthusiasm.—New York Times.

A SURPRISED PHYSICIAN.

A dying patient recovers through the interposition of a humble German.

Chicago, Nov. 15.

Some weeks ago Dr. G——, a very reputable and widely-known physician, living on C—— Street, was called to attend a very complicated case of Rheumatism. Upon arriving at the house he found a man about forty years of age, lying in a prostrated and serious condition, with his whole frame dangerously affected with the painful disease. He prescribed for the patient, but the man continued to grow worse, and on Sunday evening he was found to be in a very alarming condition. The knees and elbows and larger joints were greatly inflamed, and could not be moved. It was only with extreme difficulty that the patient could be turned in bed, with the aid of three or four persons. The weight of the clothing was so painful that means had to be adopted to keep it from the patient's body.

The doctor saw that his assistance would be of no avail, and left the house, the members of the family following him to the door, weeping. Almost immediately the grief stricken ones were addressed by an humble German. He had heard of the despair of the family, and now asked them to try his remedy, and accordingly brought forth a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. The poor wife applied this remedy. The first application eased the patient very much; after a few hours they used it again, and, wonder of wonders, the pain vanished entirely! Every subsequent application improved the patient, and in two days he was well and out. When the doctor called a few days after, he was indeed surprised.

When negroes shoot craps the formula is often: "Come seven, come eleven, come heaven or the other place."

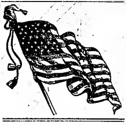
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 12, 1902.



Hon. Halvor Steenerson's plurality in the Ninth district was greater than his best friends dared hope for. Success to Congressman Steenerson and may he always continue to merit the esteem of his constituents.

Over in Grand Forks on election day one individual succeeded in voting twice in the same ward. He went home and changed clothes and tried it over again but was spotted by a challenger. Now he is thinking the matter over in the county jail.

The challenger is often considered a nuisance but once in a while he manages to do some good.

The general results of last week's election would indicate that for the last time the Peoples party has made its appearance as a political power in Minnesota. It also indicates that the rank and file of the populists were divided and absorbed by the two old parties and will be again at the next election. This year the republican party got most of them and in all likelihood will keep them.

Senator Andrew Grindeland has announced his intention of starting a newspaper at Pelan in Kittson county. It will be called the Pelan Post and the first issue is to appear this week.

The senator realizes the power of the press since his defeat for the congressional nomination, and as he is a man of considerable ability himself he will be a welcome addition to that power. Success to the Pelan Post.

That the initiative and referendum would be a poor law for Minnesota is shown by the fact that all four of the constitutional amendments submitted at the general election, were lost. They were defeated, not because of their lack of merit, but by reason of the carelessness of the people, there being only a small percentage of the voters who paid any attention to them.

To carry a constitutional amendment it requires a majority of all votes cast, hence any ballot not marked for such an amendment counts as a negative.

Gov. VanSant's unqualified endorsement by the people at the election last week teaches a good lesson to all public office holders who submit to the will of combined capital and try to further the interests of such combinations to their own benefit and against the interests of the people. When the people get aroused they take a hand in these matters themselves and the majority they gave VanSant shows that they prefer an honest official more than the schemes and money spending of political tricksters.

Gov. Van Sant's re-election was perhaps not due so much to the actual good which he accomplished as to the enemies he made.

The Supreme court of Minnesota has the blessing of most of the people of Red Lake county for the decision rendered last Friday sustaining the ditch law. In this county ditching operations have been going on most extensively and the inconveniences caused by the question of invalidity of the law were keenly felt by the farmers, the ditch contractors, the business men who furnished supplies to the latter and the banks who were called upon to cash their county warrants. Now that the Supreme court holds the law good, the pressure is relieved and all the interested parties have commenced doing their particular part of the business with renewed vigor.

Justice Brown who wrote the decision showed great wisdom in setting aside technical errors and holding that the evident intent of the statute as passed by the legislature was sufficient to over-rule such inaccuracies. Justice Brown's ruling may be found in another column.

CATCHING A THIEF.

An Old Method Utilized by a German Officer in China.

Thirty dollars was stolen at the Officers' club in Tientsin, China, and the members of the club resolved, if possible, to catch the thief.

A German captain volunteered to manage the affair, and the first thing he did was to summon all the native servants of the club. He then said to them:

"Some money has been stolen here, and I am looking for the thief. I shall find him in an hour, not before, since I need that much time in order to get instructions from a celebrated magician in Germany."

An hour later all the servants were again summoned, but this time into a dark room, in the middle of which stood the table on which the money stolen had been laid.

"Each of you, now," said the officer, "must go up to that table and press on it first your right and then your left hand, and when that is done you must raise your two hands over your head and step into the next room."

The servants did so, and as the last one stepped into the adjoining room the officer followed him, and after looking for a few moments at the many uplifted hands he pointed to one man and said, "You are the thief." The Chinaman to whom he pointed nearly fell to the ground with fright and admitted his guilt and promised to make restitution.

Very simple was the method adopted by the officer for discovering the culprit. While the native servants supposed that his spirit was in Germany in communion with the celebrated magician he was carefully smearing the surface of the table in the dark room with fat and all, which he then blackened by means of soot. The innocent servants naturally pressed their hands on the table, according to his instructions, but the culprit, though superstitious, did not do so.

As a result, while the uplifted hands of all the others were coal black, his were of a natural color, and thus his guilt was clearly proved.—Detroit Free Press.

KILLED THE SPIDER.

Deadly Influence of a Small Magnet on the Insect.

An experiment made by a scientist to test the influence which a magnet will have on a spider is of interest. The magnet employed was a small steel one of the U shape, the legs of which were about two and a half inches long by one-half inch wide and one-sixth of an inch thick, the distance between the poles being about one-quarter of an inch.

Having noticed a small spider actively running along his armchair, he brushed it off upon the carpet, where it began to run, but was somewhat impeded by the roughness of the fabric. He now slid the magnet along the carpet, following after the spider, till the ends of the poles were within a quarter of an inch of it. The animal, without being touched, almost instantly stopped, and on withdrawing the magnet the spider continued on his journey.

The experimenter then placed the magnet within half an inch in front of the spider, and, withdrawing it slowly, the latter followed it in every direction which the magnet took, both in straight and circuitous routes.

Gradually, however, the spider became so strongly magnetized as to be immovable for several minutes, the magnetic influence seeming to lose its further power. On withdrawing the magnet altogether the spider began to recover somewhat.

The scientist ultimately placed a tumbler over the spider and the magnet, covering them both completely, and at the expiration of several minutes the spider, after a struggle to escape from the strong influence which the magnet exercised over it, was dead.—Exchange.

The Word Flattery.

At first sight there would appear to be little connection between flattery and the wagging of a dog's tail, yet in nearly all the northern language the same word signifies both, and flattery is certainly derived from the word signifying to wag the tail. In the old Norman flagra signifies to flatter and also to wag the tail. In Danish logre is to wag the tail, and loger for een is to fawn on one. In Dutch vleyden is to flatter and vleydsteerten is to wag the tail. In the old German wedeln is to wag the tail, and in English wheedle is to gain one's end in flattery.

Nothing Wasted.

A Scottish farmer when going to market, it was observed, always took a hen with him in his trap. The reason was never known until one day he took a friend with him on a drive. Every place the farmer stopped he put the nosebag on his horse, and then the hen was so trained that what dropped from the horse's bag the hen would pick up, so there was nothing wasted.—Pearson's Weekly.

Good Intentions.

"Don't trust too far to yoh good intentions," said Uncle Eben, "unless yoh has skill back of 'em. Good intentions satisfies de man what has 'em, but dey is de ruination of a heap of choir music."—Washington Star.

A Buttonless Coat.

"Is there any kind of coat that never has any buttons on it?" asked a mission teacher of a class of newsboys.

"Yes, sir—a coat of paint," was the instantaneous reply.

Patriotism is not the mere holding of a great flag unfurled, but making it the goodliest in the world.—W. J. Linton.

DON'T GET MORBID.

It Is Not a Difficult Matter to Think Yourself to Death.

Thousands of people actually think themselves to death every year by allowing their minds to dwell on morbid subjects.

As a rule, the thought that kills relates to something the individual dreads more than anything else in the world. There is the germ of fatal thought in ninety-nine persons in every hundred, and the exception is only proof against the thought disease by having been inoculated with the lymph of optimism or philosophy.

The idea that one has some incipient disease in one's system, the thought of financial ruin, that one is getting on in life without improving prospects—any of them or a thousand similar thoughts may carry a healthy man to a premature grave. A melancholy thought that fixes itself upon one's mind needs as much "doctoring" as physical disease. It needs to be eradicated from the mind or it will have just the same result as a neglected disease would have. The thought disease sometimes cures itself after running its course; so does smallpox. But who would settle down to suffer from smallpox and chance recovery, as thousands of foolish persons settle down to let the thought disease, which has attacked them, do its worst?

Every melancholy thought, every morbid notion and every nagging worry should be resisted to the utmost, and the patient should be physicked by cheerful thoughts, of which there is a store in every one's possession, bright companions—cheaper than drugs and pleasanter.

There have occurred scores of dozens of cases where healthy persons have thought themselves into having tumors and cancers—cases which admit of no doubt whatever that the diseases resulted from constant morbid fear. There might possibly be fewer cases of cancer if some great doctors could assure the world that it is not a hereditary disease, but morbid minded persons on hearing that there is cancer in their families generally do the very worst thing they can do under the circumstances—they conceive an awful dread that they will be afflicted with it. They dwell upon the fear constantly, and every trifling ailment which troubles them is at first mistaken for the premonitory symptoms of cancer.

The morbid condition of mind produces a morbid condition of body, and if the disease does happen to be in the system it receives every encouragement to develop.

POULTRY POINTERS.

The best eggs are the result of a meat diet.

Weak legs come from forced growth, high feeding and close confinement.

Use no deformed or weak fowls for breeding and do not keep the same cock more than one season.

A molting hen seldom lays. She cannot be supplying eggs while the strain of growing new feathers is upon her.

A very fat hen seldom lays anything but soft shelled eggs. Apoplexy and egg bound are the result of excessive fat.

Leaves and hay chaff make excellent litter for the floors, and by throwing grain among it fowls are often kept busy scratching.

Keep the fowls away from the barns, stables and carriage houses. In such places they are nuisances; besides they are more comfortable in a place by themselves.

Hens must have carbonate and phosphate of lime for their shells, and these will be found in old plastering, broken oyster shells and bones, with some of the meat and gristle attached.

PLACEBO PRESCRIPTIONS.

An Old Doctor Tells a Secret of His Profession.

"Never tell a patient that there is nothing the matter with him," said the old doctor, who was revealing the secrets of his profession. "If you do, you make a lifelong enemy and lose your patient, who sends for another doctor. Give him something, if it is only flavored water. If the disease is only imaginary, cure the imagination with a harmless dose, and your patient gets well. In the profession we call such prescriptions 'placebos,' and more wonderful cures are effected by placebos than the world wots of. So, also, when you run across a patient who announces the first thing that he cannot take certain sorts of medicine, don't tell him he must. Agree with him and give him the medicine, if he needs it, in a disguised form.

"There are thousands of people who labor under the conviction that they cannot take quinine and will tell you that they have never taken it in their lives, while at the same time they may be taking large doses of it. The taste of quinine is hard to disguise, but if administered in a pill the patient can be made to take it and never suspect what he has swallowed. The trouble is the patient is apt to recognize a quinine pill by its appearance, to suspect, bite into the pill and thus discover your ruse. To obviate this difficulty druggists now have pills of quinine made in odd shapes and colors. Pink pills, containing nothing but quinine and a little harmless coloring matter, are a favorite form for use in cases where an antiquinine crank has to be medicated. In giving a placebo it is not wise to have it taste too well. The patient is apt to suspect if you do. And be sure that you gravely impress upon the patient that only a teaspoonful is to be taken at a time and that at stated intervals. The whole virtue of a placebo exists in the solemnity and importance with which you surround it."—New York Press.

The Home of England's Wealth.

The Bank of England generally contains sufficient gold in sixteen pound bars to make 20,000,000 sovereigns. The bank, which stands in three parishes, covers three acres of ground, and, as the current price of land in the vicinity works out at £1,000,000 an acre, it is easy to form an idea of the money value of England's wealth. The ratable value is about £1,000 a week. The bank employs about 1,000 people, pays a quarter of a million a year in wages and £35,000 a year in pensions. There are £25,000,000 worth of notes in circulation which have been handed over the bank's counter.—London Globe.

Julius Payment returned yesterday from Terrebonne and brought his bride with him. He was married on Sunday to a Miss Mayer. Last night some of the boys turned out and gave them a rousing reception.

Chas. Downey, who has spent the summer here on behalf of the Grand Forks Lumber Co., left Monday evening for his home at East Grand Forks. Charley was very popular with the boys and they hope to see him return next season.

H. Sorvold, who has been running the Home restaurant, has disposed of his business to W. A. Arthur, proprietor of the Ideal restaurant, who will run both places in the future. Mr. and Mrs. Sorvold went to Thief River Falls last evening.

Joseph Leicht, the veteran editor of the Westlicher Herold, of Winona, and president of the State Editorial Association, was a welcome visitor at this office yesterday. He was on his way to Red Lake Falls on business and tarried here only between trains.

Roy B. Shute and G. W. Murch, of the Crookston Lumber Co., were here Monday on business. Mr. Shute will in the near future leave his position in Crookston to accept one with the Imperial Elevator Co., for which he will take charge of their retail lumber yards.

D. C. Breneman moved his family to Crookston on Saturday to take up their residence there during the winter. Mr. Breneman returned Monday and will remain here until the removal of the gang from the saw mill here when he will go to Bemidji to continue working for the Crookston Lumber Co.

Manager Whirry, of the creamery, reports an excellent business, and says he expects to have a big run all winter as he is constantly receiving cream from a number of the farmers south of here who are not even stockholders in the association but who appreciate the prices they can get here for their cream.

D. C. Lighthourn, editor of the Ada Index and deputy State Insurance Commissioner, is called upon to mourn the loss of his wife who died in St. Paul on Sunday, the 2nd inst., after a brief illness. Mr. and Mrs. Lighthourn enjoyed the respect and esteem of all who knew them and Mr. Lighthourn has the sincere sympathy of all in his bereavement.

Mrs. Andrew Hall and daughter Allen returned Thursday morning after a five-weeks' trip in the east. They visited with friends in Carlstadt, N. J., Passaic, N. J., and Brooklyn, N. Y. They also took in the sights of New York City and Washington, D. C., and had a most enjoyable time. They returned in excellent health and spirits and Miss Hall immediately took up her work as manager of Hall's new confectionery.

—"Bridget, did you call the boys?" "Indade an' Oi called thim everything Oi cud think of but they won't wake up." There's such a thing as calling too much some times, but when it comes to Tschida's Leader 5-cent cigar it seems as though the people never would get tired of smoking them. They say they are the best that ever happened for the price. Try them.

Married at Grand Forks.

Early on Sunday morning Mike Anderson and Miss Bertha Emerson, accompanied by Andrew Erickson, drove from here to Grand Forks, where Mr. Anderson and Miss Emerson were united in matrimony Monday morning by Judge Kassell. They drove home again that evening and immediately started housekeeping in the dwelling in the rear of the bank.

Both young people are well known in St. Hilaire and have many friends who will wish them lasting happiness.

Ditch Law is Valid.

The Supreme court on last Friday handed down a decision sustaining the ditch law. The case was brought up from Polk county on a writ of quo warranto against the county commissioners by some parties who believed the law unconstitutional.

Justice Brown, in rendering the opinion, concedes that the act is imperfectly drawn; that it contains some technical inaccuracies, but lays down this rule for such cases as this:

"In cases of imperfectly drawn statutes the court, rather than pronounce them unconstitutional and void will draw inferences from the evident intent of the legislature as gathered from the whole statute, supplying by implication technical inaccuracies in expression and obviously unintentional omissions, from the necessity of making them operative and effectual, as to specific things, which are included in the broad and comprehensive terms and purposes thereof; and such inferences and implications are as much a part of the statute as what is distinctly expressed therein.

"A petition in proper form, filed as required by the above statute, is a jurisdictional pre-requisite to the authority of the county commissioners to entertain a proceeding thereunder; but the description of a proposed ditch need not be stated with precise accuracy. It is sufficient that the starting point, course, and terminus be stated with approximate accuracy, the board in ordering the construction of a ditch under such statute being guided by the description as contained in the surveyor's report."

$91.60 for 32 Votes

Under the above heading the Crookston Daily Journal gives the following interesting information:

Mr. Wm. Zippel, of Zippel postoffice, on the Lake of the Woods, spent Saturday in Crookston, returning here from Bemidji whither he had been with the election returns from the northern part of Beltrami county. Mr. Zippel has resided during the past eighteen years on the Lake of the Woods, and he tells interesting stories of the development of the country. The place where he lives, 40 miles east of Warroad, on the Lake of the Woods, has been called Leclaire, but the name of the postoffice has been changed to Zippel. Four years ago in this district there were only 11 votes cast and only one voting place. This year there are two precincts, at Zippel, where the vote was 32, and at Beaudette, where there were 157 votes cast, making an increase of 178 votes in four years. Mr. Zippel predicts that in two years there will be no less than 500 votes in that district. Of the 32 votes at Zippel, 32 were for VanSant and 31 for Steenerson. The total expense for bringing these 32 votes to Bemidji, the county seat, was $91.60, that is $2.86 a vote. From Zippel to Bemidji and return is about 100 miles. One takes the Canadian Northern at Beaudette, goes thence to Winnipeg and from there to Bemidji.

Mr. Zippel has a large fishing establishment on the lake. The fishing this year was first-class but it is not nearly as good as it was years ago. He ships to Hamburg, Europe, large quantities yearly of caviar, a delicacy prepared from the roe of sturgeon. Frequently, he says, the European shipping houses re-label his caviar and ship it back to America as foreign made caviar.

He expresses great hopes that the Great Northern will extend its line through Roseau county and on up to Zippel. He himself will furnish the road with 50 car loads of freight annually if they will build to Zippel. He considers that if the Great Northern extends the Thief River Falls branch that this line will be one of the best paying on the road.

Fatalism.

The disregard great men have for danger has frequently given the impression that they are fatalists. This has been said of President Roosevelt and many other brave men, because their bravery is hard to explain. They are not reckless, however, of either life or health but simply do the best they can to protect both and then leave worry to others. In this connection it should be said that doing the best you can to protect your health means using golden grain belt beer regularly with your meals and before going to bed. Order a case of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Dissolution of Partnership.

Notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between M. Hammer and Al. Swanson under the firm name and style of Hammer & Swanson, is this day dissolved by mutual consent. And the said M. Hammer will collect all debts and pay all bills for said firm.

Dated at St. Hilaire, Minnesota, this 11th day of November, 1902.

Signed: M. HAMMER.

Columbia County.

In our election report last week it was stated in our special from Crookston that the proposition to set off Nelson county from old Polk had probably carried. A complete count of the votes seems to show that Columbia county was the winner by a small majority. Both propositions cover practically the same territory, the principal difference being that Fosston was to be the county seat of Nelson while McIntosh held the same relation to Columbia. And now Fosston and McIntosh have troubles of their own with McIntosh doing all the celebrating.

The Columbia county people claim that Columbia county is established. They base their belief solely on the fact that they have received more affirmative votes than the Nelson county proposition. The Nelson county people claim that Nelson county is established. They ground their claims upon three separate facts. 1st, that Nelson county was first in the field, thereby shutting out any other proposition covering the same territory; 2nd, that Nelson county has a majority over Columbia in the territory which is to be set off; 3rd, that Nelson county has a larger majority of yes votes over no votes both in the territory to be cut off and in Polk county in general.

A Spiny Monster.

For sheer ferocity of appearance, unredeemed by any milder facial attributes, a lizard called after "Moloch horrid king" Moloch horridus is pre-eminent among reptiles. The body of this Australian reptile is so covered with spines that, as it has been put, nature seems to have endeavored to ascertain how many spines could be inserted on a given area. But, unlike its tutelary deity, who seems really to have spelled himself Molech, the lizard does not demand the blood of children. It is, indeed, vegetarian and only fiery in that it has a curious faculty of absorbing and drying up water. A specimen placed in a shallow dish was observed to attract the water like a piece of blotting paper.—Westminster Gazette.

Ancient Trades Unions.

Seven thousand years ago there were trades unions in Nineveh and Babylon, and so strict were their rules that in some cases the penalty of death was inflicted for infringing them. Each man's work was strictly defined, and even the number of hours that he was allowed to work was stated in the charter of his guild or union. Later exactly the same state of affairs existed in Pompeii, and inscriptions have been discovered stating specific appointments of officials to trades unions. The most powerful of these appears to have been that of the Fishermen's guild.

Deceptive.

"Dey oughter pass a law," said Hungry Higgins, nursing his leg, "ter compel people ter call deir dogs be appropriate names."

"Wot'e de matter now?" inquired Dusty Rhodes.

The cost of producing and planting young salmon is under $1 per 1,000.

A Persian Dinner.

A traveler in Persia thus describes a dinner served in the household of a wealthy Persian: "The chief dish consists of a fowl boiled to rags, surrounded by a toothsome mass of rice, hard boiled eggs, fried onions, almonds and raisins. There is a Shiraz wine, clear, golden red liquid that has traveled over the mountain passes on muleback in a huge glass carboy. Among the dessert manna has a conspicuous place. This delicacy is somewhat akin to nougat; it is studded with walnuts and almonds and is jaw sticking to the last degree. Like the mango, it is best eaten in private, for it renders the masticator speechless. It is made of gum that exudes from a tree and is said to be engendered by a worm."—Chicago News.

Fertile Cuba.

In Cuba cabbages frequently weigh as much as twenty pounds. All vegetables do well. Radishes may be eaten from fourteen to eighteen days after sowing, lettuce in five weeks after sowing, while corn produces three crops per year. Sweet potatoes are perpetual. The natives dig up the tubers, cut them off and plant the old vines, which produce a new crop in three months. All sorts of fruit, horticultural and greenhouse plants and bulbous stock are also grown.

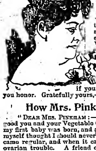
EVERY DAY.

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is unfit to care for children; it ruins a child's disposition and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing a child involves; it is impossible for her to do anything calmly. She cannot help it, as her condition is due to suffering and shattered nerves caused by some derangement of the uterine system with backache, headache, and all kinds of pain, and she is on the verge of nervous prostration.

When a mother finds that she cannot be calm and quiet with her children, she may be sure that her condition needs attention, and she cannot do better than to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This medicine will build up her system, strengthen her nerves, and enable her to calmly handle a disobedient child without a scene. The children will soon realize the difference, and seeing their mother quiet, will themselves become quiet.

Mrs. May Brown, of Chicago, Ill., says:



"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—'Honor to whom honor is due,' and you deserve both the thanks and honor of the mothers of America whom you have so blessedly helped and benefited. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I would feel run-down, nervous and irritable, or have any of the aches and pains which but few women escape, and I have found that it relieved me at once and gave me new strength. Several ladies, members of our Literary Union, speak in the highest praise of your Vegetable Compound, as they have been cured from serious female troubles. One lady, who thought she must submit to an operation, was cured without using anything in the world but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. You have hosts of friends in Chicago, and if you came to visit our city we would delight to do you honor. Gratefully yours,—Mrs. May Brown, 57 Grant Place, Chicago, Ill.

How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Mrs. McKinny.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I feel it my duty to write and let you know the good you and your Vegetable Compound are doing. I had been sick ever since my first baby was born, and at the birth of my second, my doctor, as well as myself thought I should never live through it. After that menstruation never came regular, and when it came I suffered terribly. I also had womb and ovarian trouble. A friend of my husband's advised him to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me. At first I had no faith in it, but now nothing could induce me to be without it. Menstruation has become regular, and I feel like a new woman. Your medicine is a God-send to suffering women. I hope this letter will lead others to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours truly, Mrs. Mildred McKinny, 25 Pearl St., San Francisco, Cal." (March 16, 1901).

To Get Out of it Cheap.

Mrs. Newcomb (on being asked to contribute a dollar to help make up the deficit in the minister's salary)—Really I can't afford to give so much money; but I'll buy two chickens, a pound of coffee, a can of condensed milk, a bottle of olives, some cottage cheese, a sparerib and some cut flowers for the church supper, the proceeds of which are to be turned in.—Judge.

A Question of Sex.

A bright little Washington girl, four years old, who is a descendant of Oobright, the veteran journalist of a decade ago, shows a decided ability to think and decide for herself, quite up to the standard of her brainy ancestor.

She was repeating her prayers at bedtime recently, the Lord's Prayer first, and, as is her habit, winding up with a petition for blessings on the various members of the family of both sexes. But this time, when she came to the conclusion, she hesitated a moment, as a new idea struck her, and then, in a most devout tone, added:

"Amen, and a-women!"

"Why, daughter, you must not say that! What did you say 'A-women' for?" asked her mother, in surprise.

"Well," replied the young philosopher, "didn't I pray for women as well as men?"—Margaret Sullivan, in Lippincott's.

Green County's Sensation.

Catskill, N. Y., November 10th.—Ulster and Greene Counties are ringing with the news of the wonderful recovery of George F. Ayers, who lives at 16 Division street, in this city. One year ago Mr. Ayers was suffering from Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, and the doctors gave him little relief and less hope. To-day Mr. Ayers is as well as man could wish. He tells the following story:

"About a year ago I was at West Camp, sick with Bright's Disease and without hope of ever being better, when an old gentlemen from Bath, N. Y., advised me to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, telling me they had cured him of the same disease.

"I had tried so many remedies that I was past hoping and told him so, but when he bought me a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and coaxed me to try them I did so just to humor his whim.

"That was the means of saving my life. I took that box and half a dozen more. Thanks to that old man and Dodd's Kidney Pills, I am cured."

An Unlimited Supply.

Everything is getting dearer," said the apprehensive citizen.

"No," answered the man who had been reading about "How to Circumvent the Trusts," "advice is as cheap as ever."—Washington Star.

*Members re-elected.

GOV. WHITE IT IS.

Republican Candidate is Re-elected Governor of North Dakota.

Practically complete returns on the election show that Gov. White, the Republican candidate, will have a majority of about 11,000. Official returns may, of course, slightly change this estimate, but it is safe to say, on the returns now at hand, that when the final figures are given out the governor's majority will be found to be above 10,000.

The returns indicate that while in the cities there was a good deal of scratching of ballots, in the country districts a much larger proportion of the voters voted the straight ticket. This condition appears to have prevailed all over the state.

Spalding and Marshall, the Republican candidates for congress, will run about two thousand votes above the rest of the ticket.

According to the table below White has carried every county in the state with the exception of Walsh, possibly Grand Forks, and perhaps one or two of the smaller western counties.

The next legislature will be Republican by a large majority, the committee claiming to have elected four-fifths of it. There were some very lively contests, and some counties which have been Republican failed this time to elect Republican candidates.

LA FOLLETTE WINS

Governor's Plurality is Estimated at Over Forty-Nine Thousand.

STATE TICKET.

Governor—Robert M. La Follette.
Lieutenant Governor—James O. Davidson.
Secretary of State—Walter L. Houser.
State Treasurer—John J. Kempf.
Attorney General—L. M. Sturdevant.
State Superintendent—Charles P. Cary.
Railroad Commissioner — John W. Thomas.
Commissioner of Insurance—Zeno M. Host.

The latest returns give George La Follette a plurality estimated at over 40,000. It is claimed that fuller returns will run this above 50,000. The returns have come in very slowly on account of the great number of split tickets.

In many parts of the state the election inspectors have not sent in their reports, as they have not finished counting the ballots.

HERREID ELECTED.

Republican Candidate for Governor Receives a Good Majority.

The latest returns on Tuesday's election, covering practically all the counties in the state, gives Herried, Republican candidate for governor, a majority of over 19,000. Complete returns will undoubtedly increase this slightly, the Republicans claiming that his majority will be considerably above 20,000.

The congressmen and the rest of the state ticket will run about the same. The legislature will have a majority of 120 on joint ballot insuring the re-election of Senator A. B. Kittredge.

A Dire Threat.

The warring senators glared viciously at one another.

"Scoundrel!" hissed one.

"Robber!" snarled the other, in great heat.

"Liar!"

"Puppy!"

The debate was approaching the unparliamentary stage.

"If you say another word," yelled the first senator, his eyes snapping and his chest heaving with anger, "I shall not be responsible for the consequences to you."

"What will you do?" asked the second, his hand moving quietly toward his hip pocket.

"Do?" thundered the first. "Why, you contemptible whippersnapper! I'll boom you for the vice presidency!"

Trembling with mingled fear and wrath, the second senator sank into his seat and gnashed his teeth in a manner that proved conclusively that he had been baffled.—Judge.

That Settled It.

A butcher hastened to consult a neighboring lawyer, whose offices were down town, and to seek advice concerning damage done to his window by a boy that morning.

"Can I make the boy or his father pay?" inquired the client.

"You can, certainly," evasively replied the lawyer. "What is the value of the damage?"

"Two dollars," replied the butcher, triumphantly.

"Good! I will write a demand note—what's the name?"

"It was your boy," was the reply.

"Oh! Very well," remarked the lawyer, sitting back in his chair, "you can consider the matter settled. My charge for the advice is $2."—New York Times.

POINTS OUT MASON

NEGRO SAYS HE IS THE MAN WHO GAVE HIM WATCHES TO PAWN.

IDENTIFICATION IS POSITIVE

ANOTHER STEP IN SOLVING THE "JACK THE SLUGGER" MYSTERY.

MASON TAKES IT VERY COOLLY

SAYS HE DOES NOT KNOW THE NEGRO AND NEVER SAW HIM BEFORE.

Boston, Nov. 10.—George L. O. Perry, the negro who pawned the watches taken from the murdered women, Miss Clara A. Morton and Miss Agnes McPhee, declared yesterday that Alan G. Mason is the man from whom he received these articles. Perry was taken to the jail in East Cambridge, where Mason, under arrest on the charge of killing Miss Morton, is confined pending a hearing in the Cambridge court. In one of the jail corridors Perry positively identified Mason as the man who had given him the two watches. Mason, by neither look nor word, betrayed any knowledge of having seen Perry before. When questioned by Sheriff Fairbairn, Mason merely said: "I do not know this man; I never saw him before."

During the day Chief Ryan and Officer Argy of Belmont talked with Perry, and later State Officers Tew, Dunham, Dexter and others took Perry to the jail. The callers were shown into the room where Mason and six others were in line. Perry walked straight up to Mason, who was second in position, and,

Pointing His Finger at Him, said: "This is the man who gave me the watches to pawn." He was about to leave the room when Sheriff Fairbairn asked him if he would not like to talk with Mason in order that he might make himself sure that Mason was the man. Perry replied that there was no need of that, as he knew who the man was and had known him for a long time.

On being returned to his cell in the police station, Perry was confronted by three newsboys and they identified him as another newsboy.

Another visitor at the police station was Mason's attorney. He was accompanied by a woman. This woman did not see Perry, but it was understood that she had been produced by the defense in the hope of showing that Perry himself or some other negro was the real "Jack the Slugger." She is one of the women who were followed by a negro in Cambridge several weeks ago. Mr. Ware, Mason's attorney, places no faith in the statement of Perry that it was Mason that gave the boy the watches.

Pe-ru-na Cures, That Is Why the People Like It.

All the Advertisement in the World Could Not Make Pe-ru-na as Popular as It Is.

Miss Margaret Donnelly, 31 Webster Place, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "Peruna was recommended to me about a year ago for catarrh with which I had been troubled nearly all my life, but which had given me serious trouble a few months before I took Peruna. In two weeks my head cleared up, I did not have headaches, and in a short time felt perfectly well."—Margaret Donnelly.

November Colds Should Not Be Allowed to Develop Into Chronic Catarrh.

Pe-ru-na Cures a Cold Promptly and Permanently.

"I am glad to recommend Peruna as it has done so much for me. I had been a great sufferer from catarrhal colds until I was urged to try Peruna, and I am happy to say that it has entirely cured me. I shall never be without it and most cheerfully recommend it to others who are afflicted as I have been."—Katherine Dauter, 239 13th St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Most people think the success of Peruna depends upon the use of advertisements. Undoubtedly the advertisements help some. But by far the greatest number of people who hear of Peruna, have their attention called to it by a friend.

Some one gets cured of chronic catarrh by Peruna. After he is certain of his cure, he is sure to recommend it to his friends. Friend recommends it to friend and the news spreads from tongue to tongue.

All the advertisements in the world could not make Peruna as popular as it is. Peruna cures. That is the reason people like it. Peruna cures a very stubborn disease. That is why everyone recommends it. Peruna cures chronic catarrh after all other remedies fail which explains why neighbor recommends it to neighbor. Peruna cures catarrh permanently, and this way has gained a life-long friend.

People who have been cured by Peruna many years ago have been eager to recommend Peruna to their friends ever since. This is the way Peruna is advertised. It advertises itself. Its merits are its chief advertisement. Once cured of so distressing and exasperating a malady as catarrh, it becomes the duty of every one to pass it along; to call the attention of those who are still victims, to a remedy that rarely fails to cure.

Beware of Cheap Imitations of Pe-ru-na ... Be Sure That You Get Pe-ru-na.

There are no substitutes for Peruna. Allow no one to persuade you that there is something just as good. The success of Peruna has tempted many people to devise cheap imitations. Beware of them. Be sure that you get Peruna.

Miss Jennie Driscoll, 870 Putnam Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., Writes:

"I heard so much in praise of Peruna as a specific for catarrhal affections that when I found myself with a bad case of catarrh of the head and throat Peruna was the first thing that I thought of. And my convictions were not wrong, for in a few weeks after using Peruna systematically I was entirely rid of this aggravating and distressing disease, catarrh.

"If people knew how efficient Peruna was for this trouble they would not hesitate to try it. I have all the faith in the world in it, and have never known of a case where the person was not cured in a short time."—Jennie Driscoll.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

BIG PLANT OF ARMOUR & CO. AT SIOUX CITY DESTROYED BY FIRE.

LOSS IS NEARLY A MILLION

FIRE SPREADS QUICKLY AND FIREMEN CONDUCT A HOPELESS FIGHT.

WATER LIKE OIL TO THE FLAMES

EXPLOSION OF AMMONIA DRUMS MAKES WORK DANGEROUS FOR FIREMEN.

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 17.—The big plant of Armour & Co., which occupied three and one-half acres of ground at the extreme south end of the stock yards district, was totally destroyed by fire which started on the second floor of the fertilizer building. The loss, estimated by Charles W. Lennon, manager of the company, was total, or $900,000.

The cause of the fire was said by Mr. Lennon to have been either spontaneous combustion or an imperfect drier. There is $721,500 of insurance on the property.

Six hundred men will be thrown out of employment all winter by the fire. The fire was discovered by a watchman of the building, who a few minutes before had pulled a messenger box on the floor where it started. The flames quickly spread. Every fireman in the city was called out. Six streams of water were soon being thrown upon the flames which were gutting the fertilizer building, but the pressure was inadequate. The floor and contents of the fertilizer building

Burned Like Chaff.

The roof fell in and a minute later the fire burst through into the beef-killing house. From the beef killing house to the oleo house was only a step, and when the lard started to burn the fire presented a most spectacular appearance. By the time the big beef house, where some 500 carcasses, nearly dressed, were hanging, caught fire, the whole plant, except the hog house, was a lake of flames. Suddenly there was a terrific explosion, followed quickly by another and then another.

"Those are the Ammonia drums," shouted Mr. Lennon to Fire Chief Kellogg. "Tell your men to be careful; there is danger of suffocation."

Twenty-four drums of 100 pounds of ammonia each exploded before the reserve supply in the ammonia cistern was reached. The ignition almost raised the entire plant off its foundation. The through the heavy fire wall which separated the big hog house from the other buildings. The hog house was the last building to the north, and the largest of all. Steadily the fire crept against the wind and through the office building, which from the first had been enveloped in flames. When the warehouse caught all streams were turned in that direction, but the water seemed like oil. In the building were 3,500 dressed hogs and 2,500,000 pounds of pork produce. After the fire had gained a good headway in the hog house all hope of saving any part of the plant was abandoned.

Flames Soon Burst

The efforts of the fire department were as feeble in effect as drops of rain in the ocean. The fire continued to burn all day, and in the afternoon there was another terrific explosion, which threw bricks and pieces of iron for hundreds of yards, endangering thousands of spectators, but no one was seriously hurt.

FIRE PANIC IN A CAR.

Crossed Wires Start a Blaze That Lets Loose Pandemonium.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—A South side elevated train pulled into the Twelfth street station with the flooring of the second car in flames. Inside the car were thirty panic-stricken passengers, nearly half of them women. The doors of both ends of the car were closed and held shut by guards, who were nearly as much excited as the people penned within. Only a few moments passed until Twelfth street was reached, but the scene inside the car was pandemonium. One woman fainted. Men were running like stampeded animals, and their oaths and shrieks added to the terror of the women. Several men attempted to escape through the windows, and the crashing of glass increased the panic. When the train reached Twelfth street the doors of the car were thrown open, and in a mad rush to the platform several of the frightened ones were trampled under foot. The train on which the panic occurred had just left Eighteenth street when wires near the front end of the car became crossed and set fire to the woodwork. On the arrival of the train at Twelfth street the fire was quickly extinguished.

Capture the Pretender.

Tangiers, Morocco, Nov. 17.—According to a report which has reached here from Fez, the imperial troops have succeeded in capturing the pretender to the throne. It is stated that the sultan, at the head of an army of 25,000 men, will direct in person the operations to put down the uprising of the Kabyle tribesmen at Zemour.

Murder and Suicide.

Youngstown, Ohio, Nov. 17.—James Rose, aged twenty-two, a negro, last night fatally shot his seventeen-year-old wife. He then walked to his father's house, told of the deed and killed himself. He was jealous.

Bad Men Get It.

Portland, Or., Nov. 17.—At Newburg, twenty miles from this city, the station was broken into by robbers and the safe of the Chehalis Valley Milling company, which contained $1,200, was robbed.

CANADIANS ALARMED.

Rumor That a $4 Duty Will Be Put on Lumber Entering United States.

Toronto, Nov. 17.—Canadian lumbermen, who are in touch with what is going on at Washington and in Canadian government circles are alarmed over the rumor that a duty of $4 per thousand feet will be levied on Canadian-sawed lumber entering the United States. It is said that the measure is intended as a reprisal for the action of the provincial governments of Ontario and Quebec in placing an embargo on the export of pulp wood. A number of pulp mills on the northern borders of the United States were dependent largely upon Canada for pulp wood, and these have suffered by the embargo. No effectual reprisal can be taken in connection with the pulp industry, so that an effort, it is alleged, is on foot to strike at Canada through the sawn lumber industry. Sir Wilfred Laurier is anxious that the governments of both Ontario and Quebec should take some step that will mitigate the alleged grievance of the American pulp men. It is possible that on his coming trip to Virginia Sir Wilfred will discuss the matter with the American government.

BRITISH SCANDAL.

Police Revelations of Degeneracy Among High Officials.

London, Nov. 17.—Evidence of the appalling degeneracy of certain circles of the British aristocracy continues to be printed. Arnold White, the author, has aroused much public comment the past week by speaking plainly on the subject in two or three articles. The greatest sensation was caused, however, by astounding revelations furnished by the police. The policy of "Burking" justice in the ordinary form of public prosecutions apparently has been coupled with that of private punishment of high placed offenders by the disclosure of their infamy to friends. A police inspector, who has been engaged on the cases, told the following instance of something that happened last week:

"Suspicion had been lately directed to a house in the Fulham district. The building stood alone on a large ground. The detectives surrounded it one evening, entered, and arrested the inmates, all men, numbering about forty, and took them to Scotland Yard. There it was found that the prisoners included a high court official and other prominent persons. On account of the magnitude of the scandal the police were compelled to turn the whole lot loose."

EDITOR GETS BEATING.

Attacks an American Singer and Is Soundly Thrashed.

Dresden, Saxony, Nov. 17.—Miss Belle Applegate, a native of Louisville, Ky., made her debut here last week and scored a remarkable triumph as Carmen. Dr. Boekh, a renowned critic of opera, says:

"She displayed the true seething Southern temperament, while her voice was managed with great skill and taste."

The king of Saxony sent for her the next morning and personally congratulated her on the enthusiasm her performance has worked up. She was repeatedly called before the curtain and retired nearly smothered with flowers. The Neueste Nachrichten published a rather scurrilous notice of her performance, and that evening the editor received a card with a Bohemian name on it. Then a man, who evidently was an American student, armed with a stick, was ushered into the editorial sanctum and instantly attacked the editor. The latter defended himself vigorously and wrested the stick from his assailant's hands, who shortly afterward rushed out of the office minus his hat and with his clothing torn. The editor, however, was badly beaten, too.

BIG PRICES FOR THE DURBAR.

Visitors to the Ceremony Must Be Prepared to Spend Money.

London, Nov. 17.—The excitement over the Indian durbar continues. It is estimated that nearly 50,000 Britons and Americans will visit Delhi for the occasion. The enormous prices charged, however, have caused many people to abandon the idea of being present. It will cost two persons with two servants, $3,000 in traveling expenses alone. The cost of the stay of visitors at Delhi cannot be estimated fully. The hotels there are already charging eight times their usual tariff, and the available houses of the town have been quickly hired at from $30,000 to $45,000 apiece. The Indian princes are sparing no expense in taking steps to return the hospitality which was extended to them in England at the time of the coronation.

THEY KISS AND PART.

King Edward and Emperor William Are Cheered.

London, Nov. 17.—Emperor William concluded his visit to King Edward and has started on his visit to Lord and Lady Lonsdale at Lowther castle, Penrith, Cumberland. Hours before the emperor's departure the road to the railroad station was lined by hundreds of spectators. Before entering the train the emperor inspected the guard of honor. Emperor William and King Edward entered the saloon car together and kissed each other on both cheeks. King Edward left the car and stood chatting with the emperor. The king's last words were: "Good bye, again, au revoir." Emperor William stood for some time at a window as the train moved away, acknowledging the cheers of the crowds about the station.

SECRETARY WILSON ILL.

Confined to His Home by Severe Neuralgic Cold.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Secretary Wilson is confined to his home by a severe neuralgic cold which has developed since the recent political campaign, in which the secretary took an active part. His ailment has been considerably relieved, but it will be some days before he is able to resume his duties in the agricultural department.

Hymn For Thanksgiving

O thou to whom a nation brings
The gift of grateful prayer and praise,
The source whence every blessing springs,
Who guidest all our earthly ways—
Enlarge the scope of our desires;
Make firmer our fraternal ties;
May all souls seek our counsel fires,
The world partake our charities.

Grant, Mighty One, to us the skill
To conquer every giant wrong;
The power to do thy gracious will,
The soul of love, the breath of song;
The peace that moveth side by side
With honor, mercy, justice, faith,
With human hopes and rights to bide;
In league with life in face of death.

Who dared the evil powers of hate,
The harpy ignorance that drew
The rich, warm blood of hearts elate
With gentle instincts firm and true,
Oh, bid our lives repeat the strain
They learned of freedom in its morn,
As shells that murmur of the main
Forever to the ocean born.

From man to thee; from flower to star;
From where white daisies kiss the sod;
We hail the golden links afar
That binds us to our Father, God.
"Give us more light!" the truth to sing,
From chill Alaska to the sands
Where cacti scarlet banners fling
To all the dark and stricken lands.

Just a Reminiscence of Happy Childhood.

Who among us does not remember with pleasure the "meeting house" services on Thanksgiving day morning?—now, alas, many years ago. Anticipation of the feast to follow the solemn ceremonies of formal thanksgiving may have detracted somewhat from our attention to the words of the preacher, but our hearts turn now with grateful warmth to those well-remembered scenes. We are better men and women to-day for our attendance at those homely Thanksgiving services. The gratitude of full hearts was thus poured out for the manifold blessings of the year. Happy the man who can to-day with "a lowly and contrite heart" reverently return thanks for the good gifts of God.

The Oldest and Most Real American Festival.

An important chapter in American history was revealed when, at Fulham palace, Gov. Bradford's manuscript of the "History of the Voyage of the Pilgrim Fathers in the Mayflower and the Foundation of the Plymouth Plantation," was discovered. In that manuscript truth was given to the tradition that the Pilgrims ate roast turkeys at their first Thanksgiving dinner. What wonder the poet was inspired to say;

"Dear old Thanksgiving,
Whose arms are a turkey roasted!"

And it has come to be distinctively the one turkey day of all the year. Then he dies for his country. He can proudly say to the American eagle, "My friend, fly away off to the mountain tree tops and sit down; to-day I reign in the hearts of Americans."

But despite the truth given the old Yankee legend Thanksgiving day has become the most distinctive of our national festivals. It is the oldest, too, for it antedates the Fourth of July a century and a half. The American does not look back to ancestral halls, rich in noble tradition, but to a birthplace of which every true citizen feels proud; a birthplace savoring of the soil of a new continent and telling of conditions surrounding the infancy of a great people, now 80,000,000 in number. Through the mists of time he looks back and sees the brave New England pioneers, the Virginia settlers and Penn's daring followers facing terrible hardships, and through them creating the national spirit of America—a spirit of self-reliance, of enterprise, of patriotism; a spirit to meet emergencies as they arise. If for no other blessing the man is thankful for the memories of those hardy ancestors, and shows this feeling of gratitude on Thanksgiving day.

Our Obligations Must Not Be Overlooked.

In the length and breadth of happy America to-day there should be no single person in want. Blessed above all other nations of the earth have we been; let us not forget our obligations. "The poor ye have always with you." As true to-day as when the Perfect Man first uttered them, are these words. With prosperity and happiness goes the duty of remembering those less fortunate than we. The joy of relieving distress—even distress occasioned by sin or waywardness—is one of the keenest pleasures of this festive season. No family should be in want, no person feel that he has not cause for gratitude. Out of the abundance of our store let us succor the afflicted. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of these, ye have done it unto Me."

New England Claims The Day As Her Own.

The spirit of Thanksgiving day can never have the significance in the child of other States that it has for the child of New England. What with the memory of that first feast of venison and turkey and pumpkin; with traditions of brick ovens and steaming puddings and pies and apples galore; with the meeting-house sermon for young and old; with the sledding party and nut crackings—

"When the gray-haired New Englander sees round his board
The old broken ties of affections restored," is it a marvel that Thanksgiving is traced nowhere else than to the early Yankee colonies? And, however much the celebration has spread to other localities, especially to the Western Reserve, it is difficult to interpret its full meaning to the uninitiated. "The proof of the pudding is the eating," in this case especially, and good digestion often must wait on appetite in the proving.

Still in all sections of the country the day will be more or less observed after the fashion of the Puritan forefathers. John will come home from college, Charles from the office in the city, and Daniel from the far West, where he has gained a fortune. The old bachelor uncle, a noted attorney, will be at the homestead, and there will grace the great white-cloth table on that day all the children and grandchildren, winsome maidens and hearty youths.

Thus will Thanksgiving day pass in the country life of America. It is difficult, indeed, to interpret the meaning of it to the city-bred man and woman, girl and boy, unlearned in its supremest joys. But withal, instead of the day's observance being confined to New England, its spirit will spread to all the corners of the States and to the islands of the far-away seas, where dear ones look homeward. It will be a grand day, and people will be grateful for the privilege of living in such a goodly land. The features of the day itself, the children and the profound tranquillity of peace will tend to make the occasion one of sweetness and enjoyment for boys and girls of to-day and of yesterday.

Luscious Pumpkin Pie Crowns the Dinner.

Second only to the time-honored turkey, the "piece de resistance" of the Thanksgiving dinner, is the luscious pumpkin pie. Is there anything of boyhood's days that the prosperous and portly middle-aged man remembers with more keen delight? Feast fit for monarch or conqueror is the king of the barnyard, supplemented with toothsome pumpkin pie. How much of dignities, wealth and worldly advancement would many of us resign could we sit down to the feast with the appetite of Boyhood! Alas! the pies may be the same, but the years have robbed us of the healthy zest with which at one time we attacked the golden brown delicacies that "mother used to make."

The apple, king of the orchard, has all seasons for its own; no special occasion is needed for the serving of that delicacy, beloved alike by the epicure and the small boy. The mince pie is associated forever with the thoughts of Christmas and its joys, with wassail and with feasting, with holly-decked halls and the stately Sirloin, but the pumpkin is the pie par excellence to grace the Thanksgiving dinner table. The feast would have an air of incompleteness without that tempting dessert.

The unfortunates of our race whose lot it must be to spend the season in some foreign country, where the benighted inhabitants know not the dish, will suffer keenly. The turkey and other appropriate delicacies may be procured, but in vain may the chef concoct masterpieces of gastronomy, in vain the wine sparkles in the costly glasses, the feast is incomplete.

Let Us Remember the Poor and Needy.

The personal attributes of "Old King Cole" have been celebrated in song for many years, and at this festive season it is to be feared that too many copy after the immortal "jolly old soul." Celebration of the mercies vouchsafed to us is right and proper, but a too prolonged feasting is not the best form of that celebration. The unfortunate, the poor, the many who find the world's pathway stony and the way long, should be in our thoughts rather than the gratification of our own pleasures. The ever toothsome turkey will be a little more succulent if we sit at table with the knowledge that others less fortunate than ourselves have been comforted and their heavy burdens for a time lightened.

In May, 1578, Was Held First Thanksgiving Day.

There is a record of a day spent in thanksgiving by a small party of English colonists on the coasts of Newfoundland. Wolfal, an English minister under Frobisher, on Monday, May 27, 1578, and the few men with him, spent the day in thanksgiving for miraculous delivery. In the autumn of 1621, ten months after they had landed, the colonists of Plymouth held the celebration to which is generally traced the American custom.

Two years later the people held a somewhat different celebration. In July, 1623, they were on the point of starvation because of a great drought, but true to the incentive that caused them to cross the sea and endure hardships they resolved to look to the Giver of all good and to hold a day of fasting and prayer. Rain came as they prayed—whether because of the length of the incantations is not told in the records—and their spirits and the crops were refreshed. The same thing occurred again in 1631, when they prayed to be saved from starvation.

The Massachusetts Bay colony had a similar experience in 1630. On July 8 the colonists resorted to prayer for delivery, and turned the prayer meeting into one of thanksgiving, "in view of the relief afforded by the immigrants to their brethren in distress, and of the preservation experienced by the former on the ocean." Again, on February 22, 1631, a thanksgiving day was held, and there are records of thanksgivings in the colony, days set apart officially, in 1633, 1634, 1637, 1638 and 1639. The spirit had spread to the Connecticut settlers and there were days of grateful significance at intervals from 1639 to 1716, and regularly thereafter.

Observances in the City and Country.

The Thanksgiving sentiment and the reverence for the day doubtless are as deeply rooted in the city as in the country districts, but there is a wide difference in its observance. The dweller in the city makes the occasion one of personal enjoyment and often ostentatious display; his brother in the country seems to realize more fully the religious significance of the occasion and his celebration is marked with more of reverence and humility. Generous and widespread hospitality is of course a prominent feature wherever Americans are gathered, but the ideal "Thanksgiving day," the real spirit which its founders meant to inculcate, is found in the country districts rather than in the crowded city. The bustle of the modern city is not conducive to reverent humility.

FLAGMAN'S ERROR

CAUSES A SERIOUS COLLISION AT A CHICAGO STREET CROSSING.

ONE KILLED, AND MANY INJURED

FREIGHT TRAIN CRASHES INTO CROWDED ELECTRIC TRAIN.

MIRACLE THAT SO MANY ESCAPED

FLAGMAN AND STREET CAR MEN ARE PLACED UNDER ARREST.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—One man was killed, and a dozen men, women and children more or less seriously injured in a collision last night between a Western avenue electric train and a Chicago, Burlington & Quincy freight train at the Eighteenth street crossing. The motor and trailer, which made up the electric train, was crowded with passengers and it seems a miracle that so many escaped instant death.

A mistake of the flagman at the crossing was responsible for the accident. The freight train, consisting of forty-two cars and an engine at each end, broke in two as it approached Western avenue. The first portion passed the crossing, and the flagman, not seeing the remaining portion coming at full speed half a block away, pulled up the gates and gave the signal that the crossing was clear. The electric train, which had been waiting for the freight train, started to cross and was hit squarely by the last half of the train. Both cars were overturned in the ditch by the collision. Several passengers noticed the danger in time to jump before the accident happened, but the rest of the passengers were jammed in at the doors, unable to get out. When the two trains came together the passengers were thrown in every direction. The flagman and men in charge of the street cars have been placed under arrest.

ROOSEVELT ENJOYS IT.

President Hasn't Had Such Freedom Since He Entered White House.

Smedes, Miss., Nov. 17—Sunday was a quiet day at the president's camp on the Little Sunflower. There was no hunting, but the president and a few members of the party spent a couple of hours in the morning rambling about the trails on their horses. Dinner was the chief event of the day. The menu included roast bear paws and possum and sweet potatoes. Dinner was served in camp style on a rough pine board table set up in the open air. Tin plates and tin cups were used. There were not enough knives and forks to go around and the colored cook announced to the amusement of everybody as the party sat down that on account of the scarcity of the articles he had distributed them only to the "colonel," as the president is invariably called in camp, and the "foreign gentlemen." The president is enjoying his outing very much. He has not had three days of such complete freedom and rest since he entered the White House. Holt Collier's dander is up and he vows that the colonel will not go home empty handed. His dogs had a good rest yesterday and will be in fine condition to resume the chase.

SPEAKERSHIP OPEN TO ALL.

Membership of the House Is Not Necessary.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Anybody can get into the contest for the speakership of the house of representatives so far as the restrictions of the Constitution are concerned, says the Washington star. In fact there is nothing except custom, which has prevailed from the beginning of the government, to suggest that a member of the house should be its speaker. This interesting, even if rather academic discussion has arisen in connection with the pending contest. The Constitution of the United States provides that "the house of representatives shall chose their speaker and other officers." That leaves the field open to the world so far as the law is concerned. Just how it happened that the first speaker of the house was chosen from among its members, while all other officers were taken from without that body, is a question that relates to the first doings of congress. The Constitution made provision for the senate so that its presiding officer should be an outsider, with absolutely no authority as a member of that body beyond his duties as such except in case of a tie vote, when he has the deciding vote. But the speaker of the house of representatives has, from the formation of that body, been chosen from among its members, and from time to time the authority of the speaker has been enlarged until he has grown to be an autocrat.

Dynamite in Coal

Aberdeen, S. D., Nov. 17.—An explosion shattered a large range in the Hotel Aberdeen and wrecked the kitchen in bad shape. It is supposed that a dynamite cap accidentally found its way into the coal. No one hurt.

Railroad Official Murdered.

Conroe, Tex., Nov. 17.—Master Mechanic C. W. Tate of the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe, was shot and killed at Waukegan yesterday. On circumstantial evidence Sheriff Anderson has arrested Tom Futrell, a conductor.

Gov. Yates Has Turn for Better.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 17.—Physicians attending Gov. Yates state that they believe a turn for the better has developed. For five hours yesterday his temperature remained at 99 3-5, only one degree above normal.

Woolen Grapes.

An original idea on a hat of dull green zibeline felt is a trimming of woolen grapes in about the same color, with dull-green leaves. These are used with a scarf of pale-blue mousseline de soie.

A good many hats are trimmed with plumes of mixed colors, and the shaded feathers, too, are fashionable. A capeline of a heavy white lace has the edge of the broad brim finished with petit gris and a band of the same fur on the shallow crown. On one side is a chou of black velvet holding a cluster of gray feathers shading to black on the tips and edges. The feathers—and there is a lot of them—fall off the hat brim, making a becoming background to the face.—New York Tribune.

Working People Interested.

Wuerisburg, Wis., Nov. 17th.—The working men and women of this district are greatly interested in the case of Mary Kowaky, who, in an interview, says:

"I have almost all my life been a sufferer from Backache, and two years ago I caught cold on my Kidneys, and the agonies that followed were almost unbearable.

"I consulted different doctors, but the relief they gave me was only temporary. The terrible pains always returned, and my suffering tempted me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. They did me good almost from the start, till now, after taking three boxes, I am almost completely cured.

"I want all hardworking people to know this, for, with the help of Dodd's Kidney Pills, I don't mean to suffer any more Backache."

To Suit the Masculine Taste.

"I shall never permit myself to become a household drudge," said the young woman. "I shall endeavor to improve my mind."

"That is a good idea," answered Miss Cayenne, "but don't let your literary pursuits monopolize you. Remember, there are times when currant jelly appeals to a man a great deal more than current fiction."—Exchange.

Time and tide wait for no man, but a woman can manage to make almost anything wait.

Another club woman, Mrs. Haule, of Edgerton, Wis., tells how she was cured of irregularities and uterine trouble, terrible pains and backache by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"A while ago my health began to fail because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial.

"I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in my back and side were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life, have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. May Haule, Edgerton, Wis., President Household Economics Club. —$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Women should remember there is one tried and true remedy for all female ills, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Refuse to buy any other medicine, you need the best.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 19, 1902.

In this issue of the SPECTATOR we give space to a re-publication of some happenings of twenty years ago as published in this paper at that time. This shows among other things of interest to the community that the SPECTATOR has successfully completed its twentieth year in the public service, and we are pleased to note that many of those whose names were on our subscription list when this paper was first started are still residents here and still subscribers for the SPECTATOR.

It has always been the object of the publishers of this paper to give the very best service possible under all conditions. Twenty years of healthy existence is a proof that it has successfully done so. Let us hope that when another twenty years have passed we can still hold the good will of the community and that the march of progress in this locality shall be even greater than it has been heretofore.

The SPECTATOR will always endeavor to give its patrons the best possible service and hopes that its future life may be as successful as its past.

Next Thursday has been designated by Pres. Roosevelt and Gov. VanSant as Thanksgiving day. Every citizen of Minnesota should observe the day to the fullest extent. Look over all the conditions that surround you and you will find much to be thankful for. As a general proposition the people of the state should be thankful for Gov. VanSant's re-election.

Some people say this weather is fair and some say it's "fowl." It's a safe bet that the Thanksgiving turkey is inclined to the latter belief.

HAPPENINGS IN ST. HILAIRE AS TOLD IN THE COLUMNS OF THE SPECTATOR, NOVEMBER 1882.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 1.

Mr. Holvor Steenerson, the candidate for state senator on the Nelson ticket, while in this city last week, was so struck with the place that he caught on to a couple of our best lots. Send up some more politicians.

The Nelson republican meeting held in Steenerson's hall on Wednesday evening of last week was attended by a good sized audience. Addresses were delivered by P. A. Dufour, Halvor Steenerson and David Hattiestad, of Crookston. A dance was given after the speaking, which was enjoyed by all present.

The biggest head of cabbage we have ever seen was shown us on Sunday last. It was grown on the farm of Nelson Buck, about a mile and a quarter from this city. The solid head with all the outside leaves and the stump taken off weighed 23½ pounds and measured four feet four inches around. Mr. B. says he has 200 heads which will average 20 pounds each. He also has onions which will weigh over a pound, and carrots over 18 inches long. What better proof could we have of the fertility of the soil around St. Hilaire.

Pile driving was commenced by the railroad company this week for the trestle work which is to be erected over the big slough a mile and a half from this city. When this is finished nothing will remain to be done but the track-laying, which will probably be commenced at once.

A movement is on foot for the organization of a fire department here. This is a step in the right direction. Every town should have some protection against this monster, fire, but especially so in a town where the buildings are all made of wood as they are here. Give us a fire department, by all means gentlemen.

NOV

Dan Patterson goes to Crookston to-morrow with the election returns.

Geo. Crocker arrived in the city this evening and says that he has reliable information that a telegram was received at Crookston yesterday ordering the men to begin track-laying on the R. R. & L. of W. Ry. this morning. If this information is correct, and we have every reason to believe it is, the shrill whistle of the iron horse will be heard here in a few days.

Among our callers last week were Adam Zeh, of Red Lake Falls, and M. Leo, of Crookston. Mr. Zeh came up on business connected with his landed interests on Thief river, while Mr. Leo came up with the intention of seeing St. Hilaire, of which he had heard so much. He goes back to Crookston wishing he had $50,000 to invest in St. Hilaire real estate.

W. A. Sorsoleil informs us that he intends putting up and operating a portable saw mill at this place. No better investment could be made; logs are easily procured, and lumber of every description is in great demand, so that we have no hesitancy in saying he will have a large trade. There would be a wonderous change here within the next three months if all who are waiting for building lumber could have their wants supplied this fall without being obliged to haul it from Crookston.

The fame of the Young Chicago is traveling fast and far, and people are coming here from all parts of the country attracted by the many advantages she offers to all classes of settlers. Among the last to arrive upon the scene of action was R. C. Jones, of St. Louis, Mo. He came here on Tuesday morning last and before the dinner bell was rung had invested $5,000 in St. Hilaire real estate. The property purchased was Morgon's addition. This is a very fine piece of land and the gentleman is thought to have made a good bargain. This speaks volumes for the future of St. Hilaire. When such shrewd, penetrating business men as Mr. Jones who has passed over every other town in the Red River valley invests his money here we need not hesitate to say we will soon stand without a rival in the valley.

Crookston correspondence: During a conversation with Mr. Park today, he said that he was on his way to your town to transact some business for the railway company. He also says that the company will commence track-laying at once. If this is the case we will be able to visit this wonderful town of yours in Pullman palace cars before many days.

[illegible] correspondence. The first co[illegible] was received here with much satisfaction. The Chronicle of today contains the following in regard to it: "The St. Hilaire SPECTATOR, published at the new city of St. Hilaire, has reached us. The SPECTATOR is a credit to Mr. McKenzie and to the place he represents. Mr. McKenzie was an employee of this office for nearly a year and we have no hesitation in recommending him as a man worthy the respect and confidence of the people of St. Hilaire. He is a ready and pungent writer, and the SPECTATOR will at once take a front rank among the newspapers of Polk county.

NOV. 15.

Halvor Steenerson, the newly elected state senator in this district, is the highest legal authority in the state—he stands six foot two in his socks.

R. H. Aimer, our enterprising blacksmith, has just completed his well and she's a dandy. After digging about 23 feet he "struck it rich" and now has a well almost full of the very best water. Let others follow his example and give the river a chance to get up to its natural height.

Andrew Norander, while attempting to cross the river on Monday morning last, broke through the ice and had a narrow escape from being drowned. The river is very deep at this point and had he been a little further from the shore his chances of getting out would have been slim indeed. As it was he got as good a ducking as the most particular Hardshell Baptist could desire.

Quite a serious accident happened to J. J. Brannum on Saturday last. He was engaged in splitting wood when his axe came in contact with a clothes-line and bounding back struck him a terrible blow on the forehead, making an ugly gash and knocking him senseless. He was carried into the house where restoratives were rendered and the wound dressed and at last accounts he was doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

We have just been shown the new plat of Crocker, Cundy & Nelson's and Perry & Kinney's addition to St. Hilaire. The plat was made by A. W. Gilbert who deserves much praise for the able manner in which the work was done. The water powers and mill sites are shown, and taken as a whole the plat is a true representation of part of the best town in the Northwest, and reflects much credit on Mr. Gilbert's skill as an engineer.

Burlington Route
DINING CARS A LA CARTE

Our Dining Cars, operated on the European plan, afford service of the highest character, and have an international reputation.

Mr. S. S. McClure, of "McClure's Magazine," writes: "I have traveled on most roads in Europe and America, and have dined on such as have restaurant cars. I would rather dine on a Burlington Route dining car than on any other I know of in the world."

These cars are beautifully decorated, lighted by electricity and ventilated by electric fans. The table-ware was made to order for the Burlington Route. Fresh flowers are always on the tables. Close attention is paid to every detail of the service.

Gentlemen!

I desire to state that at your request I made a through examination of local beers sold in this market, among them yours, and have no hesitancy in saying that I found your beer to be an absolutely pure, well matured and healthful product. In fact, of the samples examined by me, yours was, particularly with reference to purity and age, above the others.
I would further say that these examinations were made by me without information to indicate the manufacturer of the respective brands until after the completion of the analysis.

Respectfully Yours,
Gustav A Renz M.D.

C. M. Gilette, who has put in the season as sawyer for the Thief River Falls Lumber Co., called on old friends here yesterday while on his way home from a visit in Crookston.

Dr. Chas. W. Doren arrived this morning from St. Paul and to-morrow will be united in marriage to Miss Kitty McCaffrey, one of St. Hilaire's most popular young ladies.

Wanted.—A bright boy to learn the drug business Must be willing to work and learn. One that can board at home. No pay for first six months. Apply at the Drug Store, St. Hilaire.

Miss Kordahl pleasantly entertained a number of her friends with cards and refreshments last evening at her home just east of town. All who were present enjoyed themselves to the utmost.

Peter Anderson was here last week from Clarkfield to look after his real estate interests in eastern Marshall county and visit his sister-in-law, Mrs. J. J. Soll. He returned home on Friday.

C. A. Brink: It is just nineteen years last Monday since I first set foot in St. Hilaire. I was one of the greenest Swedes you ever saw then, but I've been changing color right along ever since.

The ladies of the Mission Friends sewing society of Rocksbury and Sanders will hold an auction at Hans Jacob Hanson's about two miles north of town. Coffee will be served after the auction.

H. C. Clark, of the Crookston Lumber Co., was here Monday from Minneapolis to adjust a matter of damages for overflow on the land of Rev. R. K. Calloway a short distance up the river from here.

Hon. C. G. Rapp left last evening for a trip to Los Angeles, Cal., where he will spend the winter seeking benefit for his health which has been failing for some time. Every one who knows him will hope to see him return completely recovered.

Andrew Peterson arrived here last Thursday from Hatton, N. D., to spend a few weeks visiting with his relatives here. It is about sixteen years since Mr. Peterson has been in St. Hilaire and he is busy renewing acquaintances with the old time residents.

Rev. R. K. Calloway arrived Friday from Albany, Mo., to look after his farming interests in this vicinity. He had a grievance against the Crookston Lumber Co., for damage done on his land by overflowing which was satisfactorily adjusted on Monday.

—"Bridget, did you call the boys?" "Indade an' Oi called thim ivrything Oi cud think of but they won't wake up." There's such a thing as calling too much some times, but when it comes to Tschida's Leader 5-cent cigar it seems as though the people never would get tired of smoking them. They say they are the best that ever happened for the price. Try them.

Arne C. Skele, of this city, has been awarded a free tuition contract by the Correspondence Institute of America, Scranton, Pa. This contract entitles the holder to a free mail course in either illustrating, ad-writing, journalism, proofreading, book-keeping, stenography, practical electricity or electrical engineering. As Mr. Skele, already had one of these contracts, he will be glad to transfer the extra one to any worthy person who is interested.

A dozen or so of our leading spirits drove out last evening to Mike McAndress' place where they spent a most enjoyable time playing cards, with turkeys, geese and ducks for prizes. Mrs. McAndress proved a charming hostess, as of yore, and furnished a fine supper to the visitors. This morning Mike hitched up a team and delivered a wagon load of the fowl to the lucky winners here. As the birds were all alive their distribution called forth many and varied remarks.

An Active Army and Navy.

The frequent practice of Army and Navy has been by many misunderstood. The real purpose was not to impress the rest of the nations of the world, but to keep those branches of the service active and in good working order. The President is strongly in favor of exercise for himself and for others. A great many people would be better off for some exercise, or, if they have no time, for using golden grain belt beer regularly with their meals. A pure tonic like this will work wonders with your health. Order of your nearest dealer, or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Farmers with an eye to business always insure their buildings against fire. $22.50 will buy $1,000 fire insurance for five years. Call on H. E. Ives.

For that tired feeling there is nothing better than Imperial Sarsaparilla.

Happily Wedded.

In St. Hilaire's Catholic church this morning occurred the wedding of Thos. Little and Miss Octavia LaMay. Rev. Anger performed the ceremony according to the rites of the church in the presence of over a hundred guests. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Adams officiated as best man and bridesmaid. The music for the occasion was furnished by the choir from St. Bernard's Catholic church, of Thief River Falls, who drove down in the morning for that purpose. After the ceremony was concluded the happy couple received the congratulations of the guests and then repaired to the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. Beaudry, where they partook of an excellent wedding dinner. The newly wedded couple leave this evening for a short wedding tour, after which they will go to housekeeping in the Knudson residence on Water street.

The bridegroom has held a responsible position in the office of the Crookston Lumber Co. here for several years, and the bride has been a social favorite in St. Hilaire and vicinity since her residence here. Both hold the unqualified respect and esteem of all who know them and the SPECTATOR takes pleasure in joining all their acquaintances in best wishes for their future happiness and prosperity.

Broke Through the Ice.

Henry Enderle on last Sunday evening proved himself to be a hero by saving a young lady from the cold waters of the Red Lake river. It seems that the young lady was enjoying a sleigh ride on the ice with Mr. Enderle furnishing the motive power, when all unexpectedly the ice broke and the fair maiden was plunged into the chilling deep. Her companion immediately rushed to the rescue and promptly dragged her from her perilous position. His modesty, however, equals his bravery and he has avoided making any remarks concerning his part in the accident. We have it on good authority, however, that he got wet nearly up to the knees. We are not informed as to the extent of the immersion received by the lady.

Public Examiner's Opinion.

The following letter from the Public Examiner and Superintendent of State Banks is a well merited compliment to the officers of St. Hilaire's banking institution:

ST. PAUL, Nov. 14, 1902.

First State Bank of St. Hilaire,
St. Hilaire, Minn.

Gentlemen:—

I wish to express to you my appreciation of the cleanliness of the report of the business of your bank, made by my deputy as the result of his recent examination.

I wish to compliment you upon the growth and apparent prosperity of your institution, and to express the hope that it will continue as favorably in the future as it has been in the past.

Yours truly,
S. T. JOHNSON,
Supt. of Banks.

A Beautiful Monument.

The cemetery of St. Hilaire has been beautified by the addition of a handsome granite monument which was placed in position on Saturday last. It was purchased by Hon. C. G. Rapp and bears inscriptions in memory of his deceased wife and little son.

The monument is of blue granite, highly polished and stands about ten feet in height. The base is of hammered granite, the centre has four polished faces for inscriptions and the upper portion is made to represent an urn, emblem of the M. W. A., of which order Mr. Rapp is a member.

The stone was purchased from the P. N. Peterson Granite Co., of St. Paul, and is one of the finest in the northwest. A representative of the company came up from St. Paul to set up the monument.

GULF STREAM MARKS.

The Course of the Flow Through the Ocean Plainly Indicated.

The color of the stream is perceptibly deeper blue than that of the neighboring sea, this blueness forming one of the standard references of the nautical novelists. The depth of color is due to the high percentage of salt contained as compared with the cold green water of higher latitudes, observation having shown that the more salt held in solution by sea water the more intensely blue is its color. Thus even in extratropical latitudes we sometimes observe water of a beautiful blue color, as for instance, in the Mediterranean and in other nearly landlocked basins, where the influx of fresher water, being more or less impeded, the percentage of salt contained is raised by evaporation above the average, says the National Geographic Magazine.

Another important fact in connection with the stream is its almost tropical temperature, due to the fact that its high velocity enables it to reach the middle latitudes with very little loss of heat. Upon entering its limits the temperature of the sea water frequently shows a rise of ten degrees and even fifteen degrees. It was this fact that gave to the stream in the later years of the eighteenth century and the earlier years of the nineteenth an importance in the minds of navigators that it no longer possesses. In those days the chronometer, invented by Harrison in 1765, was still an experiment. Instruments were crude and nautical tables often at fault.

The result was that the determination of the longitude was largely a matter of guesswork, a vessel after a voyage from the channel to America often being out of her reckoning by degrees instead of by minutes. The idea, first suggested by Benjamin Franklin, that the master of a vessel, by observing the temperature of the surface water, could tell the moment of his entry into the gulf stream and could hence fix his position to within a few miles was hailed with delight.

The method was published in 1790 by Jonathan Williams in a work lengthily entitled "Thermometrical Navigation: Being a series of experiments and observations tending to prove that by ascertaining the relative heat of the sea water from time to time the passage of a ship through the gulf stream and from deep water into soundings may be discovered in time to avoid danger." In this work he makes a patriotic comparison of the gulf stream to a streak of red, white and blue, painted upon the surface of the sea for the guidance of American navigators.

A Useful Rhyme.

If poisoned, take mustard or salt, tablespoon,
In a cup of warm water and swallow right soon.
For burns try borax and a wet bandage, too;
If blistered, then oil and dry flannel will do.
For children's convulsions warm baths are the rule;
With castor oil dose, too, but keep the head cool.
Give sirup of ipecac when croup is in store;
For fainting stretch patient right out on the floor.
To soak in hot water is best for a sprain;
Remember these rules, and 'twill save you much pain.

Discerning Germs.

"What is this stuff?" asked the testy husband, sputtering over a mouthful of the strange dish which he finds on the breakfast table.

"That," answers the thoughtful wife, "is the new health food."

"It ought to be healthy," declares the husband. "I'll bet no germ of any sense would try to live on it!"—Baltimore American.

Very Close.

"I was surprised to hear you speaking against Flyntskyn. You told me some time ago he was your nearest friend."

"That's so. He couldn't be any nearer than he is, the stingy old beggar!"

Not Modest.

EVERY DAY.

CATARRH THIRTY YEARS.

The Remarkable Experience of a Prominent Statesman—Congressman Meekison Gives Pe-ru-na a High Endorsement.

Congressman Meekison of Ohio.

Hon. David Meekison is well known not only in his own State, but throughout America. He was elected to the Fifty-fifth Congress by a very large majority, and is the acknowledged leader of his party in his section of the State.

Only one flaw marred the otherwise complete success of this rising statesman. Catarrh with its insidious approach and tenacious grasp, was his only unconquered foe. For thirty years he waged unsuccessful warfare against this personal enemy. At last Peruna came to the rescue. He writes:

"I have used several bottles of Peruna and I feel greatly benefitted thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison, Member of Congress.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

French Like a Native.

Merritt—Why, I speak French like a native. In conversation with one of them the other day, he asked me if I wasn't born in France.

Cora—Doesn't that go to prove, my dear, that the French are the politest people in the world?—New York Times.

A BIG SHOE FACTORY

FROM A SMALL BEGINNING IN 1880 IT GROWS TO IMMENSE PROPORTIONS.

THE F. MAYER BOOT & SHOE CO. of Milwaukee, Wis., Now Occupies 3 1-2 Acres of Floor Space, and has Capacity for Making Six Thousand Pairs of Shoes Per Day.

Just 22 years ago Mr. F. Mayer established a shoe factory in Milwaukee, and began the manufacture of shoes in a modest way. The working force at that time was small and the facilities inadequate, yet it was the foundation of what was destined to be one of the largest shoe factories in this country. The underlying business principle was then, as now, to produce the best shoes possible, at the lowest prices. That this policy was successful has been demonstrated by the fact that shoes bearing the Mayer trade mark are now sold in every state and territory west of the Ohio River. Over 600 people are kept busy as bees supplying a demand that has steadily increased as a result of the universal satisfaction given by Mayer's shoes.

Milwaukee being the home of the biggest leather tanneries in the world, and also the market for the very best shoe leather known, gives the Milwaukee manufacturer advantages in the cost as well as the choice of leather, that outside manufacturers can not obtain, thus enabling the Mayer shoe factory to turn out better shoes at a less cost than outside competitors.

Something like 40 traveling salesmen are required to visit merchants in thousands of towns and villages in twenty different states. The magnitude of this business can best be appreciated when you take into consideration that, with the present capacity, 6,000 complete pairs of shoes can be turned out every working day.

The business is now conducted under the name of the F. Mayer Boot & Shoe Co., by the three sons of Mr. F. Mayer, who succeeded him in the business. As Mayer's shoes are being liberally advertised, the further growth of the company is sure to be rapid.

When Pigs Have Scours.

When little pigs get the scours, give a heaped teaspoonful of copperas to the sow in her swill and feed a little lighter, says Texas Stock Journal. After the first day, if it is not cured, give a second dose the following morning. I have never seen this fail where given when pigs began to scour, but let the scours run on from three days to a week and they will likely be beyond control. As the pigs get older, provide a place where they can get all the shelled corn or ear corn they want, clean out all they leave every morning and give to older hogs. Give [illegible] fresh corn. Sprinkle the floor where little pigs eat with air-slacked lime occasionally. As the pigs get a little older and want swill, mix the swill of clean shorts, a little oil meal, with sweet milk and water, and add a teaspoonful of lime water for each pig, which should be increased to a tablespoonful as the pigs get older. Feed this when they get their corn. Be sure their troughs are kept clean. If they are accessible to the old sow they will not leave enough to sour. Continue lime water until the pigs are five or six months old. Feed nothing sour. If milk should be the least bit sour, or tainted even, throw it away if you have no fattening hogs to feed it to. The pigs will easily get along without milk for one feed, while the dose of sour milk might set the pig back for a month or two. As to the lime water, it is easily made by putting a piece of unslacked lime in an earthen jar or wooden pail. Put in a chunk about the size of a quart cup in a two-gallon jar; fill it with water. When lime is all slacked and water gets clear, dip off water and throw first away, refill, and when this is clear, dip off the scum, when lime water will be ready. Don't use any tin or iron vessel for lime water. You can keep filling and using out of this a month before you need to add any lime. Don't rile it or stir, only use the clear water.

A War Upon Goats.

"The Western press reports from Grand Junction, Colo., mention the killing of six hundred Angora goats valued at $8,000, by fourteen masked men, presumably cattle herders, and from Oregon it is reported two hundred and eighty sheep were slaughtered by settlers and cattlemen the same day. While not excusing lawlessness in any form, there must be some good reason for the antipathy which has for many years been shown by Western settlers and cattle owners to the herding of sheep and goats.

In Arizona, New Mexico and Southern Colorado, as well as many other places in the semi-arid countries, there are immense herds of goats which have made the mountain sides so bare of grass that other animals cannot exist, at the same time all the coarse herbage is devoured by these animals, and every seedling tree destroyed. It is utterly impossible for forests to survive where goats are pastured. This is simply a repetition of Spain's experience upon her mountains, which resulted in the downfall of that nation, because no forest trees could grow where goats were so numerous. After the forests were destroyed and climatic changes made agriculture so difficult, the nation began its downward career. The proper way is to punish the men who lawlessly commit these acts of violence, and to enact laws which will confine the herding of sheep and goats to those lands where grass is abundant, and limit the number in each herd so as not to destroy the pasturage—more especially to keep them forever out of the forest regions."

International Live Stock Exposition.

The International Live Stock Exposition held each year in Chicago during the first week in December is the grand round-up of all fairs and shows of the year. At this exposition all differences of opinion on previous judgments rendered during the show season are settled for the year. The International is a harmonious blending of the interest taken in the live stock and agricultural industry of the world at large, but more especially of this continent, by the National Pure Bred Record Live Stock Associations and by the live stock and railway interests of the greatest railway and live stock center of the world. The Union Stock Yards Co. furnishes the housing and finances the show. The railways grant extraordinary low rates of fare for travel. The Record Associations, through their membership, put forth the effort of the year to make a representative exhibit. The week will be divided into special features of interest for both animal lover and student. No such educational exhibit is offered to the live stock and agricultural people as this, their own live stock exposition. The exhibits this year, both in the breeding, individual fat, and carload divisions of the show will far exceed the two previous expositions. People from all over the civilized world will attend this now world-famed event. Very low rates on all railroads. Ask nearest railroad agent. Write for booklet on the show. Remember date of show, November 29 to December 6.

Farm Stock in Middle Asia.

As to the extent of cattle-breeding in Middle Asia we can judge from the following figures:

	Bokhara.	Khiva.	Russian Turkestan.
Horses	900,000	100,000	1,646,000
Camels	200,000	130,000	816,000
Oxen and cows	600,000	120,000	1,539,000
Sheep	6,000,000	960,000	12,733,000
Goats	296,000	170,000	1,756,000
Asses	65,000	10,000	107,000

When a clever woman commits a folly it is usually a very large one.

Dairying in Siberia.

New York Produce Review: Mr. Bagge of Sweden, recently made a trip through Siberia and Landmandsblade gives the following report of a lecture on the subject: It is shown that Siberia is naturally adapted for becoming the future dairy country. As soon as the Ural mountains have been crossed, one is astonished at the enormous prairies with luxurious growth of forage plants, a veritable heaven for cattle and dairying, and this impression is confirmed if one gets a chance to examine the soil which is of the same rich, black kind known in the European Russia. Herds of several hundred head of cattle are frequently seen and the impression is that dairying must be prominent.

The Russian government has also commenced to understand that it has a gold mine in Siberia and has taken steps to utilize it, but to a stranger it will seem as if the cart was being put before the horse by establishing refrigerator trains for export instead of first improving the production. The lecturer attended one of the great dairy exhibitions held every third year, this time in Kurgan, Tobolsk. There were 400 firkins of butter, fresh and preserved, shown, and not a single perfect or simply good could be found among the fresh samples and as to the preserved the smell was enough to prevent him tasting it. The main blame he lays on the dairy instructors. Of course there are exceptions but, as a rule, he did believe them to be competent and he mentions a sample of fresh butter made by an instructor to which had been added several pounds of sugar. When this is done by an instructor what can be expected from the rank and file? No! first of all expert instructors are needed. It must be remembered what kind of people it is who handle the milk. They are on a very low plain of civilization; they have even deemed the centrifugal separators the work of the devil and believe that the late drought was God's punishment for the introduction of these machines.

Cleanliness, the foundation of dairying, was not much in evidence at the show, how much worse must it be in the creameries!

These are both individual and co-operative, and there as everywhere it has been demonstrated that the co-operative creameries make the best butter and they also took most of the premiums at the show. A peculiar thing is that but seldom is mechanical power used to run the separators; as a rule they are run by hand. Every patron has his separator by which his milk is separated at the creamery (! ! ?) That is a great bother and loss of power is evident, but the reason is that human power is cheap and fuel very dear. Pasteurization is nearly unknown and the care of the cows is poor, the cows small of various breeds and give but little milk which, however, is very rich, testing 5 to even 7 per cent.

Value of Whey.

At many cheese factories the whey is an incumbrance rather than a source of profit. It is usually disposed of at almost no price, yet it is of considerable value for pig feeding. The Wisconsin station has determined that whey for pig feeding is worth 7 cents per 100 pounds, and if properly combined with other feeds is worth 10 cents per 100 pounds. The greatest trouble with whey is that it rather demoralizes the handling of the milk supply. As soon as a patron supplies his cans he wants to fill them up with milk, and this prevents his cans being washed and steamed at the factory. There are various ways of getting rid of this necessity. One method that is practiced at some cheese factories is worthy of consideration. Pig pens are built far enough away from the factory to prevent the odor from reaching that institution, but near enough so that the whey can be easily run to them on tram tracks. All the whey is fed at the factory in this way, and the profits from the operation go into the general fund. In this way the profits get back to the patrons. There are several advantages about this plan of feeding whey. One of them is that the whey can be fed in better condition than it usually is fed in when it has to be hauled back to the farm. Spoiled whey at the factory is put into cans and is certainly not improved when it arrives at the farm. The cans that convey it are never or seldom properly cleaned and the milk brought to the factory in those cans is injured in quality.—Farmers' Review.

Fatness Is Not Health.

It has been remarked that some swine breeders mistake fatness for health and vigor. Fat does sometimes indicate thrift, but not always. When a pig has been properly fed on balanced rations and lays on fat it is an indication of vigor, for the animal is getting the most possible out of the food. But when the ration is one of corn only and the pig gets fat the indications are not such as may be trusted to indicate health. The fat comes in that case from an attempt of nature to build up the body through elaborating a large quantity of food. As the food is in that case mostly fat-forming a great deal of fatty tissue is elaborated in the work of getting a small amount of muscular tissue.

Indiana Dairymen's Convention.

The thirteenth annual convention of the Indiana State Dairy Association will be held at Purdue University, La Fayette, Ind., Jan. 21, 22, 23, 1903. Space will be provided for display of creamery and dairy apparatus and supplies in the same building where the meetings are held. The Dairy School will be in progress at that time in its quarters in the New Agricultural Hall. There will be opportunity to see the work of students in both creamery and farm dairy courses. Every Indiana creameryman, dealer and milk producer should make his plans to be present at this meeting. Liberal premiums will be offered on creamery and dairy butter and cheese.—H. E. Van Norman, La Fayette, Secretary.

THE TEST OF TIME.

Mrs. Clara J. Sherbourne, professional nurse, of 257 Cumberland street, Portland, Maine, says:

"I heartily wish those who suffer from some disturbed action of the kidneys would try Doan's Kidney Pills. They would, like me, be more than surprised. My back annoyed me for years. Physicians who diagnosed my case said it arose from my kidneys. When the grip was epidemic I was worn out with constant nursing, and when I contracted it myself it left me in a very serious condition. I could not straighten nor do the most trivial act without being in torture. The kidneys were too active or the secretions were too copious, and I knew what was wrong, but how to fight it was a mystery. It seems odd for a professional nurse, who has had a great deal of experience with medicines, to read advertisements about Doan's Kidney Pills in the newspapers, and it may appear more singular for me to go to H. H. Hay & Son's drug store for a box. But I did, however; and had anybody told me before that it was possible to get relief as quickly as I did I would have been loth to believe it. You can send anyone who wishes more minute particulars about my case to me, and I will be only too glad to tell them personally. As long as I live I will be a firm advocate of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Cure Confirmed—5 Years Later.

"Lapse of time has strengthened my good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills, first expressed in the spring of 1896. I said then that had anybody told me that it was possible to get relief as quickly as I did I would have been loth to believe it. Years have passed and my continued freedom from kidney complaint has strengthened my opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills and given me a much higher appreciation of their merits."

Gone to Sleep Till Spring.

The big Mississippi catfish and the ugly hellbinder and mud puppies in the New York Aquarium have gone to sleep for the winter. Every year they seem to get tired of active life and sink to the bottom of their tanks, where they remain for months without tasting a morsel of food or moving the least bit their sluggish bodies. The catfish, which is a big specimen of the Mississippi kind, is the most obstinate sleeper of the lot. It will be next spring, if he sleeps the usual period, before he will again come to the surface. Every day hundreds of visitors to the aquarium wonder how it is that such a big, health-looking fish can sleep so long without losing in weight.—New York Times.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. The genuine article may be bought anywhere of all reliable druggists at fifty cents per bottle. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

We have organized a corporation under the laws of Minnesota, with a paid in capital of $200,000.00, to continue the mail order business in Minneapolis, formerly conducted by T. M. Roberts.

Our principal stockholders are large Eastern manufacturers.

We have ample capital to carry on our business; we pay cash for everything we buy; we are responsible, reliable and truthful.

We do not issue due bills; we return all money received in excess of the amount required to pay for the goods ordered.

We defy any one to contradict or disprove the above statements.

If any one has a grievance (imaginary or real) against our Company, we will consider it a favor if he will write us at once, as it is our desire to please all our customers.

If any person tries to prevent you from ordering goods from us by saying the mail order business has been discontinued in Minneapolis or that The T. M. Roberts Supply Co. is irresponsible, send us his name and address and we will put a stop to such false statements.

By permission, we refer you to the Security Bank of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn., as to our financial responsibility.

Fresh Reliable Brief

From the Capital.

The war department will ask congress for money for defense of the Great Lakes cities.

Postmaster General Payne will recommend to congress an arrangement for 2-cent postage to Europe.

Universal free mail delivery in the United States is possible in the near future. Nearly one-third of the available territory now has such service, there being 11,650 routes.

The monthly statement of the collections of internal revenue show that for the month of October the total receipts were $20,610,499, a decrease of $3,719,408 as compared with October, 1901.

The congressional delegation from the State of Washington expects this winter to secure favorable action by congress on a bill to throw open the south half of the great Colville Indian reservation, in Stevens county.

Representatives of the Pacific Cable company have asked the attorney general for a conference upon questions at issue regarding the laying of the proposed cable, and next Friday has been decided upon for the meeting.

The Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railroad company has filed with the interstate commerce commission its answer to the complaint of the Kentucky state railroad commission regarding an alleged merger of interests among the railroads of the South. The answer denies that the road is a party to any of the combinations alleged, or to any of the contracts, arrangements or agreements alleged in the complaint.

Personal Mention.

"Charity" Wiggins, the mother of "Blind Tom," the negro musician, is dead at Birmingham, Ala. She was 102 years old.

Judge Jabez G. Sutherland, formerly one of the most prominent lawyers of Utah and author of several standard works of law, is dead in Berkely, Cal., after a long illness, aged seventy-seven years.

State Senator C. C. Hinkley died at Fletcher's sanitarium in Indianapolis. He had been treated there for several weeks for a growth on the leg, but during the last few days had been gradually sinking because of hemorrhages.

J. H. Guthwaite, one of the most prominent and wealthy citizens of Cleveland, died in New York as the result of a surgical operation. His business interests were largely in extensive ore holdings in Northern Michigan and Minnesota.

State Senator C. C. Binkley is dead at Indianapolis. Mrs. Binkley and children, Mrs. L. J. Templeton of Minneapolis and Mrs. Edward Pearce of Baltimore, George Templeton of Chicago and H. C. Binkley of Indianapolis, were at the deathbed.

Juan B. Wandesford, an artist with an international reputation, is dead in San Francisco. He has been declining ever since he lost several valuable pieces of his handiwork by the destruction of his home at Haywards by fire, several years ago. He was a native of England, eighty-five years of age.

Sin and Sinners.

Thieves sawed off the great tusks of Jumbo II., at Cleveland, and carried them away. The elephant had died a few days before.

Harlan Buckles, who was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Robert L. Reid, a deputy marshal, was hanged by a mob at Elizabethtown, Ky.

Judge Adams of St. Louis, sentenced on four counts, John W. Holleck, a farmer and alleged pension agent, to ten years' imprisonment for pension frauds.

Miss Blanche Wilderman, aged twenty, daughter of Judge Alonzo F. Wilderman, of the circuit court of Belleville, Ill., committed suicide with carbolic acid.

Master Mechanic C. W. Tate, of the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe railroad, was shot and killed at Waukegan, Tex. Sheriff Anderson has arrested Tom Futrell, a freight conductor.

Mrs. Rosetta Eizler, "beauty specialist," was arrested at Peoria, Ill., charged with the death of Mrs. Hattie Hart, at Pekin, who, it is alleged, took a bottle of the specialist's "beauty medicine," containing arsenic.

Jackson Stoll, vice president of the W. T. Akerson company, of Paterson, N. J., committed suicide in San Jose, Cal., by swallowing half a bottle of chloroform. He had been there about a week. Letters from Paterson spoke of a shortage in church funds of $1,500.

Silas Mcintosh, who is in jail at Jackson, Ky., for contempt of court, in refusing to answer questions put to him by the grand jury in its investigation of the assassination of Marshal James Cockrell, has consented to tell all he knows. Some startling disclosures are expected.

HIDES IN LEGATION

SON OF UNITED STATES MINISTER TO GUATEMALA COMMITS MURDER.

PUZZLES FOR THE DIPLOMATS

QUESTION ARISES AS TO HIS RIGHT OF EXEMPTION FROM ARREST.

KILLING SAID TO BE PROVOKED

POSSIBLE REASONS GIVEN THAT MAY HAVE CAUSED THE TRAGEDY.

Washington, Nov. 24. — The state department has been informed that Godfrey Hunter, Jr., son of the United States minister at Guatemala City, yesterday shot and killed William Fitzgerald of Grand Rapids, Mich. Hunter has taken refuge in the legation and an interesting question has arisen as to his exemption from arrest.

An important fact developed was that young Hunter was accompanied at the time of the shooting by the secretary of legation, James G. Bailey of Kentucky, who went to his post in June, 1901. The cablegram also, rather by suggestion than by direct statement, gave ground for an inference that the killing was provoked. Important details are lacking in the report of the affair, and the officials are in doubt as to what should be done. They have no notion of surrendering without protest an American citizen to the local courts of Guatemala, unless satisfied that the man is a proper subject for punishment. Even then it is not at all certain that the department itself has the right to waive any legal exemption that the men might have.

Possible Grounds for Enmity.

Not much is known here of the personality of Godfrey Hunter, Jr., and it is impossible to learn definitely whether or not he was actually connected officially with the United States legation at Guatemala City at the time of the killing. That he had been a clerk or typewriter in the legation is established. He was certainly a member of the minister's family, and that fact might be regarded as sufficient to base a claim of exemption.

It is suggested here that the shooting affray may have been the result of the recent relief of Dr. Hunter from his post as minister. The doctor has been steadily embroiled with members of the American colony almost since he assumed office in 1897, and lately, owing to his connection with a government railroad and other matters not supposed to be proper for a minister to meddle with, the pressure became so acute that the department was obliged to relieve him from office. It may be that Fitzgerald was connected in some way with the charges against the minister.

May Explain It.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 22. — William Fitzgerald, whom Clifford Hunter, Jr., killed in Guatemala, made charges about a year ago against Dr. Hunter. He criticised sharply the way in which Dr. Hunter conducted his office, and made some serious reflections on the minister. Fitzgerald, while on a trip to this country, gave out an interview at New Orleans in which he censured Dr. Hunter and young Godfrey severely. He announced that he would prefer charges against Dr. Hunter at Washington, but the mater was never taken up by the state department.

BRITISH CRITICISM.

A London Editor Who Sneers at the American Idea of Liberty.

London, Nov. 24. — The Chronicle, recognizing the truth of the declaration of President Roosevelt that the United States would as soon abandon Alaska as the Philippines, says it hopes that the Filipinos will be content with the amount of individual liberty that American rule, according to the president, has brought them. "Free Cuba," the paper adds, "is somewhat doubtful as to the benefit of exchanging the easy yoke of Spanish misrule for the bit of the American financier."

THIRTY DROWNED.

Danish Steamer Sinks With Many Workmen Aboard.

Vienna, Nov. 23.—A Danish steamer crowded with workmen yesterday evening sank off Orsova, a frontier town of Servia, on an island in the Danube. Thirty of those who were on board were drowned. Owing to the darkness the boats from the shore were only able to rescue five persons.

Damage by Forest Fires.

Washington, Nov. 24.—The bureau of forestry of the agricultural department has received a report from one of its agents who shows that the damage caused by forest fires in Northwestern Oregon and Southwestern Washington during September was much greater than has been generally supposed, and places the damage at $12,767,100. Of this $3,910,000 is in Oregon and $8,857,100 in Washington.

Another Hunter Killed.

Allegan, Mich., Nov. 24.—The body of George Myers of Cheshire township was brought here yesterday. A party of four were hunting north of Newbury, when one of the party, Galbraith, took him for a deer.

Logan Guilty.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 24.—Harvey Logan has been found guilty on ten counts charging him with complicity in the robbery of the Great Northern express train in Montana. A motion for a new trial was made.

MARRIED HER GRANDUNCLE.

Nebraska Girl Is the Wife of Relative and Widower.

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 24.—It has just been discovered at Emerson, Neb., that Miss Callie Butler, aged nineteen, was secretly married Sept. 17 to A. A. Palmer, her granduncle, who is sixty-five years of age. The couple attended the Akşarben festivities together at Omaha, and were married at that time. The groom is a brother of the bride's grandmother and an uncle of her father. He is therefore the granduncle of the bride. Palmer had for some time made his home with Henry A. Butler, father of the bride, and he and his grandniece frequently drove to church together. The marriage in Omaha has been kept a secret up to yesterday, when the girl confessed to her mother. The couple have gone to Kansas to live, where the groom has seven grown-up children.

HE MAY BE LYNCHED.

Men Charged With Assaulting a Two-Year-Old Girl.

Yankton, S. D., Nov. 24. — Anton Gliech of Lakeport, this county, was arrested yesterday on the charge of assaulting a two-year-old girl. There are threats of lynching. While Mr. and Mrs. W. Sunnkat, a neighbor of Gliech's, were away from home on Wednesday evening Gliech is said to have broken into the house, in which five little children were shut in, and assaulted a two-year-old girl. The other children were witnesses of the deed. Officers were not informed of the matter until yesterday, when the injuries of the child compelled attention. She may die.

PERPETRATED FRAUD.

Smooth Young Man Works a Graft on Members of State Militia.

Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 24.—Through investigations by Capt. Pearsall of the Third regiment, national guard, it develops that the young man who collected about $250 at Camp Douglass last summer from the Third regiment, Tenth battalion and other organizations for subscriptions to and write-ups for an alleged military journal, was a fraud. The publication cannot be located. His scheme was elaborate, but the peculiarity of the printed receipts he gave was that they named no place of publication.

BLOWN TO PIECES.

Former Member Thirteenth Minnesota Regiment Instantly Killed.

Bertha, Minn., Nov. 24. — Fred Graves, working three miles west of Bertha, was instantly killed yesterday by the explosion of dynamite, which he was warming over a small sheet-iron stove. He had about one and one-half pounds of the explosive which he was preparing for use in blasting stumps. The shock was so heavy that people here ran from their homes to ascertain the cause. Graves was a member of the Thirteenth Minnesota regiment in the Philippines, and was working for E. A. Perkins.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Body of Father, Who Killed His Son, Is Discovered.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 23. — The body of Noah Hale, who Oct. 3 shot and killed his son Frank here, has been found under a pile of brush within two miles of his former home. It was discovered by two hunters. Beside the body was the gun which Hale took with him as he rushed from home the day of the murder. A string attached to the trigger was also attached to Hale's foot, showing that he had adopted that device to fire the gun himself.

ON FAKE WARRANTS.

Wisconsin Township Officials Accused of Fraud.

Black River Falls, Wis., Nov. 24—G. G. Olson, a justice of the peace in the town of Brockway, and John Simplot, constable, were arraigned before Justice Livingstone, charged with obtaining money fraudulently from the county by issuing fake warrants and charging the county several hundred dollars for these calls. Olson is held in $1,800 bail and Simplot $1,500. Neither have secured bondsmen.

How Land Values Grow.

Centerville, S. D., Nov. 23. — Two years ago, Morris Steadman sold a farm of 173 acres, situated near here, for $6,000. James McGinn, the purchaser, paid $1,000 down and was granted time to pay the remainder. The farm has just been sold at public sale for $65.75 an acre, or an aggregate of $11,347.75 for the entire tract. Thus it sold at auction for $6,374.75 more than it was sold for at a regular sale two years ago, giving something of an idea of the increase in value of farm land in this part of the state.

To Abolish Women Cooks.

Milwaukee, Nov. 24. — If the Lake Seamen's union prevails in a fight about to be started no women will hereafter be employed as cooks aboard lake vessels. The coming fight grows out of an altercation between the seaman's union and the hotel alliance regarding control of cooking on the lakes. The first steps to bar women from lake galleys will be taken during the wage conference to be held this winter.

AMERICAN ADMIRAL BROUGHT COLOMBIAN REBELLION TO AN END.

A MEDIATOR AND PEACEMAKER

THANKED IN BEHALF OF COLOMBIA FOR HIS GENEROUS INTERVENTION.

REBELS ARE GLAD IT IS OVER

THEY NOW HOPE FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A TRUE REPUBLIC.

Panama, Nov. 24. — The Star and Herald says that at the conference on board the Wisconsin a distinguished son of Uncle Sam, Rear Admiral Silas Casey, acted as a mediator and peacemaker, which conduct, it remarks, reflects great credit on a nation whose motives for doing good are too frequently disparaged. Admiral Casey, in a brilliant speech, extended to the negotiators his heartfelt good wishes, highly praising them for their judgment and patriotism and their arrangement of such an extremely delicate matter. Gen. Cobas, chief minister of state on Perdomo's staff, who spoke in good English, made an eloquent reply to the speech, and in the name of Colombia thanked the gallant admiral for the hospitality and attention the negotiators had received on board his flagship, also for his generous intervention in the arrangement to bring about peace in that zone of Colombian territory. It is said that the impassioned, patriotic utterances of Gen. Cobas brought Tears to the Eyes of Gen. Herrera.

Troops already are being sent away. Nearly 1,000 men left last night for Barranquilla. As soon as the revolutionary gunboat Padilla arrives here the troops in the Cauca province will be sent to Buena Ventura, on the Bay of Choco.

Gen. Herrera and his secretaries have arrived at Agua Dulce, bringing the news of the conclusion of peace to the gunboat Bogota in order to prevent a fight with the Padilla should they meet. Gen. Salazar, governor of Panama, has set all the political prisoners at liberty.

The commander of the British cruiser Phaeton offered Gen. Salazar to communicate the news of the treaty of peace to Capt. Marmaduke, the commander of the Bogota. The offer was accepted and the Phaeton sailed last night.

Congratulates Herrera.

San Jose, Costa Rica, Nov. 24.—Gen. Varjas Santos, the military director of the Colombian revolution, has sent the following message to Gen. Herrera on the occasion of the signature of the treaty of peace at Panama: "Let us congratulate ourselves. I have full confidence in you. May this solemn act establish a true republic."

SONS OF ELI WIN.

Defeat Harvard at Football by a Score of 23 to 0.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 24.—Yale established her supremacy in the East on Yale field by defeating Harvard in the annual game in unmistakable style. When time was called in the darkness of early evening the score stood at 23 to 0, and Yale's shouting thousands overwhelmed their victorious heroes, while Harvard partisans, with cheer after cheer, encouraged the defeated but plucky fighters. Nearly 30,000 spectators witnessed the great game under weather conditions that could not be improved upon from the standpoint of the onlookers.

SIR LIANG COMING.

New Minister From China to America Starts for Washington.

Pekin, Nov. 24. — Sir Liang Chen Tung, the new minister to the United States, started yesterday for Washington. Prior to his departure he was specially honored by the throne in a manner hitherto unknown to Chinese representatives, which emphasized the government's sense of the importance of his mission.

John Dillon Is Ill.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—John Dillon, the well known Irishman who came to Chicago to address a meeting last night in commemoration of the Manchester martyrs' anniversary, was taken suddenly ill yesterday and was unable to appear at the meeting. While driving Mr. Dillon suffered a chill, which was followed by a high fever and last night his temperature was 104. The attending physician gave out the information that while Mr. Dillon is not seriously ill he will be confined to his room for several days.

Somnambulist Kills Himself.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 24.—George E. Shelby, aged twenty-six, great grandson of Isaac Shelby, first governor of Kentucky, killed himself yesterday as he lay in bed, with a revolver. He was subject to somnambulism and it is believed that he fired the fatal shot while in that state.

NEW RAILROAD FOR CANADA.

Transcontinental to Be Backed by the Grand Trunk.

Montreal, Que., Nov. 24.—Canada is to have a second transcontinental railway extending from ocean to ocean. The announcement was made yesterday by Charles Hayes, second vice president and general manager of the Grand Trunk railway. The construction work will be begun as soon as the necessary legislation can be obtained from the parliament. The Grand Trunk will be behind the new road and will operate it, but as in the case of Grand Trunk lines west of the Detroit river, it will be constructed under a separate corporation name—the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway company. The new line, according to Mr. Hayes' statement, will have a mileage of about 3,000 miles, and the construction, including equipment, stations, bridges, ships and other facilities, will involve an expenditure of from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000. According to the present arrangement the new system will run through that part of Northern Ontario known as New Ontario, starting from North Bay or Gravenhurst on the east, and extending through Manitoba, the Northwest Territories and British Columbia to Butte Inlet or Port Simpson, B. C., as later may be determined.

KRUPP, GUNMAKER, DEAD.

Wealthiest Man in Germany Passes Away Suddenly.

Berlin, Nov. 24. — Frederick Alfred Krupp, the great gunmaker and the richest man in Germany, died of apoplexy at his villa at Huegel. He was forty-six years old. His annual income, it is said, was over $5,000,000. Frederick Alfred Krupp succeeded his father, Alfred Krupp, as head of the family and the great industry at Essen, Germany. The Krupp family is credited with having more of the virtues of peace, more sympathy with its employes, and greater regard for the simple kindnesses of life than any other that has grown powerful through a great industry. Herr Krupp was the largest employer of labor in the world. Twenty-five thousand men worked for him and each one was his friend. The great profits of the business brought comforts not alone to the owner. The laborers dwell in "model houses." Schools, baths, libraries, hospitals, and a pension system made them contented and valuable citizens of the empire.

NEW CURE-ALL IS PROFITABLE.

Vibration as a Remedy for all Ills Flesh Is Heir To.

London, Nov. 24. — London society's latest craze is the vibration cure, as practiced by a Swedish specialist. The vibrotionist claims to be able to cure anything and everything by his treatments, a claim which is supported by Adelina Patti among others. Nerve troubles, pneumonia, appendicitis, all are vibrated out of the system in miraculous fashion. Palmistry, faith healing and crystal gazing have given way for the moment to the vibrationists, whose parlors are crowded with fashionable people.

British Steamer Collides With a Fishing Vessel.

St. John's, N. F., Nov. 24. — The British steamer Demarara, Capt. Goret, from Halifax, for Liverpool, via St. John's, while entering port, collided with and sank the schooner Shamrock, laden with 500 quintals of codfish. The schooner's crew was rescued by the steamer, which was not damaged. It is alleged that the schooner was showing no light, which precaution is frequently neglected by Newfoundland fishing vessels.

ENGLAND OBJECTS.

Europa Unable to Secure an Agreement Against Anarchists.

London, Nov. 24—A special dispatch from Brussels asserts that the attempt of the Belgian government to secure an agreement against anarchists failed, owing to England's refusal to join in the movement. The replies received from all other capitals approached in the matter, the dispatch adds, were favorable to the plan.

THE JOY THAT KILLS.

Celebration of Signing of Peace Treaty Has Fatal Results.

Panama, Nov. 24. — The signing of the treaty of peace by Minister of State Perdomo and Gen. Herrera was celebrated here by a demonstration which lasted all night. While firing a cannon at the fort in the morning in honor of the event three soldiers were killed and two were wounded by a premature explosion.

CHOLERA IS SPREADING.

Moro Towns Feeling the Effect of the Terrible Scourge.

Manila, Nov. 24. — The cholera is spreading among the Moro towns on the west coast of Mindanao and there is much destitution among the people. Quarantine increases the suffering by stopping work and the movement of supplies. Gen. Davis has telegraphed to Gen. Sumner directing the distribution of food supplies to the sufferers in the infected and quarantined towns. The disease is disappearing from this city.

ORE DOCK IN RUINS

FATAL CONFLAGRATION ON THE LAKE FRONT AT ASHLAND.

THREE PERSONS ARE KILLED

WISCONSIN CENTRAL DOCK IS BURNED, CAUSING LOSS OF HALF A MILLION.

FIREMEN MAKE A HARD FIGHT

DOCK SUDDENLY COLLAPSES, CARRYING DOWN A NUMBER OF MEN.

Ashland, Wis., Nov. 24. — The Wisconsin Central ore dock was completely destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon. The loss is about $525,000.

Three lives were lost, one person fatally and several more or less seriously injured.

The fire caught about 5 o'clock, presumably from a boat unloading lumber across the slip, and before the firemen arrived the entire ore dock, half a mile in length, was in flames. An engine was run into the tramway as near the fire as it could get, and a half-hundred men began tearing apart the timbers connecting the tramway and the dock to keep it from falling with the dock. Suddenly the dock fell with a crash, carrying with it 200 feet of the tramway. The engine from falling. Several hundred people were under the tram, and most of them escaped with slight injury. As the burning dock and tramway fell fully a dozen men were seen to go down in the ruins.

Had a Narrow Escape

When the fire was discovered the crews on the dock were just getting ready to quit work. Seeing flames the workmen rushed for land, but many were cut off and jumped into the bay, a distance of sixty feet. Twenty men who sought refuge on an outer end of the dock were scorched by the flames, but passing vessels succeeded in having a tug come to their aid just in time to save them.

The blaze was first seen in the center of the dock, and spread rapidly both ways. Before ten minutes the entire dock was enveloped in flames. Fed by the seasoned and oily timbers and framework of the dock, they attracting thousands of people to the bay shore. All the fire departments were called into service, but to no avail. Business and professional men turned firemen. About one hundred climbed into the approach to the dock and with streams of water attempted to keep the flames confined to the portion of the dock over the water. After the fire had been going fifteen minutes the outer part of the dock fell, carrying with it the approach on which the men were fighting. With little or no warning the approach was dragged down, and with it the firefighters, most of whom were buried.

Shot High Into the Air,

About ten men fighting fire with streams under the approach were pinned in, and for a time it was thought all were perished. When the approach fell fully 7,000 people were lined up on the bay front and witnessed the awful scene.

TRAIN IS FIRED UPON.

Noted Clergyman Has Narrow Escape From Death.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 24.—At noon yesterday a Northwestern passenger train was fired upon a few miles above here, and Prof. Packman of Christ's Episcopal church of this city, seated in one of the coaches, narrowly escaped instant death, a bullet grazing his nose. The train was stopped and the crew and passengers searched the surrounding timber, but the origin of the volley could not be found.

Reddy Is Sentenced.

Sturgis, S. D., Nov. 24. — Eugene Reddy, arrested on a charge of attempted assault upon a ten-year-old girl, was tried and found guilty, after the jury had been out only a short while. Judge Rice sentenced Reddy to four years and ten months in the state penitentiary at Sioux Falls.

Killed While Seeking Health.

Black River Falls, Wis., Nov. 24. — William Wright, an old resident of this county, left with his family for Idaho a week ago on account of his failing health. A telegram from Gem, Idaho, says he was instantly killed by the cars in that city. He leaves a widow and one child.

HIDES IN LEGATION

SON OF UNITED STATES MINISTER TO GUATEMALA COMMITS MURDER.

PUZZLES FOR THE DIPLOMATS

QUESTION ARISES AS TO HIS RIGHT OF EXEMPTION FROM ARREST.

KILLING SAID TO BE PROVOKED

POSSIBLE REASONS GIVEN THAT MAY HAVE CAUSED THE TRAGEDY.

Washington, Nov. 24. — The state department has been informed that Godfrey Hunter, Jr., son of the United States minister at Guatemala City, yesterday shot and killed William Fitzgerald of Grand Rapids, Mich. Hunter has taken refuge in the legation and an interesting question has arisen as to his exemption from arrest.

An important fact developed was that young Hunter was accompanied at the time of the shooting by the secretary of legation, James G. Bailey, of Kentucky, who went to his post in June, 1901. The cablegram also, rather by suggestion than by direct statement, gave ground for an inference that the killing was provoked. Important details are lacking in the report of the affair, and the officials are in doubt as to what should be done. They have no notion of surrendering without protest an American citizen to the local courts of Guatemala, unless satisfied that the man is a proper subject for punishment. Even then it is not at all certain that the department itself has the right to waive any legal exemption that the man might have.

Possible Grounds for Enmity.

Not much is known here of the personality of Godfrey Hunter, Jr., and it is impossible to learn definitely whether or not he was actually connected officially with the United states legation at Guatemala City at the time of the killing. That he had been a clerk or typewriter in the legation is established. He was certainly a member of the minister's family, and that fact might be regarded as sufficient to base a claim of exemption.

It is suggested here that the shooting affray may have been the result of the recent relief of Dr. Hunter from his post as minister. The doctor has been steadily embroiled with members of the American colony almost since he assumed office in 1897, and lately, owing to his connection with a government railroad and other matters not supposed to be proper for a minister to meddle with, the pressure became so acute that the department was obliged to relieve him from office. It may be that Fitzgerald was connected in some way with the charges against the minister.

May Explain It.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 22. — William Fitzgerald, whom Clifford Hunter, Jr., killed in Guatemala, made charges about a year ago against Dr. Hunter. He criticised sharply the way in which Dr. Hunter conducted his office, and made some serious reflections on the minister. Fitzgerald, while on a trip to this country, gave out an interview at New Orleans in which he censured Dr. Hunter and young Godfrey severely. He announced that he would prefer charges against Dr. Hunter at Washington, but the matter was never taken up by the state department.

BRITISH CRITICISM.

A London Editor Who Sneers at the American Idea of Liberty.

London, Nov. 24. — The Chronicle, recognizing the truth of the declaration of President Roosevelt that the United States would as soon abandon Alaska as the Philippines, says it hopes that the Filipinos will be content with the amount of individual liberty that American rule, according to the president, has brought them. "Free Cuba," the paper adds, "is somewhat doubtful as to the benefit of exchanging the easy yoke of Spanish misrule for the bit of the American financier."

THIRTY DROWNED.

Danish Steamer Sinks With Many Workmen Aboard.

Vienna, Nov. 23.—A Danish steamer crowded with workmen yesterday evening sank off Orsova, a frontier town of Servia, on an island in the Danube. Thirty of those who were on board were drowned. Owing to the darkness the boats from the shore were only able to rescue five persons.

Damage by Forest Fires.

Washington, Nov. 24.—The bureau of forestry of the agricultural department has received a report from one of its agents who shows that the damage caused by forest fires in Northwestern Oregon and Southwestern Washington during September was much greater than has been generally supposed, and places the damage at $12,767,100. Of this $3,910,000 is in Oregon and $8,857,100 in Washington.

Another Hunter Killed.

Allegan, Mich., Nov. 24.—The body of George Myers of Cheshire township was brought here yesterday. A party of four were hunting north of Newbury, when one of the party, Galbraith, took him for a deer.

Logan Guilty.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 24.—Harvey Logan has been found guilty on ten counts charging him with complicity in the robbery of the Great Northern express train in Montana. A motion for a new trial was made.

MARRIED HER GRANDUNCLE.

Nebraska Girl Is the Wife of Relative and Widower.

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 24.—It has just been discovered at Emerson, Neb., that Miss Callie Butler, aged nineteen, was secretly married Sept. 17 to A. A. Palmer, her granduncle, who is sixty-five years of age. The couple attended the Aksarben festivities together at Omaha, and were married at that time. The groom is a brother of the bride's grandmother and an uncle of her father. He is therefore the granduncle of the bride. Palmer had for some time made his home with Henry A. Butler, father of the bride, and he and his grandniece frequently drove to church together. The marriage in Omaha has been kept a secret up to yesterday, when the girl confessed to her mother. The couple have gone to Kansas to live, where the groom has seven grown-up children.

HE MAY BE LYNCHED.

Man Charged With Assaulting a Two-Year-Old Girl.

Yankton, S. D., Nov. 24. — Anton Gliech of Lakeport, this county, was arrested yesterday on the charge of assaulting a two-year-old girl. There are threats of lynching. While Mr. and Mrs. W. Sunaksi, a neighbor of Gliech's, were away from home on Wednesday evening Gliech is said to have broken into the house, in which five little children were shut in, and assaulted a two-year-old girl. The other children were witnesses of the deed. Officers were not informed of the matter until yesterday, when the injuries of the child compelled attention. She may die.

PERPETRATED FRAUD.

Smooth Young Man Works a Craft on Members of State Militia.

Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 24.—Through investigations by Capt. Pearsall of the Third regiment, national guard, it develops that the young man who collected about $250 at Camp Douglass last summer from the Third regiment, Tenth battalion and other organizations for subscriptions to and write-ups for an alleged military journal, was a fraud. The publication cannot be located. His scheme was elaborate, but the peculiarity of the printed receipts he gave was that they named no place of publication.

BLOWN TO PIECES.

Former Member Thirteenth Minnesota Regiment Instantly Killed.

Bertha, Minn., Nov. 24. — Fred Graves, working three miles west of Bertha, was instantly killed yesterday by the explosion of dynamite which he was warming over an old sheet-iron stove. He had nine and one-half pounds of the explosive which he was preparing for use in blasting stumps. The shock was so heavy that people here ran from their homes to ascertain the cause. Graves was a member of the Thirteenth Minnesota regiment in the Philippines, and was working for E. A. Perkins.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Body of Father, Who Killed His Son, Is Discovered.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 23. — The body of Noah Hale, who Oct. 3 shot and killed his son Frank here, has been found under a pile of brush within two miles of his former home. It was discovered by two hunters. Beside the body was the gun which Hale took with him as he rushed from home the day of the murder. A string attached to the trigger was also attached to Hale's foot, showing that he had adopted that device to fire the gun himself.

ON FAKE WARRANTS.

Wisconsin Township Officials Accused of Fraud.

Black River Falls, Wis., Nov. 24—G. G. Olson, a justice of the peace in the town of Brockway, and John Simplot, constable, were arraigned before Justice Livingstone, charged with obtaining money fraudulently from the county by issuing fake warrants and charging the county several hundred dollars for these cells. Olson is held in $1,800 bail and Simplot $1,500. Neither have secured bondsmen.

How Land Values Grow.

Centerville, S. D., Nov. 23. — Two years ago Marris Steadman sold a farm of 172 acres, situated near here, for $5,000. James McGinn, the purchaser, paid $1,000 down and was granted time to pay the remainder. The farm has just been sold at public sale for $65.75 an acre, or an aggregate of $11,347.75 for the entire tract. Thus it sold at auction for $6,374.75 more than it was sold for at a regular sale two years ago, giving something of an idea of the increase in value of farm land in this part of the state.

To Abolish Women Cooks.

Milwaukee, Nov. 24. — If the Lake Seaman's union prevails in a fight about to be started no women will hereafter be employed as cooks aboard lake vessels. The coming fight grows out of an altercation between the seaman's union and the hotel alliance regarding control of cooking on the lakes. The first steps to bar women from lake galleys will be taken during the wage conference to be held this winter.

Requisition Granted.

Pierre, S. D., Nov. 24—Gov. Herreld has granted a requisition on the governor of Minnesota for Frederick Zoble, wanted in Brown county on a charge of obtaining property under false pretense.

AMERICAN ADMIRAL BROUGHT COLOMBIAN REBELLION TO AN END.

A MEDIATOR AND PEACEMAKER

THANKED IN BEHALF OF COLOMBIA FOR HIS GENEROUS INTERVENTION.

REBELS ARE GLAD IT IS OVER

THEY NOW HOPE FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A TRUE REPUBLIC.

Panama, Nov. 24. — The Star and Herald says that at the conference on board the Wisconsin a distinguished son of Uncle Sam, Rear Admiral Silas Casey, acted as a mediator and peacemaker, which conduct, it remarks, reflects great credit on a nation whose motives for doing good are too frequently disparaged. Admiral Casey, in a brilliant speech, extended to the negotiators his heartfelt good wishes, highly praising them for their judgment and patriotism and their arrangement of such an extremely delicate matter. Gen. Cohas, chief minister of state on Perdomo's staff, who spoke in good English, made an eloquent reply to the speech, and in the name of Colombia thanked the gallant admiral for the hospitality and attention the negotiators had received on board his flagship, also for his generous intervention in the arrangement to bring about peace in that zone of Colombian territory. It is said that the impassioned, patriotic utterances of Gen. Cohas brought Tears to the Eyes of Gen. Herrera.

Troops already are being sent away. Nearly 1,000 men left last night for Barranquilla. As soon as the revolutionary gunboat Padilla arrives here the troops in the Cauca province will be sent to Buena Ventura, on the Bay of Choco.

Gen. Herrera and his secretaries have arrived at Agua Dulce, bringing the news of the conclusion of peace to the gunboat Bogota in order to prevent a fight with the Padilla should they meet. Gen. Salazar, governor of Panama, has set all the political prisoners at liberty.

The commander of the British cruiser Phaeton offered Gen. Salazar to communicate the news of the treaty of peace to Capt. Marmaduke, the commander of the Bogota. The offer was accepted and the Phaeton sailed last night.

Congratulates Herrera.

San Jose, Costa Rica, Nov. 24.—Gen. Varjas Santos, the military director of the Colombian revolution, has sent the following message to Gen. Herrera on the occasion of the signature of the treaty of peace at Panama: "Let us congratulate ourselves. I have full confidence in you. May this solemn act establish a true republic."

SONS OF ELI WIN.

Defeat Harvard at Football by a Score of 23 to 0.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 24.—Yale established her supremacy in the East on Yale field by defeating Harvard in the annual game in unmistakable style. When time was called in the darkness of early evening the score stood at 23 to 0, and Yale's shouting thousands overwhelmed their victorious heroes, while Harvard partisans, with cheer after cheer, encouraged the defeated but plucky fighters. Nearly 30,000 spectators witnessed the great game under weather conditions that could not be improved upon from the standpoint of the onlookers.

SIR LIANG COMING.

New Minister From China to America Starts for Washington.

Pekin, Nov. 24. — Sir Liang Chen Tung, the new minister to the United States, started yesterday for Washington. Prior to his departure he was specially honored by the throne in a manner hitherto unknown to Chinese representatives, which emphasized the government's sense of the importance of his mission.

John Dillon Is Ill.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—John Dillon, the well known Irishman who came to Chicago to address a meeting last night in commemoration of the Manchester martyrs' anniversary, was taken suddenly ill yesterday and was unable to appear at the meeting. While driving Mr. Dillon suffered a chill, which was followed by a high fever and last night his temperature was 104. The attending physician gave out the information that while Mr. Dillon is not seriously ill he will be confined to his room for several days.

Somnambulist Kills Himself.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 24.—George E. Shelby, aged twenty-six, great grandson of Isaac Shelby, first governor of Kentucky, killed himself yesterday as he lay in bed, with a revolver. He was subject to somnambulism and it is believed that he fired the fatal shot while in that state.

Montreal, Nov. 24. — General Manager Kent of the Canadian Pacific Telegraph company received official notice yesterday that the new Pacific cable to Australia would be opened for the dispatch of business on Dec. 8.

Warehouse Destroyed.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—The office and warehouse of the Barry Transportation company at the foot of Michigan street were destroyed by fire. Loss, $50,000. The warehouse was three hundred feet long.

NEW RAILROAD FOR CANADA.

Transcontinental to Be Backed by the Grand Trunk.

Montreal, Que., Nov. 24.—Canada is to have a second transcontinental railway extending from ocean to ocean. The announcement was made yesterday by Charles Hayes, second vice president and general manager of the Grand Trunk railway. The construction work will be begun as soon as the necessary legislation can be obtained from the parliament. The Grand Trunk will be behind the new road and will operate it, but as in the case of Grand Trunk lines west of the Detroit river, it will be constructed under a separate corporation name—the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway company. The new line, according to Mr. Hayes' statement, will have a mileage of about 3,000 miles, and the construction, including equipment, stations, bridges, ships and other facilities, will involve an expenditure of from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000. According to the present arrangement the new system will run through that part of Northern Ontario known as New Ontario, starting from North Bay or Gravenhurst on the east, and extending through Manitoba, the Northwest Territories and British Columbia to Butte Inlet or Port Simpson, B. C., as later may be determined.

KRUPP, GUNMAKER, DEAD.

Wealthiest Man in Germany Passes Away Suddenly.

Berlin, Nov. 24. — Frederick Alfred Krupp, the great gunmaker and the richest man in Germany, died of apoplexy at his villa at Huegel. He was forty-six years old. His annual income, it is said, was over $5,000,000. Frederick Alfred Krupp succeeded his father, Alfred Krupp, as head of the family and the great industry at Essen, Germany. The Krupp family is credited with having more of the virtues of peace, more sympathy with its employes, and greater regard for the simple kindnesses of life than any other that has grown powerful through a great industry. Herr Krupp was the largest employer of labor in the world. Twenty-five thousand men worked for him and each one was his friend. The great profits of the business brought comforts not alone to the owner. The laborers dwell in "model houses." Schools, baths, libraries, hospitals, and a pension system made them contented and valuable citizens of the empire.

NEW CURE-ALL IS PROFITABLE.

Vibration as a Remedy for all Ills Flesh Is Heir To.

London, Nov. 24. — London society's latest craze is the vibration cure, as practiced by a Swedish specialist. The vibrationist claims to be able to cure anything and everything by his treatments, a claim which is supported by Adelina Patti among others. Nerve troubles, pneumonia, appendicitis, all are vibrated out of the system in miraculous fashion. Palming, faith healing and crystal gazing have given way for the moment to the vibrationists, whose parlors are crowded with fashionable people.

British Steamer Collides With a Fishing Vessel.

St. John's, N. F., Nov. 24. — The British steamer Demarara, Capt. Goret, from Halifax, for Liverpool, via St. John's, while entering port, collided with and sank the schooner Shamrock, laden with 500 quintals of codfish. The schooner's crew was rescued by the steamer, which was not damaged. It is alleged that the schooner was showing no light, which precaution is frequently neglected by Newfoundland fishing vessels.

ENGLAND OBJECTS.

Europe Unable to Secure an Agreement Against Anarchists.

London, Nov. 24—A special dispatch from Brussels asserts that the attempt of the Belgian government to secure an agreement against anarchists failed, owing to England's refusal to join in the movement. The replies received from all other capitals approached in the matter, the dispatch adds, were favorable to the plan.

THE JOY THAT KILLS.

Celebration of Signing of Peace Treaty Has Fatal Results.

Panama, Nov. 24. — The signing of the treaty of peace by Minister of State Perdomo and Gen. Herrera was celebrated here by a demonstration which lasted all night. While firing a cannon at the fort in the morning in honor of the event three soldiers were killed and two were wounded by a premature explosion.

CHOLERA IS SPREADING.

Moro Towns Feeling the Effect of the Terrible Scourge.

Manila, Nov. 24. — The cholera is spreading among the Moro towns on the west coast of Mindanao and there is much destitution among the people. Quarantine increases the suffering by stopping work and the movement of supplies. Gen. Davis has telegraphed to Gen. Sumner directing the distribution of food supplies to the sufferers in the infected and quarantined towns. The disease is disappearing from this city.

ORE DOCK IN RUINS

FATAL CONFLAGRATION ON THE LAKE FRONT AT ASHLAND.

THREE PERSONS ARE KILLED

WISCONSIN CENTRAL DOCK IS BURNED, CAUSING LOSS OF HALF A MILLION.

FIREMEN MAKE A HARD FIGHT

DOCK SUDDENLY COLLAPSES, CARRYING DOWN A NUMBER OF MEN.

Ashland, Wis., Nov. 24. — The Wisconsin Central ore dock was completely destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon. The loss is about $525,000.

Three lives were lost, one person fatally and several more or less seriously injured.

The fire caught about 5 o'clock, presumably from a boat unloading lumber across the slip, and before the firemen arrived the entire ore dock, half a mile in length, was in flames. An engine was run into the tramway as near the fire as it could get, and a half-hundred men began tearing apart the timbers connecting the tramway and the dock to keep it from falling with the dock. Suddenly the dock fell with a crash, carrying with it 200 feet of the tramway. The engine from falling. Several hundred people were under the tram, and most of them escaped with slight injury. As the burning dock and tramway fell fully a dozen men were seen to go down in the ruins.

Had a Narrow Escape

When the fire was discovered the crews on the dock were just getting ready to quit work. Seeing flames the workmen rushed for land, but many were cut off and jumped into the bay, a distance of sixty feet. Twenty men who sought refuge on an outer end of the dock were scorched by the flames, but passing vessels succeeded in having a tug come to their aid just in time to save them.

The blaze was first seen in the center of the dock, and spread rapidly both ways. Before ten minutes the entire dock was enveloped in flames. Fed by the seasoned and oily timbers and framework of the dock, they attracting thousands of people to the bay shore. All the fire departments were called into service, but to no avail. Business and professional men turned firemen. About one hundred climbed into the approach to the dock and with streams of water attempted to keep the flames confined to the portion of the dock over the water. After the fire had been going fifteen minutes the outer part of the dock fell carrying with it the approach on which the men were fighting. With little or no warning the approach was dragged down, and with it the firefighters, most of whom were buried.

About ten men fighting fire with streams under the approach were pinned in, and for a time it was thought all were crushed. When the approach fell fully 7,000 people were lined up on the bay front and witnessed the awful scene.

TRAIN IS FIRED UPON.

Noted Clergyman Has Narrow Escape From Death.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 24.—At noon yesterday a Northwestern passenger train was fired upon a few miles above here, and Prof. Packman of Christ's Episcopal church of this city, seated in one of the coaches, narrowly escaped instant death, a bullet grazing his nose. The train was stopped and the crew and passengers searched the surrounding timber, but the origin of the volley could not be found.

Reddy Is Sentenced.

Sturgis, S. D., Nov. 24. — Eugene Reddy, arrested on a charge of attempted assault upon a ten-year-old girl, was tried and found guilty, after the jury had been out only a short while. Judge Rice sentenced Reddy to four years and ten months in the state penitentiary at Sioux Falls.

Killed While Seeking Health.

Black River Falls, Wis., Nov. 24. — William Wright, an old resident of this county, left with his family for Idaho a week ago on account of his failing health. A telegram from Gem, Idaho, says he was instantly killed by the cars in that city. He leaves a widow and one child.

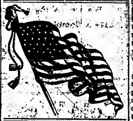
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 26, 1902.



Tomorrow is Thanksgiving day and in accordance with a custom as old as the Republic itself, or older, the people of the United States will lay aside their several occupations and business duties, and devote the day to feasting and giving thanks to Him from whom all good things come. It is a day when the American citizen, wherever he may be, will endeavor to forget his troubles and trials and look only on the brighter side of life. He will look over the past and into the future, and there is none who can fail to find many things to be thankful for.

In this immediate vicinity we have been blessed with an abundance of nature's products during the year. The community has not been called upon to bear the scourge of contagious diseases in the form of epidemics, and all of our people are enjoying a merked degree of prosperity and comfort probably greater, as a whole, than we have ever enjoyed before. These are some of the conditions for which the community altogether should be thankful. The individual alone knows his individual causes for thanksgiving; but each one should endeavor to make the most of his blessings and give thanks accordingly.

"Halvor Steenerson, the newly elected state senator in this district, is the highest legal authority in the state—he stands six foot two in his socks."

The above is from the St. Hilaire Spectator, twenty years ago. Mr. Steenerson is no shorter now than then, maintains his eminence as a lawyer and has won fresh laurels in the political field. Concentrated and devoted attention to one object is the law of success and it is exemplified in Mr. Steenerson's case.—Crookston Journal.

The Red Lake County Publishers association held a meeting last Saturday at Red Lake Falls at which John E. King, editor of the Red Lake County Courier, was expelled from the organization. It was also decided to recommend the state Editorial association to take similar action regarding Mr. King.

HAPPENINGS IN ST. HILAIRE AS TOLD IN THE COLUMNS OF THE SPECTATOR, NOVEMBER, 1882.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 22.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new mill site on Thief River a short distance north of this place. We expect to see the mill completed and in operation this winter.

'Tis an ill wind that blows nobody good. Owing to the war among the railroads one can go from St. Paul to Chicago for $3. Fare from Crookston to Chicago is only $16.50.

Mrs. Major Mix and her two daughters who have been sojourning in these parts for the past few months, returned to Crookston yesterday. During their stay here they have made many warm friends and all will be pleased to hear that like the birds they will come back in the spring and take up their residence among us.

We were visited on Friday last by Mr. Thompson, of the firm of Johnson, Stevens & Co., of Crookston, who informs us that after reading the item published in the Spectator a short time since in regard to the saw mill being put in by W. A. Sorsolell, he came up here to convince himself of the truth of our statement and was so well pleased with the prospect that he has joined himself with Mr. Sorsolell and the mill will be built on a much more extensive basis than was at first proposed. A sixty-inch saw is to be put in and will be run by two 25 horse power engines. They have orders already for more lumber than they can saw this winter and the probabilities are they will make arrangements to put in an extra saw. Coming events cast their shadows before.

Mr. Ballson, of the firm of Ballson & Williams of this place, who went on a visit to Grafton last week, returned yesterday and immediately departed again for his home in Willmar, where he is to meet his father and accompany him to Norway. They sail in about a week and will take a number of Indians over with them and exhibit them through Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Germany. They expect to make money out of the enterprise as the Red man is known to the inhabitants of these countries only in name. They will return in the spring when Mr. R. will take charge of his store here.

The "city" of St. Hilaire, in this county, has fourteen houses and a newspaper. The St. Hilaire Spectator is the name of the new venture and a very creditable appearance it makes under the management of W. E. McKenzie & Co. If there is any class of men in this world that show greater pluck and exercise greater faith than the editors who plant themselves in these western mushroom cities, we would like to see them trotted out. These printer pioneers are the fellows who deserve the most unbounded thanks for their self-sacrificing devotion to the cause of western progress and prosperity, but they really are very often the last ones to realize the good fortune that pours so liberally into the lap of others. The Spectator has our wishes for its abundant success.

The above taken from the Fisher Bulletin is very complimentary to ourselves and our paper, but the statement that St. Hilaire has only fourteen houses is far from being true. The Bulletin man has never been to St. Hilaire and probably judges of her growth by comparing it with that of Fisher. Let him come up here once however, and we will undertake to convince him that there are more than fourteen buildings erected here every month.

What the Hair Tells.

Women who are the possessors of fine black hair are emotional and of very sensitive nerves. Coarse black hair is said to denote great energy, but an unenviable disposition. Women who have brown hair make the best wives, for they are almost invariably full of sentiment, impassioned, "high strung," loyal and easily affected. Red haired people are nearly always keen in business transactions, quick of perception, high tempered and witty. The woman who has blond hair is impulsive and loving, but usually fickle, although an agreeable companion.—Pittsburg Press.

An Appetizer.

Gentleman (at restaurant)—I say, waiter, your customers are a fearfully noisy lot!

"Yes, sir, and yet they are so particular, you would scarcely believe. Why, that same turbot you are eating just now no fewer than six of them refused before you came in."

The Small Brother.

"I heard him call you 'Duckie,'" announced the small brother.

"Well, what of it?" demanded his sister defiantly.

"Oh, nothin' much," answered the small brother. "I was only thinkin' maybe it's because of the way you walk, but it ain't very nice of him."—Chicago Post.

THE COUNTY BOARD

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Proceedings Board of County Commissioners, Red Lake Falls Minn., Sept. 29, 1902.

Board met in extra session this day.

Meeting called to order by chairman.

All members present.

On motion, duly carried, Auctioneer's License was granted to Daniel Patterson of St. Hilaire.

Hearing was then had on county road petition of D. Linnihan and others.

On motion duly carried the following order was made.

FINAL ORDER ON COUNTY ROAD.

State of Minnesota, } ss.
County of Red Lake. }

Whereas, A petition signed by twenty-four freeholders of said County, praying for the laying out and establishing of a certain highway in said County, running into more than one town, and not within the limits of any incorporated city, as hereinafter described, was presented to this board at its session on the 26th day of July 1902 and this Board having determined by the judgment of a majority of its members that said petition is reasonable on its face, and having by its order made at said session, appointed Friday the 12th day of September 1902, at 3 o'clock p. m., at the Auditor's office in said county as the time and place for a hearing upon said petition, and having by said order appointed a committee of its members to examine said proposed highway of said road, and designated Tuesday the 9th day of September 1902, at 2 o'clock p. m. at NW corner sec. 15-151-44 in said county, as the time and place for said committee to meet on the route of said proposed road; for the examination of the same, and having caused notices of said hearing and said meeting of said committee embodying a copy of said petition, to be posted in the three most public places of each town through which said proposed highway of said road runs, or, affected thereby, at least thirty days before the day of said hearing upon said petition, and being satisfied that said notices were so posted and proof of said posting duly made, and the committee having met at the time and place designated in said order and said notices, and examined the same and made its report in writing to this board, and recommended that said petition be granted, and said Board having met at the time and place designated in said order and said notices to-wit: at the Auditor's office in said county, on Friday the 12 day of September, 1902, at 3 o'clock p. m. and adjourned said hearing to the 29th day of Sept. 1902 at 1 o'clock p. m. and duly heard all that anyone had to say in favor of, or against, the granting of said petition, and considered said petition and the report of said committee thereon, and a majority of said Board having agreed that said petition should be granted,

It is Hereby Ordered, That the prayer of said petition be, and the same is hereby granted, and said highway is hereby established so as to run, according to said committee's report, by courses and distances as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at the ¼ section corner between sections 28 and 29, Twp. 152, Range 44.

Running thence east on the ¼ section line to the ¼ section corner between sections 27, and 28 in said town and range, thence south on the section line a distance of 3 and ½ miles to the NW corner of sec. 15, twp. 151 range 44, and to be connected with road running east and west along north line of said section 15-151-44.

It is Further Ordered, That the County Auditor notify the Town Supervisors of each town through which said road is laid out and established of the fact of said laying out and establishing of said road and that they shall cause to be opened so much of said highway as lies in their respective towns.

And Whereas, At the said hearing, upon said petition and said report of said committee, certain persons over whose lands said L of said road will pass did remonstrate against granting the prayer of said petition and did set forth in writing that they would be damaged in a sum therein mentioned by the establishing of said road, and made oath and subscribed to the same, and said Board has determined from said report and the evidence before them, the amounts of the damages sustained by said persons and that said proposed establishing of said road is of sufficient advantage to said county to warrant the paying of the damages assessed by this Board, the said Board proceeded to assess said damages at what is deemed just and right to each land owner, taking into account the advantages and benefits of said establishing of said highway as well as the disadvantages and damages.

It is Ordered, That said damages be and they are hereby assessed to be paid to each person by said county as follows, to-wit: Benefits equal to damages.

Names of Owners, Description of Lands, Sec., Town, Range, Damages.

F. A. Swanson NW¼ sec. 28 Twp. 152 Rng. 44 damages none.

Louise J. Schmitz NE¼ sec. 28 Twp. 152 Rng. 44 damages none.

George M. Emery SW¼ sec. 28 Twp. 152 Rng. 44 damages none.

L. J. Wagonner SE¼ sec. 28 Twp. 152 Rng. 44 damages none.

In witness Whereof, The chairman of this board has hereunto set his hand and affixed our seal at Red Lake Falls in said county, this 29th day of September A. D. 1902.

The Board of County Commissioners,
Of Red Lake County, Minn.,
By James Sutor,
Chairman.

Attest:
Adam Zeh,
County Auditor.

On motion duly carried recess was taken to 9 o'clock a. m.

9 o'clock a. m. Sept. 30, 1902.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

Members all present.

Hearing was then had on county road petition of Joseph Rose and others.

On motion duly carried hearing on same was adjourned to December 5th 1902.

On motion duly carried, Auctioneer's License was granted to Daniel Patterson of St. Hilaire.

Hearing was then had on county road petition of D. Linnihan and others.

On motion duly carried the following order was made.

FINAL ORDER ON COUNTY ROAD.

State of Minnesota, }
County of Red Lake. } ss.

Whereas, A petition signed by twenty-four freeholders of said County praying for the laying out and establishing of a certain highway in said County, running into more than one town, and not within the limits of any incorporated city, as hereinafter described, was presented to this board at its session on the 28th day of July 1902 and this Board having determined by the judgment of a majority of its members that said petition is reasonable on its face, and having by its order made at said session, appointed Friday the 12th day of September 1902, at 3 o'clock p. m., at the Auditor's office in said county as the time and place for a hearing upon said petition, and having by said order appointed a committee of its members to examine said proposed highway of said road, and designated Tuesday the 9th day of September 1902, at 2 o'clock p. m. at NW corner sec. 15 151 44 in said county, as the time and place for said committee to meet on the route of said proposed road, for the examination of the same, and having caused notices of said hearing and said meeting of said committee embodying a copy of said petition, to be posted in the three most public places of each town through which said proposed highway of said road runs, or, affected thereby, at least thirty days before the day of said hearing upon said petition; and being satisfied that said notices were so posted and proof of said posting duly made, and the committee having met at the time and place designated in said order and said notices, and examined the same and made its report in writing to this board, and recommended that said petition be granted, and said Board having met at the time and place designated in said order and said notices to-wit: at the Auditor's office in said county, on Friday the 12 day of September, 1902, at 3 o'clock p. m., and adjourned said hearing to the 29th day of Sept. 1902 at 1 o'clock p. m., and duly heard all that anyone had to say in favor of, or against, the granting of said petition, and considered said petition and the report of said committee thereon, and a majority of said Board having agreed that said petition should be granted,

It is Hereby Ordered, That the prayer of said petition be and the same is hereby granted, and said highway is hereby established so as to run according to said committee's report, by courses and distances as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at the ¼ section corner between sections 28 and 29, Twp. 152, Range 44.

Running thence east on the ¼ section line to the ¼ section corner between sections 27 and 28 in said town and range, thence south on the section line a distance of 3 and ½ miles to the NW corner of sec. 15, twp. 151 range 44, and to be connected with road running east and west along north line of said section 15-151-44.

It is Further Ordered, That the County Auditor notify the Town Supervisors of each town through which said road is laid out and established of the fact of said laying out and establishing of said road and that they shall cause to be opened so much of said highway as lies in their respective towns.

And Whereas, At the said hearing, upon said petition and said report of said committee, certain persons over whose lands said L of said road will pass did remonstrate against granting the prayer of said petition and did set forth in writing that they would be damaged in a sum therein mentioned by the establishing of said road, and made oath and subscribed to the same, and said Board has determined from said report and the evidence before them, the amounts of the damages sustained by said persons and that said proposed establishing of said road is of sufficient advantage to said county to warrant the paying of the damages assessed by this Board, the said Board proceeded to assess said damaged at what is deemed just and right to each land owner, taking into account the advantages and benefits of said establishing of said highway as well as the disadvantages and damages.

It is Ordered, That said damages be and they are hereby assessed to be paid to each person by said county as follows, to-wit: Benefits equal to damages.

Afternoon session, all members present except Commissioner Hebert.

Commissioner Hanson offered the following Resolution:

Whereas James Brady, Matt Skala and others made the following offer to the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, Minnesota, a copy of which offer is hereto attached and made a part of this resolution as if the same were herein written, and whereas the acceptance by the said Board of County Commissioners of said offer would decrease the running expense of said county to the extent of over $600 00 per year.

Be it resolved that the Board of County Commissioners accept said offer.

The above resolution was seconded by Commissioner O. J. Johnson.

Red Lake Falls, Sept. 29th, 1902.

—"Bridget, did you call the boys?" "Indade an' Oi called thim everything Oi cud think of but they won't wake up." There's such a thing as calling too much some times, but when it comes to Tschida's Leader 5-cent cigar it seems as though the people never would get tired of smoking them. They say they are the best that ever happened for the price. Try them.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Pleth left Monday evening for Denmark where they will spend the next three months. They sail from New York on Dec. 2nd on the North German Lloyd steamer, Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, and expect to return home in the end of February. A large number of their friends accompanied them to the depot to say farewell and wish them a pleasant trip.

John Patterson, who several years ago was register of deeds of old Polk county, and subsequently filled out the unexpired term of O. A. Doran-McCaffrey Wedding.

At the home of the bride's parents in this village on last Thursday morning occurred the wedding of Miss [illegible] S. McCaffrey and Dr. Charles W. [illegible]. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Anagar in the presence of the immediate relatives and a few friends of the bride. The happy couple and the guests partook of a sumptuous wedding dinner at the house. They left on the evening train for the southern part of the state. They will make their future home at Montgomery in Le Sueur county, where the best wishes of all who know them will be with them for their future happiness.

The great popularity of the bride was evinced by the crowd of her friends who were at the depot to see them depart, and the showers of rice, confetti, old shoes, etc. has never been equalled in this part of the earth.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Little, who were wedded here on Wednesday last, left on the same train with Dr. and Mrs. Doran and came in for their full share of the good things that were distributed. In fact, the crowd went to the depot for the purpose of giving both couples a handsome farewell, and they did. One of the prettiest and most effective offerings was a lot of paper hearts joined in pairs bearing the inscription on the left hand side of the folded hearts, and on the other was the words;

"DR. DORAN AND BRIDE THOS. LITTLE AND BRIDE"

"HEARTS ARE TRUMPS.
PLEASE BE KIND TO THEM—
THEY'RE NEWLY WEDDED."

These souvenirs were passed around among the passengers on the train and pasted on the baggage of the travelers, also on the coaches and windows where the happily wedded ones took their seats. The train bore them off on their honeymoons amid ringing cheers.

Change of Managers.

Crookston Daily Journal: The departure of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Shute for Minneapolis last night where they will reside in the future, is regretted by a large number of friends. Mr. Shute has resigned his position as manager of the Crookston Lumber company's mill here and will take up the work of managing the lumber business for the Imperial Elevator company, which has 20 yards in operation in connection with its elevator business.

The yards are largely in North Dakota, a few being on the Minnesota side of the river. Mr. and Mrs. Shute have many warm friends in Crookston who will regret their departure. They have been prominent in Crookston social circles and will be greatly missed. His business will call Mr. Shute to Crookston at intervals and Mrs. Shute will, it is hoped, make frequent visits here.

Mr. Shute, after five years' residence here, relinquishes the work of managing the Crookston Lumber company's plant to J. M. Richards, who is qualified in every way to fill the position creditably and successfully. He is a gentleman well versed in all departments of the manufacture of lumber and his friends are pleased with his promotion to the post of manager.

Brink Brothers Entertain.

In response to invitations sent out by Brink Bros., about 150 guests assembled at the Hotel Markham on Friday evening last to take part in a reception and ball given by the hosts in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Pleth who were about to leave for a trip to Europe. The I. O. O. F. hall had been prepared for dancing and a fine orchestra from Red Lake Falls furnished delightful music for the occasion.

The evening's entertainment commenced with dancing which was kept up until 11 o'clock when supper was announced and all adjourned to the dining room of the Hotel Markham, where they partook of a repast which was composed of choicest viands properly prepared. At midnight the guests returned to the dance which was kept up until an early morning hour. All repaired to their homes feeling that they had spent one of the most sociable and most enjoyable evenings of their lives.

Wedding Ring Lost 300 Years.

Baron E. U. Sparre, of Ostersund, Sweden, was recently presented with the wedding ring of two of his distinguished ancestors, Count Erik Sparre and Countess Ebba Brahe, whose marriage in 1578 united two of the noblest families in Sweden. After being lost for 300 years the ring was found on the estate while some of the old structures were being torn down. The age of that ring adds wonderfully to its value, but golden grain belt beer could be no better than it is if it were 1,000 years old. The secret of healthful beer is in the aging. Golden grain belt beer is carefully aged and that is why it agrees with you. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

The Creamery Meeting.

On last Saturday afternoon a meeting of the shareholders of the St. Hilaire Creamery association was held at the village hall [illegible] many others. The [illegible] of the creamery since its starting was gone over at length and it was decided to keep it in operation all winter.

Prof. T. A. Hoverstad, of the Crookston Experimental station, was present and gave an interesting talk on the effects of stock-raising and dairying in the development of the country and showed that they are by far more potent and more permanent in their results than grain-raising. He had visited the creamery here and stated that in his opinion it was one of the best in the northwest at the present time.

Mr. A. M. Childs, of Crookston, also made a brief address in which he endorsed Prof. Hoverstad's statements and said that the people of St. Hilaire had every reason to be proud of the enterprise.

Mr. Blunt, of the Thief River Falls creamery, made one of the most pointed addresses of the day and addressed some sharp remarks to the kickers. Among others he cited the case of an eastern farmer who had a lot of cows in which, of course, were some that were inexperienced and would kick once in a while, and some older ones that were chronic kickers. To the first the farmer paid no attention, and the latter he got rid of as soon as possible. The difference between those animals and the human kicker was that the cow did not go all over the barn and try to get the other cows to kick. Mr. Blunt recommended the old farmer's plan for the treatment of the human kicker. In his experience of the past 18 years or so he had rarely seen a new creamery show better results than this one and those parties here who objected to existing conditions had nothing to complain of.

SUBSTITUTION.

Please listen to a short talk upon a most vitally important subject—one which [illegible] the business world to-day.

You have doubtless heard of the word "substitution." You have probably read that "substitution is fraud." Tack that saying firmly in your mind and keep it there. It is worth something. It is true—almost invariably.

You call at a store and ask for an article of a certain brand or manufacture, one which has been thoroughly advertised for years, and which has earned an excellent reputation. The dealer says he has something just as good, for less money. That dealer thereby usually tells a direct falsehood. He knows that the article which he offers you at a lower price is inferior, but the point is that it yields him a greater profit; hence his desire to substitute.

You may ask if an article is superior just because it is advertised. Yes, it is, and here's why. The many well known houses which spend millions of dollars every year in the good publications of the country are managed by men of brains and wide business experience, and these men know only too well that unless an article has merit there is absolutely no business sense in spending good money to advertise it. It does not pay to advertise any article of general use for a short time only. Every advertiser must wait some time before his advertising has created the desired impression and while he is waiting his goods must have time to prove whether or not they are good. If they are good they stick. If [illegible] and they were not good and did not stick, would this experienced business man continue to spend good money advertising the goods—throw good money after bad as it were? Never! He has too much business sense.

The average article which you see advertised month after month in good publications is itself good. Buy an advertised article. It is the true safe way.

When you are buying ask for what you want and get what you ask for.

Remember! "Substitution is Fraud."—Pearson's Magazine.

THE PINKHAM CURES

ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE BLOOD.

The blood is life. We derive from the blood life, power, beauty and reason, as the doctors have been saying from time immemorial. A healthy body, a fresh appearance, and generally all the abilities we possess depend on that source of life. It is therefore the duty of every sensible man to keep the blood as pure and normal as possible. Nature, in its infinite wisdom, has given us a thermometer indicating the state of the blood, which appeals to our reason by giving notice of its impurity. Small eruptions of the skin, to which we scarcely pay any attention, headache, ringing noises in the ears, lassitude, sleeplessness, are generally a sign that the blood is not in its normal state, but is filled with noxious substances. These symptoms deserve our full attention. If more attention were paid to those symptoms, and steps taken to remove them, then many illnesses from which we suffer would become unknown and the human body would become stronger and healthier. Attention, therefore, should be paid to those warning signs, and the blood can be purified and poisonous substances removed from it by the use of Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Drops, discovered more than 60 years ago.

A VINDICATED PRODIGAL

By C. S. REX.

(Copyright, [illegible] by Daily Story Publishing Company.)

A few of the most earnest and faithful of us had braved the inclement weather and were gathered in the cozy, comfortable room set apart for mid-week service, in one of the most fashionable churches in our city.

Outside, the wind howled unmercifully and as the little group of twenty-five or thirty silently awaited the coming of our minister, each uttered a silent prayer for the blessing of such pleasant surroundings.

Suddenly the door was gently pushed ajar and a vagabond, a typical specimen of the genus tramp, crept slowly within its portals, pausing he glanced around the room, and, seeming satisfied with his surroundings, he slowly walked towards the pulpit and found a seat directly in front of the minister, who had just entered the room from the door opposite the entrance.

The minister, [illegible] astonished at the seeming impudence of a dirty, ragged tramp presuming to coolly make himself at home in his stylish church, but without speaking to the vagabond quietly began the service for the evening.

He took for his theme the story of the Prodigal Son and very eloquently he talked, thinking, perhaps, he had a willing and appreciative listener in the tramp before him. Then songs were sung and prayers were said and finally the minister said the meeting was open to anyone who cared to speak or offer anything "for the good of all."

What was our surprise to see the vagabond slowly rise and with a defiant backward movement of his unkempt head turn towards his audience and told them this story:

"My friends (for so I deem you) that I was ever a decent man will be hard for you to believe, but I assure you, five years ago I was esteemed and worthy of any man's respect. Even as it is I have committed no crime that would call to my cheek a blush of shame. My hands are innocent of that. If you care to listen to my story I would be pleased to tell it. I think it will not only be interesting to you, but also prove beneficial to the people of this parish.

"I was once a minister of the Gospel and worthy to stand where your pastor stands. I sought to do my full duty as a teacher of the great Master's words, having for my creed, brotherly kindness; for my doctrine, brotherly love; I sought to honestly live the Golden Rule and was in a fair way to success in my chosen profession. I had preached in a pulpit once that had been occupied by the wonderful Beecher and my name had been frequently associated with the great church men of the day. Finally there came a call to a city church; would to God I might forget that; I accepted. I found my new parish was plastered o'er with pride; mammon was their deity; gold was deified; hypocrisy was their creed and selfishness their doctrine. Their worship was a mockery and Christ was being re-crucified.

"I soon gained the respect of my people and was fairly successful in directing them to a better form of worship.

"One of the most devoted co-workers I had was a young lady, whose beauty seemed so saint-like, I thought her soul must be divine.

"Friendship soon ripened into love, and after one short year we were married. Our married life was an earthly Eden to me and all of Mary's smiles seemed so freely given that our happy home seemed too near heaven for the serpent to enter.

"One summer's evening there came most welcome news to me, a letter from my college chum and minister friend stationed in a distant city who wrote that having some secular business of importance in my vicinity he would avail himself of the opportunity and privilege of paying me a long delayed visit, renewing old comradeship and further cementing our friendship.

"He came, a tall, fair, handsome man, and what was my surprise to learn that my Mary was enchanted with him. She would sit silently watching the emotions play upon his face as we conversed about old college days.

A typical specimen of the genus tramp.

"My God! There must be sins for which men cannot find forgiveness, nor can they atone for them. This priest, this friend, bah, after but one short week, stole my darling and I was left alone. Before a year of misery had passed away I heard that the jewel that I had once so treasured and prized was dead.

"That, my friends, is why I left the church. That is why I took to drink. That is why I am a vagabond. That is why I am here to-night. The thief changed his name and fled to new pastures green and I have searched for him for five long years, but to-night my journey is ended. Yes, your preacher is the man I have sought, and I thank the God of Justice that once more we stand face to face in God's holy temple. O, I shall not harm you. You need not shrink. May God forgive you for spoiling my life. I doubt if He ever will. I wish your people to know your crime, for it is that makes men scorn religion and violate God's laws.

"Ah, my friends, my strength is almost gone and I know I have not much longer to live in this world. I hope to be in peace with God before I die. He never will be. Will you join me in prayer?"

Asked for the blessing of God to rest upon us.

And as the kneeling vagabond uttered a simple earnest petition for mercy and forgiveness and even prayed for the villain who had so wronged him, the preacher we had thought the embodiment of almost heavenly virtues silently passed into the night.

We never saw or heard of him again.

As the tramp asked for the blessing of God to rest upon us all he attempted to rise, but tottered, staggered, fell—was dead.

We never learned from whence he came nor anything concerning who he was, but we gave him a respectable burial and over his grave we placed a stone, and on that stone this inscription,

"Here Lies a Vindicated Prodigal. Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy."

THE SPAN OF LIFE.

Years Which Nature Has Allotted to All Living Things.

Elephants live 100 years and upward, rhinoceros twenty, camel 100, lion twenty-five to seventy, tigers, leopards, jaguars and hyenas (in confinement) about twenty-five, beaver fifty, deer twenty, wolf twenty, fox fourteen to sixteen, llamas fifteen, chamois twenty-five, monkeys and baboons sixteen to eighteen, hare eight, squirrel seven, rabbit seven; swine twenty-five, stag under thirty, horse thirty, ass thirty, sheep under ten, cow twenty, ox thirty, swans, parrots and ravens 200, eagle 100, geese eighty, hens and pigeons ten to sixteen, hawks thirty to forty, crane twenty-four, blackbird ten to twelve, peacock twenty, pelican forty to fifty, thrush eight to ten, wren two to three, nightingale fifteen, blackcap fifteen, linnet fourteen to twenty-five, goldfinch twenty to twenty-four, redbreast ten to twelve, skylark ten to thirty, [illegible] five, titlark five to six, [illegible] twenty to twenty-four, starling ten to twelve, carp seventy to 150, pike thirty to forty, salmon sixteen, codfish fourteen to seventeen, eel ten, crocodile 100, tortoise 100 to 200, whale, estimated, 1,000; queen bees live four years, drones four months, worker bees six months.—Detroit News-Tribune.

The Other Side.

An author who illustrates his own novels has submitted to an interview.

"You find that it pays, don't you?"

"You bet—in lots of ways. For instance, I get paid for the story?"

"Yes."

"Then the illustrations of the author of a book are worth double those of the ordinary artists?"

"Of course!"

"Then some fool of a rich fellow comes along and offers a fabulous sum for the original drawings, and wants an introduction to you, and invites you to dine with him, and your fortune is made, and your future is safe. It's a great scheme, I tell you, and authors are fools who don't make the most of it!"

Unfortunate Combination.

The chief inn at a small English village had been known as the Clown, but the landlord, by way of compliment to a certain bishop who had resided there for some time, substituted the Bishop as a sign.

An innkeeper close by, who had frequently envied the host of the Clown his good fortune in securing a preponderance of visitors, took advantage of the change and put up the sign of the Clown over his own door.

The landlord of the Bishop was dismayed at seeing so many of his old customers deposited at his rival's house, so by way of remedy, he painted, in big red letters, under the portrait of the Bishop—"This is the old Clown."

Mrs. Hildebrandt's Discovery.

Lake Sarah, Minn., Nov. 24th.—Mrs. Hildebrandt of this place claims to have discovered a complete cure for Rheumatism, and numerous people can testify that as Mrs. Hildebrandt had the terrible affliction and is now a well woman, she appears to have good grounds for her claim. Mrs. Hildebrandt speaks of her cure as follows:

"I had the Rheumatism in my arms so bad that I could not sleep at night. I was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and before I had taken two boxes I was much better. When I had taken four boxes I was completely cured."

It is only fair to state that others have made the same discovery as Mrs. Hildebrandt and that for Rheumatism and other diseases arising from the Kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills are recognized as the one sure and permanent cure.

A PASTOR WHO WAS BEFRIENDED BY AN EMPEROR SAVED BY PE-RU-NA

Rev. H. Stubenvoll, of Elkhorn, Wis., is pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran St. John's Church of that place. Rev. Stubenvoll is the possessor of two bibles presented to him by Emperor William of Germany. Upon the fly leaf of one of the bibles the Emperor has written in his own handwriting a text.

This honored pastor, in a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, says concerning their famous catarrh remedy, Peruna:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen: "I had hemorrhages of the lungs for a long time, and all despaired of me. I took Peruna and was cured. It gave me strength and courage, and made healthy, pure blood. It increased my weight, gave me a healthy color, and I feel well. It is the best medicine in the world. If everyone kept Peruna in the house it would save many from death every year."—H. STUBENVOLL.

Thousands of people have catarrh who would be surprised to know it, because it has been called some other name than catarrh. The fact is catarrh is catarrh wherever located; and another fact which is of equally great importance is that Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Mull's Grape Tonic Cures Constipation.

When the bowels move irregularly the entire bodily system must suffer. Constipation more frequently occurs among women and manifests itself in provoking, profuse leucorrhea and other serious female diseases. Regular bowels will result in a complete cure when you use Mull's Grape Tonic. Unlike pills and ordinary cathartics, this remedy is a mild, gentle laxative in addition to being a greater flesh builder, blood maker and strength giver than cod liver oil or any other preparation recommended for that purpose. Mull's Grape Tonic will permanently cure the most obstinate case of constipation, and the numerous afflictions that invariably follow in its wake. No matter if it is piles, liver complaint, kidney disorder, vertigo, palpitation of the heart, diarrhea or the self-poisoning which follows when the undigested food remains in the bowels where it putrefies and empties highly diseased germs into the blood, such as typhoid and malaria, Mull's Grape Tonic will positively cure. Large sample bottle will be sent free to any address on receipt of 10 cents to cover postage, by the Lightning Medicine Co., Rock Island, Ill. Send name of your druggist. All druggists sell Mull's Grape Tonic at 50 cents a bottle.

SUBSTITUTION.

Please allow me a short talk upon a most vitally important subject—one which [illegible] the busi[illegible]ness world to-day.

You have doubtless heard of the word "substitution." You have probably read that "substitution is fraud." Take that saying firmly in your mind and keep it there. It is worth something. It is true—almost invariably.

You call at a store and ask for an article of a certain brand or manufacture, one which has been thoroughly advertised for years, and which has earned an excellent reputation. The dealer says there is something just as good for less money. That dealer thereby usually tells a direct falsehood. He knows that the article which he offers you at a lower price is inferior, but the point is that it yields him a greater profit; hence his desire to substitute.

You may ask if an article is superior just because it is advertised. Yes, it is, and here's why. The many well-known houses which spend millions of dollars every year in the good publications of the country are managed by men of brains and wide business experience, and these men know only too well that unless an article has merit there is absolutely no business sense in spending good money to advertise it. It does not pay to advertise any article of general use for a short time only. Every advertiser must wait some time before his advertising has created the desired impression and while he is waiting his goods must have time to prove whether or not they are good. If they are good they stick, if not they do not, and if they were not good and did not stick, would this experienced business man continue to spend good money advertising the goods—throw good money after bad as it were? Never! He has too much business sense.

The average article which you see advertised month after month in good publications is itself good. Buy an advertised article. It is the true safe way.

When you are buying ask for what you want and get what you ask for.

Remember! "Substitution is Fraud."—Pearson's Magazine.

THE PINKHAM CURES

ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N. Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by, and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE BLOOD.

The blood is life. We derive from the blood life, power, beauty and reason, as the doctors have been saying from time immemorial. A healthy body, a fresh appearance, and generally all the abilities we possess depend on that source of life. It is therefore the duty of every sensible man to keep the blood as pure and normal as possible. Nature, in its infinite wisdom, has given us a thermometer indicating the state of the blood, which appeals to our reason by giving notice of its impurity. Small eruptions of the skin, to which we scarcely pay any attention, headache, ringing noises in the ears, lassitude, sleeplessness, are generally a sign that the blood is not in its normal state, but is filled with noxious substances. These symptoms deserve our full attention. If more attention were paid to those symptoms, and steps taken to remove them, then many illnesses from which we suffer would become unknown and the human body would become stronger and healthier. Attention, therefore, should be paid to those warning signs, and the blood can be purified and poisonous substances removed from it by the use of Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Drops, discovered more than 60 years ago.

A THOUGHT.

Life is but growth, and he is truly dead
Who finds no task for heart, nor hand, nor head;
Who smooths no path for coming feet to tread,
Because, perchance, his days of youth are fled.

For youth and age both have their store
Of joys—
A store that neither time nor change alloys;
And he who all his gifts for good employs
Has wealth that neither moth nor rust destroys.

A VINDICATED PRODIGAL

By C. S. REX.

(Copyright, [illegible], by Daily Story Publishing Company.)

A few of the most earnest and faithful of us had braved the inclement weather and were gathered in the cozy, comfortable room set apart for mid-week service, in one of the most fashionable churches in the city.

Outside, the wind howled unmercifully and as the little group of twenty-five or thirty silently awaited the coming of our minister, each uttered a silent prayer for the blessing of such pleasant surroundings.

Suddenly the door was gently pushed ajar and a vagabond, a typical specimen of the genus tramp, crept slowly within its portals; pausing he glanced around the room, and, seeming satisfied with his surroundings he slowly walked towards the pulpit and found a seat directly in front of the minister, who had just entered the room from the door opposite the entrance.

The minister looked astonished at the seeming impudence of a dirty, ragged tramp presuming to coolly make himself at home in his stylish church, but without speaking to the vagabond quietly began the service for the evening.

He took for his theme the story of the Prodigal Son and very eloquently he talked, thinking perhaps he had a willing and appreciative listener in the tramp before him. Then songs were sung and prayers were said and finally the minister said the meeting was open to anyone who cared to speak or offer anything "for the good of all."

What was our surprise to see the vagabond slowly rise and with a defiant backward movement of his unkempt head turn towards his audience and told them this story:

"My friends (for so I deem you) that I was ever a decent man will be hard for you to believe, but I assure you, five years ago I was esteemed and worthy of any man's respect. Even as it is I have committed no crime that would call to my cheek a blush of shame. My hands are innocent of that. If you care to listen to my story I would be pleased to tell it. I think it will not only be interesting to you, but also prove beneficial to the people of this parish.

"I was once a minister of the Gospel and worthy to stand where your pastor stands. I sought to do my full duty as a teacher of the great Master's words, having for my creed, brotherly kindness; for my doctrine, brotherly love; I sought to honestly live the Golden Rule and was in a fair way to success in my chosen profession. I had preached in a pulpit once that had been occupied by the wonderful Beecher and my name had been frequently associated with the great church men of the day. Finally there came a call to a city church; would to God I might forget that; I accepted; I found my new parish was plastered o'er with pride; Mammon was their deity; gold was deified; hypocrisy was their creed and selfishness their doctrine. Their worship was a mockery and Christ was being re-crucified.

"I soon gained the respect of my people and was fairly successful in directing them to a better form of worship.

"One of the most devoted co-workers I had was a young lady, whose beauty seemed so saint-like, I thought her soul must be divine.

"Friendship soon ripened into love, and after one short year we were married. Our married life was an earthly Eden to me and all of Mary's smiles seemed so freely given that our happy home seemed too near heaven for the serpent to enter.

"One summer's evening there came most welcome news to me; a letter from my college chum and minister friend stationed in a distant city, who wrote that having some secular business of importance in my vicinity he would avail himself of the opportunity and privilege of paying me a long delayed visit, renewing old comradeship and further cementing our friendship.

"He came, a tall, fair, handsome man, and what was my surprise to learn that my Mary was enchanted with him. She would sit silently watching the emotions play upon his face as we conversed about old college days.

A typical specimen of the genus tramp.

"My God! There must be sins for which men cannot find forgiveness, nor can they atone for them. This priest, this friend, bah, after but one short week, stole my darling and I was left alone. Before a year of misery had passed away I heard that the jewel that I had once so treasured and prized, was dead.

"That, my friends, is why I left the church. That is why I took to drink. That is why I am a vagabond. That is why I am here to-night. The thief changed his name and fled to new pastures green, and I have searched for him for five long years, but to-night my journey is ended. Yes, your preacher is the man I have sought, and I thank the God of Justice that once more we stand face to face in God's holy temple. Oh, I shall not harm you. You need not shrink. May God forgive you for spoiling my life, I doubt if He ever will. I wish your people to know your crime. Your kind is that makes men scorn religion and violate God's laws.

"Ah, my friends, my strength is almost gone and I know I have not much longer to live in this woeful world. I hope to be in peace with God before I die. He never will be. Will you join me in prayer?"

Asked for the blessing of God to rest upon us.

And as the kneeling vagabond uttered a simple earnest petition for mercy and forgiveness and even prayed for the villain who had so wronged him, the preacher we had thought the embodiment of almost heavenly virtues silently passed into the night.

We never saw or heard of him again.

As the tramp asked for the blessing of God to rest upon us all he attempted to rise, but tottered, staggered, fell,—was dead.

We never learned from whence he came nor anything concerning who he was, but we gave him a respectable burial and over his grave was placed a stone and on that stone this inscription,

"Here Lies a Vindicated Prodigal. Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy."

THE SPAN OF LIFE.

Years Which Nature Has Allotted to All Living Things.

Elephants live 100 years and upward, rhinoceros twenty, camel 100, lion twenty-five to seventy, tigers, leopards, jaguars and hyenas (in confinement) about twenty-five, beaver fifty, deer twenty, wolf twenty, fox fourteen to sixteen, llamas, fifteen, chamois twenty-five, monkeys and baboons sixteen to eighteen, hare eight, squirrel seven, rabbit seven, swine twenty-five, stag under thirty, horse thirty, ass thirty, sheep under ten, cow twenty, ox thirty, swans, parrots and ravens 200, eagle 100, geese eighty, hens and pigeons ten to sixteen, hawks thirty to forty, crane twenty-four, blackbird ten to twelve, peacock twenty, pelican forty to fifty, thrush eight to ten, wren two to three, nightingale, fifteen, blackcap fifteen, linnet fourteen to twenty-five, goldfinch twenty to twenty-four, redbreast ten to twelve, skylark ten to thirty, titlark five to six, chaffinch twenty to twenty-four, starling ten to twelve, carp seventy to 150, pike thirty to forty, salmon sixteen, codfish fourteen to seventeen, eel ten, crocodile 100, tortoise 100 to 200, whale, estimated, 1,000; queen bees five four years, drone four months, worker bees six months.—Detroit News-Tribune.

The Other Side.

An author who illustrates his own novels has submitted to an interview.

"You find that it pays, don't you?"

"You bet—in lots of ways. For instance, I get paid for the story?"

"Yes."

"Then, the illustrations of the author of a book are worth double those of the ordinary artists?"

"Of course!"

"Then some fool of a rich fellow comes along and offers a fabulous sum for the original drawings, and wants an introduction to you, and invites you to dine with him, and your fortune 's made, and your future is safe! It's a great scheme, I tell you, and authors are fools who don't make the most of it!"

Unfortunate Combination.

The chief inn at a small English village had been known as the Clown, but the landlord, by way of compliment to a certain bishop who had resided there for some time, substituted the Bishop as a sign.

An innkeeper close by, who had frequently envied the host of the Clown his good fortune in securing a preponderance of visitors, took advantage of the change and put up the sign of the Clown over his own door.

The landlord of the Bishop was dismayed at seeing so many of his old customers deposited at his rival's house; so, by way of remedy, he painted, in big red letters, under the portrait of the Bishop—"This is the old Clown."

Mrs. Hildebrandt's Discovery.

Lake Sarah, Minn., Nov. 24th.—Mrs. Hildebrandt of this place claims to have discovered a complete cure for Rheumatism, and numerous people can testify that as Mrs. Hildebrandt had the terrible affliction and is now a well woman, she appears to have good grounds for her claim. Mrs. Hildebrandt speaks of her cure as follows:

"I had the Rheumatism in my arms so bad that I could not sleep at night. I was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and before I had taken two boxes I was much better. When I had taken four boxes I was completely cured."

It is only fair to state that others have made the same discovery as Mrs. Hildebrandt and that for Rheumatism and other diseases arising from the Kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills are recognized as the one sure and permanent cure.

A PASTOR WHO WAS BEFRIENDED BY AN EMPEROR SAVED BY PE-RU-NA

Rev. H. Stubenvoll, of Elkhorn, Wis., is pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran St. John's Church of that place. Rev. Stubenvoll is the possessor of two bibles presented to him by Emperor William of Germany. Upon the fly leaf of one of the bibles the Emperor has written in his own handwriting a text.

This honored pastor, in a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, says concerning their famous catarrh remedy, Peruna:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen: "I had hemorrhages of the lungs for a long time, and all despaired of me. I took Peruna and was cured. It gave me strength and courage, and made healthy, pure blood. It increased my weight, gave me a healthy color, and I feel well. It is the best medicine in the world. If everyone kept Peruna in the house it would save many from death every year."—H. STUBENVOLL.

Thousands of people have catarrh who would be surprised to know it, because it has been called some other name than catarrh. The fact is catarrh is catarrh wherever located; and another fact which is of equally great importance, is that Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

When the bowels move irregularly the entire bodily system must suffer. Constipation more frequently occurs among women and it manifests itself in provoking profuse leucorrhea and other serious female diseases. Regular bowels will result in a complete cure when you use Mull's Grape Tonic. Unlike pills and ordinary cathartics, this remedy is a mild, gentle laxative in addition to being a greater flesh builder, blood maker and strength giver than cod liver oil or any other preparation recommended for that purpose. Mull's Grape Tonic will permanently cure the most obstinate case of constipation, and the numerous afflictions that invariably follow in its wake. No matter if it is piles, liver complaint, kidney disorder, vertigo, palpitation of the heart, diarrhea or the self-poisoning which follows when the undigested food remains in the bowels where it putrefies and empties highly diseased germs into the blood, such as typhoid and malaria, Mull's Grape Tonic will positively cure. Large sample bottle will be sent free to any address on receipt of 10 cents to cover postage, by the Lightning Medicine Co., Rock Island, Ill. Send name of your druggist. All druggists sell Mull's Grape Tonic at 50 cents a bottle.

Resume of the News.

Fresh Reliable Brief

Washington Notes.

Hazing and its punishment at West Point are to be brought before congress, through the efforts of friends of Former Cadet Alexander G. Pendleton, Jr., of Arizona, to secure his reinstatement.

The presiding judge of the supreme court of the District of Columbia has set Friday, Dec. 12, as the date for hearing the application for the writ of mandamus asked for by Miss Taylor to compel Secretary Root of the war department to reinstate her.

In rural free delivery the country is now divided into three or four divisions, and the amount of work in each of them is tremendous. In the event of the creating of additional divisions, one of them will be comprised of the Northwestern States, with headquarters in St. Paul.

Casualties.

J. L. Frohman of Chicago was found dead in a bath tub at the Hotel Homing at Cincinnati. His neck was broken. He evidently slipped and fell on entering the bath.

While rounding a curve at a high rate of speed at Greenville, Ill., a Jacksonville & St. Louis passenger train plunged over an embankment, a distance of thirty feet, and ten persons were injured, two of whom may die.

The Hermso, Gopher & Co. malt house, No. 5, at the corner of Elm street and Second avenue, Chicago, was destroyed by fire. Several firemen were slightly injured by an explosion in one of the malt-bins, which blew out the north end of the building. The loss was $75,000, covered by insurance.

People Talked About.

Alfrom Clysenaar, the artist, is dead at Brussels, at the age of sixty-five.

Lord Reay, chairman of the London school board since 1877 and president of the institute of international law, has been appointed first president of the British academy.

John W. Osborne, an aged scientist and inventor, is dead at his home in Palo Alto, Cal. For many years Mr. Osborne was connected with the patent office in Washington. He was the inventor of many of the appliances which revolutionized color printing.

Charles E. Conrad, president of the Conrad National bank and the Kalispell Townsite company, is dead of tuberculosis at Kalispell, Mont. Conrad was one of the best known citizens of Montana. He was born in Virginia in 1850 and went to Montana thirty-four years ago.

Crimes and Criminals.

Charles Hale, an American, is under arrest in London, charged with running a bogus betting shop.

Nineteen-year-old Viona Nesset, pretty as her name is, is in custody at the Warren Avenue police station, Chicago, charged with horse stealing.

David Weir was arrested at Cassopolis, Mich., on the charge of having caused the death of his wife by poison.

The convicts at the Alexandrovsk settlement, in British Columbia, are in mutiny, even refusing all nourishment until they are more humanely treated.

Lawrence Murphy, formerly treasurer of the Journeymen Stonecutters' association, is under arrest in New York, charged with the larceny of $25,000.

James Dillard, the Kentucky negro who criminally assaulted Mrs. Mary Davis, of Sullivan county, and Mrs. John Lennon of Knox county, was hanged to a telegraph pole by a mob at Sullivan, Ind.

Charles H. Royer, a druggist, has been arrested at San Francisco by detectives of the postal department. In connection with his drug business Royer had charge of a sub-postoffice, and he is said to be short in his accounts with the government to the extent of $1,400.

Victims of the scurrilous anonymous letters which have been burdening the mails of the North Side, Chicago, declare that the writer of the communications must be brought to justice. The recipients charge the local inspector with unwillingness to prosecute the author of the epistles, who, it is said, is known.

Notes From Abroad.

Maj. Von Etzel has been appointed military attache to the German embassy at Washington, in addition to Lieut. Bredow.

Dr. Harte Van Tecklenberg, minister of finance of the Netherlands, has announced the government's intention to raise the import duty on sugar.

The Filipino, Semiona, with fifty followers, has surrendered. Semiona, in July, 1901, took the oath of allegiance, but subsequently fled and organized a band of ladrones.

Mgr. Guidi, apostolic delegate to the Philippines, made a formal call upon Gov. Taft at the Malacanan palace recently, and presented his credentials from Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state. He also delivered a friendly personal message from the pope.

Wolf von Menzel, the noted German painter, has finished a painting of "Frederick the Great to the Year 1778," the year in which Frederick recognized American independence. The painting is inscribed "Dedicated to Free America." Von Menzel has arranged to reserve the rights of reproduction for the benefit of German-American hospitals.

The steamer Rosina, loaded with cereals and having 150 persons on board, which was reported to have foundered in a gale in the Black sea, off Sulina, at the mouth of the Danube, has arrived at Constantinople.

The Industry and Exchange Bank of Christiania, Norway, has suspended payment. The other banks have agreed to co-operate with the government in a guarantee of $500,000 to cover the bank's liabilities to its creditors.

With the approval of the minister of the interior the Austrian league to combat the white slave traffic will establish branches in all the important towns and frontier stations of Austria, and take active measures in suppress the traffic.

Thomas J. Borden, a member of the Borden family whose name is linked with the textile history of Southeastern Massachusetts, died at Providence, whither he had been taken after being stricken with appendicitis some time ago.

General.

Mme. Duse will tour the country. Minneapolis and St. Paul are given one night each.

The merger of Chicago's beef packing concerns has been indefinitely postponed.

Hugo Kelley of Chicago received the decision over Rube Ferns in a ten-round bout at Kansas City.

John Mitchell is to write a book on "Capital and Labor." It is to be based on the great anthracite strike.

Eugene McCarthy, of Brooklyn knocked out Eddie Boylston of New York to the seventh round at Middletown, Conn.

T. Henry French, the theatrical manager, is seriously ill at his apartments in New York, from a complication of diseases.

Verestchagin's picture of San Juan Hill, "Come On, Boys!" showing Col. Roosevelt charging at the head of his men, brought $18,000 at public auction in New York.

Dora Ment of Centralia, Ill., who, after a quarrel with her lover, fifty-six days ago, immediately lapsed into a somnolent trance, has not during that time evinced consciousness.

Officials of the Santa Fe Railroad company are said to have closed a contract with French mills for 12,000 tons of steel rails of 50 pounds weight. The price is given at $22 per ton.

Susan Devereux of Eldorado, Kan., proved to number of friends that fish that live in the Walnut river love music. For weeks this young lady has gone to the banks of that stream and played a violin and sang songs for the amusement of her pets. Eldorado people stand on the banks of the stream and count hundreds of fish.

Mrs. Tingley says: "Mr. Gerry will never be able to touch those children and that they will come to point Loma. Our enemies are not open enemies, like the Spanish. They are skulking behind the scenes. They are here and they are there. They are everywhere, and they are eating out the heart of the nation, and time will prove it."

The United States Steel corporation contemplates the removal to Pittsburg of practically all the executive officers of its subsidiary companies located in New York. It is the purpose of the corporation to centralize such offices nearer to the district of production.

A flashlight photograph with every purchase of a trust cigar is the promise of the independent retail tobacco dealers of Chicago. This method of discouraging buyers from entering stores of the combine was determined on at a meeting of the dealers of the down-town district.

CAUSES FOR ALARM

GREAT DANGER OF FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE BECOMING EPIDEMIC.

GREAT LOSS TO STOCK DEALERS

SHIPMENTS OF STOCK ALL OVER THE COUNTRY WOULD BE AFFECTED.

EXPERTS WILL STAMP IT OUT.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT IS WORKING TO CHECK THE EPIDEMIC.

Chicago, Dec. 1—That Chicago's live stock business is in danger of thousands of dollars damage from the foot and mouth disease that has attacked cattle and sheep and swine all over New England is the opinion of Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture.

"If the disease gets west of the Hudson river it will affect shipments of live stock all over the country," he said at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon, soon after his arrival from Washington. "The disease spreads like a prairie fire, and should it get into Chicago the damage to the business of this city and the country shipping here would be thousands upon thousands of dollars."

The secretary, accompanied by his son Jasper, is in Chicago to attend the International Live Stock exposition at the stock yards. He will remain here until this evening, and then return to Washington to direct the experts of the agricultural department in the work of checking the spread of the epidemic in New England.

"To protect the ports of New York and Baltimore the department has closed up the ports of Boston and Portland to shipments of cattle, sheep and hogs," said Secretary Wilson. "The order closing up these ports went into effect yesterday. As long as the Epidemic is Confined to the New England States exporting can continue out of New York and Baltimore. But there is much danger of the disease spreading outside of the states in which it is now thought to be confined, for the efforts to fight it are hampered by stock owners not reporting the epidemic and the experts from the department having to ferret out the places where it is prevalent. We do not know exactly how bad the epidemic is, or how long it has been in the country. The department heard of it only four days ago. I have sent Dr. Solomon, chief of the bureau of animal industry; Dr. James Law of Cornell university and Dr. Pearson of Philadelphia, all well-known authorities in veterinary surgery, into New England to investigate the conditions, and they will report to me in a few days as to how bad the epidemic is."

This is the first time in eighteen years that the foot and mouth disease has attacked cattle or sheep or swine in any part of the United States. Secretary Wilson said that it was brought to this country without any doubt from Europe, where it is prevalent all the time.

"We hope to get it entirely stamped out in a short time," he said. "Perhaps in three or four weeks."

To Kill Infected Animals.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Dr. Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry of the agricultural department, will leave for Boston to-day to take personal charge of the war which will be waged by the department against the dread foot and mouth disease now prevalent among the New England States.

Dr. Salmon will have from 50 to 100 assistants distributed throughout the infected districts and cattle will be slaughtered whenever necessary, as there is no effectual remedy against the disease, and the killing of all infected animals will prove cheapest in the long run.

KILLED BY BURGLARS.

Watchman Loses His Life While Defending Property in His Charge.

Valparaiso, Ind., Dec. 1.—In the little town of Westville, six miles east of here, Wesley Reynolds, watchman of the Westville State bank, was shot and instantly killed by burglars last night while defending the bank safe from their attack. After killing Reynolds the desperadoes, who were followed by citizens, fought their way to liberty and are still at large. The watchman saved the bank at the cost of his life, for the burglars did not have time to blow open the safe after killing the watchman. It is thought one of them was wounded.

CASTRO FORGIVING.

Venezuelan President Releases His Political Prisoners.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 1.—President Castro has opened all the prisons in this city and at Puerto Cabello and Maracaibo and liberated the political offenders confined therein. This act has produced a good impression.

Killed in a Scuffle.

Escanaba, Dec. 1.—Pat Downey met instant death as the result of a scuffle with two other men. The three men were fooling on the deck of a boat, when they fell to the dock below. Downey had his neck broken.

Serious Blow to Normal.

Rat Portage, Ont., Dec. 1.—Practically the entire business portion of the village of Normal, near here, was wiped out by the fire which started in the extensive lumber yards there. Loss, $500,000.

CHILDREN WERE INSURED.

Parents Arrested on Suspicion of Poisoning Them.

Philadelphia, Dec. 1.—After carrying on for a period of several weeks an investigation of the cause of death of Annie Williams, nine years old, and her three-year-old sister, Josephine, on Aug. 11, respectively, the police authorities have deemed it proper to detain at the police station the parents of the dead children.

Annie and Josephine died of what the attending physicians thinks was poison, and so notified the coroner. A chemical analyzation made by the coroner tended to prove the doctor's theory, and the arrest of the parents followed. It is said that the children were insured, the elder child for $115 and the younger child for $0. Williams and his wife deny they were the cause of the death of the two children.

TEXAS IN PERIL.

Battleship Has Narrow Escape From Being Blown Up.

Hampton, Va., Dec. 1.—The battleship Texas had a narrow escape from being blown up Friday afternoon. She left the Portsmouth navy yard on a trial trip after being overhauled and went out to the Capes, where gun practice was had. Two of the large turret guns exploded, filling the gun room with glycerine and water, but the magnificent work of the gunners saved the vessel from serious damage, as well as the lives of those on board of her. The ship returned to Old Point and a special inspection board is making an examination of the injury.

MILLIONS INVOLVED.

Citizenship Holders of Indian Lands Is Disputed.

Ardmore, Ind. T., Dec. 1.—The new citizenship court, recently created by congress, will convene at South McAlester to-day to review citizenship cases. The federal court admitted hundreds of men to citizenship in the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations, with privileges to participate in the division of Indian lands. Representatives of these nations allege that fraud was practiced in the federal courts admitting these claimants. Congress created a special court to review these cases. About $20,000,000 are involved.

VERY LONG SENTENCE.

Harvey Logan Is Given Hundred and Thirty Years.

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 1. — Harvey Logan, the alleged Montana train robber, was given ten sentences, aggregating 130 years. Eight sentences were for fifteen years each, to be served concurrently, and two sentences were for five years each, to be served concurrently. This reduces his sentences to twenty years. Judge Clark selected the Columbus prison in which to confine Logan. The defense may appeal to the United States court of appeals at Cincinnati.

HUSBAND HELD FOR MURDER.

His Wife Found Dead Under Suspicious Circumstances.

Elwood, Ind., Dec. 1.—Mrs. Charles L. Dubois, a bride of a few months, was found dead in her bed yesterday afternoon with an empty bottle of carbolic acid lying by her side. A note was on the tables. An autopsy was held and no trace of poison was found in her stomach. A wound inflicted by a blunt instrument was found on the side of her head. The coroner held an inquest and as a result the husband was arrested and held, charged with murder.

GAS EXPLOSION

Accident in Colliery at Shamokin, Pa., Kills Four Men.

Shamokin, Pa., Dec. 1.—Four men were killed, three fatally and five seriously injured by the explosion of gas in the Luke Fidler colliery. Officials are conducting an investigation, but have not yet ascertained the cause of the explosion. They are of the opinion, however, that a miner carelessly opened a safety lamp.

MINERS PERISH.

Thirty-three Killed Since the Strike Was Declared Off.

Pottsville, Pa., Dec. 1.—Thirty-three men have lost their lives in the anthracite coal mines since the strike was declared off last month. James E. Roderick, chief of state bureau of mining, ascribes the large fatality list to carelessness and the dangerous condition of the mines, due to neglect during the strike.

BOILER EXPLODES.

Three Men Are Killed in an Ohio Sawmill Accident.

Kenton, Ohio, Dec. 1.—Three men were killed in a boiler explosion in a sawmill at Algeria, near here. The men were employed at the mill and were at work when suddenly a huge boiler exploded. A portion of the building collapsed and the three men were buried a considerable distance.

Increase in Salaries.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Dec. 1.—All the telegraph operators on the Wisconsin Central railway have been granted an increase in salary amounting to $5 a month. The advance in the wage scale has already gone into effect.

Two Boys Die From Burns.

Elkhart, Ind., Dec. 1.—Arthur and Charles Lynette, eight and six years old, died yesterday from burns. The older boy attempted to start a fire with kerosene. An explosion followed and both died from the burns received.

Guilty of Murder.

Athens, Ohio, Dec. 1.—Frank Smith, aged twenty-seven, who shot and killed Perry Oxley and Charles Brown at Gloucester on Aug. 30 last, was found guilty of murder in the second degree by the jury.

13 LIVES ARE LOST

EXPLOSION IN ELECTRIC PLANT OF SWIFT PACKING ESTABLISHMENT.

CAUSE OF DISASTER NOT KNOWN

HUGE BOILERS CRASH THROUGH ROOF AND FLY HUNDREDS OF FEET.

FLAMES ATTACK THE PLANT

RESCUE OF INJURED HINDERED BY GREEDY FLAMES THAT ADD TO HORROR.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—With a deafening noise a boiler in Swift & Co.'s plant exploded shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Thirteen lives were sacrificed and scores of employes, visitors and others were injured. Huge boilers were sent through the roof of the structure and hurled hundreds of feet. Nobody within the boiler room survived to tell the story of the accident, and it may never be known what caused the explosion. A careful investigation, however, convinced the experts that the explosion was the result of carelessness on the part of an employe, whose life was lost.

Five minutes after the explosion nothing of the building but a pile of twisted iron, bricks and mortar remained.

Flames Attack Wreck.

Sheets of flame sprang from the ruins and the spectators realised that it would be impossible to save the lives of those who were caught in the wreck. The explosion was of such force that adjoining buildings were wrecked, torn and twisted like toys.

Men, women and boys at work in adjoining departments were hurled through the windows to the ground below. Many of them escaped with but slight bruises, but most of the victims were hurt to such an extent that it was necessary to remove them in hospitals. The others were taken to their homes.

While the fire was still burning, police, firemen and employes of the packing firms began digging in the ruins. Soon the mangled remains of a man was discovered. At the same time other rescuers were digging with desperation to rescue several victims who were still alive.

Bodies Torn, Bruised.

Bodies, torn, bruised or mangled, were taken from the ruins and sent to the morgues.

Many theories were advanced as to the responsibility for the disaster. One inspector declared that the explosion had been caused by cold water injected into the boiler, but a majority of the investigators held the opinion that the catastrophe had been caused by low water.

Nothing definite was learned, however, and as all the men in the boiler room were killed, it is not likely the cause of the accident will ever be known.

It is not thought the loss to Swift & Co. will amount to more than $50,000.

DRIVEN ASHORE.

Two Barges Strike a Reef and May Be a Total Loss.

Put-in-Bay, Ohio, Dec. 1.—The steam barge D. M. Frost, owned by L. B. Harker of Marine City, Mich., and the barge Mosher, owned by Capt. David Hutchinson of Port Huron, struck Starve island reef in Saturday night's gale, and it is feared that both vessels will be a total loss.

The Ross was beached on the south shore of Put-in-Bay, and the Mosher lies on the reef with her back broken. The Mosher is not insured.

FIGHT WITH ROBBERS.

Sheriff and His Deputy Come Out Second Best.

Lamar, Colo., Dec. 1.—While pursuing three men suspected of having held up and robbed the postmaster at Carlton, near here, on Friday last, Sheriff Frank M. Tate and Deputy J. H. Frisbie came suddenly upon the men early this morning. The latter opened fire on the officers, wounding Tate in the arm. Frisbie's horse was shot from under him. The three men escaped. A large band of cowboys is on the trail of the men.

SAY HE WAS MURDERED.

Coroner's Jury Fails to Penetrate Iowa Mystery.

Sioux City, Iowa, Dec. 1. — Mystery surrounds the death of William Gilliam of Sioux Falls, who, it was thought committed suicide at Rock Rapids a few weeks ago. The coroner's jury returned a verdict that Gilliam was murdered, but did not find any clue to the murderers. It is thought robbery was the motive for the crime.

Safe Blowers Get $3,000.

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 1.—Safe blowers made a successful raid upon the state bank at Stanford, a village ten miles southwest of here and $3,000 was taken.

Krupp's Defamer Arrested.

Hamburg, Dec. 1.—The German painter, Christian Allers, a resident of Capri island, who, it is alleged, was responsible for the charges brought against Herr Krupp, has been arrested at the Swiss frontier.

Good-bye to Mr. White.

Berlin, Dec. 1.—Count von Buelow, the imperial chancellor, gave a farewell dinner to Mr. Andrew D. White, the retiring American ambassador. Mr. White leaves Berlin to-day for the Mediterranean.

SHOT BY A COMPANION.

Jeweler of Lewiston, Minn., Probably Fatally Injured.

Winona, Minn., Dec. 1.—Fred Kohlepp, a jeweler of Lewiston, in this county, was accidentally shot by a comrade, Newmann of this city, a member of the Winona high school football team, while hunting in the vicinity of Utica to-day. A full charge of shot from a gun which Newman was carrying struck Kohlepp in the right shoulder. He was picked up and taken to the farm of Mr. Woodworth, where he was given attention until a physician could arrive. It was found that the wound was of a very serious nature, and he was brought to this city on an extra train to-night and taken to the hospital. He is very low, and it is thought that he cannot live twenty-four hours. His parents reside at Alma, Wis.

ATE POISONED OYSTERS.

Former St. Paul Woman Thought to Be Dying in Madison.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 1.—Mrs. Julius E. Olson, wife of the professor of Scandinavian languages and literature in the state university, is believed to be dying at the city hospital last night from the effects of poisoned oysters which she ate several weeks ago.

Dr. J. A. Jackson, assisted by other physicians, performed an operation yesterday. Soon after the operation Mrs. Olson was taken with sinking spells.

Prof. and Mrs. Olson returned two months ago from an extended trip abroad. Mrs. Olson is about thirty years old and was married five years ago. Her father is a well-known building contractor in St. Paul.

CAUGHT IN SIOUX CITY.

Gang of Men Thought to Have Operated in South Dakota.

Sioux City, Iowa, Dec. 1.—The police here succeeded yesterday in landing a gang of men who are thought to have been robbing South Dakota stores. Four men were taken into custody after they had gone into an auction store to dispose of a grip filled with articles. The men each carried revolvers. Two policemen who had shadowed them for two days arrested them without difficulty. A number of robberies have occurred in South Dakota stores recently and it is believed these men did the work.

MANGLED UNDER ENGINE.

Man Instantly Killed Near St. Croix Falls.

Taylors Falls, Minn., Dec. 1.—Ernest Williams of Shafer, Minn., was instantly killed by the upsetting of a traction engine in attempting to ascend the steep hill to the main street of the village of St. Croix Falls. He was on the engine with Joseph Nelson, and half-way up the grade the engine commenced slipping back owing to the snow and ice, and went over the embankment. Williams fell under and was terribly mangled. He was about twenty-four years old and leaves a widow.

NO HOPE FOR BANNOCKBURN.

Canadian Steamer and Crew of Twenty Given Up for Lost.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 1.—The steamer Bannockburn with her crew of twenty men is given up for lost by local marine men. The report that she was ashore near Michipicoten seems to be without foundation. The belief that the steamer has met with disaster is strengthened by the fact that the steamer Rockefeller reported passing through wreckage off Standard Rock. This is supposed to be the missing boat.

MAIL CLERK GIVEN FORTUNE.

Inherits Land in Wisconsin With Lithographic Stone Deposit.

Kenosha, Wis., Dec. 1.—C. A. Anderson, a railway mail clerk of this city, has been given a valuable piece of property near Hannibal, Mo., said to contain a quarry of lithographers' stone. He has declined an offer of $700,000 for it.

The original owner of the property bequathed it to a former governor of New York, who died before he visited his legacy. The widow offered Anderson, who is related to the family, a half interest to develop the quarries.

FIREBUG AT WINONA.

Barn, With Eight Horses and Four Mules, Is Destroyed.

Winona, Minn., Dec. 1.—An incendiary fire totally destroyed the barn of Pat Minck, drayman, causing a loss of $5,000; insurance, $1,500. Four horses were burned to death and four others and four mules were killed because of injuries. Eight tons of hay, a supply of feed, rope, blocks, tackle and harnesses were destroyed. No clue to the person who set the fire.

Electric Line a Certainty.

Black River Falls, Wis., Dec. 1.—The surveyors of the new electric railroad between here and La Crosse are now working between Melrose and this city, and will no doubt reach here this week. The survey being made follows the route last surveyed by the McHugh surveyors three years ago, until it passes Melrose, then instead of following the river it keeps due north to Disco, thence to this city. From Melrose it runs about four miles west of the old survey, and it is thought the route will be much easier to work. The projectors consider the road a certainty this time and that work may be begun on the grading early in the spring.

Buried in the Debris.

Butte, Mont., Dec. 1.—Two bodies were found in a Northern Pacific wreck which occurred at Missoula. The remains have been identified as those of Alfred Nelson and Robert Dempsey, who were stealing a ride.

Epidemic of Winter Cholera.

Racine, Wis., Dec. 1.—Winter cholera is prevalent in Racine. In the majority of cases it is a mild type, while in others very severe. In all, probably 1,500 persons have been affected, but no death has occurred.

TOOK MAN'S LIFE

CONDEMNED MURDERER TELLS OF ANOTHER GHASTLY CRIME.

HORRIBLE COLD-BLOODED MURDER

IMPLICATES A MINOT YOUNG MAN AS CHIEF PERPETRATOR.

WAYFARER IS DONE TO DEATH

SHOT IN THE HEAD AND HIS BODY THROWN INTO AN OLD WELL.

Minot, N. D., Dec. 1. — A horrible cold-blooded murder, committed over a year ago, has just been discovered by the confession of William Ross, who was to have been hung at Bottineau next Friday for the murder of an old man named Welch, near Willow City.

When the board of pardons refused to change the sentence of death to life imprisonment and the sheriff began building the scaffold Ross became penitent and made a confession, giving all the details, drawing accurate maps of one of the most cold-blooded murders imaginable. It was no trouble for Sheriff Nelson of Bottineau county and Sheriff Carroll of this county to walk to the exact spot where, according to the maps and confession, the body of the murdered man could be found. Ross' story was as follows:

About a year ago Ross and a companion named Carl Hanson of Minot were four miles north of Tagus, a blind siding about forty miles west of Minot, when they came to a deserted sod shack in which a traveler was stopping for the night. They decided to stay with him, and during the course of the evening tried to trade horses with him. The stranger was a Frenchman named Lemars, from near Willow City. He did not like the horses ridden by Hanson and Ross and wanted considerable money to trade. Ross, who was trying to make the trade with Lemars, came back to Hanson, who was in the house. Hanson said: "Oh, never mind; we haven't any money to trade with, but we don't need any. I'll fix that. We'll get his horses all right."

Riding the Ranges

After supper was eaten Hanson made some pretext to go to the barn and hid himself behind the barn door, as he knew Lemars was coming out soon. Lemars had just stepped inside the barn, with his arms full of hay, when Hanson shot him, Killing Him Instantly.

The body was thrown by Ross and Hanson into an old well a short distance from the buildings, on the bank of a small lake. The horses and wagon and goods belonging to Lemars were disposed of and the money divided between the murderers some days after the murder.

Carl Hanson was found at Tagus, where he has been living on a claim, and taken to the scene of the murder and then brought to this city and placed to the county jail.

The body was recovered, badly decomposed, and is awaiting an inquest. District court is called for Dec. 5 in this county and the trial of Hanson will take place speedily. Ross will probably be saved long enough to attend court and help implicate his alleged fellow criminal.

ROCKFORD HAS BIG BLAZE.

Business District of South Dakota Town Destroyed.

Deadwood, S. D., Dec. 1. — Fire broke out yesterday in the business part of Rockford. A high wind was blowing at the time and the fire spread with great rapidity. Flames soon enveloped the only business street of the camp, and the business section of the town was devastated. The camp had no fire department, and is far from any town which had one. The fire started from a defective flue. The loss is severe and the insurance small.

BOTH LEGS BROKEN.

Le Sueur Woman Falls and Has Odd and Serious Hurt.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 3, 1902.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The second session of the fifty-seventh congress of the United States convened at Washington on Monday and President Roosevelt sent to that body a message that is unique in the annals of our history and decidedly characteristic of its author. The document is commendable both for its brevity and lucidity.

President Roosevelt begins by remarking on the great prosperity of the nation at the present time and points out the fact that unwise legislation might readily impair that prosperity. In dealing with the trust question he says:

"Our aim is not to do away with corporations. On the contrary, these big aggregations are an inevitable development of modern industrialism, and the effort to destroy them would be futile unless accomplished in ways that would work the utmost mischief to the entire body politic. We can do nothing of good in the way of regulating and supervising these corporations until we fix clearly in our minds that we are not attacking the corporations, but endeavoring to do away with any evil in them. We are not hostile to them; we are merely determined that they shall be so handled as to subserve the public good. We draw the line against misconduct, not against wealth."

And speaking of the relations between the present tariff laws and the trusts, he says:

"The only relation of the tariff to big corporations as a whole is that the tariff makes manufactures profitable, and the tariff remedy proposed would be in effect simply to make manufactures unprofitable. To remove the tariff as a punitive measure directed against trusts would inevitably result in ruin to the weaker competitors who are struggling against them. Our aim should be not by unwise tariff changes to give foreign products the advantage over domestic products, but by proper regulation to give domestic competition a fair chance; and this end cannot be reached by any tariff changes which would affect unfavorably all domestic competitors, good and bad alike."

The message also deals with the relations of labor and capital, changes in our monetary system, the establishment of a department of commerce, the adoption of reciprocity with Cuba and also Newfoundland. The president also favors international arbitration, the establishment of the isthmian canal at Panama and a direct cable to the Philippine islands. He also favors the increasing and up-building of the navy and says:

"A good navy is not a provocative of war. It is the surest guaranty of peace."

In fact each and every question before the American people today is ably dealt with, and President Roosevelt has proven conclusively his ability to deal with the National issues in a manner that is farsighted, conservative, and conducive to the best interests of the people, while untrammelled by the powers of combined capital or machine politics.

It gives the average editor in this part of the state a queer feeling to sit down and look over his exchanges nowadays. The reason why is that nearly all the other fellows have their "scrapping" clothes on and are pouring hot shot into each other in great shape. There's McKenzie and Gordon in Crookston, Bert Seymour and Ernie Robbins in East Grand Forks, Foss of Fosston and Lanman of McIntosh, all hard at it, and then here in Red Lake county we have some "doings" between Kaufer of the Gazette and King of the Courier at Red Lake Falls, (the rest of us are reasonably peaceful in this county.)

As to the merits or de-merits of the "casus belli" in these respective cases we are not particularly anxious, but it would be positively refreshing to read a copy of any of the afore-mentioned papers that did not contain a "roast" for the other fellow.

After all, it may be just a case of raising h— and selling papers.

The liability of a county for expenses legitimately incurred in controlling a contagious disease is established by the supreme court decision in the case of the city of Mankato against Blue Earth county. The decision is a notice to all county boards that they cannot scrimp in the important matter of protecting the health of the community.—Minneapolis Times.

Gentlemen!

I desire to state that at your request I made a thorough examination of local beers sold in this market, among them yours, and have no hesitancy in saying that I found your beer to be an absolutely pure, well matured and healthful product. In fact, of the samples examined by me, yours was, particularly with reference to purity and age, above the others.

I would further say that these examinations were made by me without information to indicate the manufacturer of the respective brands until after the completion of the analyses.

Mrs. J. W. O'Brien, and Mrs. Martin O'Brien were here yesterday from Crookston and called on friends while waiting for the train to take them to Red Lake Falls for a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. P. O'Brien.

Mike McAndress sowed 2½ acres of breaking last summer to turnips and harvested one thousand bushels, which he is selling at 30c per bushel. He takes $300 off 2½ acres, or $120 per acre. Who says that Red Lake county farming don't pay?

J. M. Richards, manager of the Crookston Lumber company, was here Monday on business. He was accompanied by J. Spencer and Geo. L. Eddy. Messrs. Richards and Eddy were interested in the annual meeting of the St. Hilaire Townsite Co.

Mr. and Mrs. K. O. Gigstad, Miss Josie Gigstad, Miss T. Hughes and Miss Carrie Hoff ate Thanksgiving turkey with friends at Thief River Falls. Mr. and Mrs. P. Simonson were also with the party and took in their share of the day's pleasures.

The annual meeting of the St. Hilaire Townsite company was held here on Monday and a review of the business showed that the past year had been decidedly prosperous. H. E. Ives was re-elected president of the company and H. D. Pettibone, secretary.

A social and auction will be held at Hans Jacob Henson's about two miles north of St. Hilaire, by the ladies of the Mission Friends sewing society of Rocksbury and Sanders townships on Dec. 13th at 7 o'clock. Coffee will be served. All are cordially invited.

On last Thursday at Minneapolis occurred the wedding of Martin O'Brien, of Crookston, and Miss Lizzie Menly. The bridegroom is one of Crookston's well-known attorneys and the bride was a former resident of St. Hilaire, and later of Crookston. Both have many friends here who wish them all possible happiness in their matrimonial venture.

—"Bridget, did you call the boys?" "Indade an' Oi called thim everything Oi cud think of but they won't wake up." There's such a thing as calling too much some times, but when it comes to Tschida's Leader 5 cent cigar, it seems as though the people never would get tired of smoking them. They say they are the best that ever happened for the price. Try them.

Entered Into Rest.

On Saturday morning last Mrs. Johan Johnson died at the family home in Rocksbury after a brief illness, the cause of death being pneumonia. The funeral was held from the Swedish Lutheran church here yesterday at 2 p. m., Rev. Mellin, of Black River, officiating. Deceased was 44 years old and leaves her husband and four little sons to mourn her loss.

Mr. Johnson and family have the sincere sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

[illegible] Hurt on the Track.

H. Johnson on Saturday received a message informing him that his daughter, Mrs. Tolleckson, was lying almost at the point of death at her home near Grafton, N. D., as the result of an accident. Mrs. Johnson and son Mike left the same evening for Grafton to assist in taking care of Mrs. Tolleckson.

As to how the accident happened nothing definite could be learned. It seems that Mrs. Tolleckson was driving through Park River when she was hurt. Nobody could be found who knew how she was injured, but her team was captured running loose in town and she was found in an unconscious condition within a few feet of the railroad track. It is supposed that the rig was struck by a moving train while crossing the track.

Mike Johnson returned here yesterday and during the day a telephone message brought the information that the injured woman was to be taken to the hospital at Jamestown for treatment.

HAPPENINGS IN ST. HILAIRE AS TOLD IN THE COLUMNS OF THE SPECTATOR, NOVEMBER 1882.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 29.

The mail business of this place has increased so rapidly that a new and much larger bag has been brought into use. This is a good sign.

Frank E. Hunt, one of Red Lake Falls' solid men dropped in on us on Monday last. He has unbounded confidence in the "Second Minneapolis" but was honest enough to acknowledge that she had a very powerful rival in St. Hilaire.

The railroad war still continues and now anyone wishing to go from St. Paul to Chicago can do so for fifty cents. The freight rates have also been cut down to less than half what they were formerly. When thieves fall out honest men get their due.

Anyone desiring to go into business or settle in the Northwest would find it much to their interest to come and look over St. Hilaire at once. The cars are not running in yet and and real estate is very low considering the many advantages of the place. But just as soon as the first train is run in the price of lots will advance nearly one third and before July next will have doubled in value.

On Saturday last, W. Adams called and presented us with two monster beets which were raised on his farm about two miles south of this place. The combined weight of these giants of the beet family was twenty pounds and Mr. A. informs us that he had one which weighed 17½ pounds but had given it away before our paper was started. We are satisfied with the samples we received however, and if some of our farmers will present us with a couple of turnips the same size we will not want for vegetables this winter. Mr. Adams further informs us that out of four bushels of seed he has raised 160 bushels of potatoes besides what have been consumed for family use. If anyone can show us a better country for raising "garden sass" than that which surrounds St. Hilaire we will give him a chromo.

The ball given at King's hotel last night was a success in every sense of the word. A large crowd was present who tripped the light fantastic toe until the "wee sma' hours," when all dispersed to their several abodes well pleased with their night's entertainment.

The following from the Crookston Chronicle of Friday last is encouraging: A prominent railroad official informed us this morning that the iron for the St. Hilaire road was being hauled to Shirley and would all be on the ground inside of a week.

Charley Loeberg is no longer one of the boys. He has become a man, and a very sensible man, and as all men on becoming men put away childish things, so has Charley, and in the order of things has taken unto himself a woman to wife—a fair, sensible, lady-like woman of whom he has reason to be proud. From what we have seen and heard of the bride we congratulate Charley on his good fortune, and as we know him to be a good fellow we congratulate his young wife. The marriage took place in Crookston and the happy couple will soon return and take up their residence among us.

The following taken from the Northwestern Railway Traveler, a daily paper devoted to the interest of the traveling public, is a fair sample of what is being said about us all over the country:

St. Hilaire is situated at the foot of Red Lake river and the present terminus of the Red River and Lake of the Woods railway. This, the coming city of the northwest, is beautifully located thirty feet above high water mark, on the west bank of the river, with fine groves of oakes along "Riverside Avenue." There are several fine water powers at this point that can be cheaply utilized. It is estimated that there are 2,000,000,000 feet of pine on Red lake, which is the source of Red Lake river. This pine must come directly by St. Hilaire and her mills. A large body of hardwood timber is also near and tributary to these powers, which can be utilized for the manufacture of furniture, agricultural implements and all other industries which require hardwood lumber. A fine wheat growing country surrounds this point, and for forty miles north along Thief river well settled up, producing abundant crops of No. 1 hard. At this point we have the advantage of pure water, free from alkali. Apart from all these favorable considerations and natural advantages, the town of St. Hilaire has the certainty of becoming a railroad centre in the near future, as it is located at the easiest crossing of the Red Lake river, and in the midst of the finest water powers northwest of Minneapolis, and in the center of the vast Red River prairies and timber lands. For these reasons several railroads are pointing this way, from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Lake Park, and the Grand Trunk of Canada. And with the Red River and Lake of the Woods railroad now all graded and the cars to be running into the city shortly, and with steamers to ply between here at the foot of navigation on Red Lake river to Red lake and through the lake to the vast pine forest will make St. Hilaire the distributing point for a vast territory. St. Hilaire is having the biggest boom of any city of its age in the northwest.

Fibroid Tumors Cured.

A distressing case of Fibroid Tumor, which baffled the skill of Boston doctors. Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, Mass., in the following letter tells how she was cured, after everything else failed, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Hayes' First Letter Appealing to Mrs. Pinkham for Help:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been under Boston doctors' treatment for a long time without any relief. They tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing-down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor given in your little book accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice."—(Signed) MRS. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Note the result of Mrs. Pinkham's advice—although she advised Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, to take her medicine—which she knew would help her—her letter contained a mass of additional instructions as to treatment, all of which helped to bring about the happy result.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Sometime ago I wrote to you describing my symptoms and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound entirely expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or female trouble of any kind to give it a faithful trial."—(Signed) MRS. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Mountains of gold could not purchase such testimony—or take the place of the health and happiness which Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought to Mrs. Hayes.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women; all ovarian troubles; tumors; inflammations; ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb; backache; irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation. Surely the volume and character of the testimonial letters we are daily printing in the newspapers can leave no room for doubt.

Mrs. Hayes at her above address will gladly answer any letters which sick women may write for fuller information about her illness. Her gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so genuine and heartfelt that she thinks no trouble is too great for her to take in return for her health and happiness.

Truly is it said that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing so many women, and no other medicine; don't forget this when some druggist wants to sell you something else.

Mendicant's Poetical Appeal.

A few additions to the list of mendicant's poetical appeals which the Evening Post printed some time ago, have been furnished by the Charity Organization society. The following is probably one of the most lugubrious bits of poetry extant:

Do you ever think as the Black Hearse passes by
That it won't be long until you and I
Goes riding out in a big Plumed Hack
And never remember of coming back?

Do you ever think as you strive for Gold
That a Dead Man's hand a Dollar can't hold?
You may pinch and tuck, and strive to save,
But you lose it all when you reach the ——.
Price—— ——?

As to the Manner of His Going.

"And must I walk the planks?" faltered the captive.

"Certainly," replied the smart Corsair, with a frown. "You don't suppose I'm going to supply you with an automobile, do you?"

Lost Twenty Years.

Kokomo, Ind., Dec. 1st.—Twenty years is a long time to take out of one person's life but that was the fate of Anna M. Willis of this place. For twenty years she suffered all the torments of Kidney Trouble, and anyone in that state is not living, but simply existing.

Now Anna M. Willis is fully recovered. She appreciates the pleasure of living again and never forgets to tell you how it is all because a friend advised her to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

In speaking of her wonderful cure she says: For twenty years I suffered from Kidney Trouble. The disease was terrible in itself and it was all the more terrible because I could get no relief and my case seemed hopeless.

"But one day I got six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and by the time I had taken five boxes my pains had left me and I was a free woman."

No Reason to Kick.

"See here," cried the victim, who had been dozing, "why have you cut my hair so short?"

"Why," replied the new barber, "I thought you'd like to get your money's worth. Short or long, it's all the same price."—Philadelphia Press.

The State Day by Day. News of Interest.

FIGURES ON STATE ELECTION.

Vote in All the Counties Has Been Canvassed.

To Samuel G. Iverson, Republican candidate for auditor at the election of Nov. 4, has fallen the honor of having received the largest plurality, 77,051, of any candidate on his ticket. Wallace B. Douglas, Republican candidate for attorney general, received the largest vote, 164,695, of any state candidate, but his majority is some thousands less than Mr. Iverson's plurality, because Mr. Larrabee of Hennepin ran much better than Mr. Leick of Steele.

The county auditors having canvassed the vote in the eighty-two counties of the state, it is possible for the first time to give the exact size of the sweep which the Republicans made of the state. The whole number of votes cast for governor was 273,112, divided as follows:

Samuel R. Van Sant, R.	157,832
Leonard A. Rosing, D.	99,375
Thomas J. Meighen, People's	5,374
Charles Scanlon, Prohib.	5,735
Jay E. Nash, no party designation	2,393
Thomas Van Lear, Soc.-Lab.	2,425

Van Sant's plurality, 58,457.

The proposition to increase the gross earnings tax of railroad companies from 3 to 4 per cent was defeated by 6,609 votes; that is to say, that it received that number of ballots less than half the whole number of votes cast at the election. The whole number of votes cast was 275,124, and the vote favorable to the 4 per cent proposition was 131,453.

The vote on state officers below governor was: Lieutenant governor, Ray W. Jones, Rep., 152,405; Robert A. Smith, Dem., 91,552; Jones' plurality, 60,843. Secretary of state, Peter E. Hanson, Rep., 158,907; Spurgeon Odell, Dem., 83,810; Hanson's plurality, 75,097. State auditor, Samuel G. Iverson, Rep., 162,693; A. G. Leick, Dem., 85,642; Iverson's plurality, 77,051. State treasurer, Julius H. Block, Rep., 158,354; Halvor L. Shirley, Dem., 83,589; Block's plurality, 74,755. Attorney general, Wallace B. Douglas, Rep., 154,695; Frank D. Larrabee, Dem., 91,083; Douglas' plurality, 73,612. Clerk of the supreme court, C. A. Pidgeon, Rep., 155,550; George P. Jones, Dem., 89,453; Pidgeon's plurality, 57,097. Railroad and warehouse commissioners, Charles F. Staples, Rep., 155,010; J. M. Bowler, Dem., 85,501; Staples' plurality, 69,509.

Vote on Congressmen.

First District — James A. Tawney, Rep., 19,579; Patrick McGovern, Dem., 12,355; Tawney's majority, 7,223.

Second District — James T. McCleary, Rep., 16,095; Charles N. Andrews, Dem., 9,314; McCleary's majority, 6,781.

Third District — Charles R. Davis, Rep., 16,600; C. C. Kolars, Dem., 11,068; Charles H. Blood, Pro., 611; Davis' plurality, 5,532.

Fourth District — Fred C. Stevens, Rep., 17,404; F. H. Oleske, Dem., 11,412; Stevens' majority, 5,992.

Fifth District—Loren Fletcher, Rep., 17,209; John Lind, Dem., 19,263; Spencer M. Holman, Soc., 215; Nelson, Peop., 76; Haggard, Pro., 350; Hanson, Soc.-Labor, 421; Lind's plurality, 2,054.

Sixth District—C. B. Buckman, Rep., 17,879; J. A. Du Bois, Dem., 13,676; Buckman's majority, 4,203.

Seventh District — Andrew J. Volstad, Rep., 20,511; August O. Forsburg, Peop., 5,415; Volstad's majority, 15,096.

Eighth District — J. Adam Bede, Rep., 14,496; Marcus L. Fay, Dem., 8,892; V. C. Koneczny, Soc.-Lab., 496; Bede's plurality, 5,604.

Ninth District—Halvor Steenerson, Rep., 18,035; Alexander McKinnon, Dem., 4,559; Nels T. Moen, Peo., 6,771; Steenerson's plurality, 11,265.

The following table is the vote by counties on governor and on the gross earnings' tax amendment:

RUSHING THE ORE.

Last Days of the Shipping Season Are Being Made to Count.

The utmost effort is being made by railways at Duluth to hustle forward ore before the close of navigation. This is to be expected, so far as iron ore is concerned, most any day, as after it is so cold that ore stiffens in cars and dock pockets it is with the greatest difficulty that it can be moved at all. Up to date there has not been a cold day this fall and the regular crews have no trouble in handling docks.

Between 700 and 800 acres of land lying on the formation of the Vermilion range, east from Ely, and most of it close to the famous "Section 30" has been optioned to the Mahoning Ore and Steel company, an independent mining company, half of whose stock is held by the Cambria Steel company. Several diamond drills are to be put on the lands at once and it is the intention of the company to sink very deep in its search for ore.

The Zenith Furnace company, which is operating one blast furnace at Duluth and may have more later, is exploring for ore on the western end of the Mesaba range and will have a number of drills at work this winter. The furnace is so situated that it can use an ore of a lower grade that can not be shipped East with profit, and it can get this low grade ore at a lower price per unit, so offsetting some of the advantage of location in the Pittsburg region.

The Millie Iron Ore company, which has had for many years a small mine in the foot wall of the great Chapin in Michigan, is reorganizing and will increase its capital stock. It will make a much larger output another year. Millie ore is of very fine grade and there is a large tonnage of a low grade silicious ore, which is now coming to be considered valuable. The Millie is owned in New York. It pays a royalty to the Chapin Iron company for its output and mines a portion of the Chapin deposit that the latter cannot well reach.

Mesaba range mines of the Republic Iron and Steel company will produce this year about 225,000 tons of ore, a very small proportion for the mines and for the company. The same company has about 150,000 tons production on the Marquette range. It will largely increase on the Mesaba another year, when it will have an open pit mine working from which it can produce ore very cheaply.

W. P. Snyder & Co. of Pittsburg, who have been working near Biwabik, on the Mesaba range, have suspended operations there and have moved their outfits to the west end of the range in Itasca county, where they have taken an option for lease on the Arcturus mine. They will sink shafts and otherwise test this discarded ore body, which may turn out to have a good deposit.

Deposits of asbestos near the Marquette range are being opened and with great promise of success. It is considered certain by mining men that one of the valuable asbestine mines of the United States will be found there.

The Breitung Hematite Iron company is sinking a three-compartment shaft near Negaunee on the Marquette range and is hoisting some good ore. It is intended that a large mine shall be opened there this winter. This is on land that was claimed by the Cleveland Cliffs company and was explored by it a year or so ago, with what success nobody knows, as results were kept secret.

STATE PINE SALE.

$10.50 Per 1,000 Feet Amazes All Experienced Lumbermen.

A recent sale of state pine in the Duluth district at $10.50 per 1,000 feet was a record-breaker. Lumbermen cannot understand how any buyer can get out at that price.

Lumber shipments continue steadily, though in smaller volume. There has been no weather to stop mills or vessel traffic. Another week or two will see the latter over for the year.

A sale of a large lot of Norway pine to be cut next summer has been made by Swallow & Hopkins, from their Fall Lake mill. It amounts to about 15,000,000 feet, and is the entire Norway cut of the season. They will cut about as much white pine, which has not been sold. A few other sales have been made of this fall's cut and of stock to be put in, the latter mostly in the form of agreements to sell at the going price later. But the market is quiet, and there is little to report just now.

The harbor mills will all be idle with the closing down of Merrill & Ring. There is some talk of winter sawing, and some contracts have been closed. More mill owners are figuring but have not come to any decision. Winter sawing rates are as they have been, $250 per 1,000. The cost of labor is constantly on the rise.

Winter logging, which should be well under way now, is seriously impeded by the weather. The swamps are very full of water and are not frozen hard enough to bear a man.

The Duluth & Northern Minnesota road has ceased hauling in logs for a few days, while its tracks are being balasted. It has recently purchased seventy-five new logging cars.

A WONDERFUL WORK.

Case No. 12,977—David M. Bye, P. O. Address, Box 227, Midland, Mich., says: "Three months I was almost incapacitated from labor; could not sleep at night; had to walk the floor, owing to terrible pain in the hips, in the small of the back, in my instep and ankle of the right leg.

"I was treated for sciatic rheumatism in the hospital, but received no benefit. One month ago I returned home and was given a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. To-day residents of the city can bear witness in the fact that I am able to work, and can also walk to my work without the aid of a walking stick or crutch.

"In speaking of the immediate effect of Doan's Kidney Pills, I did not find them to deaden the pain, but quickly and surely to eradicate the cause of it.

"I am of the opinion that Doan's Kidney Pills are the best remedy for kidney ailments that can be procured.

"I was especially careful in my diet, in order to give the treatment fair play.

"In conclusion, I shall be pleased, at any time, to answer any inquiries regarding my case, from anyone desirous of obtaining it."

PEANUT CURE INSOMNIA.

Man Who Tried the Experiment Says It Succeeds All Right.

Peanuts as a cure for consumption are widely known and believed in. Now a Roxborough man comes forward with a peanut cure for insomnia. He says of it: "I had been a poor sleeper for five years. Violent exercise, drugs and other remedies had given me no relief. Finally, at the suggestion of a vegetarian, I tried the peanut. I put beside my bed a bag of peanuts newly roasted, shelled and salted, and on my first attack of insomnia I ate fifty, masticating them very thoroughly—giving, in fact, twenty-five chews in each nut. While taking this large dose, I felt a gradual drowsiness stealing over me, and as soon as the dose was ended I fell asleep. Since that time I have always kept fresh peanuts by me at night. They have never failed.—Philadelphia Record.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

COUNTRY STILL CONTINUES IN A PERIOD OF UNBOUNDED PROSPERITY.

REGULATION OF THE TRUSTS

PRESIDENT URGES CONGRESS TO GIVE THE SUBJECT EARNEST ATTENTION.

TARIFF MUST NOT BE DISTURBED

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION — HARMONY BETWEEN CAPITAL AND LABOR.

The following is a synopsis of the president's message:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

We still continue in a period of unbounded prosperity. This prosperity is not the creature of law, but undoubtedly the laws under which we work have been instrumental in creating the conditions which made it possible, and by unwise legislation it would be easy enough to destroy it. There will undoubtedly be periods of depression. The wave will recede; but the tide will advance. This nation is seated on a continent flanked by two great oceans. It is composed of men the descendants of pioneers, or, in a sense, pioneers themselves; of men winnowed out from among the nations of the Old World by the energy, boldness and love of adventure found in their own eager hearts. Such a nation, so placed, will surely wrest success from fortune.

As a people we have played a large part in the world, and we are bent upon making our future even larger than the past. In particular, the events of the last four years have definitely decided that, for woe or for weal, our place must be great among the nations. We may either fail greatly or succeed greatly; but we cannot avoid the endeavor from which either great failure or great success must come. Even if we would, we cannot play a small part. If we should try, all that would follow would be that we should play a large part ignobly and shamefully.

Of course, when the conditions have favored the growth of so much that was good, they have also favored somewhat the growth of what was evil. It is eminently necessary that we should endeavor to cut out this evil, but let us keep a due sense of proportion; let us not in fixing our gaze upon the lesser evil forget the greater good. The evils are real and some of them menacing, but they are the outgrowth, not of misery or decadence, but of prosperity—of the progress of our gigantic industrial development. This industrial development must not be checked, but side by side with it should go such progressive regulation as will diminish the evils. We should fail in our duty if we did not try to remedy the evils, but we shall succeed only if we proceed patiently, with practical common sense as well as resolution, separating the good from the bad and holding on to the former while endeavoring to get rid of the latter.

Public Regulation of Trusts.

In my message to the present congress at its first session I discussed at length the question of the regulation of those big corporations commonly doing an interstate business, often with some tendency to monopoly, which are popularly known as trusts. The experience of the past year has emphasized, in my opinion, the desirability of the steps I then proposed. A fundamental requisite of social efficiency is a high standard of individual energy and excellence; but this is in no wise inconsistent with power to act in combination for aims which cannot so well be achieved by the individual acting alone. A fundamental basis of civilization is the inviolability of property; but this is in no wise inconsistent with the right of society to regulate the exercise of the artificial powers which it confers upon the owners of property, under the name of corporate franchises, in such a way as to prevent the misuse of these powers.

Corporations, and especially combinations of corporations, should be managed under public regulation. Experience has shown that under our system of government the necessary supervision cannot be obtained by state action. It must therefore be achieved by national action. Our aim is not to do away with corporations; on the contrary, these big aggregations are an inevitable development of modern industrialism, and the effort to destroy them would be futile unless accomplished in ways that would work the utmost mischief to the entire body politic. We can do nothing of good in the way of regulating and supervising these corporations until we fix clearly in our minds that we are not attacking the corporations, but endeavoring to do away with any evil in them. We are not hostile to them; we are merely determined that they shall be so handled as to subserve the public good. We draw the line against misconduct, not against wealth. The capitalist who, alone or in conjunction with his fellows, performs some great industrial feat by which he wins money is a welldoer, not a wrongdoer, provided only he works in proper and legitimate lines. We wish to favor such a man when he does well. We wish to supervise and control his actions only to prevent him from doing ill. Publicity can do no harm to the honest corporation, and we need not be overtender about sparing the dishonest corporation.

In curbing and regulating the combinations of capital which are or may become injurious to the public we must be careful not to stop the great enterprises which have legitimately reduced the cost of production, not to abandon the place which our country has won in the leadership of the international industrial world, not to strike down wealth with the result of closing factories and mines, of turning the wage-worker idle in the streets and leaving the farmer without a market for what he grows. Insistence upon the impossible means delay in achieving the possible, exactly as, on the other hand, the stubborn defense alike of what is good and what is bad in the existing system, the resolute effort to obstruct any attempt at betterment, betrays blindness to the historic truth that wise evolution is the sure safeguard against revolution.

No more important subject can come before the congress than this of the regulation of interstate business. This country can not afford to sit supine on the plea that under our peculiar system of government we are helpless in the presence of the new conditions, and unable to grapple with them. The power of the congress to regulate interstate commerce is an absolute and unqualified grant, and without limitations other than those prescribed by the Constitution. The congress has constitutional authority to make all laws necessary and proper for executing this power, and I am satisfied that this power has not been exhausted by any legislation now on the statute books. It is evident, therefore, that evils restrictive of commercial freedom and entailing restraint upon national commerce fall within the regulative power of the congress, and that a wise and reasonable law would be a necessary and proper exercise of congressional authority to the end that such evils should be eradicated.

I believe that monopolies, unjust discriminations, which prevent or cripple competition, fraudulent overcapitalization and other evils in trust organizations and practices which injuriously affect interstate trade can be prevented under the power of the congress to "regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several states" through regulations and requirements operating directly upon such commerce, the instrumentalities thereof, and those engaged therein.

I earnestly recommend this subject to the consideration of the congress with a view to the passage of a law reasonable in its provisions and effective in its operations, upon which the questions can be finally adjudicated that now raise doubts as to the necessity of constitutional amendment. If it prove impossible to accomplish the purposes above set forth by such a law, then, assuredly, we should not shrink from amending the Constitution so as to secure beyond peradventure the power sought.

The congress has not heretofore made any appropriation for the better enforcement of the anti-trust law as it now stands. Very much has been done by the department of justice in securing the enforcement of this law, but much more could be done if congress would make a special appropriation for this purpose, to be expended under the direction of the attorney general.

Tariff Must Not Be Disturbed.

One proposition advocated has been the reduction of the tariff as a means of reaching the evils of the trusts which fall within the category I have described. Not merely would this be wholly ineffective, but the diversion of our efforts in such a direction would mean the abandonment of all intelligent attempts to do away with these evils. Many of the largest corporations, many of those which should certainly be included in any proper scheme of regulation, would not be affected in the slightest degree by a change in the tariff, save as such change interfered with the general prosperity of the country. The only relation of the tariff to big corporations as a whole is that the tariff makes manufactures profitable, and the tariff remedy proposed would be in effect simply to make manufactures unprofitable. To remove the tariff as a punitive measure directed against trusts would inevitably result in ruin to the weaker competitors who are struggling against them. Our aim should be not by unwise tariff changes to give foreign products the advantage over domestic products, but by proper regulation to give domestic competition a fair chance; and this end cannot be reached by any tariff changes which would affect unfavorably all domestic competitors, good and bad alike. The question of regulation of the trusts stands apart from the question of tariff revision.

Wherever the tariff conditions are such that a needed change cannot with advantage be made by the application of the reciprocity idea, then it can be made outright by a lowering of duties on a given product. If possible, such change should be made only after the fullest consideration by practical experts, who should approach the subject from a business standpoint, having in view both the particular interests affected and the commercial well-being of the people as a whole. The machinery for providing such careful investigation can readily be supplied. The executive department has already at its disposal methods of collecting facts and figures; and if the congress desires additional consideration to that which will be given the subject by its own committees, then a commission of business experts can be appointed whose duty it should be to recommend action by the congress after a deliberate and scientific examination of the various schedules as they are affected by the changed and changing conditions. The unhurried and unbiased report of this commission would show what changes should be made in the various schedules, and how far these changes could go without also changing the great prosperity which this country is now enjoying, or unsetting its fixed economic policy.

The cases in which the tariff can produce a monopoly are so few as to constitute an inconsiderable factor in the question; but of course if in any case it be found that a given rate of duty does promote a monopoly which works ill, no protectionist would object to such reduction of the duty as would equalize competition.

In my judgment, the tariff on anthracite coal should be removed, and anthracite put actually, where it now is nominally, on the free list. This would have no effect at all save in crises; but in crises it might be of service to the people.

Financial Legislation Desirable.

Interest rates are a potent factor in business activity, and in order that these rates may be equalized to meet the varying needs of the seasons and of widely separated communities, and to prevent the recurrence of financial stringencies which injuriously affect legitimate business, it is necessary that there should be an element of elasticity in our monetary system. Banks are the natural servants of commerce, and upon them should be placed, as far as practicable, the burden of furnishing and maintaining a circulation adequate to supply the needs of our diversified industries and of our domestic and foreign commerce; and the issue of this should be so regulated that a sufficient supply should be always available for the business interests of the country.

It would be unwise and unnecessary at this time to attempt to reconstruct our financial system, which has been the growth of a century; but some additional legislation is, I think, desirable. The mere outline of any plan sufficiently comprehensive to meet these requirements would transgress the appropriate limits of this communication. It is suggested, however, that all future legislation on the subject should be with the view of encouraging the use of such instrumentalities as will automatically supply every legitimate demand of productive industries and of commerce, not only in the kinds of money interchangeable, and, at the will of the holder, convertible into the established gold standard.

Harmony Between Capital and Labor.

How to secure fair treatment alike for labor and for capital, how to hold in check the unscrupulous man, whether employer or employe, without weakening individual initiative, without hampering and cramping the industrial development of the country, is a problem fraught with great difficulties and one which it is of the highest importance to solve on lines of sanity and far-sighted common sense, as well as of devotion to the right. This is an era of federation and combination. Exactly as business men find they must often work through corporations, and as it is a constant tendency of these corporations to grow larger, so it is often necessary for laboring men to work in federations, and these have become important factors of modern industrial life.

Few people deserve better of the country than those representatives both of capital and labor—and there are many such—who work continually to bring about a good understanding of this kind, based upon wisdom and upon broad and kindly sympathy between employers and employed. Above all, we need to remember that any kind of class animosity in the political world is, if possible, even more wicked, even more destructive to national welfare, than sectional, race or religious animosity. We can get good government only upon condition that we keep true to the principles upon which this nation was founded, and judge each man not as a part of a class, but upon his individual merits. All that we have a right to ask of any man, rich or poor, whatever his creed, his occupation, his birthplace, or his residence, is that he shall act well and honorably by his neighbor and by his country. We are neither for the rich man as such nor for the poor man as such; we are for the upright man, rich or poor. So far as the constitutional powers of the national government touch these matters of general and vital moment to the nation, they should be exercised in conformity with the principles above set forth.

New Seat in the Cabinet Recommended.

It is earnestly hoped that a secretary of commerce may be created, with a seat in the cabinet. The rapid multiplication of questions affecting labor and capital, the growth and complexity of the organizations through which both labor and capital now find expression, the steady tendency toward the employment of capital in huge corporations, and the wonderful strides of this country toward leadership in the international business world justify an urgent demand for the creation of such a position. Substantially all the leading commercial bodies in this country have united in requesting its creation. It is desirable that some such measure as that which has already passed the senate be enacted into law. The creation of such a department would in itself be an advance toward dealing with and exercising supervision over the whole subject of the great corporations doing an interstate business; and with this end in view the congress should endow this department with large powers, which could be increased as experience might show the need.

Reciprocal Trade Relations Favored.

I hope soon to submit to the senate a reciprocity treaty with Cuba. On May 20 last the United States kept its promise to the island by formally vacating Cuban soil and turning Cuba over to those whom her own people had chosen as the first officials of the new republic.

Cuba lies at our doors, and whatever affects her for good or for ill affects us also. So much have our people felt this that in the Platt amendment we definitely took the ground that Cuba must hereafter have closer political relations with us than with any other power. Thus in a sense Cuba has become a part of our international political system. This makes it necessary that in return she should be given some of the benefits of becoming part of our economic system. It is, from our own standpoint, a short-sighted and mischievous policy to fail to recognize this need. Moreover, it is unworthy of a mighty and generous nation, itself the greatest and most successful republic in history, to refuse to stretch out a helping hand to a young and weak sister republic just entering upon its career of independence. We should always fearlessly insist upon our rights in the face of the strong, and we should with ungrudging hand do our generous duty by the weak. I urge the adoption of reciprocity with Cuba not only because it is eminently for our own interests to control the Cuban market and by every means to foster our supremacy in the tropical lands and waters south of us, but also because we, of the giant republic of the north, should make all our sister nations of the American continent feel that whenever they will permit it we desire to show ourselves disinterestedly and effectively their friend.

The congress has wisely provided that we shall build at once an isthmian canal, if possible at Panama. The attorney general reports that we can undoubtedly acquire good title from the French Panama Canal company. Negotiations are now pending with Colombia to secure her assent to our building the canal. This canal will be one of the greatest engineering feats of the twentieth century; a greater engineering feat than has yet been accomplished during the history of mankind. The work should be carried out as a continuing policy without regard to change of administration; and it should be begun under circumstances which will make it a matter of pride for all administrations to continue the policy.

Of Porto Rico it is only necessary to say that the prosperity of the island and the wisdom with which it has been governed have been such as to make it serve as an example of all that is best in insular administration.

Peace And Happiness in Philippines.

On July 4 last, on the one hundred and twenty-sixth anniversary of the declaration of independence, peace and amnesty were promulgated in the Philippine islands. Some trouble has since from time to time threatened with the Mohammedan Moros, but with the late insurrectionary Filipinos the war has entirely ceased.

Taking the work of the army and the civil authorities together, it may be questioned whether anywhere else in modern times the world has seen a better example of real constructive statesmanship than our people have given in the Philippine islands. High praise should also be given those Filipinos, in the aggregate very numerous, who have accepted the new conditions and joined with our representatives to work with hearty good will for the welfare of the islands.

An Efficient Navy Insures Peace.

For the first time in our history naval maneuvers on a large scale are being held under the immediate command of the admiral of the navy. Constantly increasing attention is being paid to the gunnery of the navy, but it is yet far from what it should be. I earnestly urge that the increase asked for by the secretary of the navy in the appropriation for improving the marksmanship be granted. In battle the only shots that count are the shots that hit. It is necessary to provide ample funds for practice with the great guns in time of peace. These funds must provide not only for the purchase of projectiles, but for allowances for prizes to encourage the gun crews, and especially the gun pointers, and for perfecting an intelligent system under which alone it is possible to get good practice.

There should be no halt in the work of building up the navy, providing every year additional fighting craft. We are a very rich country, vast in extent of territory and great in population; a country, moreover, which has an army diminutive indeed when compared with that of any other first-class power. We have deliberately made our own certain foreign policies which demand the possession of a first-class navy. The isthmian canal will greatly increase the efficiency of our navy if the navy is of sufficient size; but if we have an inadequate navy, then the building of the canal would be merely giving a hostage to any power of superior strength. The Monroe doctrine should be treated as the cardinal feature of American foreign policy; but it would be worse than idle to assert it unless we intended to back it up, and it can be backed up only by a thoroughly good navy. A good navy is not a provocative of war. It is the surest guaranty of peace.

Rural free delivery is no longer in the experimental stage; it has become a fixed policy. The results following its introduction have fully justified the congress in the large appropriations made for its establishment and extension. The average yearly increase in postoffice receipts in the rural districts of the country is about 2 per cent. We are now able, by actual results, to show that where rural free delivery has been established to such an extent as to enable us to make comparisons the yearly increase has been upward of 10 per cent.

It is to be hoped that the congress will make liberal appropriations for the continuance of the service already established and for its further extension.

Irrigation and Protection of Forests.

Few subjects of more importance have been taken up by the congress in recent years than the inauguration of the system of nationally-aided irrigation for the arid regions of the Far West. A good beginning therein has been made. Now that this policy of national irrigation has been adopted, the need of thorough and scientific forest protection will grow more rapidly than ever throughout the public land states.

In view of the capital importance of these matters, I commend them to the earnest consideration of the congress, and if the congress finds difficulty in dealing with them from lack of thorough knowledge of the subject, I recommend that provision be made for a commission of experts specially to investigate and report upon the complicated questions involved.

Solution of the Indian Problem.

In dealing with the Indians our aim should be their ultimate absorption into the body of our people. But in many cases this absorption must and should be very slow. In portions of the Indian Territory the mixture of blood has gone on at the same time with progress in wealth and education, so that there are plenty of men with varying degrees of purity of Indian blood who are absolutely indistinguishable in point of social, political, and economic ability from their white associates. There are other tribes which have as yet made no perceptible advance toward such equality. To try to force such tribes too fast is to prevent their going forward at all. Moreover, the tribes live under widely different conditions. Where a tribe has made considerable advance and lives on fertile farming soil it is possible to allot the members lands in severalty much as is the case with white settlers. There are other tribes where such a course is not desirable. On the arid prairie lands the effort should be to induce the Indians to lead pastoral rather than agricultural lives, and to permit them to settle in villages rather than to force them into isolation.

The large Indian schools situated remote from any Indian reservation do a special and peculiar work of great importance. But, excellent though these are, an immense amount of additional work must be done on the reservations themselves among the old, and above all among the young, Indians. The first and most important step toward the absorption of the Indian is to teach him to earn his living; yet it is not necessarily to be assumed that in each community all Indians must become either tillers of the soil or stock raisers. Their industries may properly be diversified, and those who show special desire or adaptability for industrial or even commercial pursuits should be encouraged so far as practicable to follow out each his own bent.

Every effort should be made to develop the Indian along the lines of natural aptitude, and to encourage the existing native industries peculiar to certain tribes, such as the various kinds of basket weaving, canoe building, smith work and blanket work. Above all, the Indian boys and girls should be given confident command of colloquial English, and should ordinarily be prepared for a vigorous struggle with the conditions under which their people live, rather than for immediate absorption into some more highly developed community.

The reports of the several executive departments are submitted to the congress with this communication.

White House, December, 1902.

Congress.

Resume of the Week's Proceedings.

Washington, Dec. 2. — The opening of the Fifty-seventh congress in the house was as usual a spectacular event. The galleries of the freshly decorated hall were packed to the doors with people prominent in society and politics. The members were good natured and jovial and there was no outcropping of partisan feeling. Speaker Henderson received a cordial reception as he assumed the gavel, but beyond this there was no demonstration. The proceedings were purely perfunctory. A prayer, the calling of the roll, the swearing in of members elected to fill vacancies created by death or resignation during the recess, the adoption of customary resolutions to appoint a committee to wait upon the president to inform him and the senate that the house was open for business and to fix the hour of meeting summarizes what was done. Then the death of the late representative Charles W. Russell of Connecticut, which occurred in the early fall was announced by his successor, Mr. Brandegee, the usual resolution of regret was adopted and the house, as a further mark of respect, adjourned until to-day, when the president's message will be received. The session lasted less than an hour.

In the Senate.

The senate was in session twelve minutes yesterday, the first day of the session, and adjourned until today out of respect to the memory of the late Senator James McMillan, who died during the recess. Many of the senators were early on the floor and kept busy exchanging greetings with old acquaintances.

The galleries were packed to suffocation and hundreds stood outside the corridors, anxious to gain admission. Among the interested spectators were several members of the diplomatic corps. Senor Quesada, the Cuban minister, occupied a conspicuous place and exhibited much interest in the proceedings. The absence of Rev. Dr. Milburn, the blind chaplain, was particularly noticed. His place yesterday was taken by Rev. E. J. Prettyman of Washington. No business was transacted beyond passing the customary resolutions that the senate was ready to proceed to business and fixing the hour of convening the sessions at 12 o'clock.

In the Senate.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Senator Cullom yesterday introduced a bill to amend the Sherman anti-trust law. It prohibits interstate commerce in articles produced by trusts, the penalty for violations being a fine of from $500 to $5,000.

There were two events of interest in the senate yesterday, the swearing in of Gen. Russell A. Alger as senator from Michigan and the presentation of the president's annual message. Before the senate convened Mr. Alger appeared on the floor and was heartily congratulated by his new colleagues. Immediately after the reading of the journal, Mr. Burrows presented the credentials of Mr. Alger, and asked that the oath of office be administered to him. The new senator then was escorted to the desk of the president pro tempore, Mr. Frye, by Mr. Burrows, where the oath was administered. Mr. Alger's seat is on the extreme right of the Democratic side of the chamber and was completely hidden from view by huge floral pieces. It was necessary to remove them before he could sit down.

Messrs. Platt (Conn.) and Jones (Ark.), the committee appointed by the senate to join a similar committee from the house to notify the president that congress had assembled, reported that they had performed their duty, whereupon Mr. Barnes, assistant secretary to the president, delivered the president's message to congress. Printed copies had been furnished each senator and they closely followed the reading of the document.

A concurrent resolution offered by Mr. Morgan (Ala.) providing for the printing of a compilation of bills relating to the trusts was referred to the committee on printing.

The senate then, at 1:27 p. m., on motion of Mr. Lodge, went into executive session.

The doors of the senate opened at 1:35. Mr. Frye laid before the senate a number of annual reports of government officials and then had read the resignation of Rev. W. H. Milburn, the blind chaplain of the senate.

In the House.

The house met at noon. Gordon Russell, who was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of R. C. Degraffenreid of Texas, and Edward Swan, filling the vacancy of Amos J. Cummings of New York, appeared at the bar and took the oath.

The speaker announced the following committee appointments:

Mr. Hill (Conn.) on ways and means; Mr. Palmer (Pa.) on judiciary; Mr. Fowler (N. J.) director of the Columbian Institution for the deaf and dumb, and Mr. Jenkins (Wis.) as consulting trustee of the reform school of the District of Columbia.

The house then took a recess until 12:30 to await the arrival of the president's message.

The reading of the message was listened to attentively, especially those portions relating to the regulation of trusts, the tariff, and the isthmian canal bill. There was no demonstration until the reading was concluded, when there was a generous outburst of applause on the Republican side.

The president's message was referred to the committee of the whole on the state of the Union without objection.

Mr. Cannon moved to consider today the bill to defray the expenses of the anthracite coal strike commission. It was so ordered.

The house, at 1:40 p. m., adjourned.

In the Senate.

Washington, Dec. 4. — The senate yesterday began the real work of disposing of the business before it, although the session lasted only an hour and a half. When an adjournment was taken at 1:30 o'clock out of respect to the memory of Representatives De Graffenreid and Shephard of Texas the bill to amend the immigration laws was under discussion. Early in the day Mr. Nelson, from the committee on territories, reported a substitute for the omnibus statehood bill, with the recommendation that Oklahoma and Indian Territory be admitted into the Union as one state under the name of Oklahoma. When the immigration bill was brought up Mr. Quay precipitated a discussion over the status of the statehood bill which was terminated by a ruling by the chair, that beginning Dec. 10 it would be the unfinished business and that at the closing hour each day it would be laid before the senate unless displaced by a vote of that body.

In the House.

The house yesterday passed the bill to appropriate $50,000 to defray the expenses of the anthracite coal strike commission and then adjourned until Friday, when the London dock charges bill will be considered. There were two hours of discussion on the commission bill, during which the president's course in creating the commission was highly commended, except by Mr. Burton, a Missouri Democrat, who contended that the commission was created without authority of law or constitution. There was some criticism of the feature of the bill allowing double salaries to members of the commission now in government employ, and also because the bill left the amount of the compensation of the members to the president. But all amendments were voted down. The bill was passed without division.

In the Senate.

Washington, Dec. 6. — The senate was in session yesterday for one hour and five minutes, most of which time was spent behind closed doors. After the reception of the number of bills and petitions and the adoption of a concurrent resolution calling on the president for the papers in the Pius fund case, recently arbitrated before The Hague tribunal, Mr. Beveridge had read the resolutions adopted by the delegates to the Oklahoma nonpartisan convention favoring the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory as one state and opposing the house omnibus statehood bill. The senate then went into executive session and at 1:50 adjourned until Monday.

LUMP SUM FOR CANAL.

Ten Million Dollars for Perpetual Lease.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The canal concession will be secured from Colombia and it will be for a lump sum without annual rentals. This is the demand of the United States, and the Colombian government is inclined to grant it, if the payment is increased from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000. The perpetual lease of territory will also be granted. The report from Bogota that a decree has been issued calling a congress to meet in March is not detrimental to the consummation of the negotiations for the Panama canal.

The president can and will wait for the Colombian congress to ratify the treaty; then he sends it to the senate. But he can call the senate in extra session to ratify, without calling congress in extra session. He has full power to make a treaty with the consent of the senate, and when they have acted on the treaty the money for the payment of the $40,000,000 to the Panama Canal company and for a concession from Colombia will be available. He can begin the construction of the canal without further legislation by congress.

The prospect of securing the concession from Colombia for a lump sum is gratifying to the administration and to congress. This has been one of the most serious hitches in the negotiations. Colombia not only wanted a payment of $10,000,000 down but an annual rental of $600,000. The senate would not ratify such a treaty. It will ratify a treaty that provides for the purchase outright of the territory for the canal.

MINEWORKERS ARE HEARD.

Rumors of Negotiations Looking to Settlement Are Still Heard.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 5. — At yesterday's session of the strike commission the representatives of the mineworkers continued to call witnesses, mostly practical miners, who told their story of conditions as they exist in the Hazleton middle coal fields. The miners tried to show by these witnesses that the Coxe and other companies had violated the agreement, entered into by both sides when the commission was appointed, that the strikers should return to work and be given their old places back where they had not already been filled. The commission has decided to invite the mine inspectors to appear before them, because the miners claim that the workmen fear to inform the mine inspectors of dangerous or unhealthy places in the mines because the inspectors are usually accompanied by some representative of the company who may cause the man's dismissal. This is a new point before the commission. Rumors of possible negotiations looking to a settlement outside the commission continue to be heard. Lawyers admit that they have heard such rumors, but say they know nothing about a possible settlement. Whatever is done will first be decided upon in New York, where those in authority to act are located.

Cass Lake Decision.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The secretary of the interior has rendered a decision confirming the claim of Mrs. Geo. Lydeck to part of section 16, on which the townsite of Cass Lake is located. Lydeck's claim was based on an Indian allotment, and the state claimed section 16 as school lands. The case can now be appealed to the courts.

T. B. REED IS DEAD

FORMER SPEAKER OF HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES PASSES AWAY.

URAEMIC POISONING THE CAUSE

PEACEFULLY AND WITHOUT PAIN THE PATIENT BREATHES HIS LAST.

MOURNED BY LIFELONG FRIENDS

FUNERAL WILL TAKE PLACE AT HIS OLD HOME IN PORTLAND.

Washington, Dec. 8. — Ex-Speaker Thomas B. Reed, who has been ill at the Arlington for the past four days, died Saturday night a few minutes after 12 o'clock.

Though he was conscious until within about an hour of his death, his mind was not clear and he passed away without recognizing his wife and daughter, who were at his bedside. They were prepared for the sad event by the statements of the physicians early in the evening that there was little hope for the recovery of Mr. Reed.

The change for the worse was first noticeable Saturday morning, and in spite of heroic treatment of saline injections and the administering of oxygen gas the patient failed to improve, and it became apparent about 5 o'clock in the evening that he could not recover. Uraemic coma, resulting from uraemic poisoning, was the immediate cause of death, but Mr. Reed's illness was traceable to chronic Bright's disease, which was brought to the surface by an attack of appendicitis Tuesday night, and which later became acute.

Taken to Portland.

The remains of Mr. Reed left here yesterday afternoon for Portland, Me., his former home, where the interment will take place to-morrow afternoon. They were placed aboard a special train leaving Washington at 4:50 o'clock and running as the second section of the Federal express, scheduled to arrive at Portland to-day. Accompanying the body were Mrs. Reed, the widow, Miss Catherine Reed, the former speaker's daughter; Hon. Amos L. Allen, Mr. Reed's successor in the house of Representatives; Mr. Asher Hinds, Mr. Reed's parliamentary clerk while speaker, and Mr. Augustus G. Payne of New York, a life-long friend. At Mrs. Reed's request there were no ceremonies of any kind here, and at Portland they will be of a simple character.

During the entire day there was a stream of sympathetic callers at the Arlington hotel, where the body of Mr. Reed lay awaiting removal to the railway station. They included President and Mrs. Roosevelt, members of the cabinet and of the senate and house of representatives and of the diplomatic corps. Many persons in private life also called. Neither Mrs. Reed nor her daughter saw any of the visitors, who simply left their cards.

Sorrow at His Old Home.

Portland, Me., Dec. 8.—The news of the death of Thomas B. Reed was received here with universal sorrow. Mr. Reed was born in Portland, was educated in the schools of this city, and here was always his home, as he retained his residence in Portland after he resigned his seat in congress to enter upon the practice of law in New York. He was personally known to a great number of people of the city, and there are scores living here who have been his life-long friends. Mr. Reed spent much time here last summer, and one of his last public appearances was when he delivered an oration in June upon the occasion of the celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the beginning of the work of Bowdoin college, from which he was graduated in the class of 1860.

LIKE PALEFACES.

Indians in South Dakota Utilize the Divorce Courts.

Sioux City, Iowa, Dec. 8.—Six Indian divorce cases are on the docket in the circuit court at Chamberlain for the present term of court. The Sioux Indians are becoming believers in the divorce method of settling family disturbances. Three of these cases were disposed of yesterday. The first heard was that of Eagle Boy vs. Eagle Boy, the evidence showing that the brave had been treated with extreme cruelty by his squaw, and he appealed for the intercession of law to protect him from the strenuous treatment of his wife. He also claimed that he has ascertained that he was her seventh husband, when she had represented to him that he was her first and only object of adoration. The court granted the decree.

Burnt Prairie, another Indian, made the rather startling admission in his testimony for a separation that he had been married thirty-six times, and his manner indicated that he still considered himself quite a lady's man. Another divorce was given to Understand Crow by default, upon statutory grounds of adultery, which were very conclusively proved.

Domestic Fatally Burned.

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 8. — While attempting to start a kitchen range fire with gasoline Hilda Nelson, a domestic in the employ of Mrs. Carl Anderson, was burned so badly that it is feared she will die.

Filed His Last Brief.

Mandan, N. D., Dec. 8.—State's Attorney E. C. Rice died last evening after an illness of several months. He was an old timer here, having come from Marshalltown, Iowa, twenty years ago.

CONVINCING PROOF.

Case No. 41,206.—Capt. Alfred G. Rigler, of Hose Company No. 4, Canton, Ohio, says: "I had a weak back ever since I was a boy, and about six years ago the cause developed into rather a bad case of kidney complaint. It was not a little backache now and then, but a backache which caused actual suffering day and night, and the harder I tried to get rid of it the worse it became.

When the attacks were in the acute stage it was difficult to sit down, and when down it was just as hard to regain an erect position, on account of the twinges of pain in the kidneys. I can only describe some of the pangs as similar to that received from a knife thrust.

In time distressing and terribly inconvenient urinary weakness resulted, causing annoying embarrassment during the day and loss of sleep during the night.

I took everything which came to my notice from reading, from observation and which my friends and acquaintances advised. I consulted physicians, but none of them were able to relieve the trouble, let alone stop it.

It became so well known that I had a pronounced case of kidney complaint that I often received circulars from medical companies offering to cure me, and one day eighteen letters were handed to me by the mail carrier.

When Doan's Kidney Pills attracted my attention I wanted to try them, just as I had tried everything else and Mrs. Rigler went to Durham & Wright Co.'s drug store for a box. Relief followed.

I knew after a dose or two that the medicines were acting directly on the kidneys from the altered condition of the kidney secretions, and, encouraged, I continued the treatment. Finally, the backache and other complications stopped.

Let me sum up my opinion about Doan's Kidney Pills by saying, I would willingly pay one month's wages for a box of them if I could not buy them for less. You can refer anyone to me about Doan's Kidney Pills and I will convince them that they act just as represented."

Four Years After.

"Lapse of time has strengthened my appreciation of Doan's Kidney Pills. I gave this remedy my unqualified endorsement in the summer of 1896, because of the results I obtained from a course of treatment. I can now add to my original endorsement the experience of a number of others who are just as enthusiastic when they express their opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills, as I."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Rigler, will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

"Oh, quite! She can express less in more words than anyone I ever met."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

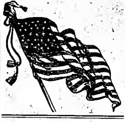
WEDNESDAY, DEC. 10, 1902.



Hon. Thos. B. Reed, ex-speaker of the House of representatives, died at Washington on last Sunday morning.

In the death of Thos. B. Reed the United States loses one of its greatest statesmen.

For a time he loomed up as a presidential possibility, but was swamped in the tide of public favor which elected Wm. McKinley. Mr. Reed, during his public career, showed himself to be a man of almost immeasurable ability, but his power was directed to the furtherance of his own ideas more than to those things which the public sentiment showed that the people demanded. His pugnacity in congress earned for him the title of "Czar," and that title clung to him until his death. His tendencies towards public despotism, however, never interfered with his goodness in private life, and there are none who know his life who will not feel the loss of Thomas B. Reed, the American citizen and American statesman.

A Norman county farmer named Olson went to Ada and sold his horse. He remained there for about a week on a drunk, and when he returned home he discovered that his wife had forsaken her home in order to get food and shelter for herself and her small children. A spasm of remorse struck him and he went out and hung himself. It was surely bad enough to leave his family hungry and cold during his drunken spree, but—how about his taking the coward's route to death, leaving them absolutely destitute?

Those Red Lake county publishers must be getting rather quarrelsome when they will hold a meeting of their local association and expel a member like Bro. King. What's the matter with you boys?—Norman County Index.

Just tried to get his feet in the trough. That's all.

When to Eat Fruit.

The question is often asked, At what time of day should fruit be eaten? In tropical countries, where fruit is the chief article of food, the rule appears to be that the earlier in the day it is taken the better and the later the worse. In hot weather many wise people will eat none after noon, alleging that the digestion then declines in power with the decline of the day and the fruit, instead of digesting, decomposes owing to the presence of the saccharine matter. The objection to fruit and certain kinds of vegetables late in the day, be the explanation what it may, is certainly justified by an ample experience, though some persons can eat fruit at all hours without feeling any inconvenience.—Table Talks.

A Plea For Courtesy.

We have lost the old flowery forms of politeness, and now we never waste "Thank you!" on a fellow creature who is not of our own immediate circle. A tradesman does, but he knows it will be charged in the bill. I wonder what will bring us back to the old sweetness of manner? Why should not the customer in the teashop or the customer in the postoffice say "Please" when he gives his order and the other spare a "Thank you!" when he has paid his bill? It makes life run so much more easily.—Girl's Realm.

Not to Be Expected.

"Pshaw!" exclaimed the professor to the student who was rehearsing his Latin oration, "you are too solemn. There's no life in your speaking at all."

"Of course not," responded the student lively enough. "You don't expect it in a dead language, do you?"

The Way a Woman Begins.

"Have you finished that new novel yet?" he asked.

"Oh, dear, no. I've hardly begun," she answered. "In fact, I've only read the last chapter."—Chicago Post.

CUTTING HIMSELF OFF.

The Blunt Way in Which Chaplain Cannon Refused a Fortune.

The Rev. Edward Cannon, a chaplain to King George IV., was a doggedly independent man. On one occasion he refused to compliment his royal master on his singing, and for a time fell into disfavor. His manner was high handed and not always too courteous, but his actions were always on the side of right and justice. The biography of his friend Barham, the author of the "Ingoldsby Legends," contains, among other anecdotes of Cannon, the story of how he disinherited himself.

A silly old lady summoned him to her house and pretended to be declining in health. She told him she had made her will, by which the whole of a considerable fortune was to be left to him.

"I don't believe it," said Cannon after a pause, in which he eyed her doubtfully. The lady assured him that the document was lying in a desk in the room.

"I won't believe it," persisted Cannon, "unless I see it."

Smiling at his incredulity, she placed the will in his hands. Cannon read it.

"Well," he said deliberately, "if I had not seen it in your own hands, I could not have believed you were such an unnatural brute."

Thrusting the paper between the bars of the grate, he continued in a severe, low voice: "Have you no one more nearly connected with you than I—no one to whom your money should go, who has a right to be provided for first and best? Pooh! You don't know how to make a will. I'll send for a lawyer, and he shall make your will. You shall leave me a legacy. There's no harm in that, but I'm not going to take it all to please you. Good day, ma'am!"

The new drug store building is nearing completion and Messrs. Thorkelson & Nelson hope to occupy it before the beginning of the week. When finished the building will be a model of beauty and convenience in the interior, and altogether will be one of the finest buildings of its kind in the northwest.

H. D. Smead, traveling passenger agent for the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railroad, was here Monday evening between trains on his way home from Red Lake Falls. He has been working in the interests of his road among those who contemplate winter excursions to eastern Canada and has been more than successful in his efforts.

—"Bridget, did you call the boys?" "Indade an' Oi called thim everything Oi cnd think of but they won't wake up." There's such a thing as calling too much some times, but when it comes to Techida's Leader 5-cent cigar it seems as though the people never would get tired of smoking them. They say they are the best that ever happened for the price. Try them.

Allen W. Wood, formerly of the Union Land and Investment Co., of Red Lake Falls, was here yesterday on his way home from a three-month's trip through the south and southwest in search of a business location. During his absence Mr. Wood failed to discover any opportunities better than those offered by Red Lake county and he has made up his mind to re-engage in business in this county.

G. H. Sandum arrived here on Saturday from Elmore, accompanied by his family. They have rented the M. E. personage building for the winter, preparatory to taking possession of Mr. Sandum's farming property in this vicinity. During the past year Mr. Sandum purchased 800 acres of land in River Falls township and a couple of farms in Sanders township and intends looking after them personally in future.

The Misses Seline and Clara Hoff entertained their friends last evening at cards and their hospitable home was filled with visitors, both from here and Thief River Falls. The games continued until 2:00 a. m. Refreshments were served during the night and a most enjoyable time was had by all present. Jens Nelson and Miss Eva Johnson carried off the first honors, while the booby prize fell to Henry Cook and Miss Thompson, of Thief River Falls.

The church choir of the Norwegian Synod church responded to an invitation from the Clearwater church and on Sunday went out there and sang a few of their selected songs. Confirmation services were held and thirteen were on that day confirmed. The choir also went to the St. Pauli church in Rocksbury in the evening and enlivened the congregation with their singing. They returned about 8 o'clock in the evening feeling no ill effects from their long drive in the extreme cold.

Miss Katie Patterson yesterday received a communication from Hon. C. G. Rapp, at Long Beach, Cal., inclosing some souvenirs for his friends. Of the souvenirs Miss Patterson received a fine inkstand, H. O. Jackson, a neat emblematic Woodmen's block, and Chas. W. Latta, of the SPECTATOR, a handsome pipe. We are pleased to note that Mr. Rapp's health continues unimpaired, and we are sure that all of the recipients fully appreciate the souvenirs which he sent them from his present location on the Pacific coast.

Crookston Sensation.

The city of Crookston has been decidedly wrought up over the sudden and mysterious disappearance of Miss Gertrude Strassburger a week ago. The young lady was skating with a party of friends and failed to appear when they were ready to return home. It was thought at first that she had broken through the ice and was drowned but the ice showed an unbroken surface and that theory is discredited. An incessant search has been kept up ever since without result. Elopement was advanced as a possible theory but was set aside and foul play is suspected.

$40 to Eastern Canada and Return.

Round trip tickets will be sold from St. Hilaire to points in eastern Canada and return via the Great Northern Railway for $40.00, to Montreal and points west thereof in Ontario. To points east of Montreal a small additional fare will be charged. Tickets will be sold from December 1st to December 31st, good for three months with privilege of extension at small additional cost. Stop-over privileges going and returning.

Be sure to select the Great Northern for this eastern trip as it affords many advantages over the other lines. Information can be had from your nearest ticket agent, O. Thorson, T. P. A., Grand Forks, N. D., or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul, Minn.

A Bad Runaway.

Chas. Fellman and R. H. Duntley drove to Thief River Falls late Thursday afternoon for the purpose of making arrangements for music for the firemen's dance here on Saturday evening. They were driving Dr. Blomburgh's spirited horse and having finished their business, started for home just after supper. While passing a piece of newly graded road in the dark the horse became restive with the result that both men were thrown from the buggy. The horse made a dash across country, leaving the broken buggy and the travelers behind. The men looked for the horse until they got tired and then walked home to St. Hilaire and reported the accident. As soon as possible a searching party was organized and a hunt made for the horse which was found in Thief River Falls next day. Mr. Fellman received a few scratches while Mr. Duntley escaped any injury. The buggy was broken some, but it was a lucky escape.

The Masons Celebrated.

One of the biggest celebrations that ever happened in lodge circles in the northwest occurred at Crookston on Monday night when Worshipful Master Tom Morris, of the Crookston Lodge, A. F. and A. M., completed his eighth year of service in that high office and celebrated the initiation or "raising" of the hundredth candidate under his regime. Mr. Morris' record is one that has rarely been equaled in Masonic circles and it was fully appreciated by the other lodges in the northwest. Visiting members were present from all over northern Minnesota and the Dakotas, and Mr. Morris did the honors of the occasion by serving a grand banquet after the business of the evening was transacted. After the banquet a social session was held, at which Worshipful Master Morris received the congratulations of all the members present and their good wishes for his future prosperity, individually and Masonically.

Death of Theodore S. Post.

On Saturday morning O. F. Post received a telegram announcing the death of his brother, Theodore S. Post, at Helena, Mont., on Friday, the 5th inst. The cause of his death was not mentioned in the message, but it stated that the remains would be interred at Helena. Deceased was about 30 years of age and was a younger brother of O. F. Post, of the firm of Rapp & Post. During recent years he has followed the vocation of cook at some of the leading hotels of Helena and vicinity in Montana. Further particulars have not been heard up to our time of going to press.

Annual Meeting.

Notice is hereby given that the Bray Mutual Fire Insurance Company will hold its annual meeting in the village of St. Hilaire, Minn., on the 5th day of January, 1903, (being the first Monday after New Year's) at 10:30 a. m. The business to come before the meeting comprises the election of officers, changing of article Third of the articles of incorporation and any other business which may come before said meeting.

Kiiland-Hendrickson.

On last Saturday evening at 8 o'clock occurred the wedding of Knut R. Kiiland and Mrs. Martha Hendrickson. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride by Rev. T. Aug. Lilichel, and was witnessed only by the immediate friends of the contracting parties.

Mr. Kiiland is one of our successful business men who has resided here for many years. The bride has also been a resident of St. Hilaire for several years. Both are well known to the community and have lots of friends who wish all possible happiness in their wedded life.

Dissolution of Partnership.

Notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between William Lauritzen and Albert Karges, is this day dissolved by mutual consent. The said Albert Karges will collect all bills due said firm and pay all legal debts of the firm.

Dated at St. Hilaire, Minn., this 15th day of November, 1902.

Elected Officers.

The St. Hilaire lodge of the I. O. O. F. at their meeting last Friday evening elected officers for the ensuing year as follows:

Henry W. Peterson, N. G.
Leonard Holmes, V. G.
J. B. O'Brien, Secretary.
O. F. Post, Treasurer.
Wm. Eickhoff, Trustee.

The Snow Girl.

Little Marie Peary, daughter of the famous Arctic explorer, has the distinction of having a birth place nearer the North Pole than any American that ever lived. She was born at "Anniversary Lodge" in September, 1893. Her health and "staying power" are remarkable owing to her early training. On the recent trip to rescue her father she stood the cold and dangers as well as the strongest men. Golden grain belt beer is noted for the power it gives to stand extremes, for it contains the strength of bread and meat in liquid form. It strengthens body and mind. HAPPENINGS IN ST. HILAIRE AS TOLD IN THE COLUMNS OF THE SPECTATOR, DECEMBER 1882.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 6.

Dan Patterson is making improvements in his livery stable.

Rumor has it that we are going to have several new manufacturing establishments here in the spring. That's what St. Hilaire wants to make it boom still more.

The ball to be given Christmas night is to be a tony affair. Arrangements are being made for a first class string band and the supper, which will be served at Clark's, will be of the best.

We were handed three dusky diamonds as a sample of the first coal discovered in St. Hilaire. A load was taken over to Mr. Cundy's house, and cost when delivered $22.50 per ton. Wood is $3 per cord. We will burn wood.

The sneaking cur who stole the quarter of pork from my place at 12 o'clock on Saturday night will save himself arrest and imprisonment by returning it. I know the individual and am satisfied he could buy pork if he desired.

Geo. Showers.

Mat. Oxborough and Morris Dargae, of Black River, and Adam Zeh, of Red Lake Falls, passed through here one day last week on their return from a trip up Thief river. They went up the river about 75 miles from its mouth and report the country low, but well adapted to grazing purposes. They say that there is any quantity of pine, tamarac and oak all the way up.

Two men living a short distance from Crookston came to town one day this week and, after indulging pretty freely in "honey dew" bought a bottle of the "crethur" and started for home. Nothing more was thought about them until evening, when their team was seen coming into town without a driver. Upon the horses being stopped both men were found in "sweet repose" in the bottom of the sleigh. It was a bitter cold night and if they had been left in this condition much longer we would have had a different story to tell. They were lifted out and carried into Clarke's hotel where they were cared for until morning, when they again started for home, sadder but wiser men.

Jolly old winter has paid us his annual visit and is probably much surprised at the rapid progress which has been made in this part of the country since his last call. Only a few months ago his bleak winds howled dismally over the desolate and uninhabited prairies in this section but on his return this time he will find a flourishing little city and every quarter section of this vast prairie containing the house and cultivated lands of thriving and industrious farmers. Nowhere in this large circuit will he find such a transformation scene as has been enacted here. During his stay among us, we are in honor bound to slacken our rapid pace considerably, but although less building will be done, still our inhabitants think life is too short to devote all our time to our frosty guest, and it seems probable that the present activity will be carried well over to the spring opening, when there is every reason to predict that there will be such a movement in real estate as has been unseen in any town in the northwest. The recognition of St. Hilaire's advantages as a manufacturing point, the geographical position of the city as being the key which is to unlock the famous Red Lake pine region, and the prosperity which she has shown in the past all go to prove that the history of next year will be both notable and flattering. Up to the present our prices have not been crowded up by wild speculation as they have been too greatly in other cities. We have never encouraged speculators, and if the same conservative feeling exists through next spring, St. Hilaire will be benefited by a much increased population and many needed enterprises. So far our growth has been solid and substantial, and if our citizens will put their shoulders to the wheel, by next fall we will have a city of which we may well be proud.

$40 Holiday Excursion Rates.

The Great Northern Railway is selling holiday excursion tickets to points in Ontario west of Montreal at $40.00 for the round trip. For points east of Montreal a small additional charge will be made. Tickets will be sold from December 1st to December 31st, good for three months from date of sale, with privilege of extension for a small extra charge, good for stop-over in either direction.

For information apply to your nearest ticket agent, O. Thorson, T. P. A., Grand Forks, N. D., or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul, Minn.

Many women and doctors do not recognize the real symptoms of derangement of the female organs until too late.

"I had terrible pains along my spinal cord for two years and suffered dreadfully. I was given different medicines, wore plasters; none of these things helped me. Reading of the cures that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought about, I somehow felt that it was what I needed and bought a bottle to take. How glad I am that I did so; two bottles brought me immense relief, and after using three bottles more I felt new life and blood surging through my veins. It seemed as though there had been a regular house cleaning through my system, that all the sickness and poison had been taken out and new life given me instead. I have advised dozens of my friends to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Good health is indispensable to complete happiness, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has secured this to me." —Mrs. Laura L. How Advertising Grows.

N. W. Ayer & Son, the "Keeping Everlastingly at It" advertising agents of Philadelphia, have found it necessary to move into new and larger quarters at 300-308 Chestnut Street in that city.

This announcement will interest many publishers, because Ayer & Son are so widely known as promoters of newspaper publicity. They began business thirty-three years ago, with two people and an annual business of $15,000. They now have one hundred and ninety employes, and have for years done the largest advertising business in the world. The difference between then and now is, they say, simply the result of making newspaper and magazine advertising pay their customers.

"BURN THE TOPS."

Forest Fires May Be Prevented by Doing This.

"The so-called Morris bill, for cutting the pine on the ceded Chippewa reservations, requires every purchaser of timber, to burn or remove a sufficient amount of the tops to prevent any danger from fire to the timber left standing. It is thought by many that the time has come when timber owners generally in this state should conform to a similar rule, and each year, say before the 1st of March, burn or remove the tops and branches of their trees which have been cut down, and that in case of their failure to do so, the state, through the local fire wardens, should do it, the expense to be a lien on the logs. If such a law were enacted by our legislature it would be well for the state to enable the local fire wardens to burn, as soon as practicable, the old slashings, which are a menace to the safety of settlements. Some lumbermen have always made it a practice to burn their slashings, and they say it is not very expensive.—Bridjie News.

Educators to Meet.

The 40th annual session of the Minnesota Educational association will be held in St. Paul Dec. 31, Jan. 1 and 2, with headquarters at the Hotel Ryan. The sections, from kindergarten to college will be very ably represented, and an unusually strong program is prepared. Gov. S. R. Van Sant, Senator Moses E. Clapp and Prof. O. E. Holman will be the guests of the association. Wednesday evening, at Hotel Ryan, Dr. David Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford, Jr., university, will be cordially received by the leaders of education and culture.

President J. J. Hill, the railroad magnate, will also address the association.

Possibly, the Labor King, Mitchell, will be secured.

The practical turn general education is taking will attract a large attendance.

The last annual session emphasized the theme of industrial education. This association will lay especial stress on the economic value of education.

He Didn't Guess It.

"O, I have such a lovely conundrum for you!" she exclaimed, delightedly. "I know you'll never guess it!"

"Oh, I don't know," he replied, confidently. "Let's have it, and we'll see."

"When is a gown not a gown?" she asked.

He looked dubious.

"I know no answer," he said, "but perhaps you'd better give me yours first."

"When it's a dream," she explained.

"I never would have guessed it," he admitted.

"What was your answer?" she inquired.

"When it's an extravagance," he answered.—Brooklyn Eagle.

It Is Grand Larceny.

In the past the theft of a few tons of coal constituted petit larceny. At present the theft of coal in any quantity is likely to prove a felony and the thief may be subject to a charge of grand larceny. This is what happened in Rochester to-day.

Charles Meisenzahl, a carting contractor, sent Martin Slayer, one of his teamsters, to the coal yards of the West New York & Pennsylvania railroad to haul three and one-half tons of bituminous coal to the Rochester Gas and Electric Company's plant. The coal was promised at 10 o'clock. When the time rolled around the coal was not delivered and the gas company began to make inquiries. It was learned that the teamster had started from the yards with the coal some time before.

Meisenzahl was informed, and he started on the trail of the driver. It is alleged that he discovered that Slayer had proved false to his trust and instead of taking the coal to the gas company had carted it down Lyell avenue, where he had disposed of it.

The police were notified and Slayer was found and placed under arrest on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree.—Rochester Post Express.

The Hansons Are Happy.

Ashley, N. D., Dec. 8th.—Cured of the most dangerous of all Diseases, Rheumatism of the Heart, J. H. Hanson of this place loses no opportunity of singing the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I am able to work again," says Mr. Hanson. "And I am feeling better than I have for five years. Broken down and fairly used up and suffering from Rheumatism of the Heart and Dropsy, I was in very bad shape.

"Then I started taking Dodd's Kidney Pills, and—well, you can see how I look, and I feel as well as I look. My Rheumatism has gone and the Dropsy with it.

"I don't think they'll ever bother me again, but if they do I'll just get some more of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I know that will fix them."

Mrs. Hanson, too, whose health was far from good, took the same remedy, and she joins with her husband in recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills.

An elastic currency is the kind that enables a man to make both ends meet.

STARTLING DISCOVERY MADE BY PHYSIOLOGISTS IN CHICAGO.

ELIXIR OF LIFE IS NOT FAR OFF

RESULT OF INVESTIGATIONS BY SCIENTISTS IN CHICAGO UNIVERSITY.

MAY PROLONG LIFE INDEFINITELY

OXYGEN GAS IMPORTANT FACTOR IN SUSTAINING HEART ACTION.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—New and startling discoveries are being made by physiologists associated with Dr. Jaques Loeb of the University of Chicago.

The latest one is by Prof. David J. Lingle, one of the men who has for several years been one of Prof. Loeb's chief assistants in his far-reaching experiments into the question of what it is that causes the heart to beat and what sustains its action when once started.

Prof. Lingle now comes forth with the theory, and the proof of it, that it is not only the salt known as sodium chloride which stimulates and causes the heart action, but that oxygen gas is even a more important factor in sustaining heart action.

According to the results of the experiments by the university professors, the time is not far distant when physicians will know just how much sodium chloride and how much oxygen and how much of something else to inject into a deceased person's veins in order

To Restore Him to Life.

The question is asked by some of those who have learned of the recent discoveries made in regard to the heart beat: "How long will it be until scientists will know how to promote longevity?" Others believe that the elixir of life sought by De Soto in the evergreen glades of Florida is now not far distant. Prof. Lingle, assistant to Prof. Loeb, secured the result which he has attained partly by accident. While experimenting with a strip of turtle's heart, which he was moving from one vessel containing a salt solution, sodium chloride, he noticed that the beating of the strip was greatly increased when it came in contact with the air. He placed it in a solution of salt and then placed the beating strip of heart in a jar of oxygen gas. Here the beating was sustained for three full days, or seventy-two hours. No one had been successful in maintaining the beat of a single strip of heart for so long a time as this before.

It was just one year ago that Prof. Loeb startled the scientific world by his statement and proof that the vital force of life comes from the electricions in the food which is eaten, and not from heat elements contained in the food.

JAIL FOR CITY DADS.

Denver Mayor and Aldermen Are Sentenced.

Denver, Dec. 8.—Mayor R. R. Wright, Jr., and eleven aldermen were sentenced by Judge I. STOCKINGS WITH WHITE FEET.

A Physician Recommends Them as a Relief for Foot Ills.

A physician in a published interview, urges that the wearings of stockings with white feet will do more to promote ease in walking and relieve foot ills than anything else to be suggested. Socks or stockings of cotton or lisle thread in black bind the feet and make them swell, he says, no matter how fine and open they may be. The black dye with the hard thread of the lisle variety is a combination that is particularly torturing to tender feet. Thin, unbleached balbriggan he recommends. Preferably the whole sock or stocking may be white, but at least the foot should be. A further caution is added that new cotton hose, as well as all new cotton undergarments, should be washed before being worn, to take out the sizing used by manufacturers.

Talmage Thanked God.

In the days when eschatology was a vexed question, a gentleman called on Dr. Talmage and introduced himself as an evolutionist who did not believe in the future state. "That is, sir," he continued, "I am an annihilationist. I believe that when I die that will be the end of me." "Thank God for that!" exclaimed Dr. Talmage, as he showed the gentleman the door.—New York Times.

Decorations for Dens.

An odd decoration for a "den" is in the form of a good-sized drapery of fine leather, soft-brown in shade, and having a design of pine tree limbs cut out upon it. The peculiar feature of the decoration is that, let in behind the branches, is satin, colored to suggest a sunset sky. The tints are reddish brown, harmonizing with the leather, yet warm enough to suggest a rich sunset tone. The leather is enclosed in a scroll of etching work, colored in brownish-olive tones, and at the top of the simulated frame has been placed a cluster of pine cones in burnt work. The pine tree limbs are The "skin" hangs upon the door, and lends an artistic decorative touch to the apartment.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING LIES IN THE EATING."

The doctors are dumbfounded, the druggists astonished, and the people excited and joyful over the wonderful cures and tremendous sales of the great Remedy, St. Jacobs Oil. Every case of Rheumatism—some of many years' standing—has given way to this powerful remedy. Thousands of certificates like the following can be furnished as to its value:—

George Scleyer, Publisher of the Chilton, Wis., "Volksbote," used St. Jacobs Oil for "almost unbearable pains in the back, which had completely prostrated him." A few applications cured him entirely.

Mrs. Fred Eberle, Bellaire, O., was for a long time severely troubled with Rheumatism. St. Jacobs Oil instantly relieved and entirely cured her.

Rev. Dr. B. Pick of Rochester, N. Y., suffered so intensely from Rheumatic pains that he was unable to preach. Several applications from a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil "relieved him."

F. Radder, Cleveland, O., says: "Two applications of St. Jacobs Oil cured me of great and long-continued pain in my foot."

Messrs. C. L. Brundage and Son, Druggists, Muskegon, Mich., write:—"St. Jacobs Oil has a wonderful sale. We sold eight bottles at retail yesterday. This will give you some idea of how well it is liked in this section."

Mr. Louis Hinkel, of East Poesten Kill, N. Y., says:—"I call St. Jacobs Oil the best liniment I ever used. It cured me of Rheumatism and pain in the back."

Herman Rittner, of Manchester, N. H.:—"I have tried St. Jacobs Oil, and found it excellent. All those who have purchased it speak of it as 'simply incomparable.'"

Geo. H. Erffle, Palestine, Ill.:—"I was in bed suffering from a swollen leg. I used St. Jacobs Oil; its effect was wonderful. The following day I attended to my business again."

Dr. Otto Fuls, Reading, O., writes:—"The sale of St. Jacobs Oil is constantly increasing; it is praised by everybody, and never fails to give entire satisfaction."

SISTERS OF CHARITY

Use Pe-ru-na for Coughs, Colds, Grip and Catarrh--A Congressman's Letter.

In every country of the civilized world Sisters of Charity are known. Not only do they minister to the spiritual and intellectual needs of the charges committed to their care, but they also minister to their bodily needs.

With so many children to take care of and to protect from climate and disease, these wise and prudent Sisters have found Peruna a never failing safeguard.

Dr. Hartman receives many letters from Catholic Sisters from all over the United States. A recommend recently received from a Catholic institution in Detroit, Mich., reads as follows:

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:

Dear Sir:—"The young girl who used the Peruna was suffering from laryngitis, and loss of voice. The result of the treatment was most satisfactory. She found great relief, and after further use of the medicine we hope to be able to say she is entirely cured."—Sisters of Charity.

The young girl was under the care of the Sisters of Charity and used Peruna for catarrh of the throat with good results as the above letter testifies.

Send to The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio, for a free book written by Dr. Hartman.

The following letter is from Congressman Meekison, of Napoleon, Ohio:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

Gentlemen: "I have used several bottles of Peruna and feel greatly benefitted thereby from my catarrh of the head, and feel encouraged to believe that its continued use will fully eradicate a disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison.

David Meekison.

Dr. Hartman, one of the best known physicians and surgeons in the United States, was the first man to formulate Peruna. It was through his genius and perseverance that it was introduced to the medical profession of this country.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Constipation Cured

Those who have used salts, castor oil, and the many home and manufactured purgatives, know that in such treatment there is no possibility of a cure from constipation. These remedies are at most physics and do absolutely no good. In fact they frequently provoke piles fistula, female disorders and many cases of appendicitis are traceable to their use. Soon the ordinary doses of these physics fail to have any effect upon the bowels.

There never was a case of temporary or obstinate constipation that would not cure. First, Mull's Grape Tonic is unlike any other treatment for constipation. It is the greatest and most positive laxative known. But that isn't what cures. It is the tonic properties of the grape and other fruits that strengthens the worn-out muscles of the intestinal tract. Mull's Grape Tonic builds flesh makes strength and creates rich, red blood. Mull's Grape Tonic is the finest thing ever known for constipation. It's guaranteed to cure you. Large sample bottle sent free to any address on receipt of 10 cents for postage by Lightning Medicine Co., Rock Island, Ill. Send your druggist's name. All druggists sell Mull's Grape Tonic at 50 cents a bottle.

Thomas R. Williams, aged fifty, a former citizen of Sandoval, died in a hospital at Freeport, Ill., under circumstances which indicate foul play. The attending physician stated positively that he was under the influence of some powerful drug when he left a train out of Chicago.

Charles H. Thompson, agent for the Hammond Packing company of Hammond, Ind., pleaded guilty in the circuit court of offering to bribe State Commissioner Snow in Kalamazoo, last spring, and paid a fine of $1,000 imposed by Judge Winsor. The offense grew out of the commissioner's effort to enforce the state law prohibiting the sale of colored butterine.

BOMBARDED BY THE ALLIES

FORTRESS AT PUERTO CABELLO ALMOST DEMOLISHED BY CRUISERS.

FIRST DEMAND SATISFACTION

GASTRO ORDERS THAT IT BE GIVEN, BUT MESSAGE IS TOO LATE.

ACTION IS CONSIDERED HASTY

REGARDED AS PROOF OF INTENTION TO FORCE WAR ON VENEZUELA.

Puerto Cabello, Dec. 15.—The British cruiser Charybdis and the German cruiser Vineta bombarded the fortress here at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon and quickly silenced it. The bombardment lasted for forty-five minutes. The fortress is composed of Fort Solano and the Castle Libertador.

After the firing ceased the Charybdis sent marines to occupy the castle. The fortress was almost demolished. It is probable that only a few persons were injured by the shelling. The commander of Castle Libertador has been taken prisoner. The cruisers are still here.

At 7 o'clock in the morning the Charybdis and the Vineta arrived here searching for Venezuelan gunboats. The two cruisers sent their boats into the inner port, but finding no gunboats, the boats returned. The captain of the British merchant steamer Topaze, which was seized by the mob here last Wednesday, then visited the British commodore on board the Charybdis and against the violation of his ship. The British captain returned an hour later with a detachment of fifty marines, who took charge of the Topaze. The populace was greatly excited at this incident and raised the cry "to arms," but there was no disorder.

The British commodore then sent a message to the authorities at Puerto Cabello demanding immediate satisfaction for the action of the mob in having hauled down the British flag from the Topaze, saying that if this satisfaction was not forthcoming in two hours, at 5 o'clock the fortress and the custom house would be bombarded. On receipt of this demand the authorities sent a message to President Castro asking for instructions. A committee of the merchants of Puerto Cabello then approached the American consul here, petitioning him to intervene. The consul accepted this mission and visited the cruisers, but he could obtain no alteration in the decision of the allies.

Message Came Too Late.

At a quarter before 5 a reply was received from President Castro, who authorized the chief official here to give the British commodore ample satisfaction. Before this answer could be communicated to the American consul the hour stipulated for its receipt had arrived; the cruisers immediately opened fire on the fortress. The fire was returned from Fort Solano and Castle Libertador, but the Venezuelan guns were soon silenced. While the firing continued there was intense excitement in this port. Every house in town was closed.

The people of Puerto Cabello cannot account for this precipitate action on the part of the allies, which they consider to be proof that Great Britain and Germany intend forcing war on Venezuela.

The British marines propose to make use of the cannon in Castle Libertador. No damage was done to the town. The excitement of the people is subsiding.

Confirmed by Bowen.

Washington, Dec. 15. — Minister Bowen, in a dispatch received by the state department yesterday afternoon, cabled that he had been informed by President Castro that British and German warships were bombarding Puerto Cabello.

In an earlier dispatch, received at the state department at 3:22 Sunday morning, Minister Bowen said that the situation in the Venezuela capital, Caracas, was much quieter.

Aside from the dispatches from Minister Bowen there were no further developments in the Venezuelan situation so far as the state department is concerned. The officials are watching events with a keen interest so as to be able to act with promptness should

Such a Step Be Necessary.

In the matter of the blockade Secretary Hay has instructed our ambassadors at Berlin and London to represent to those governments that the United States must not be understood as giving its consent to any extension of the international right of peaceful blockade.

The visit of President Castro to the bedside of the invalid wife of the German diplomatic representative at Caracas created a good impression here, as it did at that place, whereas the necessity for bombardment of Puerto Cabello made an equally unfavorable one. It is regretted that the commanders of the German and British vessels should have found it necessary to resort to such a severe step as bombardment of the city for an act for which satisfaction might have been obtained in a more peaceful manner.

Castro's Graceful Act.

Caracas, Dec. 15.—President Castro learned Saturday morning of the illness of Madame von Pilgrim-Baltazzi, and in the afternoon, accompanied by his wife, and a number of Venezuelan officers, he called at the German legation. Here the visitors were received by United States Minister Bowen, who escorted them to the room of the invalid. President Castro greeted Madame von Pilgrim-Baltazzi, and spoke to her of her husband in a friendly way, saying he held the German envoy in high regard. The president of Venezuela produced a favorable impression upon Madame von Pilgrim-Baltazzi, and before he left the German legation he offered her the hospitality of the Yellow House, the capitol of Caracas.

Italy Also Demands Pay.

Caracas, Dec. 15.—The British legation here will be reopened under the American flag by W. W. Russell, secretary of the American legation.

The statement that Italy, through her legation here, is to demand payment of her claims against Venezuela, has been confirmed.

The arrival of the United States gunboat Marietta at La Guayra yesterday was due to a rumor that United States Minister Bowen was in danger. There has been no ground for such a rumor and the presence of the Marietta was not required by Mr. Bowen.

The situation at Caracas continues to be critical and there is intense excitement among the German residents of the city. The Germans have sought refuge at the American legation, where they will be sheltered.

The enlistment of Venezuelan soldiers continues. Two thousand men from the environs of Caracas and Valencia came to this city yesterday. The boycotting of the British and German goods continues.

The people of Caracas are astonished that the government at Washington remains silent in spite of the recent acts of the allied fleet.

Tie Up Venezuelan Ships.

Caracas, Dec. 15.—A note from the commanders of the allied Anglo-German fleet which the Venezuelan government refused to receive Saturday at La Guayra was sent yesterday to United States Minister Bowen at Caracas and forwarded by him to the proper government official here. The note is in the name of Great Britain and Germany. It requests all Venezuelan ships, after the lapse of five days, to refrain from sailing from the port of La Guayra until the present difficulties are over.

The question what right Great Britain and Germany have to coerce Venezuela without declaring a blockade is being asked on all sides here.

SCHOONER TAKES FIRE AT SEA.

Crew Takes Refuge on Uninhabited Island and Later Is Rescued.

St. John's, N. F., Dec. 15. — The schooner Molly, carrying a crew of seven men was struck by a gale yesterday morning. The vessel was keeled over until the stove in her cabin upset. This resulted in setting fire to the woodwork and the schooner was soon a mass of flames. The crew ran the Molly for Outer Gooseberry island, an uninhabited island twelve miles off Bona Vista bay. Here the schooner was beached and the crew landed on the rocks. Residents of the mainland caught sight of the burning schooner and the mail boat Dundee was dispatched to the rescue. The Dundee reached Outer Gooseberry island yesterday evening. A heavy surf was breaking on the island, and only the captain of the Molly risked the plunge through the surf necessary to reach the Dundee's boat. The Dundee remained in the offing until morning, when she succeeded in getting the other men of the Molly's crew on board. These men were badly frost-bitten as a result of their night's exposure.

SWEPT BY SNOW STORM.

Entire Rocky Mountain Region Gets Taste of Winter.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 15.—The entire Rocky Mountain region from Northern Wyoming to Southern New Mexico has been visited by a snow storm during the past thirty-six hours. The ground on the plateaus is covered to a depth of six inches, while in the mountains the depth is lower. In this city snow fell Saturday. Yesterday two inches of snow fell during the morning to most sections of Colorado, but last night the weather had cleared. In some parts of Colorado, particularly the San Luis valley in the south, the snow was the heaviest for years. For the past three years drouth has visited the San Luis valley, and the present visitation of moisture has brought rejoicing, assuring, as it does, good conditions for next year's crop.

AT THE HEAD OF AN ARMY.

Gen. Nord Enters Port au Prince and Is Heartily Welcomed.

Port au Prince, Haiti, Dec. 15.—Gen. Alexis Nord, who was war minister under the provisional government, entered the capital of Haiti yesterday at the head of his army. He was accorded a sympathetic reception by the people. Gen. Nord's intentions are not known. It is generally believed that in case he announces himself a candidate for the presidency his election to that office is assured by reason of the numerous forces at his command.

CATTLE HAVE PLAGUE.

Five Hundred Head in Vermont Are to Be Killed.

Chester, Vt., Dec. 15.—Government cattle agents have found that foot and mouth disease prevails among the cattle of this section of Vermont to an extent not previously suspected. Hundreds of cattle are infected and orders to kill the diseased animals already are being carried out. The government agents say that about 500 head of cattle, besides sheep and swine, will be slaughtered as fast as the men can accomplish the work.

PAROLES WOMAN BANDIT.

Pearl Hart Given Modified Freedom in Arizona.

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 15.—Pearl Hart, the female stage robber, yesterday was paroled by Gov. Brodie on the recommendation of the board of control and the prison superintendent. She held up a stage in company with Joe Boot between Florence and Globe. After a chase of several days by a posse the fugitives were apprehended and most of the booty recovered. The woman was sentenced to prison for five years in 1899.

FIVE KILLED IN A WRECK.

Fatal Crash on Burlington Followed by Mishap to Relief Train.

Bucklin, Mo., Dec. 15.—A serious wreck occurred on the Hannibal & St. Joseph railroad. A local freight was wrecked four miles west of Bucklin. A steam wrecker was sent to the wreck from Brookfield. The wrecked engine went through the bridge at Yellow creek. The killed are J. Murphy, roadmaster; Arthur Hight; Thomas Ainsworth, J. E. Votah, trainmaster; A. Green, fireman.

CABLE IS LANDED

SUCCESSFUL BEGINNING OF THE WORK ON THE PACIFIC CABLE.

WITHOUT HITCH OF ANY KIND

DAUGHTER OF GOV. GAGE PERFORMS CHRISTENING CEREMONY.

WITNESSED BY GREAT CROWDS

IDEAL WEATHER PREVAILED, RENDERING THE TASK EASY.

San Francisco, Dec. 15—"In honor of John W. Mackay I christen the Pacific cable. May it always carry messages of happiness."

With these words Lucille Gage, the eleven-year-old daughter of H. T. Gage, governor of California, yesterday christened the trans-Pacific cable, and, breaking a bottle of champagne over the shore, inaugurated a new era to the commercial development of the Pacific coast. The landing and splicing of the shore end which is to connect the mainland with Honolulu was accomplished without hitch of any kind and was witnessed by thirty or forty thousand people. Ideal weather prevailed, there being scarcely any surf. Early yesterday morning the steamer Newsboy, carrying six miles of cable, steamed close in shore, and through a life-saving boat's crew sent a rope to which the cable was attached ashore. Word was sent to President Clarence H. Mackay and the Cable and Postal Telegraph officers that all was in readiness. The work of hauling in the cable was done so expeditiously that the officials arrived on the beach only two minutes before the cable touched the beach and was christened at 9:55 a. m. While the cable was being spliced to the land Mayor Schmitz delivered a short speech congratulating Mr. Mackay on the Successful Beginning of the work. He also spoke of the importance of the undertaking and the benefit to the world at large that would result from its completion. Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Commercial Cable company, with a voice full of emotion, thanked the governor and those present.

Gov. Gage, on behalf of the State of California, paid a fervent tribute to the late John W. Mackay. The formal exercises closed with cheers for the cable and all those taking part in its landing.

Refreshment tents were erected on the beach and while the cable was being landed Mr. Mackay served champagne and other refreshments to a large number of invited guests. Mr. Mackay sent the following telegram to President Roosevelt:

"I have the honor to inform you that the California end of the Honolulu cable was successfully landed at 9:55 o'clock this morning."

When the cable was landed it was drawn safely through a conduit and made ready for connection with the office. A portion of the hawser used in the landing was cut up into small bits as souvenirs and used for distribution by President Mackay among his guests.

MILLION IS LOST BY FIRE.

Monster Corrugating Plant Is Destroyed.

Canal Dover, Ohio, Dec. 15. — The corrugating mills, the paint shop and store room and the building containing the four mills on the West side of the American Sheet Steel company's mills burned to the ground here, and the company is confronted with a loss of over $1,000,000, nearly $750,000 of finished product and the balance in buildings and machinery. A strong wind was blowing over the burning pile toward the offices and the machine shop. Fear that these, too, might be doomed, caused a call for help to be sent to New Philadelphia. The fire engines from that city rendered good assistance.

GUN FIGHT ON A ROAD.

One Contestant Is Hit Five Times and the Other Twice.

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 15. — Roy Colsen and Landers Parker fought with revolvers in the highway near Atlanta, Ill. Eight shots were fired. Parker was hit five times and probably will die. Colsen received a bullet in the jaw and in the arm. Parker is in a hospital at Lincoln, Ill., while Colsen is in jail.

Indians Wiped Out by Disease.

Guthrie, Okla., Dec. 15.—Dr. Wyman, government physician at the Sac and Fox Indian agency in Oklahoma, announces that a large majority of the tribe are afflicted with tuberculosis, scrofula and other incurable diseases, and adds that the tribe will be practically annihilated in a few years. The latest report says there are but 479 members of this once powerful tribe left.

Struck by Train.

Hastings, Minn., Dec. 15. — Charles Freir, while returning home from Washington county, was struck by an east-bound passenger train at the crossing on the other side of the river and thrown from his sleigh. His head was cut and both horses killed.

Killed in a Quarrel.

Clinton, Iowa, Dec. 15. — During a quarrel here yesterday Charles Granderson of Sioux City was shot and killed, Benjamin Carroll was wounded twice and Mrs. Carroll was probably fatally shot. Jealousy was the cause.

Tobacco Warehouse Destroyed.

Janesville, Wis., Dec. 15. — The tobacco warehouse of Joseph Grundy, one of the largest in the city, was practically destroyed by fire at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The loss is nearly $50,000.

MRS. U. S. GRANT IS DEAD.

Wife of the Late President Passes Away in Washington.

Washington, Dec. 15. — Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, wife of the late President Grant, died at her residence in this city at 11:17 o'clock last night. Death was due to heart failure, Mrs. Grant having suffered for some years from valvular disease of the heart, which was aggravated by a severe attack of bronchitis. Her age prevented her rallying from the attacks. Her daughter, Nellie Grant-Sartoris, was the only one of her children with her at the time of her death, her three sons, who had been summoned here, all being out of the city.

Death came peacefully, the sufferer maintaining almost complete consciousness practically to the end. Word has come from Jesse and Ulysses S. Grant, two of the sons now in California, that they have started on their way to Washington. The other son, Gen. Fred Grant, is in Texas, and he will hasten here as soon as he receives a message telling him of his mother's death. The remains will be taken to Riverside Park, where the remains of her husband rest, to be interred beside them. Whether they will be taken there immediately after the ceremony or the event be postponed for a time is not known.

Mrs. Grant, whose maiden name was Julia Dent, was born in St. Louis in 1826 and was the daughter of Frederick and Ellen Wrenchall Dent. She was married to General, then Captain, Grant in 1848.

WILD FIGHT IN BLIZZARD.

Battle With Guns on the Streets of Toledo.

Toledo, Dec. 15. — Early yesterday morning John and Jerry Sullivan, brothers, and George Gearhart, who has a record of two terms in the penitentiary, entered Williams' restaurant, in the heart of the city, and, after ordering meals, drew their revolvers, intimidated everybody in sight and compelled the cashier to open the money drawer. They secured a good sum and all the cigars their pockets would, and then, with drawn revolvers, backed out of the place and began to run. Meanwhile a waiter named Williams secured a revolver and ran to the door and began firing. This attracted the attention of Officer Jerry Coakley, who stepped in front of Jerry Sullivan and commanded him to stop. Sullivan fired five times point blank at the officer, but owing to the terrible snowstorm raging at the time his aim was bad. Officers came on the run and passers-by took up the chase. Eight more of the gang were in a rendezvous at 518 Jackson avenue, and John Sullivan took refuge there. Jerry Sullivan stumbled and fell and was choked into submission. After perhaps twenty-five shots had been fired all of the eleven were rounded up and thrown into jail. The morning session of the police court held the three principals to the grand jury on the charges and sent all the others to the workhouse on long sentences. Only the blizzard, which kept many people off the street, prevented a series of casualties, as the robbers made a desperate resistance.

SHE PREVENTS THE WEDDING.

Minneapolis Woman Is Successful in Chase.

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 15. — After a chase that extended from Minneapolis to Milwaukee, then to Beloit and lastly to Rockford, Mrs. Mary Stiple and daughter of Minneapolis caught up with Charles M. Stockwell of Butte, Mont., and Miss Rose Stiple in time to prevent their marriage. Stockwell and Rose Stiple reached Rockford late Saturday afternoon, after being on the road from the latter's home for two days. In their flight they forgot about the Trna law in Wisconsin, and found it impossible to be married in Milwaukee. The lax laws of Illinois tempted them, and they came to Rockford. They had hardly reached here when the pursuing mother and sister arrived. There was a stormy scene in the public waiting room of the Rockford Street Railway company. Stockwell finally left the quarreling women and disappeared. Mrs. Stiple then persuaded her rebellious daughter to accompany her home, and the reunited family left on the first train for Minneapolis.

"COFFEE JOHN" CROSSES DIVIDE.

Man Who Held Fate of Ames in His Hand Dies Suddenly.

Minneapolis, Dec. 15. — John Fitchette, otherwise "Coffee John," one of the most unique personalities ever associated with Minneapolis municipal politics, died at his country place, Burr Oaks, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Fitchette was stricken with pneumonia on Wednesday, and owing to his physical peculiarities was unable to rally from the disease.

In view of the death of Fitchette it is probable that the pretense of hunting for Ames will no longer be kept up, as dependence would have been placed on the evidence of the former to convict the latter. The only other men who was really "in the know" is also dead. Ames himself is suffering from an incurable malady, according to all accounts, and there is no doubt that he will very shortly make the same crossing at which Tanner and Fitchette preceded him.

Forgeries Are Extensive.

Le Sueur, Minn., Dec. 15.—Eighteen hundred and eight dollars in forged notes, bearing good farmers' names, have lately been sold to money lenders at Le Sueur Center. The forger has not been arrested.

Almost Wiped Out.

Mason City, Iowa, Dec. 15. — The town of Vantura was nearly wiped out by fire. The total loss was $50,000, with insurance of $25,000.

Convicted of Killing His Father.

Waukesha, Wis., Dec. 15. — George Bowers was convicted of murder in the first degree. He was charged with killing his father several weeks ago. A stay of sentence was granted pending arguments for a new trial.

Cars Kill Cattle.

Winona, Minn., Dec. 15.—While going at a high rate of speed near Bangor a Northwestern passenger train struck a big herd of cattle and killed fourteen. The cattle were thrown in all directions.

HITS AT AMERICA

EVIDENTLY THE PURPOSE OF GERMANY'S NEW TARIFF LAW.

MADE CLEAR BY THE SPEECHES

ALTHOUGH UNITED STATES WAS NOT SPECIFICALLY MENTIONED.

HARD ON THE CHICAGO PACKERS

WILL DEPRIVE THEM OF 25 PER CENT OF THEIR EXPORT TRADE.

Berlin, Dec. 15.—During the debate on the third reading of the tariff bill which was passed Saturday it was evident from many speeches delivered by members of the majority that the bill is aimed chiefly at the United States. This was clear even when the United States was not named, for it was understood that the term "abroad" referred to America.

Dr. Paasche, a National Liberal, made a pointed reference to the United States, which most of the newspapers failed to print. The Deutsche Tages Zeitung, the leading Agrarian organ, however, published Dr. Paasche's remarks in heavy-faced type. They are doubly interesting since they disclose the government's policy with regard to future treaty negotiations.

"We expect," said Dr. Paasche, "that the government will undertake a thoroughgoing revision of all treaties giving the most favored nation advantages. Promises of this kind were made to us in committee. We have absolutely no occasion to concede anything to such nations as are glad to take what we give other countries without making us any concession in return. The United States has introduced the limitation of the most favored nation clause; we have every reason to act in precisely the same manner."

Hits Chicago Packers.

Chicago, Dec. 15. — The tariff bill passed by the German reichstag early yesterday morning, Chicago packers say, will deprive them of almost 25 per cent of their provision export trade, exclusive of fresh meats, and the packers already are preparing to urge the United States government to take some action that will give them relief. William O. Evans, of the foreign department of Armour & Co., who returned in Chicago yesterday from Berlin, where he had been in the interests of the house he represents, said the bill would deprive the American packers of nearly all their German export trade. It also would react on the poorer classes in Germany.

"The new Law will rob the packers of a great part of the German export trade, which is 25 per cent of all our foreign business," said Mr. Evans. "At present the outlook is not bright, and if prices continue high it will be practically impossible for us to win back any of the trade."

LOUBET IN UNITED STATES.

French President Practically Decides to Visit America During World's Fair.

Paris, Dec. 15.—It is practically decided that President Loubet will visit America in June, 1904. It is believed that a visit by the head of the French government would be particularly apropos at that time, it being the centennial of the cession of Louisiana by France, which was in a way the foundation of the United States of to-day. The president's outgoing voyage would be accompanied by a French warship by way of New Orleans, up the Mississippi river to St. Louis, where he would visit the exposition, then across the United States to Washington, finally embarking on a United States warship for the return trip to France.

FALSELY ACCUSES WIFE.

Nebraska Farmer Says She Poisoned Him.

Kearney, Neb., Dec. 15.—A farmer named Evans, living near here, burned his house and barns, valued at several thousand dollars, and then took a dose of strychnine, from which he died. While suffering from the drug Evans accused his wife of poisoning him and drove her from the place at the point of a shotgun. An inquest will be held.

DERAILED BY LANDSLIDE.

Train Is Wrecked and Two Men Are Killed.

Washington, Dec. 15. — The westbound express on the Chesapeake & Ohio railway was derailed at Whitcomb, W. Va., by a landslide of rock caused by the long and continuous rains. The engine, postal car and baggage cars were derailed and the engineer and fireman killed. The baggagemaster was hurt slightly.

FARMER INSTANTLY KILLED.

Dies Beneath Train While Driving Home With Sweetheart.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 15.—Peale Wright, a young farmer living at Scotts, was instantly killed beneath a Grand Rapids & Indiana train at Indiana Fields, six miles north of here. He was driving home from Kalamazoo with his sweetheart, Nellie Snyder, who lost a limb in the accident. She also may die.

TIED UP BY LACK OF COAL.

Big Car Ferries of the Ann Arbor Road Out of the Running.

Frankfort, Mich., Dec. 15. — Two of the big car ferries of the Ann Arbor railway are tied up at their docks here, unable to proceed from this port because of the insufficient coal supply. There is not ten tons of soft coal in storage here, where about 150 cars are usually kept on hand. All engines on the division north of Durand are in danger of being tied up unless relief comes soon.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 17, 1902.

The Venezuelan situation at present would indicate that the United States is not disposed to allow the Monroe doctrine to interfere with the collection of bad debts. England and Germany are in the collection business down there and Venezuela is being taught a lesson to the effect that they had better pay up and not look for the Monroe doctrine to keep off the European powers.

The editor of the Valley View, a newspaper published at East Grand Forks, yesterday secured a verdict for $250 from the petit jury of Polk county as damages for an assault committed on him by the chief of police of East Grand Forks. Verily, it does not pay to try to lick the editor.

The Warren Register and the Warren Sheaf have both done themselves proud by issuing very fine Christmas numbers.

The special edition of the Scientific American, devoted to transportation on land and sea, cannot fail to attract widespread interest, both because of the very handsome manner in which it is gotten up and on account of the voluminous amount of information that it contains. It is safe to say that anyone that reads it carefully through will find himself thoroughly posted both as to the magnitude and high quality of our railroads and shipping. The Scientific American has its own characteristic way of presenting what some people might call dry statistical matter in an interesting form, and the present number is no exception to the rule. Both artist and editor have colaborated to certainly very good effect, and we believe the number will meet everywhere with a hearty reception.

THE ELDER SOTHERN.

A Couple of the Celebrated Comedian's Practical Jokes.

Many stories are told of Sothern's original methods of entertaining his friends at dinner, and possibly the most amusing is that of the belated guest. When, late in the dinner, this friend was announced, Mr. Sothern exclaimed, "Let us all hide under the table," and down they all went save Mr. Sothern himself, who remained seated. When the tardy guest entered, Mr. Sothern rose and received him with exquisite courtesy, saying, "When your name was announced, my guests, for some unaccountable reason, all hid under the table." After a few moments of discomfort one by one they crept out and back to their seats.

I heard from both Mr. Sothern and Mrs. Vincent this account of an outburst of fun at a dinner given by him in his parlor at the Revere House: As the guests, ten in number, were gathered about the open fire before dinner a stout, pompous waiter, afflicted with short breath, added the last touches to his dinner table, already spread. Ten large, square pieces of bread were placed with mathematical precision one at each plate, and then he left the room to bring the wine. Mr. Sothern saw his opportunity and, calling his dog, cried: "Tiger, the bread! Quick, Tiger!" And the nimble little grayhound bounded lightly upon the table again and again as he heard his master's imperative "Fetch the bread!" until each piece had been removed to a dark corner near the fire.

Upon the waiter's return all was silence. The expectant look upon Mr. Sothern's face showed only that dinner was awaited. Standing for a moment, bewildered, the waiter, seeing no bread upon the table, hesitatingly turned to the door, then retraced his steps to the table, examined it carefully and hurriedly left the room. He soon reappeared with a fresh plate of bread, and again at each plate a piece was carefully placed, and he retired with the empty plate. "Quick, Tiger! Fetch it again! More bread! More bread!"

And once more each piece was removed before the grave waiter reappeared, and all were again silent. One look at the table and one at the guests, and there remained no doubt. Those poor, hungry actors had eaten it! With a look of contempt he announced dinner, and after all were safely seated at the table he brought a third plate of bread and with a fork placed it, with a gesture of scorn, piece by piece for each person and for the host. The merry scene soon disarmed his hostility, and before the evening was over the bread in the corner was revealed.—Mrs. Lucy Derby Fuller in Century.

Measles and Ammonia.

A Detroit woman who labors among the poor children of the city was telling her experiences.

"One day there was a death in the neighborhood; a little girl died, and the children were visibly impressed. They told me about it in unison.

"'It was better for her, wasn't it, missus?' one little girl said philosophically.

"'What was the trouble?' I asked.

"'Oh,' another spoke up, 'she had measles and ammonia on the lungs and a lot of things.'

"I was of course deeply impressed by the 'lots of things,' but more so by the 'ammonia on the lungs.'"—Detroit Free Press.

Knew What to Do With It.

A miserly landlord was going round collecting his rents the other day. At one house he was greatly interested in a little girl who watched, open mouthed and open eyed, the business of paying over the money and accepting the receipt.

He patted her on the head and started out to search his pockets, saying, "I must see what I have got for you." After searching his pockets for some time he at last brought from a remote corner a peppermint. As he handed it to the girl he said, "And now what will you do with that?"

The little girl looked at it, then at him and replied, "Wash it."—London Answers.

St. Paul, Minn
Gentlemen:

I desire to state that at your request I made a thorough examination of local beers sold in this market, among them yours, and have no hesitancy in saying that I found your beer to be an absolutely pure, well matured and healthful product. In fact, of the samples examined by me, yours was, particularly with reference to purity and age, above the others.

I would further say that these examinations were made by me without information to indicate the manufacturers of the respective brands until after the completion of the analyses.

Respectfully Yours,

K. R. Killand, Watchman.
H. A. Johnson, Sentry.

$500 Reward.

The city council of Crookston and the citizens have offered jointly a reward of $500 for the recovery of the body, dead or alive, of Miss Gertrude Strassburger who has been missing for the last two weeks. Every available effort has been made by the young lady's parents and the officials to gain some clue to her whereabouts, but all has been unavailing so far. The country is being flooded with posters announcing the reward and bearing an excellent picture of the missing girl.

Wages and Cost of Living.

Men are too willing to think every one must be prosperous if wages are high, but laborers don't wear money nor eat money, and if the things they wear and eat are advanced in price, and wages not advanced accordingly, the workers are not prosperous. It is not prosperity that causes strikes, but a higher scale of living prices than of wages. Wages are undoubtedly high at present, and golden grain belt beer at the same price as always is well within the reach of all. Pure, delicious and nourishing, it should be in every home. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Great Northern New Clergymen Half Fare Permits.

The new half rate clergy permits that are about to be issued by the Great Northern railway for the year 1903 are good over nearly every railroad west of Chicago; they are good on all lines between St. Paul and Chicago, also on all lines of the trans-continental association.

A charge of $1.00 is made for this permit and application blanks can be obtained from all agents of the Great Northern Railway company.

TWENTY .....Years Ago.

HAPPENINGS IN ST. HILAIRE AS TOLD IN THE COLUMNS OF THE SPECTATOR, DECEMBER 1882.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 13.

Buffalo overcoats are all the rage now and the wearer is as "snug as a bug in a rag."

The telephone line between Crookston and Red Lake Falls is almost completed and the "hello's" will be put in at once. It will be St. Hilaire's turn next.

Red Lake Falls is trying the experiment of having one day in the week set apart as market day when all the farmers can bring in their produce and do their trading. A good idea.

The property purchased by C. D. Rumyard, of Waverly, Iowa, while here was three lots on Broadway and the consideration $825 cash. Mr. R. got a bargain.

Winnipeg takes the chromo for cold weather. A correspondent to the Minneapolis Tribune reports it 67 degrees below zero in that burg.

Charles Robbecke, the well known restaurant keeper, has purchased lot 11, block 23, in Crocker & Cundy's addition and will at once proceed to the erection of a first class bakery and restaurant. Mr. R. is an old resident in these parts, and this fact combined with his well established fame as a caterer will be sufficient to make his venture here a success.

We have good authority for saying that Jim Hill is at present building a steamer which he intends putting on the river to ply between St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls. He also intends taking one of the steamers which was run last season to Lake Minnetonka and putting it in here. Part of the machinery for the new boat is already finished and Mr. Hill says he will put the boats on the river just as soon as it is open in the spring.

A lack of energy on the part of our inhabitants is the only great drawback our town has to contend with. They seem to have made up their minds that the place is bound to grow and all that is necessary for them to do is sit still and reap the benefits of its prosperity. This is a sad mistake. Nature has done much for us but she will not do it all. "God helps them that help themselves" and unless we do something toward organizing our place into a village and thereby investing the money in home improvements which now goes for the support of other places, St. Hilaire will never reach that high pinnacle of prosperity to which we all look forward.

If all things are true, this winter will be a severe one, colder in fact than it has been since the Northmen swept down upon the coast of Newfoundland. Squirrels are laying in their coal, beavers are putting heaters in the basements of their lodges, bees have covered their hives with sheet iron, muskrats have crawled into their holes and pulled the holes in after them, wild ducks are committing suicide, ground hogs are flying south, the goose bone is black sixteen inches deep, editors are soliciting wood on subscription, poor families are buying an extra [illegible] each, and we are wearing our six-year old overcoat.—Ex.

MRS. HENRIETTA A. S. MARSH.

Woman's Benevolent Association of Chicago.

Mrs. Henrietta A. S. Marsh, President Woman's Benevolent Association, of 327 Jackson Park Terrace, Woodlawn, Chicago, Ill., says:

"I suffered with la grippe for seven weeks and nothing helped me until I tried Peruna. I felt at once that I had at last secured the right medicine and kept steadily improving. Within three weeks I was fully restored."—Henrietta A. S. Marsh

Independent Order of Good Templars, of Washington.

Mrs. T. W. Collins, Treasurer I. O. G. T., of Everett, Wash., has used the great catarrhal tonic, Peruna, for an aggravated case of dyspepsia. She writes:

"After having a severe attack of la grippe, I also suffered with dyspepsia. After taking Peruna I could eat my regular meals with relish, my system was built up, my health returned, and I have remained in excellent strength and vigor now for over a year."—Mrs. T. W. Collins.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Never Heard of it.

"It it not soothing," asked the maiden, "to sit here and gaze upon the face of Nature?"

"Yes," answered the mere man.

"Dear old Nature!" resumed she. "Her face is ever fresh and fair. She ever has a smile for us all, and we know that her face is unsullied and untouched by the artifice of fashion."

"Well," remarked the mere man, "I don't know that I ever heard of the artifices of fashion requiring two men and a horse to go over the face of humanity with a two-ton roller every week."—Cassell's Journal.

The Schoolboys and the Queen.

Two little schoolboys in Holland recently sent Queen Wilhelmina a quaint little letter, which, translated, reads: "Dear Queen—Do, please, say that our teacher is not to be sent away. She is so good to us, and we love her so much, and really she hasn't done anything. Father says you are powerful and good, and that you even pardon murderers, because you wish had people to become good again." Queen Wilhelmina sent a reply promising that the case of the teacher threatened with dismissal should be investigated.—Leslie's Weekly.

Fifty Dollars to Sit Down.

Carmel, Ind., Dec. 15th.—Mr. Joseph L. Duffy relates an experience that has aroused considerable interest in this locality. It is best given in his own words.

"When I was working in the fields," says Mr. Duffy, "I would be ready to quit, but I could not get to the house I was so weak. It was worth fifty dollars to get to sit down.

"I had no strength and a person without strength is not much use.

"But bless the Lord I took four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they gave me health, strength and appetite.

"I might say I am cured, but I will keep on taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. Yes, I'll get them if it takes the last thing on the farm."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have effected quite a number of other cures here and it seems safe to say they are an effective and permanent cure for all diseases arising from the Kidneys.

Sometimes a man thinks himself a rare genius but his neighbors call him "half-baked."

Disposal of the Dead a Problem in Cities

Almost every page of the records of London and Paris contains examples of the desecration of abandoned graveyards, and there is hardly a city in the Old World that has not disturbed at least one of these resting places of their whilom inhabitants. In our towns of rapid growth the cemetery of to-day becomes the heart of a metropolis to-morrow; the demolition of graveyards in New York and Boston has been a frequent occurrence until it fails to attract attention.

When the Colon cemetery of Havana became overcrowded, the Cubans found it necessary to clear it of skulls, and promiscuously shoveled them into a common boneyard. It presented an aspect so ghastly that Gen. Wood concluded to cover the pit and re-open it only for the next overflow of skeletons, expected in about five years. In certain cemeteries of London, corpses are buried in standing postures because no room is left to lay them down. Bodies of the poor generally are packed over each other in tiers, and the trench is kept open until filled. In the poverty corner of Calvary cemetery this has been the customary treatment of the remains of paupers. Newtown, where Calvary is situated, harbors eighty corpses to every living inhabitant. The convenient villages of Corona, Elmhurst and Woodside, once parts of Newtown, which now are annexed to New York, and constitute the geographical center of the enlarged city, might increase in population if it were not for the proximity of vast and dreary charnel fields.

A law relating to public health provided forty years ago that no grave be dug or opened south of Eighty-sixth street, and that no cemetery be opened in any part of the city and county of New York. This law should be enforced and applied not to Greater New York alone, but to the territory within a radius of 100 miles around every populous town. People who insist on their inanimate bodies remaining inviolate should have them carried to a distance where they can neither inconvenience nor injure the living, who need the room, and are natural heirs of the departed. Famous intermural cemeteries, like Mount Auburn (Boston), Greenwood (New York), and Laurel Hill (Philadelphia), could be transformed into admirable parks. Monuments of architectural beauty might remain undisturbed. Others might be replaced by trees with suitable tablets to mark the spot of those upon whose dust they grow. The Turks, loth to desecrate the grave of a Mussulman, have adopted a similar custom, and thereby have made the cemeteries of Constantinople attractive to strangers.—Louis Windmuller in Municipal Affairs.

Scientific Men Are Rebuffed by Sultan

No surprise was manifested at the information received from Constantinople that the Sultan of Turkey had again refused a "firmin" or permission to an American named Banks to excavate "Tel Ibrahim," a mountain about nine hours' ride northeast of the ruins of Babylon, where a tradition of the country has it that the tomb of Abraham is situated.

There are two of these so-called "Tombs of Abraham" in this region, the one Mr. Banks desired to excavate and the other southwest of Babylon, where tradition says the Tower of Babel was situated. Interest is attached to both places owing to the ruins of buildings of an ancient people and to the traditions invested in them by the Arabs and Turks, but archeologists do not believe that either is the site of the tomb of Abraham, locating the last resting place of the patriarch of the Children of Israel in the Cave of Machpelah, near Hebron, in Palestine, where Abraham buried his wife Sarah.

Two years ago Mr. Banks, who is a graduate from Harvard, made efforts to secure permission from the Sultan of Turkey to excavate the Ur or City of Chaldees on the western bank of the Mesopotamia.

It is said that John D. Rockefeller contributed $12,000 to the fund which Mr. Banks raised to defray the expenses of the expedition he was organizing. He returned to Constantinople and as the representative of several American universities, including, it is said, Harvard, he applied to the Porte for permission to excavate.

Refusal was made by the Sultan owing, it is said, to the religious associations of the so-called tomb of Abraham, many of the Mohammedans believing that the mountain, which is the place mentioned as Cuthal in Second Kings to the Bible, is really the site of the burying place of Abraham. In addition to the question of offending the religious beliefs of the natives of the country, it is said that while Mr. Banks was consul at the City of Bagdad he incurred the displeasure of the Porte.

It was declared at the university that it is problematical whether Banks will ever secure permission to excavate in any part of the Ottoman Empire, although the Sultan has always been cordial toward exploring expeditions, especially those from America, and at present a party of German scientists are at work not far from where Banks desired to excavate.

There are now some six Europeans in the Buddhist priesthood in Burma.

Rapid Progress Being Made by the South

The progress of the south during recent years is one of the wonders of the age. Between 1880 and 1900 the population of the south increased from 16,369,960 to 23,548,404 or 44 per cent, but in the same period southern agricultural, manufactured and mineral products increased in value from $1,134,586,229 to $2,844,646,440, or 157 per cent. Farm values grew from $2,290,364,321 to $3,951,631,632. Farming is improving, as is shown by the fact that, while the acreage in wheat increased in the two decades but 12 per cent, the crop increased 82 per cent. The average per acre is nearly two bushels higher than the average for the whole country. The corn, hay and oat crops about doubled, and the cotton output increased over 99 per cent. The value of the crop of cotton in 1900, seed included, was $550,000,000. The rice and sugar crops much more than doubled, and the product of southern tobacco is 70 per cent of that of the entire Union. The rural population is accordingly fairly prosperous, and its gain in numbers between 1890 and 1900 was much larger than that of all the rest of the United States.

1880 there were 161 cotton factories; in 1900 there were 400. Between 1890 and 1900 the south gained 2,747,839 cotton spindles, against a gain of but 2,172,410 in the north. In the same period the capital in cotton manufacturing increased from $53,000,000 to $124,000,000. But oil mills, furnaces, rolling mills, furniture and other woodworking mills have also sprung up as if by magic. An epitome of the manufactures of the south shows 92,522 manufacturing establishments in 1900, with a capital of $1,111,688,852 against 43,726 establishments in 1880, with a capital of $261,692,038. The value of product has grown from $446,572,481 to $1,419,001,873. The mining output in 1900 was $116,352,763 against $17,807,646 in 1882. The lumber industry has also increased phenomenally.

This industrial progress has resulted largely from the expansion of the railway systems and the improvement of harbor facilities. Southern ports have increased their exports since 1880 by 99.6 per cent, this being a sequel of the increase of southern railway mileage from 21,812 miles to 52,594 miles, a growth of 143 per cent, against the growth of but 98 per cent to the rest of the Union.

COWS SHOWED THE CHARM.

Musical Strains on a Violin That Attracted Their Attention.

At a recent concert of the hospital music fund, given in Cambridge (Mass.) city hospital, one of the musicians did a thing which recalls the ancient history of Orpheus and his enchanting lyre.

At the farther end of a field opposite the institution two cows were quietly grazing with their backs toward the street. The first violinist asserted that he could speak with those cows by means of his violin at that distance. Being doubted, he played one chord on the two lower strings of his instrument. The animals immediately quit feeding, raised their heads, turned in the direction of the sound and looked interested. The violinist drew his bow on the strings a second time and the animals came directly across the field and put their heads over the rails of the fence, with ears thrown forward, nostrils dilated and eyes inquiring. The third time the chord was played the animals simultaneously answered with a sharp, short lowing and uneasy stamping of forefeet.

A word in cow language was plainly said by the violin and was answered by the cows. The incident was seen by Dr. Dixwell and six or seven others interested in the hospital music charity. Some of the more incredulous members of the party thought that perhaps the animals which answered the sound were looking for another cow hidden from view, but there was no near hiding place and the sunlight was clear.

TO MARK INGALLS' GRAVE.

His Friends Seek for a Stone Such as He Described.

The grave of the late John J. Ingalls at Mt. Vernon cemetery will be marked by a native bowlder deposited in Kansas soil to the glacial period, according to an Atchison, Kan., dispatch in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. This will be done in obedience to a letter written in the senate chamber at Washington, Dec. 10, 1890, to Mrs. Ingalls to Atchison. The letter follows:

"The cold wave has passed off and the morning is like April. The world is so lovely at its best; this life is so delightful that I dread the thought of leaving it. I have seen and experienced so little of what may be seen and known that it seems like closing a volume of which I have only glanced at the title page.

"What an uncivil host life is, to invite us to an entertainment which we are compelled to attend whether we like it or not, and then to unceremoniously take us by the arm and bow us out into the night, stormy and dismal, to go stumbling about without so much as a lantern to show us the way to another town.

"Our ground in the cemetery should have a 'monument.' I hate these obelisks, urns and stone cottages, and should prefer a great natural rock—one of the red bowlders known as the 'lost rocks' of the 'prairie,' porphyry from the North, brought down in glacial times—with a small surface smoothed down, just large enough to make a tablet in which should be inserted the bronze letters of our name, 'Ingalls,' and nothing else."

A stone such as described is now being sought.

RECORD OF THE PAST.

The best guarantee of the future is the record of the past, and over fifty thousand people have publicly testified that Doan's Kidney Pills have cured them of numerous kidney ills, from common backache to dangerous diabetes, and all the attendant annoyances and sufferings from urinary disorders. They have been cured to stay cured. Here is one case:

Samuel J. Taylor, retired carpenter, residing at 312 South Third St., Goshen, Ind., says: "On the 20th day of August, 1897, I made an affidavit before Jacob C. Mann, notary public, stating my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. I had suffered for thirty years, and was compelled at times to walk with the aid of crutches, frequently passed gravel and suffered excruciatingly. I took every medicine on the market that I heard about and some gave me temporary relief. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and the results I gave to the public to the statement above referred to. At this time, on the 19th day of July, 1902, I make this further statement that during the five years which have elapsed I have had no occasion to use either Doan's Kidney Pills or any other medicine for my kidneys. The cure effected was a permanent one."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Taylor, will be mailed on application, to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents per box.

A Wrong Interpretation.

A bright young woman was very deeply interested in her Sunday school class, and endeavored to make the little ones understand different verses in the Bible more clearly by letting them finish each sentence.

"The idol had eyes," she said, "but it couldn't—"

"See!" cried the children.

"It had lips, but it couldn't—"

"Speak!" the children answered.

"It had ears, but it couldn't—"

"Hear!" they once more correctly replied.

"It had a nose, but it couldn't—"

"Blow it!" the children confidently shouted.—New York Evening Sun.

"Well," remarked Miss Innocence, "the government may not believe in women taking the initiative in matters of love, but this city certainly does."

"I don't see how," replied Miss Antike, with more interest than might have been expected.

"It's plain as print. The city clerk is advertising in the newspapers for 'sealed proposals,'" replied Miss Innocence.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Bret Harte Comforted.

Bret Harte was once shooting in Scotland and met with a serious gun accident. While he was being stitched together, the son of the house came on tip-toe to the door of his room and whispered to the surgeon:

Only One Blockhead Left.

Conversation became reminiscent at the Lawyers' club, the other day, the late Judge James T. Brady being the subject. A veteran practitioner, who knew him well, said:

"Brady's first attempt at practicing law was in very humble quarters, to the rear of a cobbler's shop in Fulton street, near William. One day an Irishman who called and inquired for the cobbler, was told by Brady that he was not. Peering about the room of the newly-fledged lawyer, scantily furnished with two unpainted chairs and a deal table, he inquired:

"'I say, boss, what do you sell here?'

"'Blockheads,' promptly replied Mr. Brady.

"'Humph!' said the Irishman, 'must be doing a good business, as I see you have only one left.'"—New York Times.

Six-Tenths Drunk.

"The testimony of a policeman in the police court the other day caused quite a bit of laughter," a member of the bar said to a couple of friends yesterday forenoon.

"A man was on trial for violating the temperance clause of the vagrancy law, which means that he was charged with being an habitual drunkard.

"How drunk was this man when you arrested him?' the prosecuting attorney asked the officer, when he was called upon to testify against the man with the appetite for firewater.

"'About six-tenths drunk, I guess,' the blue-coat replied.

"'How did you arrive at that conclusion?' he was asked.

"'Well, I heard the judge say, the other day, that ten drinks would make a man drunk, and this man had taken about six drinks before I arrested him', the guardian of the peace answered, in all seriousness."—Washington Evening Star.

An Old Argument.

It is just an incident of club life.

"Going home?" asked one of the party.

"Yes," was the reply.

"What's the use of breaking away?" asked several. "Be sociable."

The young man paused. It's an old, old argument, and most effective. No one likes to be considered unsociable, but sociability sometimes makes it necessary to call a cab later.

"Be sociable," urged the party again.

"I believe I will," said the young man, thoughtfully; "in fact, I'm convinced that I ought to be."

"But you're putting on your coat."

"I know it. I'm going to be sociable with my wife this time."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Miss Paine's Experience.

"I want to thank you for what you have done for me, and recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all girls whose work keeps them standing on their feet in the store. The doctor said I must stop work; he did not seem to realize that a girl cannot afford to stop working. My back ached, my appetite was poor, I could not sleep, and menstruation was scanty and very painful. One day when suffering I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and found that it helped me. I continued its use, and soon found that my menstrual periods were free from pain and natural; everyone is surprised at the change in me, and I am well, and cannot be too grateful for what you have done for me."—Miss Janet Paine, 530 West 125th St., New York City.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The Skogfrau's Christmas Gift

BY CHAS. H. ROBINSON

AHA! KARA barn, the smell of thy coffee is like the taste of wine to the thirsty after my long tramp in the crusty snow," and Karl the iron-founder threw off his huge skin coat and emptied at a gulp the brimming cup of coffee handed him by his sister Olga. Then placing a finger on his lip:

"Var stilla, my Olga, I have somewhat to tell thee, but yonder little pitcher has long ears. So," he continued, turning to a mite of a girl sitting sedately near the blazing fireplace, intently engaged in thumbing a well-worn primer book, "thou art studious, min lilla flicka, as I told thee to be. Come hither, my little maid, and show me thy book."

He took the book quickly offered him, and deftly placing in it something he secretly drew from his pocket, thrust it out of sight behind him.

"Dost remember, sweetheart, that I told thee the rooster pictured on the front page of thy book would bring thee something if thou wert good?"

"Ja, brother Karl, and so I have been good; ask sister Olga," said the child, smiling up into his face.

"Indeed, yes," answered Olga, drawing the little sister close into her arms, and giving her a hug and a kiss. "Thilda is always sweet and good."

"Well, then, let us see what the rooster has brought thee, my Thilda."

Opening the book, Karl pretended to be amazed at something he saw, and showing it to Olga, she raised her hands in well-assumed astonishment. Thilda, unable to restrain her curiosity, suddenly seized the book carelessly held in Karl's huge hand just within her reach, and opening it, uttered a shout of delight as she drew forth a beautiful white candy dog, with a pink ribbon round its neck.

"Thank you, good Karl," she said, simply, pouting up her lips for a kiss.

"Nay, child, 'tis not me thou hast to thank, but the rooster," he explained, adding: "Now, min lilla flicka, thou knowest that the good Johan is far away from home, wilt go into thy chamber and pray for thy sister's betrothed? I have that to say to her which thou mayst not hear. Good child," he continued, patting her head as she turned obediently to obey.

"I have some news, my sister, about thy sweetheart. It is of some importance, since it tells me that thy Johan still lives."

"May the good God so ordain," said Olga fervently, "and may He restore him to my arms."

"Amen," murmured Karl, "but to the news. 'Tis now three days since Johan went into the dark forest to cut the firs for the Jul Tieden and returned not as he should have done that same night. The next day we found his ax buried deep in a tree, as thou knowest, but all other trace of him was lost. Well, to-day we penetrated as far as the gloomy Falun mines and found his empty wallet."

"And—and—thou didst follow his steps in the snow?" stammered Olga. "Tell me quickly, Karl, my brother."

"That is what we did not do, Olga, for the reason that there were no footprints in the snow. The wallet could not have been cast there by any one, for we tracked a circle of a hundred yards and found the snow unbroken. Moreover, a piece of ore was laid upon it as if to prevent its being blown away. It was placed there, but not by Johan, Olga."

"Thank God, he has found a shelter there, some miners, perhaps. He may even now be on his way to me," said Olga, joyously. "Go quickly, my brother, to meet him."

"Do not raise thy hopes too high, my sister, neither let thy heart sink. Thy Johan is alive, true, but the hand that placed his wallet where it was found was not that of a mortal. Nay—be not alarmed," he said, putting an arm around her, for the girl was seized with a fit of trembling. "Be brave, my sister, and all will be well if thou wilt be guided by me."

"In anything and everything, my brother," said Olga, clasping her hands. "My soul for Johan's if need be."

"Not that, kära söster, not that shall be required of thee, but bravery thou must show, little woman, such bravery as few men dare show. Thy Johan's return depends upon thee."

"I am ready to face death himself," said Olga, "only tell me what to do."

"Listen, then. I would do it for thee myself, but thou alone canst face the ordeal. I believe the Skogfrau——"

"Oh, my God, the Skogfrau, the terrible forest witch," cried the terror-stricken maiden, falling on her knees and holding up her hands to heaven. "Spare my Johan, oh, heaven!"

"So this is thy bravery," said Karl sternly. "Rise from thy knees and nerve thyself for an ordeal that is not difficult, but requires bravery to tell thee. Wouldst lose thy Johan forever? The Jul Tieden begins at midnight, and at that hour thou must stand alone upon the spot where Johan's wallet still lies, and demand a gift from the Skogfrau. She cannot refuse thee if thou art the first mortal to demand it at that hour. 'Tis thy only hope, for she has lured Johan into her power, and if thou shalt demand him in the name of the Christ Child she may not refuse thy request, since at this season she loses her power and is at the mercy of mortals, but once only."

"Thou wilt be close beside me, my brother?" asked Olga, shivering.

"Within five hundred paces is a charmed circle which none but thou may enter, but I will be just beyond it and hear thy call for aid should aught happen requiring it. Thou must stand alone upon the spot and say three times, 'Skogfrau, in the name of the Christ Child I demand a gift of thee.' Three times, remember, my sister. She may appear terrible in her wrath and threaten thee and thy Johan, but fear not, she will be powerless either to harm thee or him. Come, prepare, for the way is long and midnight must not pass ere thou art there."

"But Thilda? We cannot leave the dear child here alone."

"'Tis all arranged with Dame Thekla," explained Karl. "We shall take the child thither and she will sleep well: Thilda, min lilla flicka!" called Karl to the child, "come hither. Hast prayed for Olga's Johan, child?"

"Ja, my brother, and the good God tells me he shall come home again."

"Then so shall it be, my sweet child, but come, wouldst like to taste Frau Thekla's seed cakes, eh? I thought as much. Well, thou shalt as soon as I can carry thee thither. Come sweetheart; come, Olga."

Though wrapped in the warmest of furs, Olga shivered as she stood alone amid the silent, gloomy, wintry waste of the forest. Not long had she waited ere distinctly through the awful stillness came the clanging strokes of midnight which Karl rung upon the barrel of his gun with a hammer to warn her of the time. With a clear but quavering voice the girl called out three times: "Skogfrau, in the name of the Christ Child, I demand a gift of thee. Skogfrau, in the name of the Christ Child, I demand a gift of thee. Skogfrau, in the name of the Christ Child, I demand a gift of thee." For a moment there was intense silence, then came a rushing sound as of a tempest approaching, and a rasping voice spoke to her:

"Johan, thy betrothed!" shrieked the hag. "Girl, thou art mad. Get thee gone, and at midnight on the Jul Afton I will bring thee a jewel such as none can boast, but not Johan. He is mine, I tell thee, mine forever. I will not give him up," and she raised her arm as if to strike, but now Olga feared her not.

"Why troublest thou me, mortal? Dost thou not know that I can blast thee with a breath? Speak, what wilt thou?"

"In the name of the Christ Child, I demand a gift of thee," was all that Olga could utter in her terror. It was a terrible old hag who stood before her and her aspect was threatening.

"Some paltry thing, I wis, a ribbon, a jewel? Speak, mortal, whatever it may be, 'tis thine."

Growing bolder, Olga spoke more firmly: "Thou hast promised, and in the name of the Christ Child thou must keep thy promise. 'Tis not a ribbon, or a jewel, but my Johan, my betrothed, I demand of thee as thy gift."

"Johan, thy betrothed!" shrieked the hag. "Girl, thou art mad. Get thee gone, and at midnight on the Jul Afton I will bring thee a jewel such as none can boast, but not Johan. He is mine, I tell thee, mine forever. I will not give him up," and she raised her arm as if to strike, but now Olga feared her not.

"In the name of the Christ Child I demand Johan of thee. Thou hast promised whatever I might ask, and I will have no other gift from thee."

In vain the old crone raved and cursed and begged the girl to take all she possessed, but not the youth. She tore her hair and beat her breast and threatened dire vengeance upon the girl and her betrothed, but the clanging of Karl's hammer gave Olga courage to repeat her demand: "Give me my Johan in the name of the Christ Child."

At last, the hag, worn out, said harshly: "Get thee home, and at the stroke of midnight on the Jul Afton I will bring thee thy Johan," then with a bitter scream she disappeared, and Olga fell fainting in the snow, but the faithful Karl revived her and brought her safely home.

"Now, my sister, thou must prepare for the Jul Afton, the eve of the great day when the Christ Child was born. Do not fear, thy Johan will come at midnight, as the terrible old hag of the forest said. I will help thee prepare trenchers of snow-white lutfisk, and heaps of kött bolar. We must have a mountain of seed cakes and keep filled with smoking punch the huge bowl thy father left thee. We must not forget the coffee, kära söster, oceans of it, nor the salt pig and the baskets of spice bread. We shall have the village there, and all be ready to greet Johan with a loud 'skald,' for he will be sadly in need of it. And the pastor, Olga, he must be there and he must remain there, and thou must be ready and willing to do as I bid thee. I have my reasons, my sister; the Skogfrau has been defeated thus far, but she is revengeful; yet I have a plan to end her power over Johan forever. Wilt do as I say, little one?"

"Ja, my brother, though it be to do again as I did to-night."

"It will not be so terrible, my sister, and when thou hast done it thou wilt laugh and rejoice. Now, to bed with thee, to lay up freshness for the morrow. I will watch over the sweet Thilda and bring her to thy arms in the morning."

The Jul Tieden began with its merrymaking and feasting. In one week, on the Jul Afton, the Christmas Eve, the climax would be reached. There was a squealing in the pens, a squalling, cackling and quacking in the coops. Every oven was kept at the baking point and laden with savory toothsome viands. Presents were dragged out from their hiding places and marked with loving mottoes, and the names of the favored recipients. There was a general scrubbing, cleaning and dusting, and a furbishing up of holiday garments and finery.

The men drowned themselves in coffee, punch and bränvin and shouted themselves hoarse with oft repeated "skald." The women gossiped and cooked and cooked and gossiped, while the chubby children crammed their stomachs with unwonted cakes and sweetmeats unmolested. Everything was free for the taking and the privilege of freedom was accorded everybody.

Olga threw her doors wide open to the whole village, promising a wonderful surprise. Many thought she was not very considerate on Johan's account, thinking she would better be going around with tearful eyes and loud lamentations, but they ate freely of her good things none the less.

Simple souls; they were not aware that the lost Johan was to be the great surprise. Of course, everybody had given him up for lost, and they were amazed that Olga should be the merriest maiden in the village, and that her home was to be the very center of the merrymaking on the Jul Afton. The pastor had been forewarned by Karl, and the good soul came prepared to fight the wicked troll for the salvation of Johan and Olga.

The board groaned beneath the weight of good cheer, and the huge bowl was kept constantly brimming with steaming punch. There was no formal banqueting, everybody eating when the humor seized him, and drinking whether thirsty or not, because good drink was there to be had without the asking. The whole village was there waiting for the surprise and nerving themselves up to withstand it by distending their stomachs. None but Olga, Karl and the pastor knew what it was to be, and even they did not know in what shape it would come.

At last the first stroke of midnight. Olga turned pale, Karl stood at attention and the good pastor grasped his holy book firmly in his hand. The last stroke was still ringing in their ears when a violent gust of wind shook the house and the dragging of heavy chains over the roof brought terror to the inmates. The door was burst open by some invisible force and a heavy bundle was hurled in among the amazed roysterers. An old wizened hag appeared in the doorway and screamed out above the confusion: "Girl, take the gift of the Christ Child, but beware of my vengeance. Shouldst thou accept any other gift before thou hast fully accepted this, then shall it return to me and be mine forever."

Johan was quickly restored by copious libations of hot punch, and when able to stand on his feet, Karl put his hand in that of Olga and gave the pastor a signal. Forthwith, Olga took Johan for her husband, and when the final words were spoken, a tempest again shook the house, heavy chains were again dragged across the roof, and after shrieks of demoniac laughter, all was still without.

With tears and laughter, Olga grasped her brother's hand, and then threw herself into the arms of her husband, the gift of the Christ Child, forever free from the thralls of the Skogfrau.

Quaint Superstitions of the Christmas Decorations

Ax and knife have been doing their vandal work in the fair woods to provide us with the pine and fir, holly, laurel, bay and mistletoe. Why? Because of the Christmas season; because of the festival of rejoicing.

But why these green things? Why the gifts on the branches of pine? Why the holly about the windows, that it may be seen from without, and the laurel over the hearthstone? Why above all and the center of all, these green and living growths, the mistletoe bough?

Christmas seized upon these things for the celebration of the festival not because they were green, but because of the power that held them green, that kept them alive, that preserved in them the beauty of life, notwithstanding the snow and sleet, the wind and chilling rain and the withering blast.

Those who celebrated the Christmastide wanted the benefit of this power for their own protection and preservation, so they took to themselves the emblems of it—surrounded themselves with them, brightened their homes with them and rejoiced amid their branches.

It is the spirit of these living growths that appeals to us when all the rest of inanimate nature appears to be sleeping under the mantle of winter. Before Christmas was, the spirits behind the green were believed in by an imaginative people, and the great festival adopted them.

The ancient Druids believed in the spirits of the holly, of the laurel, of the bay, and of the great green trees that formed the walls and living arches of their temples. To them these things were peopled with sylvan spirits that loved the growths and kept them green by protecting them from winter frosts. The took the branches within their dwelling, believing that the spirits would follow and there exercise their protecting care.

Among these spirits they believe none to be more powerful or capable of bringing greater blessing than those of the mistletoe. Blessed the man and maid who met beneath the mistletoe bough.

These beliefs have gone from the world, but we cling to the emblems of them, and rejoice amid them at the Christmas celebration.

ROOSEVELT AS ARBITER

ENGLAND AND GERMANY WILLING TO SUBMIT CLAIMS TO HIM.

VENEZUELA IS ALSO WILLING

PRESIDENT WANTED QUESTION SUBMITTED TO THE HAGUE TRIBUNAL.

BUT WILL NOT REFUSE TO ACT

NEGOTIATIONS WILL SOON BE UNDER WAY TO STOP HOSTILITIES.

Caracas, Dec. 22. — In the name of Venezuela President Castro has signified the acceptance of the appointment of President Roosevelt to arbitrate the Venezuelan difficulty.

Would Leave It to Roosevelt.

Washington, Dec. 22.—England and Germany have indicated that they will submit their claims against Venezuela to arbitration if President Roosevelt will act as the arbiter.

This is not what the president desired when he requested that the question be submitted to The Hague tribunal for arbitration, and, while he will continue to urge that there is at The Hague all the machinery for arbitration, created by a court of nations, he will not refuse to act as arbiter. He will throw the whole question down as a gauge of battle, with the Monroe doctrine as the barrier holding two great powers from compelling Venezuela to pay her debts.

No New Developments.

Officials of the state department announced to the newspaper reporters last night that there was nothing to make public regarding the latest phases of the Venezuelan embroglio. Such dispatches from the American embassies in Europe and from Minister Bowen at Caracas, regarding Venezuelan matters as came to Washington were of a confidential character, concerning the nature of which it was impossible to ascertain anything. It is believed there has been no change of importance since Saturday, when the state department announced that in response to President Roosevelt's suggestion to the allies that The Hague tribunal arbitrate the issues the European governments suggested that the president himself act in the capacity of arbitrator.

Adopt Detailed Answers.

Berlin, Dec. 22.—It has been learned here that the governments of Germany and Great Britain have adopted detailed answers to the proposal to arbitrate the Venezuelan issues. These communications will be handed to Ambassador Tower here and Charge d'Affaires White in London to-day. The correspondent of the Associated Press has learned further that the German answer agrees in all substantial effects with the British answer, and makes no separate reservations in behalf of the German case.

Observe Strict Secrecy.

London, Dec. 22.—It is believed that President Roosevelt's answer to the proposal made by the allied powers that he arbitrate the Venezuelan issues has been received in London. The strictest secrecy with regard to every phase of the negotiations is preserved, however, and it is impossible to make a definite statement, but such indications as are obtainable point to President Roosevelt's acceptance of the office of arbitrator.

A constant interchange of cablegrams is proceeding night and day between the United States embassy and the state department at Washington. It is believed that the president's answer will be submitted formally to the foreign office to-day. By day after to-morrow, unless some unexpected complications arise, it is believed, it is believed the negotiations will reach a stage assuring a definite arrangement and obviating hostilities.

Blockade is Now On.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Dec. 22. — The blockade of Venezuelan ports was begun with an effective force at midnight last night. The British have the cruisers Indefatigable, Alert and Tribune, the special service steamer Columbine and the torpedo boat destroyer Rocket along the coast. The cruiser Aridane, the flagship Vice Admiral Douglas, is here and will remain here. All the British operations will be directed from Trinidad.

The United States battleships Kearsarge and Alabama arrived here yesterday afternoon. Their appearance provoked considerable comment on shore, but when Admiral Higginson called upon the acting governor of Trinidad and the commander of the British ships he took occasion to explain that the visit to this port of the American men-of-war was part of the usual winter trip of the squadron.

La Guayra, Dec. 22. — The Italian cruiser Giovanni Bausan has captured a sloop which was coming from the east. The British cruiser Tribune left here at noon yesterday for Port of Spain, Trinidad, with the schooner Mercedes in tow.

One of the results of the blockade is that the harbor corporation and shipping firms here have dismissed their laborers. Over 500 men are, therefor out of work.

IN DREAD OF PLAGUE.

Mexicans Fear It is the Bubonic Disease.

Mexico City, Dec. 22. — There is much alarm on the west coast over the reported appearance of bubonic plague at Mazatlan. The local doctors assert that it is the true form of the Asiatic plague, but the doctors of the British warship Grafton decided that it is something else. However, the Grafton has left the port. The governor of the State of Sinola is investigating.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 24, 1902.

The Spectator wishes all its readers a Merry Christmas.

The Venezuelan situation is still the leading topic in the newspapers, and the whole civilized world is waiting to see how the controversy will end. England and Germany want to collect bills and Uncle Sam seems to be inclined to help both sides. A New York firm of bankers—Seligmou's—will put up the cash to pay the Venezuelan debts, provided they may receive all the Venezuelan custom duties and the United States would see to it that they are duly paid. The question is not definitely settled as yet but Uncle Sam should require that Venezuela promises to quit the semi-annual revolutions and pay its bills before undertaking such a job.

Many of our exchanges have arrived this week in the form of fine Christmas numbers. Among the best we note the Princeton Union, Red Lake Falls Gazette, Red River Valley Journal, and Red Lake County Courier. There are others, of course, but these are, in our opinion, the best Christmas numbers we have received—and they rank in the order named.

TWENTY .....Years Ago,

HAPPENINGS IN ST. HILAIRE AS TOLD IN THE COLUMNS OF THE SPECTATOR, DECEMBER 1882.

WEDNESDAY, DEC 20.

On Christmas eve the moon will be full—a good many of the boys will be in the same condition probably.

Chas. Rapp is now sporting a fine new ring; a present from his employers, Crocker & Cundy, as a token of appreciation for his valuable services.

During the cold weather of last week the quick-silver on some mirrors which F. C. Ashall & Co. had in stock, peeled off and like that in the thermometers, got down as low as possible, which in this case was to the lower edge of the glass.

Dan Patterson commenced on Friday last to carry the mail between here and Crookston. Dan will make regular trips, coming in on Tuesday and Saturday and departing on Monday and Friday of each week. He will also carry passengers to and from this place for a consideration.

Mr. Hans Nelson gave us our Christmas present a little ahead of time this year. He brought us in a bag of fine potatoes yesterday, which were just as acceptable as if he hung them on the Christmas tree. Mr. N. will please accept our thanks, and now we wait for the next victim.

A petition is being circulated throughout this vicinity for the establishment of a regular mail route between here and Crookston. A large number of people are affixing their signatures to the paper, but whether the move will be successful remains to be seen. The forty per cent of stamp cancellation which is allowed the driver is not enough to pay the expenses of the trip let alone the remuneration of the driver for the exposure to cold, etc., which himself and team are obliged to undergo during their thirty-mile journey to Crookston. We trust that the petition will have the desired effect but are a little afraid that nothing can be done in the matter before next July, when the contracts are let.

"Christmas comes but once a year" and in St. Hilaire it will have appeared for the first time on Monday next, consequently her inhabitants intend celebrating it in a way befitting the occasion. A Christmas tree is to be erected in Clark's hall and all who intend giving presents to their friends are requested to send them in to Chas. Rapp before 4 o'clock on Christmas day, so that they can be hung on the tree. A Santa Claus will be got up to distribute the gifts and a general good time may be expected. After the distribution of the presents a grand ball and supper will be given, to which all are invited. A committee of ladies has been appointed to decorate the tree, and the gentlemen who are getting up the ball are doing all in their power to make the thing a success, and all who attend will, we trust, have reason to remember Christmas of 1882 for years to come. The distribution of presents will take place at 8 o'clock sharp, and all are requested to be on time.

On Monday night last, three large bears were seen prowling around on the bank of the river which skirts the town, and yesterday morning a party of sportsmen consisting of Messrs. Williams, Bennet and Borup gathered together all the Winchester rifles and other articles of bear extermination which could be had, and after putting a bottle of "courage retainer" in their pockets, called Borup's five-pound fighting dog and started in pursuit of the black monsters. A large crowd of excited people had congregated on the steps of the postoffice and cheer after cheer was given as forth went the "dauntless three"—or at least four. They kept on until they struck the track which they followed as far as Mr. Nelson's house where Mr. William's stock of courage became exhausted and he declined to go any further. The other two were "old timers" and continued on the trail for about three miles further, when the tracks commencing to get too fresh, they came to the conclusion that bear hunting was tame sport for them, and they also turned back. The bear-exterminating trio sneaked into town about six o'clock and although they wore a tired and thoroughly disgusted look they were loud in their protestations of what they would have done if they could have only seen the bears.

Mounting a Horse.

A careful bicyclist learns to mount from either side of the wheel, since the emergency may arise at any moment, says the London Chronicle. One would think that the horseman would be equally careful to provide for possibilities and accustom himself to mounting indifferently from the off side and the near side. But if he were to venture to mount on the right side—which is the wrong side—in a hotel stable yard the hostler would probably demand the price of a gallon as the statutory fine, and the horse would collapse with surprise. What is the meaning of this convention? It appears in odd places. Not only does the trick horse in the circus canter from right to left, but the after dinner wine passes the same way. "The way of the sun" is the current explanation, which is absurd.

Willing to Go Without.

Henry Clews, perfectly bald, was once traveling on a western railroad. Sitting directly behind him was a coarse looking man with a rough shock of hair the color of brick dust.

Tapping Mr. Clews on the shoulder, the fellow remarked:

"Guess you wasn't around when they gave out the hair."

"Oh, yes," was the answer, "but I was a trifle late, and there was nothing left but that stuff you wear, so I told them I'd rather have none."—New York Times.

Pa Elucidates.

"Pa, what does 'absentminded' mean?"

"My boy, that's easy. Did you ever stop to think."

"Yes."

"And your thoughts ran on?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's it."—Indianapolis News.

FLOWER AND TREE.

[illegible] is a pretty, snowy annual, easy to raise and worthy a place in the garden.

The birch grows farther north than any other tree. Next comes the Siberian larch and then the fir.

The dark spot in the center of a bean blossom is the nearest approach to black that occurs in any flower.

Sunflowers may be transplanted quite easily if the work is done on a rainy day or in the cool of the evening.

Preserve a green lawn in the center of the garden, however small. This is needed to set off the flowers and for purposes of relief.

Mignonette is so unobtrusive that its presence is often betrayed by its sweet scent merely, but a large bed of mignonette should be in every garden.

Dissolve fresh lime in water, allow sediment to settle and saturate earth in which small, white worms have been noticed with the clear solution thus made.

That "it is never too late to set out roses" is a true word about gardening. But "the earlier the better, so long as the frost is out of the ground," is a maxim no less worthy of dependence.

For Christmas presents this lot contains articles that are really valuable, durable and beautiful. Call and see.

Allen W. Wood, of Red Lake Falls, was here Monday, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lew Adams. Mr. Wood was formerly with the Union Land and Investment Co., and has been traveling over the southern and western portions of the country looking for a new location. He has finally decided that there is no place better than Red Lake county and is moving to Thief River Falls where he has purchased the interests of Hitchcock & Keating in the firm of Hitchcock, Keating & Murphy, implement dealers.

Death of Mrs. Knowles.

Mrs. J. F. Knowles died at Thompson Falls, Mont., on the 12th inst. of cancer of the stomach. The news of her death reached here in a letter written by Miss Knowles to Miss Anna Hall. Deceased was formerly a resident of this village where she conducted a boarding house for the past few years, her husband being an engineer in the saw mill. They left here last spring for Washington, returning later to Montana, where she died.

Geo. Ralph Indicted.

The Polk county grand jury has returned two indictments against Geo. A. Ralph, the well-known civil engineer. The specific charges in the first indictment are that Ralph charged Polk, Marshall and Red Lake counties, as well as the state drainage board for work on the same ditches, swearing in presenting his bill to each county, that his time had been spent in the services of the county.

The second indictment alleges that Ralph charged Polk county $35 for the services of one McPhaul as civil engineer, for the seven days between Feb. 27 and March 5, 1902, and also charged Red Lake county with the same McPhaul's services as rodman at $2 per day for the same seven days. Both these bills of expense were sworn to by Mr. Ralph.

A representative of the Crookston Times interviewed Mr. Ralph and has made public the statement that he blames the whole matter on certain engineers who felt aggrieved because he had secured certain contracts. The Times says further:

"Mr. Ralph charges that jealousy in Red Lake county, because of the fact that he was awarded the ditching contracts for the county in preference to local engineers, is in a large measure, if not wholly, responsible for the attack upon him."

We are unable to find any person in this county who might have any feeling of that kind, excepting W. C. Smiley who was elected this fall as county surveyor, despite Mr. Ralph's most earnest efforts against him. The SPECTATOR has interviewed Mr. Smiley and he positively denies having had any knowledge of any proceedings against Mr. Ralph until he saw the account of his indictments published in the newspapers. There is every reason to believe Mr. Smiley's statement as he has been engaged in surveying work in this county during the time the grand jury was investigating Ralph's record and finding indictments against him.

Earth's Nearest Neighbor.

The minor planet named Eros was first observed by Witt of the Urania Observatory in Berlin. After having disappeared from view for more than a year, the planet was recently re-discovered by Prof. Ling of Chamberlain Observatory, Colorado. It has the distinction of being the earth's nearest neighbor in the solar system. Years ago golden grain belt beer was discovered, and has since had the distinction of being a most nourishing and delicious drink. If you don't know the merits of this beer, get a case and learn to know its value. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Great Northern New Clergyman Half Fare Permits.

The new half rate clergy permits that are about to be issued by the Great Northern railway for the year 1903 are good over nearly every railroad west of Chicago; they are good on all lines between St. Paul and Chicago, also on all lines of the trans-continental association.

A charge of $1.00 is made for this permit and application blanks can be obtained from all agents of the Great Northern Railway company.

THE SON OF EX- U. S. MINISTER TO ENGLAND

Commends Peruna to All Catarrh Sufferers.

Hon. Lewis E. Johnson

Hon. Louis E. Johnson is the son of the late Reverdy Johnson who was United States Senator from Maryland, also Attorney General under President Johnson, and United States Minister to England, and who was regarded as the greatest constitutional lawyer that ever lived.

In a recent letter from 1006 F. Street, N. W., Mr. Johnson says:

"No one should longer suffer from catarrh when Peruna is accessible. To my knowledge it has caused relief to so many of my friends and acquaintances, that it is humanity to commend its use to all persons suffering with this distressing disorder of the human system."---Louis E. Johnson.

Catarrh Poisons.

Catarrh is capable of changing all the life-giving secretions of the body into scalding fluids, which destroy and inflame every part they come in contact with. Applications to the places affected by catarrh can do little good save to soothe or quiet disagreeable symptoms. Hence it is that gargles, sprays, atomizers and inhalants only serve as temporary relief. So long as the irritating secretions of catarrh continue to be formed so long will the membranes continue to be inflamed, no matter what treatment is used.

There is but one remedy that has the desirable effect, and that remedy is Peruna. This remedy strikes at once to the roots of catarrh by restoring to the capillary vessels their healthy elasticity. Peruna is not a temporary palliative, but a radical cure.

Send for Dr. Hartman's latest book, sent free for a short time. Address The Peruna Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Willie's Idea of Israelites.

The Sunday school teacher is treated to some original opinions once in a while. An instructor in one of the schools connected with the Protestant church in this borough was telling her class of small boys about the Israelites a couple of weeks ago. One little chap announced that he didn't like the Israelites.

"Why, Willie?" asked the teacher.

"Well, you see, Miss N——" he answered, "they put Christ to death. But then they wouldn't have done it," he added, after a slight pause, "if He hadn't changed His religion."

"What do you mean?" was the astonished inquiry of the teacher.

"Well, you see, Christ was a Jew, and when he turned Catholic the Jews put him to death."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

When Does the Season Open.

Clarence Minzesheimer, of the Stock exchange, who was bemoaning the exactions imposed upon the time of an active broker, said that he had hoped before this to have been in the Adirondacks shooting.

Subtly Done.

A lady was exhibiting a priceless ruby ring at an informal gathering. All the guests looked at it, and it was passed around, while the lady talked with her hostess. Some time after, the lady looked for her ring, when, lo and behold, it was not in evidence. It had vanished, and no one had seen it disappear.

It was a critical and delicate situation, but the host was equal to the occasion. He turned out the lights. Then he said—

"Now, someone in this room has that ring, and I will lock all the doors and send for the police unless, when I turn up the light again in five minutes, it is lying in the middle of the floor."

When the lights were turned up the ring was there. A detective could not have done better.—Cassell's Journal.

DEATH IN A WRECK

SIXTEEN PERSONS LOSE THEIR LIVES AS A RESULT OF A COLLISION.

SEVERAL MORE LIKELY TO DIE

TWENTY-TWO TERRIBLY INJURED PERSONS NOW IN HOSPITAL.

FAILED TO HEED THE WARNING

ONE TRAIN CRASHES INTO REAR OF ANOTHER WITH AWFUL FORCE.

Martinez, Cal., Dec. 22.—As a result of a rear-end collision between the Stockton flyer and the "owl" train on the Southern Pacific at Byron, twenty deaths have already been recorded and there are indications that the total will soon be raised to twenty. Most of the wounded passengers who were too severely injured to be taken to their homes were taken to the Southern Pacific hospital at San Francisco, and on the way to that place five victims died. Twenty-two of the injured reached the hospital, where it was announced later that two would probably succumb. Of the twenty-two patients only three were permitted to receive visitors, so seriously were they suffering. It was a rear-end collision, the engine of the local into the last coaches of the "owl," which was filled with Fresno people. The passengers who escaped death were hurled to the fore part of the coach and crushed in the mass of debris. Their sufferings and danger were intensified a hundred fold by the clouds of scalding steam that poured out upon them from the shattered boiler of the Stockton engine.

After the "owl" left Mollito it was noticed there was a leak in the flue of the boiler. This increased to such an extent that it was decided to stop here and take on a fresh engine for relief. The train known as the Stockton local was following half a mile behind, and a flagman was sent back down the track of the presence of the "owl." It is said that the Stockton train, in charge of Engineer Maguire and Fireman Joyce, got the warning signal in due time and gave the usual responsive whistle blasts. Why the incoming train was not checked, however, has not been thus far explained, the men who could give the facts being numbered with the badly injured. On came the train with apparently scarcely any diminution of speed, and the Fresno coach was completely telescoped. So forcibly did the local meet the rear end of the "owl" that the second car, the dining car, was smashed in and the three cooks were seriously hurt. The penned-up passengers were spared from fire because the oil burners were extinguished when

To Give Warning

The Crash Came.

Relief quickly came to the passengers who were pinned in the wreckage, axes and saws being brought into play and passengers and train crews lending every aid. Messengers were sent to Byron Hot Springs, a short distance away, and Dr. Bird of the Springs, with Dr. J. D. Davidson of Fresno, who was a guest, came quickly to the station. A trained nurse accompanied them and first aid was at once given to the mangled, bruised and crushed sufferers who were lying near the track. Every effort was made to alleviate their sufferings, and those who were unable to proceed on their journey were taken to the Springs hotel or to the church in Byron, which was temporarily transferred into a hospital. None of the passengers of the Stockton train were injured, and all of the crew of the "owl" escaped unhurt.

CHRISTMAS MAIL BURNED.

Abous Seven Hundred Pouches Destroyed in Mail Car.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 22.—Official report of the burning of a car load of Christmas mail en route for the West was made here at 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon by the crew of mail clerks arriving here from New York on the fast mail No. 3 on the New York Central which left New York at 3:45 a. m. Only twenty or thirty of the seven or eight hundred pouches were saved, the burned mail being for Chicago and points further west. Some of the mail was destined for the Philippine and Fiji islands. The mail sacks were in a storage car which carried no clerks. The crew was on the car behind. The car was left burning at Highland.

Total of the $20,000,000 Thank Offering Raised.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 22.—The Rev. E. M. Mills, corresponding secretary of the Methodist Episcopal thank offering fund, is completing his final annual report here, and Dr. Mills says that every dollar of the $20,000,000 called for three years ago has been raised in cash and pledges. More than half a million for educational purposes has been received within forty-five days.

Farmers in a Fight.

Sioux City, Iowa, Dec. 22.—At George, Iowa, August Bunge shot and mortally wounded Helmor Deboor yesterday as a result of a quarrel over rent of land. Bunge is under arrest. Both men are farmers.

Indian Slain in a Quarrel.

Sioux City, Iowa, Dec. 22.—In a quarrel on Winnebago Indian reservation, across the river from here, Little Jim, an Indian, was slain yesterday. James Davis and Howard McKee, Indians, are under arrest.

Eau Claire, Wis., Dec. 17.—The new Eau Claire, Chippewa Falls & Northeastern railway put on its first passenger train to Holcomb and Little Falls yesterday.

Butte, Mont., Dec. 17.—Charles Lennox was sentenced yesterday to be hanged for the murder of James Williams at Silver Bow Junction last spring.

Breckenridge, Minn., Dec. 17.—Geo. Roberts has been convicted in the district court of grand larceny. He robbed a roommate of $10.50.

There are plenty of people who have become [illegible] and discouraged, [illegible] hacking cough hangs to them continually. They have taken much medicine, mostly of the advertised quack sort, nothing like Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, the discovery of a then noted German physician 60 years ago. We do not say that this will cure a case where the lungs are badly diseased, for it will not, and up to this date there is nothing that will cure under these conditions; but on the other hand, if the lungs are not hard hit, the patient should take Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, a cup full every night on going to bed, have it hot, drink slowly, then every other night rub the throat and top portion of the lungs with St. Jacobs Oil, cover with oil silk, let it remain an hour, then remove. Eat good, plain, nourishing food, live in the open air as much as possible. By all means sleep as near out of doors as possible, that is, windows wide open, except in the very severe weather. Take a cold sponge bath every morning; then immediately rub the body vigorously with a coarse towel. Take Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Drops every other day according to directions. One can buy the three remedies for $1.25 of any reliable druggist. Begin the treatment at once and see how much better you will be almost within a week's time.

The Point of Resemblance.

"Your poem, Mr. Lamefeet, reminds me of a deserted country church," said the editor, speaking of the poet's latest effort, entitled "Sad Meditations."

"Ah, thank you, I am glad I have at last written something which pleases—"

"Yes, it reminds me of a deserted church," continued the editor, "because it is so empty and dismal."

The Club Women's Badge.

According to well informed club woman "the word 'badge' is derived from the Anglo-Saxon word 'baer' a bracelet. When the Danes invaded England they wore holy bracelets on which they took their solemn vows, holding them as their most precious possession—'badges of honor.'" This may explain the evident delight and pleasure that some club women take in loading themselves down with badges of every sort and kind and fairly emulating a popular band master on parade. But it is just possible that woman who knows the history of the badge and esteems it as an emblem of honor is not the one who flaunts it in public on every possible occasion and makes a desperate effort to wear as many badges at one time as she can possibly crowd on.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Problem Solved.

Cabbel, Kans., Dec. 22nd.—This part of Kansas has solved the great question, How can Kidney Troubles be cured, and as Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Diabetes and other ailments resulting from Diseased Kidneys are common to all parts of the country the news is of great interest.

The cure is Dodd's Kidney Pills. Hundreds of people will tell you this of their own experience. Take J. B. Cunningham for example. He had Kidney trouble of long standing. He sought relief in vain. He had tried Doctors and Medicines of different kinds.

Finally he tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and he stopped right there. No one who tries Dodd's Kidney Pills for Kidney Complaint ever needs to look any further. Here is what Mr. Cunningham says:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are all right for Kidney Trouble. I have used them and know for they have done me more good than anything I ever used."

GREAT IS MARCONI

SOLVES THE PROBLEM OF WIRELESS TRANSOCEANIC COMMUNICATION.

SENDS MESSAGES ACROSS OCEAN

TRANSMITTED TO THE KING OF ENGLAND AND KING OF ITALY.

FROM CANADA TO ENGLAND

INVENTOR HIMSELF ANNOUNCES HIS GREAT ACHIEVEMENT.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 23.—After eight experiments conducted with the greatest secrecy, Marconi announces that he has solved the problem of wireless transoceanic communication and has successfully transmitted messages from the shores of Canada to the coast of England. The formal announcement of this achievement was made by the inventor himself yesterday when he stated that wireless messages had been successfully transmitted and forwarded from the governor general of Canada to King Edward VII. of Great Britain and to the king of Italy.

Dr. George R. Parkin, principal of Upper Canada college, trustee of the Rhodes scholarships, was present when one of the successful tests was made. Prior to December, 1901, the greatest distance covered scarcely exceeded 100 miles. Early in that year Marconi visited Newfoundland and from Signal Hill commenced experiments with Cornwall, and on Dec. 12 and 13 of that year, faint signals of the letter "S" repeated several times, were caught by ear only with the aid of telephones. Later on Marconi, on board of the steamship Philadelphia, bound for America, succeeded in establishing communication with Cornwall, a distance of 2,100 miles. Transoceanic messages also were received on board the Italian warship Carlo Alberto while that vessel lay at anchor in Sydney harbor on Oct. 31, and since then Marconi has been perfecting the apparatus at Table Head. He met with innumerable difficulties there, but at last has succeeded in sending a transoceanic wireless message from Canada to Cornwall, a distance of $2,300 miles. The Carlo Alberto some days ago, was ordered to proceed to Venezuela, but as her immediate departure would seriously delay

By Wireless Telegraphy

Marconi' operations,

the order was modified and she was held at Sydney until transatlantic communication was successfully accomplished. She has sailed for Venezuela to take part in the blockade operations.

London, Dec. 22.—The London Times confirms the receipt of a message by wireless telegraphy from Marconi at Cape Breton.

The text of the wireless message from the Times correspondent, which was transmitted from Glace Bay, N. B., to Poldhu, Cornwall, is as follows:

"Being present at its transmission in Sig. Marconi's Canadian station I have the honor to send through the Times the inventor's first wireless transatlantic message of greeting to England and Italy."

PACT TO COMMIT SUICIDE.

Two Aged Germans Agree to Kill Themselves.

Cincinnati, Dec. 22. — The officers have detected a pact between two aged Germans, Joseph Tabe and Rudolph Schnum, to commit suicide. Both were held awaiting trial on the charge of shooting to kill their wives. They occupied adjoining cells and became very intimate during the time allowed them for freedom, keeping apart from other prisoners. Tabe secured a rope from the dining room and gave half of it to Schaum, but the latter was discovered before he carried out his purpose. Schaum was restrained and Tabe held for lunacy.

MET WITH BULLETS.

Highwaymen Are Attacked and One Is Killed.

Ardmore, Ind. T., Dec. 22. — Two highwaymen, heavily armed, were attacked by a posse of citizens as they rode into the town of Province, in the Chickasaw Nation, and an exchange of shots followed. The horse was shot from under one of the men, George Slocum, and finally he was shot and captured. The second man escaped. Slocum later died of his wound. The men are supposed to have been engaged in a robbery near Province.

MILLION DOLLAR BLAZE.

Fire at Knoxville, Tenn., Too Much for Firemen.

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 22. — Fire broke out early this morning in the Knoxville knitting mill building in the heart of the wholesale district. The same block is threatened with total destruction which burned out in 1897, causing a loss at that time of over one million dollars. The fire quickly spread to adjoining buildings. Firemen made a desperate fight to check the blaze but made no headway. The loss at this hour is estimated at $1,000,000.

Natural Gas Explosion.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 22. — An explosion of natural gas in the boarding house of Mrs. Laura Rickards, on McKean street, early yesterday resulted in the probable fatal burning of one man and the serious injury of two others.

Paris, Dec. 16.—The magistrate who has charge of the investigation of the death of Mrs. Ellen Gore, has announced that there is no longer any doubt that the affair was an accident.

I Did Not Feel That I Could Walk

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—It is with thankfulness I write that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been of the greatest help to me. My work keeps me standing on my feet all day and the hours are long. Some months ago it didn't seem as though I could stand it. I would get so dreadfully tired and my back ached so I wanted to scream with the pain. When I got home at night I was so worn out I had to go right to bed, and I was terribly blue and downhearted. I was irregular and the flow was scanty, and I was pale and had no appetite. I told a girl friend who was taking your medicine how I felt, and she said I ought to take it too. So I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and commenced to take it. It helped me right off. After the first few doses menstruation started and was fuller than for some time. It seemed to lift a load off me. My back stopped aching and I felt brighter than I had for months. I took three bottles in all. Now I never have an ache or pain, and I go out after work and have a good time. I am regular and strong and am thankful to you for the change.

"I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I hear of a girl suffering, for I know how hard it is to work when you feel so sick."—Miss Mamie Keirns, 553 9th Ave., New York City.

Women should not fail to profit by the experiences of these women; just as surely as they were cured of the troubles enumerated in their letters, just so certainly will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure others who suffer from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, irregular and painful menstruation, nervous excitability, and nervous prostration; remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing women, and don't allow any druggist to sell you anything else in its place.

Miss Amanda T. Potterson, Box 131, Atwater, Minn., says:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham.—I hope that you will publish this testimonial so that it may reach others and let them know about your wonderful medicine.

"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was troubled with the worst kind of fainting spells. The blood would rush to my head, was very nervous and always felt tired, had dark circles around eyes.

"I have now taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am entirely cured. I had taken doctor's medicine for many years but it did me no good.

"Please accept my thanks for this most excellent medicine which is able to restore health to suffering women."

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles.

Those women who refuse to accept anything else are rewarded a hundred thousand times, for they get what they want—a cure. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Refuse all substitutes.

Constipation Makes Bad Blood.

MULL'S GRAPE TONIC CURES CONSTIPATION

Constipation is the rotting and decaying of undigested food in the alimentary canal. Disease germs arise from this festering mass, which find their way into the blood. The blood becomes impure and shortly the entire system gives way to the unhealthy condition.

You cannot cure a case like this by taking pills or other common cathartics. A laxative will not do. A blood medicine is ineffective. Mull's Grape Tonic is a gentle and mild laxative in addition to being a blood-making and strength-giving tonic which immediately builds up the wasted body and makes rich, red blood that carries its health-giving strength to every tissue at every heart beat.

Mull's Grape Tonic is made of pure crushed fruit juices and is sold under a positive guarantee.

Doctors prescribe it. All druggists sell it at 50 cents a bottle.

REVIEW OF THE PAST AND FORECAST OF THE COMING YEAR

The coming year promises to see in the United States a more marvelous period of commercial and industrial development than even that of the year 1902. The prediction may be safely made that American trade with the East will be doubled during the next twelve months and the United States will become the dominant power of the Pacific ocean. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that within the next decade the empire of trade and commerce will pass from the Atlantic to the Pacific shores.

Having in mind the vast strides taken by our country in comparatively a few recent years what the volume of our commerce will be in another quarter of a century it would be foolish to predict, but it will be enormous. That the influence of America and the American people throughout the world will have increased, so that they will have become not only the great commercial nation of the world, but the greatest in political rank and power and influence and responsibility can scarcely be doubted by those who have an abiding faith in the energy and wisdom and integrity of the American citizen.

The producing powers of the United States are still in their infancy. Compare our producing area with that of the well-developed and well-tilled countries of Europe, and it will be apparent at a glance that in the matter of agriculture we may and shall increase enormously the products of the soil, not only in increasing the actual product per acre, but by bringing under cultivation many millions of acres which are now non-productive.

In the matter of mines and minerals our production and productive powers have scarcely begun to show their possibilities. In all the great articles which enter into manufacture—the products of the mine, the forest and the field—we are the world's greatest producer and likely to continue so indefinitely. We have more of coal, more of iron, more of copper, more of timber, more of cotton, more of all the requirements which enter into the processes of the manufacture of articles required by the world at large, civilized or uncivilized, than any other nation. We have the skill and energy with which to turn these into manufactures, by far the greatest railway system of the world to carry them to the water's edge, and a great ocean on either side to float them to the waiting millions of the world.

This is a review of what we have done in the past, and only by it can we measure or attempt to measure what we shall do in the future. What wonders in the way of inventions and discoveries the next few years may have in store can only dimly be guessed at. A great thinker and inventor has said of the future newspaper: "We may, and I believe shall, have news transmission by air waves into phonographic instruments which will repeat the news of the day and record it at the same time, so that people may listen or may read as they prefer. The great force of the future is electricity, and it is in its infancy as yet. It will be used to obviate all unnecessary waste of nervous tissue, and the phono-air-wave newspapers of which I speak will certainly be transmitted some day direct from the brains of their producers without any such manual labor as writing and without even the need for speaking them aloud."

In reviewing the record made during the past year by United States soldiers it must be remembered that while the implements of war have been vastly changed by modern inventions, and modern weapons can be used at much greater distances and with more destructive effect, yet the principles of war have not changed, although skill, science and strategy to some extent take the place of valiant leadership and physical strength and courage in successfully using the destructive weapons of war of the present day.

During its varied experience of the last few years on most extended fields of operation the United States army has maintained its reputation for loyalty, intelligence and valor. There have been a few instances of surprise and ambuscade of small detachments, but whenever it has met the enemy under ordinary circumstances it has achieved an unbroken record of success. What its future may be it is impossible to prophesy, but it is fair to predict that it will be as commendable as its past has been glorious.

So far as money is concerned, it is reasonable to suppose that the rates of interest will vary but little in the absence of unforeseen circumstances, such as war, etc. While we continue to sell our products to Europe and get large returns, we will be compelled to seek a market for our money. The result will be the enormous development of our own resources, mineral, agricultural, including wool, cattle and cotton, and the reaching out for markets in Japan and China, South America, and in fact all of the markets that have been monopolized by England, Germany and France. Having great natural advantages over our European competitors, we will eventually rout them from these fields of trade.

The rapid growth of the great schools of applied science in the universities of America has been one of the most notable features in the educational history of the past thirty years. To this more than to any other cause is due the overshadowing success of American manufacturers and commerce. Higher education is coming more and more to mean development of the highest practical effectiveness. Without abundant and thorough technical training good articles cannot be produced in competition with the world. Navies, tariffs, trusts and other devices cannot take the place of expert knowledge.

The past year has been remarkable for a sudden and a practical advance in the marvelous history of the wireless telegraph. The scientific achievement which had been dreamed of for nearly half a century, and only within late years had shown itself something better than a dream, has given the most definite and the most encouraging evidences of its claim to be regarded as one of the world's greatest accomplishments in the domain of practical science. Something of the same kind, although in a lesser degree, may be said of the attempt to construct a flying machine, that project which had its beginning, so far as we know, in the realms of classic fable, and may have had its beginning for aught we know in days long before the gods of Greece had ever come to be classified and worshipped.

It is not too much to say that whatever may come of this ever-renewing enterprise, the year saw the most practical evidence of its possibility yet given to the world. The year cannot boast of any great triumphs entirely its own in the realms of literature and art. Its literary and artistic firmament has not indeed been clouded, but no new star of the first magnitude, no blazing comet even, has arisen on the field of mortal vision.

REBELS ARE AGAIN ACTIVE

PRESIDENT CASTRO HAS INTERNAL TROUBLES ON HIS HANDS ALSO.

LIVELY ENGAGEMENT REPORTED

ARMISTICE BETWEEN GOVERNMENT AND REBELS HAS EXPIRED.

WILL MAKE ANY CONCESSION

VENEZUELA NOW EXTREMELY ANXIOUS TO GET OUT OF TROUBLE.

Willemstad, Curacao, Dec. 29.—The Venezuelan revolutionists have again resumed active hostilities against President Castro.

There occurred yesterday morning a lively engagement between 1,200 revolutionists under Gen. Riera and the government forces at Cauyaroo, in the vicinity of Coro. Details of the engagement are lacking, but it is known here that the revolutionists had artillery. The government forces were commanded by Gen. Refereno Castillo. Gen. Riera maintained his position.

The armistice between the government and the revolutionists has just expired.

Gen. Zolio Vidal and five other leading supporters of Gen. Matos, who had sought refuge here, last night left the island of Curacao in a sailboat which took them in the direction of Cumarebo, near Coro, on the Venezuelan coast. The departure of these men is taken as proof that the revolt against President Castro is again active.

Will Make Any Concession.

Caracas, Dec. 29. — United States Minister Bowen and Lopez Baralt, Venezuelan minister of foreign affairs, held a long conference last night. Mr. Bowen, obeying instructions from Washington, conveyed to Senor Baralt President Roosevelt's refusal to act as arbitrator in the Venezuelan difficulty. He recommended that the matter be taken to the international peace court at The Hague.

As a result of this conference Senor Baralt telegraphed President Castro to return from La Victoria. The president will reach here to-day and Venezuela's answer to the foregoing proposal will be given then. It is understood that Venezuela will make any concession, even abandoning her demand that her navy be returned.

Senor Baralt has prepared the following statement for the Associated Press:

"Venezuela agrees to pay all her debts, the payments to be guaranteed by a certain percentage of the customs receipts or by the flotation of a special loan, also to be guaranteed. I believe the proposal to submit the issues to The Hague will be acceptable to President Castro. I am sorry that President Roosevelt was unable to act as arbitrator."

Notes Sent to Bowen.

Washington, Dec. 29. — The Venezuelan government is now in possession of the complete notes of Great Britain and Germany containing the various reservations made by these governments before the decision was reached that the issues between Venezuela and the European governments having claims against her should be referred to The Hague tribunal for arbitration. The United States having acted as an intermediary in the steps leading up to the acceptance of arbitration now turns over to the Venezuelan government the formal work of completing the basis for a full hearing before The Hague. The notes were transmitted to the Venezuelan government through United States Minister Bowen at Caracas.

There were no new features to the situation here yesterday. Officials are hopeful that the governments interested will work harmoniously and conscientiously to reach an early and final solution of the trouble. The administration is anxious that there soon may be an amelioration of the blockade.

ORIENTAL DISASTER.

Sixty Lives Lost by the Sinking of a Steamer.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 29.—News was brought by the steamer Tartar, which arrived yesterday, of a disaster in the Malacca straits, as a result of which sixty lives were lost. The Tokyo Ashi publishes a telegram from Hongkong stating that the steamer Kiang Yan was sunk in the Malacca straits and that sixty sailors and passengers are missing.

Peddling Oleo Is Illegal.

Washington, Dec. 29.—Commissioner Yerkes of the internal revenue bureau has decided that under existing laws a special stamp tax for peddling oleomargarine cannot be issued, and, therefore, any one who sells the commodity in that way is liable to special tax at each separate place where sales are made.

Entombed in Burning Mine.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 29.—A fire has occurred in a coal mine at Bachmut, Ekatorinoslav province. A hundred miners were under the ground when the fire started. Twenty of these have been rescued, but it is feared that the others have succumbed.

Jollies Gen. Miles.

Pekin, Dec. 29. — The dowager empress and Lieut. Gen. Miles exchanged flattering speeches at Saturday's audience, the dowager assuring the general that the "success of the American army was assured under a commander so celebrated." The emperor never spoke during the audience.

Severe Earthquake Shock.

Rome, Dec. 29—A severe earthquake shock was experienced at Syracuse, Sicily, last evening. It was preceded by subterranean rumblings.

A NEW YEAR

It was New Year's Eve; a mild, breezeless night swathed and muffled in a mantle of salt fog which dimmed the glare of the electric lights on either shore, changing them for the time into nebulous globes of luminous beauty, and hung like a soft gray curtain around the big ferry boat that, shrieking hoarse warnings of its menacing presence, was plowing its way heavily through the black water of San Francisco Bay.

Only one passenger was braving the dampness of the open forward deck, and he sat on the side next Goat Island, just in front of the churning wheel, with his coat collar turned up and his hat pulled down over his eyes, and murder—self-murder—in his heart.

The world had gone wrong with him in every way. He had wasted his small patrimony in dissipation, and when it was gone the woman who had helped him scatter it had thrown him over for another victim. For the last week he had been drinking heavily to "drown his sorrow," but not succeeding he had come to the bemuddled conclusion that the next best thing was to drown himself. For this reason he was sitting on the Goat Island side of the ferry-boat and waiting—dominated by the ghastly whim which has sent so many others overboard at that same spot—until the wheel paddles should beat along the border of the well known "graveyard" of the bay.

The saloon door opened and a girl and an old man, both laden with bundles, came out—the man with a rancher's sun-brown face, stooping shoulders and toil-hardened hands, the girl, plainly his daughter, tall, straight and comely after the wholesome, honest country fashion. The close warmth of the brilliantly lighted interior had driven these two out into the damp coolness of the enveloping fog, and the man sitting just before the wheel emerged from the gloomy calm of his dying meditations to swear roundly, under his breath, as they sat down near him.

Then he raised his head and looked at them surlily, mentally cursing the relentless fate which even at this last minute interfered between him and his nearly accomplished plan. He must go to the other side of the boat now; but as he rose and the light of the saloon windows fell on his face the girl put out her hand suddenly and cordially.

"Why, Jim!" she exclaimed with frank friendliness; and then: "How oddly things hapen! This is the first time I've come down to the bay since I came back from Nevada, and here you are, that none of us have seen nor heard of for over three years!"

And then "father" greeted the old-time 'neighbor's boy" in friendly fashion also and made room for him to sit between them that they might share his welcome presence equally.

It was impossible to get away from them at once without absolute rudeness; and after the first the man who had cherished the thought of death in his heart all that long wretched day did not feel that he wished to. He could attend to that matter just as well on the return trip, and meanwhile it was pleasant, during these fast-ebbing minutes of his doomed life, to talk of old times and old friends, and this breath from his old country home seemed to blow the cobwebs from his drink-drugged brain and give him fleeting glimpses of possibilities that might have been his were it not now irrevocably too late.

He went with them to their train, helping to carry their bundles and piloting them safely through the bewildering eddies of the pushing, elbowing, excitedly hurrying crowd that the boat disgorged upon the Oakland dock. Then, as in the car he busied himself for a last minute in arranging for their comfort, some vague heavenly hint of his dire need of instant unquestioning human help came out of the invisible and touched the girl's white soul.

She looked with sudden comprehension at his worn face, his somber eyes and his tremulous hands, and then as he raised his hat and turned to leave them she caught his sleeve with timid, entreating fingers.

"Come and begin the New Year with us," she said. "The city has not been kind to you, but the country always was. You will grow back to your old self up in the foothills, and afterward—if you care to stay—there is work in plenty."

He looked down at her upturned face and the insistent voices that had all day been calling him from the bay's always yearning "graveyard" grew fainter and died into silence.

"Come with us," echoed the father, and the light pressure of the girl's fingers on his arm held him captive.

The train shuddered into motion, and then, moving faster and faster through the crosslights of the deserted pier, bore the three away toward the beckoning promise of the New Year.—Florence Matheson.

Boy's Frankness Spoiled the Christmas Giving.

It happened over in a city mission last year, and it made such a sensation in its own way that it bids fair to become one of the Christmas classics of the neighborhood in which it occurred.

They were having the Christmas tree in the Sunday school room, and the beautiful green cone-shaped fir was ablaze with lights, glittering with gay decorations and loaded down with the tokens of affection and good will which the parishioners were exchanging among themselves and their children.

Jimmie Smith, a freckled-faced youth of some eleven winters, sat with some of his chosen companions on a bench just in front of his parents, nearly in the center of the hall. The Smiths—these particular Smiths, at least—were comparatively recent additions to the church family, but they had already achieved a mild sort of popularity among their new acquaintances, for they dressed well, apparently lived well and were, seemingly, in every way "nice people to know."

Their gifts to each other on this public occasion had been expensive and elegant enough to fill the minds of all present with respectful admiration, in some cases shadowed by a faint cloud of envy. Mrs. Smith had received a flashing solitaire diamond ring from her loving lord, and had presented him with a gold match safe and a silver paper cutter; and soon after the name of their only son and heir was loudly proclaimed by the stentorian-voiced young man who played the part of an Aaron for the rubicund and smiling dispenser of presents.

A good-sized morocco case was young Smith's reward for plowing his way to the tree. "Jimmie Smith, from his father and mother," the young man read from the card attached as he handed the gift to the boy, who, grinning widely, hurried back to his seat.

"Holy gee! Mebbe it's a baseball!" suggested one of the Dauntless nine" as a crowd of small boys closed in around their extremely interesting looking covering. But it wasn't. It was a large solid silver, gold-lined mug, with Jimmie's name ornately engraved on its glistening front. Truly a fine present for any boy, but Jimmie some way didn't seem to appreciate it.

First he looked at the rich and beautiful specimen of the goldsmith's art with scorn and disappointment, and then he turned upon his smiling mamma and papa with hot resentment.

Quoth he loudly and clearly: "It's the same darned old mug that Uncle Frank gave me when I was a baby! I don't see what in time you two old folks wanted to fool me this way for!"

And some way the glories of the diamond ring and the gold match safe and the silver paper cutter seemed far less dazzling after that innocently indignant little speech.

REVIEW OF THE PAST AND FORECAST OF THE COMING YEAR

The coming year promises to see in the United States a more marvelous period of commercial and industrial development than even that of the year 1902. The prediction may be safely made that American trade with the East will be doubled during the next twelve months and the United States will become the dominant power of the Pacific ocean. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that within the next decade the empire of trade and commerce will pass from the Atlantic to the Pacific shores.

Having in mind the vast strides taken by our country in comparatively a few recent years what the volume of our commerce will be in another quarter of a century it would be foolish to predict, but it will be enormous. That the influence of America and the American people throughout the world will have increased, so that they will have become not only the great commercial nation of the world, but the greatest in political rank and power and influence and responsibility can scarcely be doubted by those who have an abiding faith in the energy and wisdom and integrity of the American citizen.

The producing powers of the United States are still in their infancy. Compare our producing area with that of the well-developed and well-tilled countries of Europe, and it will be apparent at a glance that in the matter of agriculture we may and shall increase enormously the products of the soil, not only in increasing the actual product per acre, but by bringing under cultivation many millions of acres which are now non-productive.

In the matter of mines and minerals our production and productive powers have scarcely begun to show their possibilities. In all the great articles which enter into manufacture—the products of the mine, the forest and the field—we are the world's greatest producer and likely to continue so indefinitely. We have more of coal, more of iron, more of copper, more of timber, more of cotton, more of all the requirements which enter into the processes of the manufacture of articles required by the world at large, civilized or uncivilized, than any other nation. We have the skill and energy with which to turn these into manufactures, by far the greatest railway system of the world to carry them to the water's edge, and a great ocean on either side to float them to the waiting millions of the world.

This is a review of what we have done in the past, and only by it can we measure or attempt to measure what we shall do in the future. What wonders in the way of inventions and discoveries the next few years may have in store can only dimly be guessed at. A great thinker and inventor has said of the future newspaper: "We may, and I believe shall, have news transmission by air waves into phonographic instruments which will repeat the news of the day and record it at the same time, so that people may listen or may read as they prefer. The great force of the future is electricity, and it is in its infancy as yet. It will be used to obviate all unnecessary waste of nervous tissue, and the phono-air-wave newspapers of which I speak will certainly be transmitted some day direct from the brains of their producers without any such manual labor as writing and without even the need for speaking them aloud."

In reviewing the record made during the past year by United States soldiers it must be remembered that while the implements of war have been vastly changed by modern inventions, and modern weapons can be used at much greater distances and with more destructive effect, yet the principles of war have not changed, although skill, science and strategy to some extent take the place of valiant leadership and physical strength and courage in successfully using the destructive weapons of war of the present day.

During its varied experience of the last few years on most extended fields of operation the United States army has maintained its reputation for loyalty, intelligence and valor. There have been a few instances of surprise and ambuscade of small detachments, but whenever it has met the enemy under ordinary circumstances it has achieved an unbroken record of success. What its future may be it is impossible to prophesy, but it is fair to predict that it will be as commendable as its past has been glorious.

So far as money is concerned, it is reasonable to suppose that the rates of interest will vary but little in the absence of unforseen circumstances, such as war, etc. While we continue to sell our products to Europe and get large returns, we will be compelled to seek a market for our money. The result will be the enormous development of our own resources, mineral, agricultural, including wool, cattle and cotton, and the reaching out for markets in Japan and China, South America, and in fact all of the markets that have been monopolized by England, Germany and France. Having great natural advantages over our European competitors, we will eventually rout them from these fields of trade.

The rapid growth of the great schools of applied science in the universities of America has been one of the most notable features in the educational history of the past thirty years. To this more than to any other cause is due the overshadowing success of American manufacturers and commerce. Higher education is coming more and more to mean development of the highest practical effectiveness. Without abundant and thorough technical training good articles cannot be produced in competition with the world. Navies, tariffs, trusts and other devices cannot take the place of expert knowledge.

The past year has been remarkable for a sudden and a practical advance in the marvelous history of the wireless telegraph. The scientific achievement which had been dreamed of for nearly half a century, and only with in late years had shown itself something better than a dream, has given the most definite and the most encouraging evidences of its claim to be regarded as one of the world's greatest accomplishments in the domain of practical science. Something of the same kind, although in a lesser degree, may be said of the attempt to construct a flying machine, that project which had its beginning, so far as we know, in the realms of classic fable, and may have had its beginning for aught we know in days long before the gods of Greece had ever come to be classified and worshipped.

It is not too much to say that whatever may come of this ever-renewing enterprise, the year saw the most practical evidence of its possibility yet given to the world. The year cannot boast of any great triumphs entirely its own in the realms of literature and art. Its literary and artistic firmament has not indeed been clouded, but no new star of the first magnitude, no blazing comet even, has arisen on the field of mortal vision.

A NEW YEAR

It was New Year's Eve; a mild, breezeless night swathed and muffled in a mantle of salt fog which dimmed the glare of the electric lights on either shore, changing them for the time into nebulous globes of luminous beauty, and hung like a soft gray curtain around the big ferry boat that, shrieking hoarse warnings of its menacing presence, was plowing its way heavily through the black water of San Francisco Bay.

Only one passenger was braving the dampness of the open forward deck, and he sat on the side next Goat Island, just in front of the churning wheel, with his coat collar turned up and his hat pulled down over his eyes, and murder—self-murder—in his heart.

The world had gone wrong with him in every way. He had wasted his small patrimony in dissipation, and when it was gone the woman who had helped him scatter it had thrown him over for another victim. For the last week he had been drinking heavily to "drown his sorrow," but not succeeding he had come to the bemuddled conclusion that the next best thing was to drown himself. For this reason he was sitting on the Goat Island side of the ferry-boat and waiting—dominated by the ghastly whim which has sent so many others overboard at that same spot—until the wheel paddles should beat along the border of the well known "graveyard" of the bay.

The saloon door opened and a girl and an old man, both laden with bundles, came out—the man with a rancher's sun-brown face, stooping shoulders and toil-hardened hands, the girl, plainly his daughter, tall, straight and comely after the wholesome, honest country fashion. The close warmth of the brilliantly lighted interior had driven these two out into the damp coolness of the enveloping fog, and the man sitting just before the wheel emerged from the gloomy calm of his dying meditations to swear roundly, under his breath, as they sat down near him.

Then he raised his head and looked at them surlily, mentally cursing the relentless fate which even at this last minute interfered between him and his nearly accomplished plan. He must go to the other side of the boat now; but as he rose and the light of the saloon windows fell on his face the girl put out her hand suddenly and cordially.

"Why, Jim!" she exclaimed with frank friendliness; and then: "How oddly things happen! This is the first time I've come down to the bay since I came back from Nevada, and here you are, that none of us have seen nor heard of for over three years!"

And then "father" greeted the old-time 'neighbor's boy" in friendly fashion also and made room for him to sit between them that they might share his welcome presence equally.

It was impossible to get away from them at once without absolute rudeness; and after the first the man who had cherished the thought of death in his heart all that long wretched day did not feel that he wished to. He could attend to that matter just as well on the return trip, and meanwhile it was pleasant, during these fast-ebbing minutes of his doomed life, to talk of old times and old friends, and this breath from his old country home seemed to blow the cobwebs from his drink-drugged brain and give him fleeting glimpses of possibilities that might have been his were it not now irrevocably too late.

He went with them to their train, helping to carry their bundles and piloting them safely through the bewildering eddies of the pushing, elbowing, excitedly hurrying crowd that the boat disgorged upon the Oakland dock. Then, as in the car he busied himself for a last minute in arranging for their comfort, some vague heavenly hint of his dire need of instant unquestioning human help came out of the invisible and touched the girl's white soul.

She looked with sudden comprehension at his worn face, his somber eyes and his tremulous hands, and then as he raised his hat and turned to leave them she caught his sleeve with timid, entreating fingers.

"Come and begin the New Year with us," she said. "The city has not been kind to you, but the country always was. You will grow back to your old self up in the foothills, and afterward—if you care to stay—there is work in plenty."

He looked down at her upturned face and the insistent voices that had all day been calling him from the bay's always yearning "graveyard" grew fainter and died into silence.

"Come with us," echoed the father, and the light pressure of the girl's fingers on his arm held him captive.

The train shuddered into motion, and then, moving faster and faster through the crosslights of the deserted pier, bore the three away toward the beckoning promise of the New Year.—Florence Mathesan.

REBELS ARE AGAIN ACTIVE

PRESIDENT CASTRO HAS INTERNAL TROUBLES ON HIS HANDS ALSO.

LIVELY ENGAGEMENT REPORTED

ARMISTICE BETWEEN GOVERNMENT AND REBELS HAS EXPIRED.

WILL MAKE ANY CONCESSION

VENEZUELA NOW EXTREMELY ANXIOUS TO GET OUT OF TROUBLE.

Willemstad, Curacao, Dec. 29.—The Venezuelan revolutionists have again resumed active hostilities against President Castro.

There occurred yesterday morning a lively engagement between 1,200 revolutionists under Gen. Riera and the government forces at Canyarno, in the vicinity of Coro. Details of the engagement are lacking, but it is known here that the revolutionists had artillery. The government forces were commanded by Gen. Refereno Castillo. Gen. Riera maintained his position.

The armistice between the government and the revolutionists has just expired.

Gen. Zolio Vidal and five other leading supporters of Gen. Matos, who had sought refuge here, last night left the island of Curacao in a sailboat which took them in the direction of Cumarebo, near Coro, on the Venezuelan coast. The departure of these men is taken as proof that the revolt against President Castro is again active.

Will Make Any Concession.

Caracas, Dec. 29. — United States Minister Bowen and Lopez Baralt, Venezuelan minister of foreign affairs, held a long conference last night. Mr. Bowen, obeying instructions from Washington, conveyed to Senor Baralt President Roosevelt's refusal to act as arbitrator in the Venezuelan difficulty. He recommended that the matter be taken to the international peace court at The Hague.

As a result of this conference Senor Baralt telegraphed President Castro to return from La Victoria. The president will reach here to-day and Venezuela's answer to the foregoing proposal will be given then. It is understood that Venezuela will make any concession, even abandoning her demand that her navy be returned.

Senor Baralt has prepared the following statement for the Associated Press:

"Venezuela agrees to pay all her debts, the payments to be guaranteed by a certain percentage of the customs receipts or by the flotation of a special loan, also to be guaranteed. I believe the proposal to submit the issues to The Hague will be acceptable to President Castro. I am sorry that President Roosevelt was unable to act as arbitrator."

Notes Sent to Bowen.

Washington, Dec. 29. — The Venezuelan government is now in possession of the complete notes of Great Britain and Germany containing the various reservations made by these governments before the decision was reached that the issues between Venezuela and the European governments having claims against her should be referred to The Hague tribunal for arbitration. The United States having acted as an intermediary in the steps leading up to the acceptance of arbitration now turns over to the Venezuelan government the formal work of completing the basis for a full hearing before The Hague. The notes were transmitted to the Venezuelan government through United States Minister Bowen at Caracas.

There were no new features to the situation here yesterday. Officials are hopeful that the governments interested will work harmoniously and conscientiously to reach an early and final solution of the trouble. The administration is anxious that there soon may be an amelioration of the blockade.

ORIENTAL DISASTER.

Sixty Lives Lost by the Sinking of a Steamer.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 29.—News was brought by the steamer Tartar, which arrived yesterday, of a disaster in the Malacca straits, as a result of which sixty lives were lost. The Tokyo Ashi publishes a telegram from Hongkong stating that the steamer Kiang Yan was sunk in the Malacca straits and that sixty sailors and passengers are missing.

Peddling Oleo Is Illegal.

Washington, Dec. 29.—Commissioner Yerkes of the internal revenue bureau has decided that under existing laws a special stamp tax for peddling oleomargarine cannot be issued, and, therefore, any one who sells the commodity in that way is liable to special tax at each separate place where sales are made.

Entombed in Burning Mine.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 29.—A fire has occurred in a coal mine at Bachmut, Ekatorinoslav province. A hundred miners were under the ground when the fire started. Twenty of these have been rescued, but it is feared that the others have succumbed.

Jollies Gen. Miles.

Pekin, Dec. 29. — The dowager empress and Lieut. Gen. Miles exchanged flattering speeches at Saturday's audience, the dowager assuring the general that the "success of the American army was assured under a commander so celebrated." The emperor never spoke during the audience.

Severe Earthquake Shock.

Rome, Dec. 29—A severe earthquake shock was experienced at Syracuse, Sicily, last evening. It was preceded by subterranean rumblings.

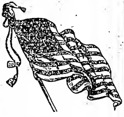
WEDNESDAY, DEC. 31, 1902.



Binger Herman, commissioner of the general land office, has resigned in response to a request from the secretary of the interior. He will be succeeded by Wm. A. Richards, now assistant commissioner of the general land office. Just why Mr. Mr. Herman's resignation was requested is somewhat of a mystery, but it is said that the office might have had less "irregularities." However, he is down and out, and, in the language of the St. Paul Dispatch, he will "doubtless join the throng of back numbers who haunt the scenes of former greatness; political astral bodies, unrecognized, unseen."

It looks as though the new year would begin in a peaceful manner. Uncle Sam is not having any trouble to speak of with the Filipino insurgents. South Africa is positively quiet and the Venezuelan question is going to The Hague for settlement. All the world seems peacefully inclined and if we expect to find trouble, national or international, congress may hustle it out. There is all kinds of possibilities in the coming session of our national law-makers.

Strange how coal tons grow smaller from mine to bin. The operator wants the miner to pile up over 3,000 pounds for a ton; he sells to the dealer at the rate of 2,240 pounds to the ton, and the dealer gives the consumer 2,000 for his ton. And, strangely, too, when the dealer talks coal prices to you he never mentions that little extra 240 pounds which he withholds. We fear that there are tricks even in coal.—St. Paul Dispatch.

The Duluth News-Tribune is taking a place in the front ranks of "yellow journalism." The issue of last Sunday contained a highly colored account of the disappearance of Miss Strassburger, of Crookston, and advanced various startling and weird theories to account for her disappearance. Sometimes the people take kindly to such "write-ups" and the more sensational they are the better they like 'em.

The year "1902" is ended and "1903" commences. The old year has been replete with progress and prosperity for the entire country. May the new year be equally progressive and prosperous for all.

Effective, but Dangerous.

To cleanse glass vases, carafes or bottles of any sort nothing is better than a little muriatic acid. A tablespoonful rinsed slowly around in a vase or decanter will cleanse it thoroughly, removing from the glass every particle of foreign matter. The acid can then be poured into another vase to perform the same office and even then returned to the bottle of supply for service on another occasion. After the acid is out of the vase or bottle the latter must be rinsed inside thoroughly first with hot soapsuds and then in several clear waters. Muriatic acid is a deadly poison and must be used with great caution and only by an intelligent adult. A child or servant should never be intrusted with its use.—New York Post.

Paper Hunting.

One of the most exciting of all riding games is paper hunting, or following a trail made by dropping pieces of paper. It can be made as dangerous as steeplechasing or no more so than an ordinary gallop over the fields. The danger is in the fences to be ridden over, says Country Life in America. There is no limit to the pace but the speed of the leading horse and the necessity of keeping the trail. The "hare," as the man a-horseback who lays the trail is called, is expected to foil his pursuers, the "hounds," as often as he can by the arts of the fox or by his own ingenuity, only restricted by certain rules of the game.

A NEWSPAPER SCOOP

HOW IT WAS OBTAINED WITHOUT ANY DEPARTMENT LEAK.

Sources of Information of Which the Alert and Quick Witted Correspondent Is Always Ready to Take Legitimate Advantage.

"Every once in awhile one reads in the newspapers of the determination of some one of the high government officials to discover the source of 'the leak' of a piece of news which it was not desired should be given out at that particular time," remarked an old Washington correspondent, "and without giving the solution to the secret escapes of public information, as they vary, I will tell you of one instance which serves to show how news appears in print in what is considered by all concerned to be a very mysterious manner. Like all mysteries, when unraveled it is wondered that it was not thought of before. My story is entirely a part of the secret sources of information which all correspondents have more or less at their disposal and which often comes from the outside and not from the inside of the departments.

"Some time ago—the precise time is not essential to the story—a very important public matter was up for determination by the president. All of the larger metropolitan dailies were particularly interested, as it did not have to do especially with Washington, and the entire correspondents' world of the capital was on the qui vive to 'get it,' including myself. All channels which were usually tapped by the initiated were found to be as barren as a desert stream in midsummer. Telegrams from the home offices poured into our various bureaus here couched in imperative language that the news 'must' be obtained, evidently in the belief that all correspondents have to do is to go out, ask officials for the desired information and receive it, coupled with a good cigar and a bottle of wine. As a matter of fact, when officials wish to keep secret a piece of information, all possible loopholes of escape are securely padlocked, and it is the exception that it gets out.

"I had about given up hope of securing a 'beat' in this particular instance, though I was, of course, as vigilant as ever. The time for the maturing of the project was close at hand, and any day it might by official announcement become public property. One night as I was sitting idly in the lobby of an uptown hotel, half dozing in my chair, waiting for the appearance of a senator with whom I had an appointment on an inconsequential matter, I overheard one of two gentlemen who were sitting behind me drop the words 'the president.' The high backs of our chairs nearly touched, and by instinct my drowsy senses became clear and I woke up.

"'The president,' remarked one of the gentlemen, 'said that it was his intention to adopt that course irrespective of the consequences either to himself or the party.'

"'But you pointed out to him what it meant to us—that he was clearly in error?' replied the other gentleman.

"'Elaborately,' responded the first speaker, 'but the president said that he was convinced that accruing results would prove that we, and not he, were in error.'

"'Then we may as well go back to New York tomorrow,' was the answer, and both gentlemen arose and walked toward the cafe, apparently in a very despondent frame of mind.

"I was an involuntary listener to this scrap of conversation, in which, it will be observed, not a single word was dropped as to the subject matter thereof. I at once jumped to the conclusion that the government, through the president's action, intended to take the affirmative of the proposition, the news side of which the correspondents had so long and earnestly endeavored to ascertain. With a straight tip as to the course of the government the correspondent could do the rest, while with the wrong tip he could not only make his paper ridiculous, but would in all probability lose his position; hence the care in making a scare head, page wide story.

"In the furtherance of my conclusion my paper had the 'beat' of the season the following morning, as I stated the facts as though they came from official sources, as, indeed, such I considered them. To my mind, as a correspondent, it was as clear as if the president himself had given me the information. Two days after a member of the cabinet gave out officially what I had wired over and with it the announcement that the 'leak' had occasioned much 'annoyance, and its source would be investigated thoroughly.' It is here given correctly for the first time."—Washington Star.

TOOL THAT ALMOST TALKS

Yet Its Complicated Mechanism Can Be Tended by a Girl.

The most highly developed of machine tools is the automatic screw machine, and, like many another contrivance for saving labor, its home is New England. It is a development of the ordinary steel working lathe, the intermediate step being the monitor lathe, in which the various cutting tools protrude from the side of a steel turret like thirteen inch guns from a battleship turret. In the nonautomatic screw machine the turret is revolved by the operator so as to bring each tool into play, just as the turret on the old Monitor was revolved to bring one gun after another into action. But in the automatic machine the work is done without human guidance.

In making screws, nuts, bolts, studs and other small pieces that must be turned, drilled or threaded for watches, clocks, typewriters, electrical instruments and other mechanisms all the operator has to do is to feed the "stock"—a long, thin rod of steel or brass—to the machine. The feeding mechanism carries the rod slowly forward into the field of action. The turret advances and puts its first tool at work on the end of the rod. When this tool has done its task, the turret withdraws it, turns and advances a second tool into action. Each cutting tool around the turret has its distinct work to perform—one cutting a thread, another shaping a head, another putting on a point, another drilling a hole, still another putting on knurling. The turret automatically brings each of perhaps six tools into action, and when the work is finished the completed screw drops into a pan, while the "stock" is automatically fed forward to begin the complex operation again. A stream of machine oil pours continuously on the work to carry away the heat, and the little metal cuttings collect in a heap under the machine.

Hour after hour this wonderful automaton goes through its cycle of operations, the turret clicking every moment as it brings a new tool forward. Small brass pieces, on which but one tool cuts, are dropped at the rate of four a second. Large screws of complicated design upon which a whole turretful of tools must work are cut from a steel rod at the rate of one or two a minute. So perfectly are these screw machines constructed that an unskilled workman can operate a row of them. All he is required to do is to keep them fed with "stock." In some shops girls tend the machines.—Success.

Death of J. C. Norby.

J. C. Norby, formerly editor of the Norman county Herald, died at his home near Ada on Monday evening. His death was the result of injuries received while loading some hogs at his farm. A plank struck him in the stomach, causing internal injuries which medical skill was powerless to relieve.

Mr. Norby has held many public positions of trust and at the time of his death was a member of the state Normal board to which he was appointed by Gov. Lind. He owned and edited the Norman County Herald for about 8 years, but has been living on his farm for the past two years. He leaves a widow and three children to mourn his death.

Agriculture in New Places.

The success of the modern farmer in difficult places is one of the wonders of our age. Alaska, for instance, commonly considered a land for only mining and fishing, is now yielding fairly good returns from cultivation along special lines. Western Montana, formerly a desert land, will produce more bushels of wheat to the acre, when under irrigation, than Minnesota or Iowa ever thought of yielding. For the same money, golden grain belt beer will do more to make the average man strong and healthy than bread and meat, and the man or woman with weak digestion finds it a tonic of the greatest value. Order of your nearest dealer, or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Clearwater County.

It has been decided that Clearwater county shall be cut off from Beltrami county and the village of Bagley will be the county seat. The new county will cover a territory fifty-four miles long and eighteen wide, and Bagley holds the logical location for the county seat. The set of men chosen for county officers are all well qualified for their positions and A. R. Holston, of Crookston, will look after its legal matters as county attorney.

HAPPENINGS IN ST. HILAIRE AS TOLD IN THE COLUMNS OF THE SPECTATOR, DECEMBER 1882.

WEDNESDAY, DEC 27.

Kretzschmar's new hall is to be opened on New Years with a grand ball. It is expected that a couple of sleighloads from this place will attend.

We understand that Mr. Kelly, of Crookston, has taken the contract of putting down an artesian well on Crocker Cundy & Nelson's addition. The machinery is on the way, and work will be commenced at once.

Geo. B. Winship, proprietor of the Grand Forks Herald, received for his Christmas gift an upholstered chair worth $65. This is something that very seldom falls to the lot of a newspaper man.

The saw mill being started here by Sorsoleil & Campbell commences operations this week. The firm has already a good supply of logs and will turn out lumber at a rapid rate. They will either saw on shares or by the thousand, and will have lumber for sale at their mill.

J. O. Milne passed through here on Saturday last enroute to his claim, which is situated about 15 miles up the Thief river. Besides some other household furniture he had on his sleigh a $350 organ, which he intends putting in his frontier mansion. Mr. Milne is an old printer having formerly been foreman of a paper in Hastings. He has also represented the old 41st district in the state senate. His claim on the Thief river is said to be a fine one, and he has it stocked with six horses, sixteen head of cattle, and chickens and pigs to match. He says he has been in this state twenty-five years, and has seen all the best land both here and in Dakota, but has never seen anything to equal the Thief River country, either in beauty of scenery or richness of soil. He will put in a large crop next spring and intends turning his whole attention to farming.

THE BIG FIVE FROM RED LAKE FALLS.

A sleighload of young bloods from Red Lake Falls, consisting of H. J. Kaufer, proprietor of the Headquarters hotel; J. M. Boyle, attorney at law; J. A. Langevin, of Langevin & Son; T. E. Champion, of Champion Bros., contractors and C. Battineau, of Bottineau Bros., butchers, came up to our Christmas ball on Monday evening last. They were a dandy crowd of lady-killers and the impression they made on the hearts of some of our belles will be lasting. They remained the "observed of all observers" until three o'clock, when they departed for their ancient but not yet extinct city. Here's our ☞ to the boys when they come again, as they were a gentlemanly set, and of the class that can enjoy themselves without becoming intoxicated.

MARRIED.

Johnson—Hoff—In St. Hilaire, at the residence of K. Steenerson, by K. O. Gigstad Esq., on the 27th inst., Ole J. Johnson to Isabelle B. Hoff.

This is the first marriage which has taken place in St. Hilaire, and the Spectator joins in wishing the contracting couple a long and happy life.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT.

To say that the entertainment given in Railson & William's hall on Monday night was a success would be saying the least. At an early hour people commenced flocking in from the country and by seven o'clock the hall was so crowded with people that there was danger of the floor giving away, and props had to be put under it. Previous to distributing the Christmas presents an address was given by G. H. Palmer, thanking the people for the liberal manner in which they had turned out to witness the first Christmas entertainment in the history of St. Hilaire. After the neat little speech the curtain was drawn from in front of the Christmas tree and displayed to the view of the anxious spectators a large and handsomely decorated spruce completely loaded down with valuable presents. A committee called out the names and 134 presents, consisting of silverware, china, albums, books, dresses, shawls, etc., etc., were given to the assembled multitude. After the presents had all been distributed, the floor was cleared, and a first class string band struck up the mazy waltz, in which both young and old freely joined. At 12 o'clock a good supper was served under the able supervision of Mrs. Clark, when all went back to the hall and paid homage to Terpsichore until the break of day. Much credit is due the committee—especially the ladies for the able manner in which the affair was gotten up. No one seemed to have been forgotten and it is safe to say there is not a child in town who will not remember last Monday as a particularly Merry Christmas through their kindness.

$40 Holiday Excursion Rates.

The Great Northern Railway is selling holiday excursion tickets to points in Ontario west of Montreal at $40.00 for the round trip. For points east of Montreal a small additional charge will be made. Tickets will be sold from December 1st to December 31st, good for three months from date of sale, with privilege of extention for a small extra charge, good for stop-over in either direction.

For information apply to your nearest ticket agent, O. Thorson, T. P. A., Grand Forks, N. D. or F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul, Minn.

ELECTRIFIED HOUSES.

The Simple Explanation of a Very Ordinary Phenomenon.

An instance of nonfamiliarity with simple scientific facts is illustrated by an article that goes the rounds of the press once or twice annually—namely, the story of the electrified house. The article usually states that some one has discovered that everything he touches in his house—the radiators, picture frames, banquet lamps, etc.—gives him an electric shock; hence he fears there is some connection between the arc light wires and the water pipes near his residence. The electric light inspector is therefore summoned and reports that the wires of his company are intact and that the electricity must come from some other source.

It does not dawn on any of the people consulted that the discoverer of the phenomenon is unconsciously performing one of the simplest and oldest of electrostatic experiments, the shuffling of his shoes over the dry carpet raising the potential of his body to several thousand volts, which discharge at every opportunity. One may even get electric discharges from his knuckles against the brass lock of a handbag which he may be carrying while walking on a stone pavement during cold, dry weather.

But, dismissing newspaper science, it is somewhat astonishing, in view of the many ways in which in cold, dry countries electricity is unintentionally developed and manifested by sparking, that the first knowledge concerning this phenomenon did not come to the ancients in this way rather than by the attraction of light substances by amber. The explanation of this, however, may be that the scientists of bygone days did not reside in cold, dry countries.—Cassier's Magazine.

Miss Alice Bailey, of Atlanta, Ga., tells how she was permanently cured of inflammation of the ovaries, escaped surgeon's knife, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I had suffered for three years with terrible pains at the time of menstruation, and did not know what the trouble was until the doctor pronounced it inflammation of the ovaries, and proposed an operation.

"I felt so weak and sick that I felt sure that I could not survive the ordeal. The following week I read an advertisement in the paper of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in such an emergency, and so I decided to try it. Great was my joy to find that I actually improved after taking two bottles, and in the end I was cured by it. I had gained eighteen pounds and was in excellent health." — MISS ALICE BAILEY, 50 North Boulevard Atlanta, Ga. — $5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The symptoms of inflammation and disease of the ovaries are a dull throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and heat low down in the side, with occasional shooting pains. The region of pain sometimes shows some swelling.

EMPEROR'S KINDLY ACT.

Austria's Ruler Has a Kind Heart—Gave Protection to a Widow.

Whatever his faults, it cannot be denied that Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria has a kind heart. Not long ago the widow of a certain colonel, being by the rules of the service, unentitled to a pension, had an audience of the emperor-king to beg him to grant her one as an act of grace.

His majesty granted her request and graciously dismissed her. Then some candid friend in the anteroom turned the smiles of the widow into the wanness of despair by gratuitously informing her that, as the sovereign had not attached his signature to her petition, this was as good as dismissal. She, therefore, burst into such a paroxysm of weeping that his majesty came from the audience room to see what was wrong. When he discovered how matters stood, he ordered a thousand gulden be given to the widow from his privy purse, and, for the benefit of his candid friend and others like him, gave (after the manner of the Eastern caliph) utterance to what may pass into the language as a proverb: "An emperor's word needs not the confirmation of his signature."

Popular in Iowa.

Grand View, Iowa, Dec. 28th.—The most complete satisfaction is expressed in this district over results obtained recently by using Dodd's Kidney Pills for those complaints resulting from diseased Kidneys. This satisfaction finds frequent expression in words. People who have been cured seem to take pleasure in telling of it. Take what Mrs. Lydia Parker says, for example:

"I was troubled with Back Ache," says Mrs. Parker. "And all the time when I was stooping over a stitch would take me in the back, and I could not straighten up for a while.

"I sent and got a couple of boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and before I had finished taking the first, the stitch had gone, and it has not been back since."

Other people here have had similar experiences with Dodd's Kidney Pills and their popularity is steadily on the increase.

MANGLED IN WRECK

TWENTY-EIGHT LIVES CRUSHED OUT IN AN ONTARIO DISASTER.

TERRIFIC HEAD-ON COLLISION

THIRTY PERSONS RECEIVE SERIOUS INJURIES — ALL WILL RECOVER.

OPERATOR IS HELD RESPONSIBLE

RAGING BLIZZARD ADDS TO THE HORRORS OF THE DISASTER.

London, Ont., Dec. 29.—In the head-on collision Friday night near Wanstead on the Grand Trunk railway between a west-bound passenger train and a fast freight, twenty-eight persons were killed and thirty were injured.

While several of the injured are still in a serious condition, it is expected that all will recover.

Many of the dead were mutilated and the snow about the wreckage was crimson with blood.

The Pacific express was two hours late and running at high speed when it reached Wanstead. The freight was trying to make a siding, but failed. When the through train struck the freight there was a disastrous crash. The locomotives reared their pilots high in the air and tumbled into the ditch. The baggage car of the express train telescoped with the smoking car and here the death list was made. The Pullman sleepers did not leave the rails and their occupants escaped except for bruises.

Blizzard Adds to Horror.

The darkness of night and the raging of a blizzard added horrors to the wreck. Fortunately, the fire horror was averted.

In the blinding snowstorm neither engineer saw the other train approaching, apparently. The shock was awful. The trains came together squarely head-on. In a second the baggage and express cars of the passenger train telescoped into the day coach. This day coach was reduced to splinters and fragments back to the last three windows.

It was crowded with human beings, and the resultant loss of life and injury was harrowing. For three hours or more, wounded and maimed passengers were pinned underneath wreckage, crying piteously for help while they suffered from exposure to the elements.

Exposure undoubtedly hastened the death of some of the more seriously injured. The bodies were taken from the wreck frightfully mangled, some of them almost beyond recognition.

Operator's Story.

Andrew Corson, the operator at Watford, the first station east of the wreck, whose failure to deliver orders to Conductor McAuliffe of the express train, to pass freight at Wanstead, is said by the Grand Trunk officials to have caused the wreck, yesterday afternoon made his first statement since the wreck. He says he received the order for No. 5, the express, to pass the freight at Wanstead at 9:48 o'clock, but declares positively that a few minutes later Dispatcher J. G. Kerr at London, called him and ordered him to "bust," or cancel the order. He said:

"About 9:45 o'clock, after calling Wyoming and ascertaining that the freight was there, the dispatcher called me rapidly a half dozen times. When I answered on the wire he told me to 'bust' this order. I wrote 'bust it' across the order just as No. 5 was coming in. After the train had started and was out of reach the dispatcher learned the freight had left Wyoming. I told him I

Could Not Stop

No. 5, as it had left. He immediately began calling King's Court Junction, the station between Watford and Wanstead on the railroad wire, and I tried to raise them on a commercial wire. We both failed to do this, however, until the express had passed the junction."

Corson admitted that he knew it was against the rules of the company to cancel a train order without sending a substitute for it, but he said that the dispatcher was his superior officer and he disliked to question his order or dispute his authority for taking this action.

The order book to the local Grand Trunk office does not show that the order was "busted" or canceled, as Corson claims. According to the book it was still in force and should have been delivered to the conductor of the express.

Kerr has made no statement, not even to the railway officials, and will not until he takes the stand at the inquest.

Brakeman Killed.

New Richmond, Wis., Dec. 29.—F. E. Keuhnast, a brakeman on a west-bound Wisconsin Central freight train, was instantly killed in this city last night shortly after midnight. It is supposed he was trying to board the train as it was pulling out of the depot and fell between the cars and platform. He was about twenty-five years old and single. His home was in Stevens Point. Deceased served throughout the Spanish-American war in the Philippines.

Doctor Threatens Woman.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Dec. 29.—Dr. O. B. Beller, a prominent physician of Garrison, has been arrested on the charge of threatening to kill his former fiancee, a Miss Hall of Vinton, who married another man Christmas.

Sheriff Is Ousted.

Sullivan, Ind., Dec. 29.—Gov. Durbin has notified Sheriff John S. Dudley that he is no longer to consider himself a public officer because he permitted a mob to take a prisoner from him and lynch him.

AIRSHIP PRIZE.

Paris, Dec. 24.—It is announced that the prize offered by the Academy of Science for the best work in the construction of airships will be divided between the brothers, Col. and Maj. Renard, the well known aeronauts.

The United States Steel corporation has purchased the Champion mine at Champion, Mich., and the large track of adjoining iron ore lands for the reported consideration of $2,000,000.

STEEL TRUST IS AGGRESSIVE.

It Is Thought to Have Secured Control of the Mesaba Range.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 29.—The United States Steel corporation is exhibiting a remarkable aggressiveness just now in the ore and mining fields. It is evidently gathering in all the mines and ore lands in the lake region that it can. While steel mills can be built by any man who has the price, ore mines cannot, and a hold of the source of ore supply available for the eastern part of the United States will make it hold on the trade stronger than any other possible investment. For this reason it secured the Sharon and Union Steel companies, and since then has bought the Champion mine, near Republic, which was owned in Boston and was almost the only property left in the lake country without steel mill or transportation connections. For this mine and surrounding lands the steel corporation is said to have paid $2,000,000, but this is supposed to be above the actual figure. The corporation has also made a deal with J. J. Hill for his ore lands on the Mesaba range that are not in the hands of other concerns. Mr. Hill's road is to have the haul and Mr. Hill's personal companies which own the fees of these lands are to have a royalty on all ore mined and shipped, making a very large source of income to the Great Northern and Mr. Hill. It is impossible to tell how much ore this deal covers, but in any event it practically puts the control of the Mesaba range in the hands of the steel corporation.

WISCONSIN RANCH.

Three Thousand Acres Near Ladysmith May Be Fenced.

Ladysmith, Wis., Dec. 29.—E. J. McGowan, F. W. Tubbs and others of Chicago who have a large tract of land south of Ladysmith, are making preparations to fence 3,000 acres in the spring and to place a large amount of live stock on the place. The men interested are figuring on buying 4,500 ewe sheep in Montana this winter, leaving them on the range there until spring and then bringing them here to pasture during the summer. They also contemplate putting on from 100 to 300 well-bred heifers and raise cattle.

AGED COUPLE BURNED.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Phelps of West Union Die in the Flames.

Osakis, Minn., Dec. 29. — Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Phelps, an aged couple living alone at West Union, a small village seven miles east of here, were burned to death. A barking dog awoke neighbors who endeavored to get into the burning house, but were driven back by smoke and heat. The house was totally destroyed and the bodies cremated. The aged couple were too feeble to get out of the building. They were nearly eighty years old and pioneer residents of Todd county.

TO DIVIDE A MILLION.

Heirs of Late F. C. Shattuck to Get Much Wealth.

Oshkosh, Wis., Dec. 29.—The four heirs of the late F. C. Shattuck of Neenah will have nearly $1,000,000 divided among them. The executors were discharged Saturday and a division of the estate ordered. The amount of personal property left after the expenses of administration is $818,000. There is real estate to the value of about $100,000 more. The four heirs are the widow, Mrs. Clara A. Shattuck, her sons, Sydney and Arthur T. Shattuck, and daughter, Vina Shattuck, all of Neenah.

WILL KEEP SON IN JAIL.

Sheriff-Elect Does Not Want Youth to Marry.

Miller, S. D., Dec. 29.—Bert Abbott, son of Sheriff-elect Abbott, nineteen years old, eloped with Ida Parkhurst. They were brought back last night by Sheriff Wilcox, after trying to get a marriage license in four different counties. The boy's father, who will soon take the office of sheriff, says he will keep his son in jail his entire term rather than have him get married when so young. All are highly connected here.

CONDUCTOR ENDS LIFE.

Unrequited Love Said to Be the Cause.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 29.—Thomas D. Landon, a conductor in the employ of the Duluth, Messabe & Northern road, committed suicide yesterday at Proctor Knot by drinking a quantity of carbolic acid. Unrequited love was the cause of his rash act, it is supposed. He left a couple of letters, one addressed to "Lena," requesting that she keep his grave green. Another was addressed to a friend, urging that his parents be not notified of his downfall.

BOYS BURN IN BED.

Clothing Ignited by Oil Heater and Death Results.

Milwaukee, Dec. 29.—The igniting of the bed clothing from an oil heater caused the death of two children of Mrs. George Campbell, residing at 225 Greenbush street. Mrs. Campbell's husband was the inventor and part owner of the diving bell which was used to uncover the copper from the Pewabic, which foundered in Lake Superior several years ago, in which attempt he lost his life.

Killed at a Crossing.

Brodhead, Wis., Dec. 29. — John Duffy, formerly a prominent farmer in this city, but for some years past a resident of Baird, Iowa, was killed with his daughter by being run down by a train. They were attempting to cross in front of it with a team and sleigh.

Death in Gas.

Milwaukee, Dec. 27.—Peter O'Brien and wife, aged respectively sixty and fifty-eight years, died at their home, 504 Sixth avenue, of asphyxiation, from fuel gas which escaped from a tube attached to a portable stove.

Mail Carrier Missing.

Miller, S. D., Dec. 29.—Mail Carrier Richardson, whose route is southwest from here, has failed to return after an absence of ten days. Whether it is impassable roads or an accident that keeps him out is not known.

Astor's Gift to Hospital.

London, Dec. 27.—William Waldorf Astor has given £50,000 to the hospital for sick children in Great Ormond street to build a new out-patient department. The building will be dedicated to Mr. Astor's young daughter, Gwendolin, who died recently.

Increases His Gift.

Ishpeming, Mich., Dec. 27.—Andrew Carnegie has raised his donation to Ishpeming for a new library from $20,000 to 25,000. The city recently purchased a site and a building will be erected in the spring.

In These Automobile Days.

The earnest young man in the shabby clothes spent several hours every day in the reference department of the library, and, finally, one of the attendants spoke to him.

"You seem to be studying hard?" suggested the attendant.

"I am," replied the man. "I spent a month in a machine shop, and now I am reading up on machinery."

"Expect to invent something?"

"Oh, no."

"Perhaps you aim to get sufficient theoretical knowledge to outstrip the other men, and become a foreman, or superintendent, or something of that sort?"

"Not at all."

"Does the study of machinery fascinate you?"

"No; I find it very tiresome."

"Then, what is your aim?"

"I'm studying to be a coachman."—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Moon Blind," Said the Stranger.

Flagman Durham, of the Dudley station of the Pennsylvania railroad's Camden annex district, had just left the flag house to flag an approaching train, early one morning recently, when he saw a man sitting on the track, apparently asleep. He hustled the stranger from the track just as the train passed. The man refused to give his name. He was perfectly sober, and said to the watchman:

"I didn't know where I was sitting. I'm a stranger here. When I visited the town last night I was attacked with 'moon blind,' and couldn't see. I wandered after that, believing I would recover my sight."

He was cared for, and, strange to state, when the moon disappeared, he says he partly regained his sight, and went on rejoicing.—Philadelphia Record.

THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME

ARE NEVER WITHOUT PERUNA IN THE HOUSE FOR CATARRHAL DISEASES.

MR. AND MRS. J. O. ATKINSON, INDEPENDENCE, MO.

UNDER date of January 10, 1897, Dr. Hartman received the following letter:

"My wife had been suffering from a complication of diseases for the past 25 years.

"Her case had baffled the skill of some of the most noted physicians. One of her worst troubles was chronic constipation of several years' standing.

"She also was passing through that most critical period in the life of a woman—change of life. In June, 1895, I wrote to you about her case. You advised a course of Peruna and Manalin, which we at once commenced, and have to say it completely cured her. She firmly believes that she would have been dead only for these wonderful remedies.

"About the same time I wrote you about my own case of catarrh, which had been of 25 years' standing. At times I was almost past going. I commenced to use Peruna according to your instructions and continued its use for about a year, and it has completely cured me.

"Your remedies do all that you claim for them, and even more. Catarrh cannot exist where Peruna is taken according to directions. Success to you and your remedies."

John O. Atkinson.

In a letter dated January 1, 1900, Mr. Atkinson says, after five years' experience with Peruna:

"I will ever continue to speak a good word for Peruna. In my rounds as a traveling man I am a walking advertisement for Peruna and have induced many people during the past year to use Peruna with the most satisfactory results. I am still cured of catarrh."

John O. Atkinson,
Box 272, Independence, Mo.

When old age comes on, catarrhal diseases come also. Systemic catarrh is almost universal in old people.

This explains why Peruna has become so indispensable to old people. Peruna is their safe-guard. Peruna is the only remedy yet devised that meets these cases exactly.

Such cases cannot be treated locally; nothing but an effective systemic remedy could cure them. This is exactly what Peruna is.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Rheumatism?

WHY SUFFER LONGER?

RHEUMO

The latest scientific medical discovery of the age, is a guaranteed cure for rheumatism, lumbago, sprains, stiff joints, etc. RHEUMO is a powerful liniment that penetrates immediately, affecting the tissues that surround the large joints, also attacks the ligaments, tendons and muscles.

HENRY H. ROBERTS, for ten years a clerk at the West Hotel Drug Store, says:

"I was confined to my bed for two weeks with lumbago. A physician prescribed for me, but I received no relief from his medicine. RHEUMO was recommended by a friend, and it affords me pleasure to state that after using one bottle I was up and felt as well as ever. RHEUMO is certainly a wonderful liniment, and I shall always say a good word for your remedy."

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. The genuine article may be bought anywhere of all reliable druggists at fifty cents per bottle. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only.
